

Narrator: Bert Geddy
Interviewer: Lindsey Hayes
Interview Date: 3.27.09
Interview Time: 9:00-10:30 am

Equipment: Sony ICD-ST25 [or ICD-MX20] Digital Voice Recorder (SP setting); 2 RadioShack lapel condenser microphones (70-16,000 Hz frequency response)

On March 27th, 2009 I interviewed Bert Geddy for the Williamsburg Documentary Project. The interview was conducted in the microform room on the first floor of Swem Library at the College of William & Mary. No indexer was present. Mr. Geddy is a lifelong resident of Toano, Virginia. His family has lived in the area for well over two hundred years. During his youth he worked on several local farms to make money. He discusses in detail the changes that have occurred to the town of Toano during his lifetime, particularly the changes related to farming. He also discusses his service in the military, his service as a volunteer fireman, and his hobbies.

--Lindsey Hayes, May 4, 2009