Poetry,

THE PUZZELD DUTCHMAN.

I'm a proken-hearted Deuthsher
Vot's villed mit crief and shame;
I dells you vot der drouble ish—
I does't know my name.

You dinks dis very funny, eh?
Ven you der story hear,
You will not wonder den so much,
It was so strange and queer.

Mein moder had two little twins,
Dey was me and mein broder',
Ve lookt so ferry mooch alike,
No von knew vich vrom toder.

Von ov der poys was 'Yawcup,'
Und 'Hans' der oder's name,
But den it makes no tifferent,
Ve both get called der same.

Vell von ov us got tead—
Yaw Myuher, dat ish so!
But vedder Hans or Yawcup,
Mein moder she ton't know.

Und so I am in droubles,
I gan't git droo mein hed
Vedder I'm than's vot's lfiing,
Or Yawcup vot ish tead!

Selected Story.

THE OUT-WITTED FATHER.

PART I.

'And so, sir, this is your decission?'

'Honor, father, forbids any other.'

'Do you mean to say, sir, that you are engaged to the girl?'

'Not exactly. I await her decision?

'Then you have proposed?'

'I have, sir.'

'And you have resolved to marry Miss Cameron, and not Miss Dashwood?'

'If Miss Cameron will accept me.'

'Very well, sir, very well! This is your gratitude—this your filial duty! you self-willed, ungrateful dog, in return for the trouble I've had with you—the efforts I've made to secure for you the best match in the country. Here is a fine, handsome, dashing young woman, rich and belonging to one of the first families in the country, whom you throw aside for the sake of a pale-faced chit of a clergyman's daughte.'

"Father!'

'Don't father me, sir—don't interrupt me—don't speak to me again. Get out of my sight but remember, the day you marry Lena Cameron you will cease to be a son of mine. I'll disinherit you Sir, and leave all I have to the new orphan assylum.'

Such was the scene enacted in Squire Chester's parlor—a scene frequently presented upon the stage to sympathyzing and delighted crowds—an irate father, portly, red faced and loud voiced, with hands beneath his coat tails, a la Pickwick, and eyes glaring wrathfully through gold rimmed spectacles, upon a handsome but undutiful son, bent upon wedding the object of his soul's idolatry against his father's wishes. Yet in this instance it was no mere acting but on the part of each, serious and resolute determination.

To add to the dramatic effect at the moment in which the Squire's last words were spoken, a fair and delicate looking girl, who was about entering the room catching the sound of the angry voice, paused an instant with her hand on the door knob, as if hesitating whether to enter. And thus it happened that she heard her own name coupled with the threat already mentioned,

She turned then and glided swiftly up the stairs to her own room. Locking the door, she threw herself on a couch and burying her face in the pillows, remained a long time quite motionless.—She did not weep but when she at length arose her face was very, very pale, and her sweet blue eyes had a haggard look of suffering painful to witness in one so young.

Seating herself at the table, she drew towards her a writing desk and wrote as follows;

'DEAR COUSIN PHILLIP.—

Since our interview of yesterday I have thought the matter over and have come to the conclusion that it will be best that we shall not marry. Do not blame me, do not question me, ever I have reasons which I cannot explain, but act as I think will be best for us both.

LENA.'

'Where is Miss cameron?' asked Phillip of the servant who handed him this note.

'Gone over to Elmwood sir, to her aunt, Mrs. Page, I heard her say she should stay there untill her return to the city in a few days.'

An hour later Phillip Chester was on his way to Elmwood. The path was lonely, leading through a sequestered wood, and he was consequently surprised when at an abrupt turning, he came face to face with a young lady, very handsome and attired in a rich riding habit and floating plume. Phillip lifted his hat respectfully and would have passed on, but the lady paused full in the path before him.

'Excuse me—you are Mr. Phillip Chester.'

He bowed.

'And I'm Josephine Dashwood!'

In his surpize he hardly knew what to say.

'I did not know—I was not aware of Miss Dashwood's being in the neghborhood.'

'I dare say not. You were expecting, perhaps, you and your honored father, to behold me for the first time at the residence of my uncle and guardian, Simon Walker Esq. But you see I was too anxious to wait, so I concluded to run down for a day or two to Elmwood on the strength of Mrs. Page being an old friend of my mother. I wanted to see you Mr. Chester.'

'You do me honor,' said Phillip puzzled in what manner to treat this frank avoval. The young lady meanwhile played with her horse's mane.

'I am glad of this accidental meeting,' she resumed, 'for I was just thinking how it would be possible to obtain a private interview.'

Philip stared.

'I believe,' she continued coolly, 'that there has been some arrangement made concerning us by those two old—I mean by you much honored father and my highly respectable uncle—a little matrimonial scheme, if I am not mistaken—Very kind of them, doubtless, though it might have been kinder to have left us to choose for ourselves and be happy in our own way.'

A faint gleam af hope began to dawn upon Phillip

'I want to tell you a secret, Mr. Chester. May I trust you?'

'If you will do me the honor, he replied still coldly.

'Ah, I see you don't like me, but you will after a while. This is my secret: I am in love; pray don't be alarmed—not with you,'

'Thank you,' said he almost involuntarily.

'With a very handsome, very clever, very [illegible] young gentleman,' resumed Miss Dashwood, with [illegible] seriousness, 'but poor. And you are in love with one as equally perfect, but suffering under the same stigma.'

She looked at him seriously now, with her dark eyes, and he met the gaze frankly,

'Now we understand each other,' she said, resuming her former tone and manner; 'and now we can act as seems best to us under the circumstances. It won't do to rebel openly against these two old fogies, beg them pardon, those wise and venerable old gentlemen; but we can manage quietly to circumvent them, and have our own way, cant we?'

'Perhaps you have found some plan to that effect?' said Philip, half amused and half interested.

'You shall hear. I am told that your dear father admires 'dashing' ladies, wants a dashing daughter-in law as mistress of his establishment. You will dine to-morrow at Elmwood. Be sure not to disappoint Mrs. Page, who knows all about it, and takes a motherly interest in the affair. We will see whether the old gentleman is satisfied with his chosen daughter-in-law. But whatever occurs, your role, remember is to be perfectly charmed. Will you accept your part Mr. Chester?'

Half laughing, half wondering, he agreed. And so they rode on together through the shadowy woodpath; Philip Chester liking his companion far better than he had previously thought possible of Miss Dashwood.

PART II.

Scene second, act first, transports us to the drawing-room, where sat the good lady Mrs. Page, in all the formal dignity of a country dinner dress, endeavoring to entertain some half dozen guests, of whom Squire Chester was one. Seated near an open window he was anxiously awaiting the appearance of Miss Dashwood, with a vague hope as to the effect which might thereby be produced upon his undutiful son. That self-willed young man lounged near, cheerfully conversing with a lady, while Lena Cameoon, very pale and quiet, was bending over a bit of embroidery, with fingers that trembled a little, and eyes that were rarely uplifted.

Suddenly the sharp notes of a bugle pierced the ears of the assembled company.

'There is Joe?' said Mrs Page, 'I am glad that she is come, as now we can have dinner,'

'Joe?' doubtfully inquired one of the lady guests.

The squire looked from the window, as invited and beheld a figure in a man's hat and coat as he thought and a woman skirt dashing full speed up the avenue toward the house, with half a dozen dogs accompanying. Springing unassisted for the ground she proceeded to unloosen the saddle and throw it to the ground then walked several times around the horse, evidently examining into his condition and discussing the same with the groom, who had now appeared:

If Squire Chester regarded this unexpected appearance of his son's chosen wife with any emotions of surprise or disappointment he at least did not express it. On the contrary, he bowed and shook hands with true old school gallantry and courtesy, as that young lady presently entered the room, followed by two of the dogs aforesaid, to whom she whistled an encouragement to enter.

'Oh, my dear, the dogs!' remonstrated Mrs Page, piteously; 'we are not accustomed to have them in the drawing room,' [illegible] leave the dogs in the drawing room. Why, I have mine with me every where, and all over the house Couldn't do without them I declare. Like dogs sir?' she inquired, with a pretty drawl, of her future father-in-law.'

'Very much—in their proper place. The old gentleman felt constrained to say To which Miss Dashwood replied with a just perceptibly shrug of her graceful shoulder and then they went into dinner

'No turkey, thank you' said she; 'I never take fowl—it's only fit for invalids and babies: so insipid. I'll take the roast beef rare, if you please though I prefer steak and onions'

And besprinkling the gory slice with an abundance of cayenne sauce, Miss Dashwood commenced her repast while the Squire turned away, his eyes meeting those of Lena Cameron, his wife's niece who had been regarding these proceeding of the 'dashing' young lady with an expression akin to horror. Poor child, she was not in the secret. But the Squire thought as he looked at her, how very delicate and refined, and lady-like she appeared.

Miss Dashwood declined sherry, but accepted a little port instead—though expressing a preference for French brandy and water. It was quite the 'style,' now for ladies to prefer brandy, indeed some even professed a partiality for Bourbon, though she herself considered it inferior to brandy in point of taste and real refreshment: and the Squire felt provoked at the assiduity with which the son refilled the young lady's glass and listened admiringly to all she said.

'Give us some music, dear,' said Mrs Page, when they were again in the drawing room. And the Squire who was devoted to music, looked up and brightened it was one of his favorite anticipations of his sons wife playing to him and soothing him in his after-dinner hours with the melodies he loved. And now he came up to the piano and stood expectant

Miss Dashwood played a rattling prelude, and then suddenly broke into a bravura, which caused one lady to vacate her seat near the instrument. The Squire undaunted kept his post, until a hunters song with all the accompaniment of 'horn, hound and rider haloo', overcame even his courtesy and he too retreated.

'Now Lena, one of your favorites,' said her aunt, quietly: and the girl sat down and in a sweet, low and somewhat plaintive voice, sang

'Bonnie Doon,' and 'Annie Laurie.'

'That's the music that I like,' remarked Squire Chester to his hostress, sotto voice—'Those charming old songs are worth all the modern fal-de-rals that have ever been written' And he looked thoughtfully at Mis Dashwood and then at Miss Cameron. Likewise he hearkened to the discourse now going on between the former and his son.

'I do so dote on horses,' observed the young lady, 'I couldn't be happy under any circumstances, without at least two of my own a rider and a hunter. I delight in hunting wherever it is to be had and generally on that account pass my summer's among the mountains, though deer are becoming scarce, and woodcock almost as much so. I wish we had fox hunting here in England. I prefer novel's where fox hunting comes in Guy Livingston, for instance. What a spendid fellow he was and what a hum drum country is ours where there is hardly anything to amuse one except the theatres. If I had my way I should be an actress. Don't you think so Mr Chester?'

'Capital responded the young man, with emphasis and a pleased half amused and half earnest look which didn't escape his watchful sire though he might not understand it.

'He's a ninny' was the mental reflection of the latter. What sort of a wife should such a woman make?' was his next involuntary thought, until it suddenly occured to him with something like a shock, that this was really, after all the women he had chosen for his son's wife for his daughter-in-law for the mistress of his house and household. And again he looked at Lena very kinkly this time

'You must see my Beelzebub,' resumed Miss Dashwood, enthusiastically; such a charming creature so full of spirit yet so tractable and affectionate that I assure you sir,' addressing the Squire, 'he'll walk into the breakfast room and drink out of your coffee cup at the table.'

This assurance appeared to have no particular charm fer Squire Chester for he turned away with very little ceremony. Miss Dashwood went up stairs on some errand and they heard her whistling as she crossed the hall.

'Phillip,' whispered the Squire, 'I think we had better be going'

'Not yet sir, Miss Dashwood is about to show me her new pistols; then she will teach me a new game of cards and afterwards we're to go to the stables.'

'To go where?'

To the stables, sir, to look at the horses'

The Squire cast on him a look of concentrated indignation.

'Is that—is Miss D[illegible] a man or woman?'

'The latter I presume, sir. It is the fashion, now-a-days, you know, for dashing young women like her to adopt a masculine style in general. It sits very well on Miss Joe don't you think so, sir?'

'Miss Joe be—'

The old gentleman recollected himself in time But he had seen enough of the dashing young Josiphene his old friend Simon Walker's niece, and very moody was he when he rode homeward that night.

'Philip,' said he a day or two, after I dont see the use of your going to Elmwood so often now that Miss Dashwood is there,'

'Why not, sir? I thought that you would like it'

'The truth is I'm disappointed in Miss Dashwood. I cant approve of such a woman as a wife for any man save a horse dealer or circus rider. Especially I should not approve of her as the mistress of this house. I have no desire to see my drawing room turned into a dog kennel or to have horses walking up and drinking out of my coffee cup, In fact said the Squiae, waxing warm, 'I won't have my future daughter-in-law going about the house whistling, and odorous of brandy and cigars, too I shouldn't wonder. I heard her say it was the fashion. Ugh'

Philip was satisfied, the more so when a week later, his father observed that little Lena would make as good a wife for him as he could get.

The wedding took place within six months. Miss [illegible] herself [illegible] was present, and the Squire wondered exceedingly at the great change and improvement wrought in her by the influence of marriage.

REMINISCENCE OF SONTAG.

From the New York Mail,

Connected with the destruction of the 'Koenig manor,' a kings wall. in Berlin, there is related an episode in the life of the celebrated cantatrice, Henrietta Sontag. which the dilettanti of Paris have certainly not forgotten,

Invited in 1825 by Kustner, who was intendent of Berlin at that period, to give a concert at Leipzig, Henrietta Sogtag. arriving from Prague and Vienna commenced that triumphant round of success which greeted her in both hemispheres.

A little after the Director of the Theater Royal of Berlin, having heard her at Leipzig, induced her by his brilliant offers not only to visit Berlin on her way, but to remain there for some time. And up to this very day the gray-headed amateurs of Berlin remember and speak of the enthusiastic reception they then gave to the young prima-donna. and when she finally relinquished her position in Berlin to appear there no more except at occasional intervals, the shower of applause which greeted her farewell appearance amounted almost to frenzy.

Immediately following her first triumphs, Henrietta Sotag visited Vienna, but was soon obliged to quit that city with the profoundest sorrow. The jealously and slanders of her rivals greatly disquieted the illustrious debutante who with her rare gifts had promise of a most brilliant future. Among her enemies upon the stage the most bitter of all was the singer Amelie Steininger, M'lle Sontag left Vienna, and often thought of that trial and of the bitter grief she had caused her.

Nearly ten years had rolled away, and Sontag was once more entrancing the people of Berlin, One morning during this latter visit she was riding in her carriage through the Federich-strasse, when she heard the sweet voice of a young girl who was singing upon one corner of the street! It was a popular air, warbled in pathetic tones to the passers by, by a little girl of ten years,

Sontag stopped the carriage and called the child to her.

What is your name? she asked, learning from the open window,

Nannerl replied the child, in the purest Austrian accent,

What does your mother do?

'Ah! Madame. she is a poor blind woman.

'A poor blind woman But tell me her name,'

'Amelia Steininger'

'Amelia Steininger' exclaimed Sontag, in the greatest surprise

Yes Amelia Steininger said the little one with an air of pride My mother was one of the celebrated singers of Vienna before she lost her voice and became blind from too much shedding of tears: All our friends left us then. We have been compelled to sell every thing that we had and live by begging.'

Henrietta Sontag overcome with emotion wos unable to utter a word. At last she asked in a stifled voice Where do you live?

Behind the Koenigs-manor, number 10

Wish your mother, [illegible] Henrietta Sontag and say to her that I beg she will receive me this afternoon. I will come to visit you and we will have a little talk together,

'Henrietta Sontag! exclaimed the child, with amazement, and ran hastily home to her mother to tell her all that had happened

But the child little knew how the poor blind woman's heart throbbed when she learned who it was who was coming to see her,

The celebrated prima donna kept her word. The same day, accompanied by an aged friend, she sought out her who had once been her rival and who was now a poor beggar living behind the Koenigsmauer

She met and embraced the poor unfortunate with the greatest cordiality, taking care not once to allude to all that had passed in Vienna and religiously avoiding the recollection of the slanders which had induced her to leave the imperial city.

On bidding her adieu she not only left her a well-filled purse; but a few days latter she sang at the Theatre Royal for the benefit of a needy artiste, It is superfluous to add that the needy artiste was no other than the former cantatrice, Amelia Steininger, Sontag thenceforth supplied her wants as long as she lived.

TESTING KEROSENE.—If consumers are willing to be put to a little trouble, a simple experiment will determine the safety of the Kerosene they purchase. Fill a pint bowl two-thirds full of boiling water, and into it put a common metalic thermometer. The temperature will run up to over two hundred degrees. By gradually adding cold water, bring down the temperature of the water to one hundred and ten degrees, and then pour into the bowl a spoonful of the kerosene, and apply a lighted match. If it takes fire, the article should be rejected as dangerous; if not, it may be used with a confident feeling of its safety. In this experiment, which is the most simple that can be devised, the fire test is directly applied. Upon practical trials it has been found to afford correct results.

An Arkansas paper says that in Lawrence County, as some persons were clearing some land, they set fire to a large oak log, lying on the ground, when they noticed a rattlesnake crawling out from the log. They turned it over when they noticed a den of seventy-two rattlesnakes, two green snakes and one king snake, Twenty-two of the ratttlesnakes had from fourteen to eighteen rattles, and measured from seven to nine feet in length.

A Lake City paper says that a party of gentlemen in a saloon disputing over the question whether the American system of treating or the European system of not treating was preferable, couldn't settle the matter by talking, so they went to work testing it by practice. First, each man took a drink by himself. Then each man invited a single friend to drink. After that, each single friend returned the compliment. And finally, each man in the party—there were six of them—asked all the rest to drink.—When all that was accomplished, not a soul in the room could tell where the discussion originated, or what it was about.

TO EXTRACT INK FROM COTTON, SILK AND WOOLEN GOODS.—Saturate the spots with spirits of turpentine, and let remain several hours: then rub it between the hands. It will crumble away without injuring either the color or texture of the article.

'I want a Young Man's Companion,' said a spruce customer to a bookseller. 'Very well,' said the bookseller, picking up a volume, 'here's My Only Daughter.'

Why do they call Mr Kingsley Canon Hingsley mamma asked a little girl. Because he is one of the big guns of the Church of England, my dear was the answer.

A Boarding house keeper mixed some patent medicine in her hash because it was advertised as a cure for consumption.

Henry Ward Beecher is said to enjoy a professional income of over thirty thousand dollars per annum by pulpit pew and rostrum.

The largest rope in the world has been completed in Birmingham It is about six miles long, five and a quarter inches in circumference, and weighs over sixty tons.

REMOVAL OF GLOUCESTER COURT HOUSE.

The mature consideration of this question has now become one of pressing importance to the voters of Gloucester. The offer made in Mr: Duncan's proposition one which ought not to be lightly disregarded. It is such as we can never expect again. The persons who favor this enterprises, look forward, with the fullest confidence, to establishing steamboat communication between the Ware connecting with the [illegible] week and three times a week to Christfield connecting with the Annamessex Rail Road running from that point to New York city in eight hours. This question should be regarded in its four prominent aspects: First, will it, or will it not be a public convenience. If moved it will not be more than a mile and a half from any single citizen of the County than is the present site; but will be in easy access, by water, of at least one-third of the voters of the whole County, and it is known, that but few of our citizens engaged in the oyster business, have no horses and all have boats. Will it injure any one? Unquestionably it would entail a serious loss upon Dr. TABB, which must be a matter of regret to every right thinking mind; but what enterprise was ever yet started that did not inflict some immediate injury upon some one or more individuals. That a public measure like this should conform itself to the individual interest of every particular individual, is an impossibility, and can any one conceive of any undertaking of the like nature which would injure fewer individuals than this will. What will it cost? the $5000.00, now levied for a new jail and the materials in the old public buildings.

There is a question of taxation raised to the bridges, but where we look at Mr Duncan's proposition and find that he agrees to keep the bridges in repair for ten years: that argument is fully answered. for at the end of ten years. the bridges will be turned over in good order, and it will not cost fifty dollars a year to keep them so, and there is not a single individual who will go to Gloucester Court-house, once a year, and buy one dollars worth of goods, who wont save a greater amount than will equal his proportion of the tax, for the reason that the merchants, will be able to save the cost by them of hauling, and sell that much cheaper,

Now what are the advantages, but to open up a market for every thing we have to sell; secondly, to open up communications with the great cities, and thus offer inducements to persons with capital to purchase our surplus lands, to stimulate energy, vary our products, and to give an impetus to a beautiful county which is stagnating for want of enterprise and capital.

TOWNSHIP ELECTION.

It is full time, that the people of the different Townships were making some selection of candidates for the various Township offices that have to be filled on the fourth Thursday in May. We think that the past two years, should have taught the votes of this county both white and black that the selections for these offices should be controlled solely by the peculiar fitness of the candidate for the efficient discharge of the duties of the offices without regard to party. And we are glad to see that there is a strong feeling on the part of all the more intelligent colored people to vote for the best officers presented for their choice.

THE MISSOURI LYNCHING AFFAIR. ST LOUIS April 29. The managers of the railroad have discharged all employes attached to the train on which Stevenson, Cline and Dutro were murdered in Cass county they having received orders to do so from the regulators.

Several railroad officials have fled from Sedalia Mo, in consequence of reports that some of the Cass county outlaws were there for the purpose of assassinating them.

The Sixth United Stares Infantry has been ordered to the Department of Dakota on the line of the Northern Pacific railroad.

An additional detachment of troops has been sent to assisst in expelling white outlaws from the Indian Terrirory,

MR. EDITOR:

Having seen in your last issue a long communication from your friend of many bees, in opposition to the removal of our County seat, and whilst not assuming to relieve you of the necessity of a reply, yet I will endeavor to expose the weakness of what seen to be his principal objections. Passing over his vague generalies, we first come to the warning of the dangers of "Sylla and Chyribdis," whose presence in the proposition under discussion he utterly fails to show, and then we are told of the danger of rushing headlong into the whirlpool of ruin and destruction; such an idea can exist only in an affrighted imagination, surely not in the minds of those in favor of the move, nor can we believe that BBBB. will be able to persuade many that it will be attended with such direfull consequences, and we are at a loss to conceive upon what BBBB. basis his belief. unless it be the ghostly figure of taxation, land damages and road expenses; but which like other apparitions, when boldly met and examined, are easily divested of their hideous proportions. As regards the tax for bridges, there can be none for ten years, and then it will [illegible] the County authorities to keep them up, but should they do so, (as we have shown before) the amount will not exceed one cent on the hundred dollars worth of property.

As to land damages, that is a matter to be decided by a jury appointed to assess the actual, not constructive damage.—And from the fact that the roads would be very short, and that one of them would be entirely through an open woods. The exact locality of the other, I do not know, but in any event the amount will not be in all probability, one more cent on the hundred: and you will bear in mind that this is not an annual tax. As regards road expenses, the same law which applies generally to the opening of new roads, and under which new roads are frequently made in various parts of the County, against which we hear no hue-and-cry, will apply to those.

BBBB tells us that in bettar days our forefathers located the town of Botetout, the same distance now as then from navigable water, the Warehouse tract was there then, (to which discourse we agree,) and that our ancesters were rich and prosperous, is equally true; but of their being 'satisfied and proud of Botetourt,' we beg leave to differ, rather inclining to the opinion, that they were independent and regardless of Botetourt.—That having large means, (almost little kingdoms of their own) and unlimited credit, they did not desire or feel the necessity of modern appliances, now indispensible to the prosperity of every community.:

As an evidence of their not having been satisfied, I have been told there was an effort some years ago to move the County seat to this identical Wharehouse; that a vote on the question had been authorized, and was about to be taken, when the leading advocates of the move, having as they supposed, secured their object, by negociating for the purchase of the present Court house tract, stoped the vote, and when afterwards they came to a final settlement, owing to some misunderstanding, the whole transaction was upset, hence their failure and disappointment. And strange to say that among the leading advocates of that move was one of the two lawyers whose opposition to the present move seems to give such faith and consolation to our friend. BBBB. and I will farther state that for the talents and opinions of that gentleman on most subjects, I have a high regard, and he will pardon me for thinking he was right the first time and decidedly wrong now.

Whilst expecting public measures and individuals connected with them to be criticised, yet I very much regret the ungenerous effort to create a distrust as to Mr. Duncan's ability to comply with the terms of his most liberal proposition.

BBBB tells us however, that if he could be persuaded that the move will accomplish the "greatest good to the greatest number," he would vote for it Now our own advice to him is to make up his mind to that effect at once, and not to await the result of the election to find out. To repent then will be too late.

Respectfully,

"ABINGDON"

WOODS X ROADS,
April 30th 1872.

MR. EDITOR:

Your correspondent, 4Bs in his last communication, denies or attempts to deny, that he stated in his first, that he had produced a change in the minds of many voters by the use of "Sledge-hammer, knock-down arguments." Now I propose to show the gentleman that if he did not directly make the statement, he did make it indirectly. The gentleman's language speaks for itself; and here it is:

"As the anti-removalists are increasing their strength daily, and driving the removalists from their strong-holds and forcing them to surrender, by using 'heavy sledge-hammer, KNOCK-DOWN arguments,' that no one can answer, and the most beautiful trait in the character of our people is to give up when wrong, thus we are having converts by the dozens."

Is not the gentleman an anti-removalist? Does not 'we' refer to the anti-removalists? Thus it seems too plain that 4Bs did intend to say, and being of the anti-removalists, did say that he had used those powerful arguments. In my note to you, I simply asked your correspondent, (after informing you that I had not heard the arguments) to produce them; and now after he has written a long letter for publication, he informs you that he has not noticed 'A' but promises, if he calls again, he will do so.

The election, Mr. Editor is only four weeks off, and you will only issue your paper four times before that time, now what chance will 'A' have to reply to those arguments when produced, if 4Bs will not even notice him? Well, Sir, as I am not noticed, and as you did not comment on 4Bs' last letter, I suppose I might as well notice some allusions which he made effecting both you and me. He denies your statement as being true, that those living at the Court house are in favor of its removal to the Warehouse, and informs you that he knows several, who are doing business at the Courthouse, and are opposed to its being moved. You said nothing about those doing business there and living elsewhere, but those living at the Courthouse. I cannot accept the arguments already produced in opposition to the measure, as being well founded or of any weight, and unless stronger and more powerful arguments are forthcoming. I shall consider, as I now do the scheme to be a benefit to the whole community, if crowned with success, and therefore will record my vote and use every exertion in favor of our County seat being [illegible] site to that beautiful spot on Ware River which seems to have been specially designed by nature for that purpose.—When I read the beautiful allusion of our friend 4Bs. to our forefathers having selected the town of Botetourt as the proper place; I cannot help sighing for those old grey-headed sires to come back again. and see what progress we are making in the good old County after four long years of devestation and ruin. I doubt not but Ware River did flow as magestically then as now, but the same reasons for having our County seat there did not flow as they do now Our forefathers were a slave holding and agricultural people, and did not care how far inland a town was situated, while we are a non-slave holding people, and desirous of extending commerce every where we can, by building up towns at every convenient spot on the water course, that if we are not benefited, our prosterity may be. Our friend seems to dwell on the subject of making fortunes, as if he really supposes that the removalists all expect to get rich by this 'scheme,' as he called it. Now I would take pleasure in informing him that it is not fortunes that we are looking for, but a great and lasting benefit for the majority of our citizens, without, in the least injuring the minority. I think in as much as I have not been noticed, although referred to three times in 4Bs' commucation I will abstain from any further notice of his letter until he writes again. But in passing I would suggest to that doctor, whom he refers to, that he had better seek protection of his professional brethren, rather than two astute lawyers who may take advantage of him, and break his bones, when of necessity he would have to come back for treatment. And as for the four doctors [illegible] will vote against the move, one of them I am satisfied is now in favor of the move, and another will not be able to vote, because he has never registered and does not intend to register. I have examined into the three classes of citizens that our friend makes, and cannot associate him with either. I think the first and last class he repudiates too strongly, to connect him with, and he lauds the middle class to such an extent that it would not be right to connect him with it, lest he might be guilty of self-praise.

Mr. Editor, I must bid adieu. Despond not, but be cheerful, for the romevalists are increasing.

Your Friend,

"A."

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, April 26.--All interest in political movements has flown from Washington to Cincinnati and information from that point is sought for here with the greatest avidity. Private dispatches from that city have been received here to-day in great number, and contain evidence that the movement has expanded to propotions beyond the most sanguine expectations of its adherents and sympathizers. There is a perfect avalanch of speculations indulged as to the probable candidates, and judging from private as well as press telegrams from Cincinnati, it appears that no positive indications can be derived on this matter until fuller constitutions between the leading delegates to the convention have taken place than up to this time have been possible. There is noticeable evidence here of the anxiety felt by the Administration and its friends concerning events about to traspire at the Convention.

The New York Tribune recieved here to-night, says the general comparison of notes indicates, in the main, the few overshadowing names desired for the head of the ticket. As the tide rises with increasing numbers, the current intensifies on three or four men who are unmistakably strong before that part of the Convention so far at hand, These are Judge Davis, Lyman Trumbull, Charles Francis Adams, B Gratz Brown, and ex Governor Cox.

The loudest talking is for Davis, the strongest for Adams, the most boastful for Brown, while the friends of Trumbull and Cox counsel frequently and rely on the general conviction of the delegates assembled to decide the issue. The same dispatches also say that Mr J DeFrees, who is regarded here as one of the ablest workers in the party declares after diligent canvassing. that Judge Davis is beyond question the coming man. In support of this, he claims from correspondence, etc, a large part of the delegations from the District of Columbia, Oregon, Caliafornia, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama North Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Maryland, New Hampshire, Virginia and that after the first vote, Missouri, Colorado, and Kansas, will fall in line for the Judge.

The World telegrams from Cincinnati say that Mr Adam's prospect for nomination is brightening but, in addition says the only difficulty is not that he lacks popularity or political availability but that the managing politicians in the ranks of the Liberal Republicans and Democrats desirous of coogerating in the Cincinnati movement had made their arrangements in view of the nomination of other candidates, mostly from the West. Various other speculations are furnished from different sources, but the above are judged to have the most substantial basis, Most of the politicians think that either Davis or Adams will be nominated,

TIMON.

CONGRESSIONAL.

WASHINGTON, April 29,—House. The bill removing the political disabilities from Sion H Rogers, of Raleigh, N C was passed.

Among the bills introduced to-day is one by Mr Perce of Mississippi, to provide for the greater efficiency of the public schools is the several States and for other purposes. The bill is more stringent [illegible] Sumner's civil Rights bill. It provides for equality in public and private schools, hotels, cars, steamboats, theatres, &c, The bill was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor, of which Mr Perce is chairman. and he declares it shall be reported on the next call of his committee.

Mr Wheeler moved to suspend the rules and take up the Senate bill supplementary to the act of 3d of March 1871 incorporating the Texas Pacific railroad changing the title to that of Texas and Pacific Railway Company.&c.

The motion was agreed to, and various verbal amendments, reported from the Committee on the Pacific Road were adopted.

The bill was then passed by 103 to 23 It goes back to the Senate for concurrence in the amendments.

Senate amendment to House bill authorizing the commissioners of southern claims to appoint special commissioners to take testimony was concurred in.

Senate amendment to House bill for the relief of purchasers of land sold for direct taxes in the insurrectionary States was concurred in.

Senate. A resolution limiting speeches upon appropriation bills to five minutes was offered.

After some debate Mr. Trumbull said the object of the New rule was now plainly disclosed, It was to give the majority of the Senate the power to put any legislation whatsoever in any appropriation bill under the gag of the five minutes rule and he wanted the Senate to know it.

[illegible] as amendment to an appropriation bill matter not germain and then adopted,

ORDER OF BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Republican caucus has adopted the following order of business Three appropriation bills then Mr Robertson's amnesty bill then Mr Scotts kuklux bill and then the bill securing citizens in the right to vote.

It was also agreed to meet daily at 11 o'clock hereafter instead of at 12.

Mr Sumner participated in the caucus and opposed an early adjournment.

Mr Trumbull was not present,

VINEGAR BITTERS

J. WALKER, Proprietor. R. H. McDONALD & Co., Druggists & Gen. Agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 34 Commerce St., N.Y.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

Vinegar Bitters are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They

GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and of all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, urking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

THOROUGH-BRED STALLION

PROPHET,

The only Thorough-bred Stallion in this vicinity, will stand during the present season at Gloucester Court House, Saluda, Middlesex Co., and at Auburn, Mathews Co. Va., and will meet engagements at a reasonable distance.

TERMS:

$15 per season, if paid by expiration of season, (July 4th.) If not paid by that date $20 per season. $10 to be paid in cash in either case at the time of service. Groom fee, $1.

PROPHET'S brilliant career on the Turf is familiar to all conversant with racing annals.—(See Turf Register.) He had few superiors as a race horse, and unites the best strains of blood ever imported to this country Imported Monarch and Cassandra, his sire and dam, both by imported Priam; g dam Flirtilla, Jr, and g g dam Flirtilla, by the renowned Sir Archy. Sir Archy justly styled the father of the American race horse, and Priam, the only horse imported to this country that English Turfmen ever desired to purchase, His sire Monarch, never lost a race and Cassandra, his dam, won fourteen out of eighteen.

PROPHET was considered by the previous to his former owner, Mr Francis Morris, of New York, (whose racing stable has no superior in this country,) as the fastest two-mile horse he had ever put in training. When four years old he won all of his races has been withdrawn from the turf for some years past, being deemed more valuable in the stud His colts of the last season promise well, and good judges say ought to make race horses of no common note—they have size and plenty of power,

Ample accommodations will be provided for mares from a distance, at Auburn, at a reasonable price; no responsibility for accidents beyond my control. Address,

Groom of PROPHET.

PROSPECTUS FOR

1872.

FIFTH YEAR.

A Representative and Champion of American Art.

THE ALDINE.

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, claimed to be the Handsomest Paper in the World:

"Give my love to the artist workmen of the ALDINE who are striving to make their profession worthy of admiration for beauty; as it has always been for usefulness." Henry Ward Beecher.

The ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals.

It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness as compared with rivals of a similar class, the ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price character. The possessor of the volume completed cannot duplicate in quantity fine paper and engravings in any other shall or number of volumes for ten times its cost

The labor of geting the ALDINE ready the press is so great that reprinting is out of the question. With the exception of a small number specially reserved for binding, the edition of 1871, is already exhausted, and is now a scarce, as well as valuable book.

A CHROMO TO EVERY SUBSCIBER. was a very popular feature last year, and will be repeated with the present volume.—The publishers have purchased and reproduced, at great expense, the beautiful oil painting by SEIS, entitled "Dame Nature's School."—The chromo is 11x18 inches, and is an exact fac-simile, in size and appearance of the original picture. No American chromo, which will at all compare with it, has yet been offered at retail for less than the price asked for the ALDINE and it together. It will be delivered free, with the January number, to every subscriber who pays for one in advance

TERMS FOR 1872.

One Copy, one year, with Oil Chromo, $5.00.
