No finer trip out of Honolulu can be made than to Pearl City by water. The route is just outside the surf line. A light boat with a small load may go inside the braskers. So soon as the boat is fairly headed for Barber's point the sport begins. The water is alive with monster turtles and big sharks. You may shoot the former or hook the latter. Every time the craft gets into the breakers interest, in the trip is heightnend to the point that men who like to adventure glory in. Loss of control of the boat means a ducking, if nothing more multer from the former or headed into Pearl harbor you pass the famous shark trag and more mullet preserves. Ducks fly overhead, and a short distance back from the shore line there are wild turkeys, pheasants and occasionally a pig. Ford's island is viewed with interest.

When Pearl harbor is an accomplished fact, with masked batteries at its entrance, the island will have behind its fortifications the modern mid-Pacific station of the United States. As an ancient salt plant is passed and the abandoned shark rending kettles noted, the great Ewa plantation, with its large mill andswide canefields, melt into the scene. Glasses are then trained upon mit spliendid ranches of farseeing pioners. Each holding is a little empire. Catboats and yachts going to Pearl river for tresh water are passed by the launch as though they were at anchor. At the landing is tied the yacht Kainland, of whose speed some enthusiast tells. She is waiting to be loaded with rice from the mill with its tramway to the dock. Ricefields, taro patches, coccanut groves, banana orchards and truck gardens on the main land are cut up by Pearl river and its branches and by irrigating ditches. Natives sit in the shade. Chinamen pass up and down the track of the Oahu Railway and Laud company, newly ballasted. Parties are bathing, lounging at pretty Remond grove, with its green carpets and electric plant, at the depot, store or ranchose.

It is with the greatest sorrow this with the greatest sorrow that we announce to our many readers the death of James S. Jones, representative of King & Queen Co. in the House of Delegates for the past three sessions. Mr. Jones was a young man in the prime of mauhood and had already given great promise of much usefulness to his people. As a fellow-citizen he honored his county, his section and his state; as a Democrat he was true to his principles; as a representative of his people in legislative hulls his record is unmarred by any act of mis-representation. In this mysterious stroke of Divine Providence the bereaved, family and friends and his stricken fellow-citizens have the heart-felt sympathy of the Vriediniax.
