

Washington City - March 3^d - 1809 -

Several months ago a Subscription paper of St Patrick's Church accidentally fell under the notice of the President of the United States. He with characteristic liberality and condescension, informed Captain Andrews a Trustee of the above mentioned Church, that so soon as the persons interested in the undertaking should have collected a sufficient sum to authorise them to commence the Building, he would readily contribute towards the building - The Rector of St Patrick's Church has the honor to inform his excellency the President, that the building is covered in; and that whatever donation he may in his liberality think proper to make to the Church will be gratefully received by his humble servant

Several months ago a subscription paper of a certain church accidentally fell under the notice of the President of the church that. It with characteristic liberality and candor, informed Captain Adams a trustee of the above mentioned church, that so far as the persons interested in the undertaking had been called a sufficient sum to purchase them to commence the building, he would readily contribute towards the building - the letter of the church has the honor to inform his excellency the President, that the building is covered in and that whatever variation he may in his liberality think proper to make to the church will be gratefully received by his humble friend
