Former head coach Al Albert led the Tribe to 401 victories during his career and ranks ninth all-time on the Division I victories list.

Forty years ago, soccer was in its first year at William and Mary. It was for men only and the Tribe did not experience many winning moments. Times have changed. In 1967, the team's third year of existence, and first as a varsity sport, W&M defeated George Washington, 2-1, for the first victory in school history. That win was the first of more than 400 to come for a school that was destined to be a hotbed of college soccer.

The groundwork was laid in the early 1970s when Al Albert, a 1969 graduate of the College, returned to his alma mater to teach and coach soccer. The program began to take off in 1975, Albert's fifth year at the helm. That season the Tribe went 9-4-1, beginning a streak of 30 consecutive winning seasons, the sixth-longest streak in NCAA Division I history. Just one year later, in 1976, the Tribe won 10 matches for the first time, a feat that was repeated for the next 27 years. Albert retired following the 2003 season as just the eighth coach in NCAA Division I history to compile 400 victories. As head coach, he led William and Mary to 401 of the program's 436 wins. Albert currently ranks 18th all-time in NCAA career victories, while ranking ninth on the Division I career victories list.

Wins alone do not give a school national prominence. That came in 1980 when W&M advanced to the quarterfinals of the NCAA tournament. Since then, the Tribe has gone to 11 more NCAA tournaments, including nine trips in the last 14 seasons (1992-93, 1995-2000 and 2002). The Tribe also advanced to the NCAA during both the 1983 and 1987 seasons. W&M won the ECAC-South title in 1983, the CAA tournament in 1987, 1995, 1996, 1999 and 2000 and the CAA regular season crown in 1987, 1992, 1995, 1996 and 2002.

In 2004, W&M soccer took another step forward with the construction of a new grass facility, Albert-Daly Field. Initiated with a $500,000 challenge grant from Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ukrop, the new field was crucial in improving the Tribe's chances to host top-quality teams and NCAA Tournament games in Williamsburg. Despite the tremendous success of Tribe soccer, the men had been forced to play their last 15 NCAA Tournament matches on the road or at a neutral site because of the lack of an inclosing grass field on campus.

Besides having strong team records, many W&M individuals have been standouts on the pitch. Eight players have been named All-Americans on 12 occasions, 12 have international playing experience with various national teams and numerous others have received conference, state and regional honors. In the summer of 1994, goalkeeper Paul Grafer started for the U.S. Olympic Team on its tour of Chile. In 1997, W&M alum Wade Barrett played with the U.S. under-20 team. All-American goalkeeper Adin Brown joined the list of W&M to garner international experience, playing on the U.S. under-23 squad and with the U.S. Olympic and Pan American Games teams.

Brown played a key role in helping the US Under-23 national team to a bronze medal at the 1999 Pan American Games. He started three matches during the tournament, and posted a shutout. Although he was the starting goalkeeper throughout qualifying for the 2000 Olympics, Brown missed the final competition due to injury.

Barrett also earned his first International cap with the U.S. Senior National Team on Nov. 17, 2002. He played the entire 90 minutes at left back against El Salvador at RFK Stadium in Washington, D.C. Barrett made a return to the National Team roster in 2005. He was on the roster for an Oct. 8, 2005 World Cup Qualifier against Costa Rica, but did not see action.

Since 1978, a total of 27 Tribe players have gone on to play professionally, whether it be in the U.S. or overseas. Five players (Barrett, Brown, Scott Budnick, Grafer and Steve Jolley) enjoyed playing careers in Major League Soccer (MLS). Barrett, Brown and Jolley were all taken in the first round of the MLS Draft, with Brown being drafted the highest at No. 3 in 2000. Jolley is currently a 10-year MLS veteran, while Barrett is a seven-year league vet.

Jolley, who currently plays for Red Bull New York, entered the 2006 season with 211 games, 17,787 minutes and 12 goals over his career. He earned an All-Star nod during the 2001 season, while playing for the New York-New Jersey Metrostars. Barrett, who spent two years playing in the top leagues in Denmark and Norway, plays for the Houston Dynamo. In 2002, he won an MLS Championship with the San Jose Earthquakes, while also earning league All-Star and MLS Best XI honors. Brown played five seasons with the MLS, totaling 93 games and 20 shutouts, including the playoffs over his career. He has spent the two seasons with Aalesunds FK in Norway's Tippeligaen (First Division).

Along with Brown and Barrett, former Tribe players Jeff Dominguez, Khary Stockton and Gabe Valencia enjoyed International playing careers. Dominguez spent three seasons with B.V. Cloppenburg in Germany. He started a club record 68 consecutive games as a defensive central midfielder and helped his club earn a promotion to Germany's Third Division. Valencia also spent time in Germany playing with SV Leipzig along with playing in the U.S. in the A-League. Stockton signed a six-month contract with A.E. Velo Clube Rio Clarence of the Brazilian Second Division in May of 1994. At the time, he was believed to be just the second American player to sign with a professional soccer club in Brazil. He also played with Athletico Sorocabam in the Brazilian Third Division.

Carlos Garcia, a 2003 graduate, has enjoyed success in the indoor soccer leagues in the U.S. Garcia spent the 2003-06 seasons with the Baltimore Blast and helped his team to the 2005-06 Major Indoor Soccer League (MISL) Championship. He enjoyed his best season in 2005-06, playing in 30 games, while finishing with 19 points on 12 goals and seven assists. Garcia was selected by the Detroit Ignition in the 2006-07 MISL Expansion Draft. The Blast originally chose him in the 2002 Amateur Draft in the fourth round.

Soccer is not just a seasonal event in Williamsburg, it is a year-long tradition. The W&M soccer programs receive strong support from the student body and the residents of the Tidewater area, and these fans are rewarded with a great product.

The success enjoyed by Tribe student-athletes and the high-level of community involvement in the soccer program combine to make William and Mary a truly unique place in the soccer world.

1998 graduate Wade Barrett enjoyed a stellar career with the Tribe and has played seven years in the MLS, currently with the Houston Dynamo, along with two seasons in Europe.

CHRIS NORRIS

HEAD COACH
12TH SEASON AT W&M
THIRD SEASON AS HEAD COACH
WILLIAM AND MARY (1994)

Chris Norris enters his third season at the helm of the William and Mary men's soccer program. Despite an overall record of 13-16-9, the Tribe has reached new heights, including the program's first ever victory over a No. 1-ranked opponent. Norris took over the post as head coach at the College following the retirement of long-time, legendary coach Al Albert. Norris spent nine seasons as a Tribe assistant and four years as a standout defender for the Green and Gold before being named head coach on Jan. 23, 2004.

"Chris was an exceptional student-athlete at William and Mary and continued as an outstanding assistant coach for nine seasons," said W&M's director of athletics Terry Driscoll at the time of Norris' hiring. "His knowledge, experience and understanding of intercollegiate soccer and the College clearly made him the obvious choice for the position."

During Norris' 15 seasons as a player, assistant and head coach with the Tribe, William and Mary has compiled a 197-98-36 record (.650), including a Colonial Athletic Association (CAA) mark of 69-31-19 (.660). Norris has been a part of nine of the Tribe's 12 all-time NCAA Tournament appearances, four CAA tournament crowns and five CAA regular-season titles.

While the Tribe's record during 2005 was 4-9-5, first appearances can be deceiving, as the College was only a few bounces away from a better mark. During the 2005 campaign, W&M lost five matches to teams ranked in the top 20, including four by a single goal. In all, eight of the team's nine defeats were by a single tally, including a trio of overtime setbacks.

During Norris' first season leading the Tribe, the team extended its streak of consecutive winning seasons to 30, which ranks sixth in NCAA Division I history. W&M went 5-1-3 in its first year at Albert-Daly Field. In just the program's second game at the facility, Norris guided the Tribe to a 1-0 victory over then-No. 1 and eventual College Cup semifinalist Maryland on Sept. 22. The shutout was one of only two Maryland suffered during the 2004 season that saw the Terps finish the year ranked fifth nationally in scoring offense.

After dropping the season opener in Norris' first year at the helm, the Tribe went unbeaten over its next seven contests (5-0-2), including the victory over Maryland. The unbeaten streak was the longest for the College since the 1999 squad won eight straight contests from Oct. 23 through Nov. 14.

The Green and Gold allowed opponents to score just 21 goals in 2004, the fewest since 1999, resulting in a 0.99 goals against average for the team. Five W&M players earned All-Colonial Athletic Association honors, including first-team selection Pat Scherder, who also earned all-state and second-team all-region accolades.

A captain his senior year, Norris was the team's defensive leader, starting all four seasons (1991-94). During his career, W&M compiled an impressive 1.04 goals against average, including two seasons (1992 and 1994) with a team GAA of less than 1.00. During both the 1992 and 1994 seasons, Norris led the Tribe to the top of the CAA regular season standings.

He was a two-time All-CAA performer and was also selected to the VaSID All-State squad and the All-South Atlantic second team in 1994. The team's Most Valuable Player as a junior, Norris received the Coaches' Award in 1992 and earned W&M Rookie of the Year honors in 1991. Norris also earned the team's Freshman Academic Achievement Award in 1991 and graduated from the College with a degree in kinesiology.

Prior to his return to William and Mary, Norris served as junior varsity boys' soccer coach at Lafayette High School in Williamsburg. Along with his coaching duties for the Tribe, Norris is involved in coaching with the Williamsburg Soccer Club and serves as the co-director of the Tidewater Soccer Camp. He holds a National Soccer Coaches Association of America (NSCAA) advanced national diploma and serves as an associate staff member for the NSCAA.
