BEST SMALL PUBLIC UNIVERSITY IN NATION • RANKED 30TH OVERALL AMONG NATION'S BEST UNIVERSITIES • SECOND OLDEST COLLEGE IN AMERICA • HIGHEST RANKED NCAA DIVISION I PUBLIC SCHOOL IN 2004 APR

The College of William and Mary's 1946-47 men's tennis team posted the finest record in Tribe history when it claimed the team title at the National Intercollegiate Tournament in Los Angeles, in June of 1947. The netters, coached by Dr. Sharvey G. Umbeck, tallied 10 points to clinch first-place honors. Leading the way for the Tribe was Gardner Larned, who won the national singles title that same year by defeating Vic Seixas of North Carolina 6-3, 9-11, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1. Other members of the 1947 team included Tut Bartzen, Fred Kovaleski, Bob Doll, Bren Macken, Howe Atwater, Lyman Chennault, Dick Randell, Jim Macken, George Fricke, Bill Ozenberger and Bob Galloway.

In 1948, Kovelski and team captain Bartzen, returning as the nation's fourth- and fifth-ranked players, guided the Tribe to its second-straight national team title. In addition, the duo captured the national doubles championship, a feat that has yet to be repeated in William and Mary men's tennis history.

BUSCH TENNIS COURTS

One of the newest athletics venues at the College of William and Mary, the Busch Courts tennis complex opened in September of 2001. It is the outdoor home of the Tribe tennis squads.

The complex features eight individual hard court surfaces. Each court features California Corners, a unique design that includes quarter fences that run along the sidelines to allow for uninterrupted play.

There is stadium seating for approximately 500 people at Busch Courts, and there is also a state-of-the-art lighting system to accommodate night matches.

McCORMACK-NAGELSEN TENNIS CENTER

Dedicated to excellence in academics and athletics, the College of William and Mary in historic Colonial Williamsburg is proud to offer one of the finest athletic facilities in the country—the McCormack-Nagelsen Tennis Center. Located on South Henry Street adjacent to the graduate housing complex, the McCormack-Nagelsen Tennis Center, which opened in 1995, boasts impeccable tennis facilities and houses the Intercollegiate Tennis Association's Women's Tennis Hall of Fame.

The facility was made possible through a generous gift from Mark H. McCormack, a 1951 graduate of William and Mary, and his wife, former world-class tennis professional Betsy Nagelsen. As the former chairman, president and chief executive officer of International Management Group, McCormack was widely recognized as the founder of the sports marketing industry.

The McCormack-Nagelsen Tennis Center features six indoor tennis courts using the GreenSet GrandPrix Surface (rubberized base under color coat), air conditioning and indirect lighting at a competitive level. The facility also includes member and team locker rooms, several spacious lobbies and spectator viewing that boasts 362 stadium seats as well as a mezzanine seating area. In addition, the ITA and Rolex generously donated a state-of-the-art electronic scoreboard.

The Intercollegiate Tennis Association's Women's Tennis Hall of Fame contains a collection of artifacts and records pertaining to collegiate women's tennis, and enshrines former players, coaches and contributors that have impacted the sport. The Hall of Fame also functions as a library, archive and research center for intercollegiate women's tennis.

CHAMPIONSHIPS

Over the last two seasons, the William and Mary men's tennis program has enjoyed a large amount of success. In 2005, the Tribe won its third CAA crown and earned its ninth trip to the NCAA Tournament.

During the fall of 2006, Colin O'Brien and Alex Cojanu won the ITA Mid-East Region Championship and earned a spot in the most exclusive collegiate national championship event, the ITA Indoor Nationals, which features a 16-team doubles tournament. The pair also finished the fall ranked No. 1 in the Mideast Region.

TRIBE TENNIS OFF THE COURT

- During their careers, W&M men's tennis players travel extensively throughout the country for individual tournaments and team matches.
- In 2006-07, the Tribe will have trips to Chapel Hill, North Carolina; Tulsa, Oklahoma; Tampa, Florida; Athens, Georgia; Montgomery, Alabama and Houston, Texas.
- In just the past four years, the Tribe has had extended stays in Hawaii, the Boston area, Florida, California, Tennessee, Kentucky, Texas and Idaho.
- In the spring of 2004, W&M spent nearly a week in sunny Hawaii and California, followed by three days in the snow-capped mountains of Idaho.

FRIENDS OF WILLIAM AND MARY MEN'S TENNIS

The primary purpose of "Friends of William and Mary Men's tennis" is to raise funds to support the men's tennis program. Be a part of the Tribe's success!

"The Friends of William & Mary Tennis have enabled us to reach standards, and achieve a travel schedule that has put us into position to compete at the national level," head coach Peter Daub said. "Through the generous support of many parents, alumni, and Williamsburg supporters, we are able to give these student-athletes an experience that they will cherish for a lifetime, through our travel and different cultures we'll visit."

For more information about how you can help support the W&M men's tennis team, please contact William and Mary's head men's tennis coach Peter Daub by phone at (757) 221-3383 or by e-mail at pbdaub@wm.edu.

SEASON OUTLOOK

TWO NCAA CHAMPIONSHIPS • THREE CAA CROWNS • 29 ALL-CAA SINGLES PLAYERS • 21 ALL-CAA DOUBLES TEAMS • SEVEN CAA PLAYERS OF THE YEAR • TWO ITA HALL OF FAMERS • SEVEN W&M HALL OF FAMERS

The Tribe will look to regain the form that produced the 2005 Colonial Athletic Association Championship with a solid combination of experience and youth in 2006-07. W&M returns six letterwinners from the 2005-06 season, including its top two players in senior Colin O'Brien and junior Alex Cojanu. W&M has 66.9 percent of its overall singles victories from last season returning, including 70.7 percent of its dual match wins. The Tribe also adds a two-member freshman class, which ranked eighth in the Mid-major top-25 according to the Tennis Recruiting Network.

"My only expectations for the spring are the growth and development of each player," head coach Peter Daub said. "We have some experience, and we have some youth and enthusiasm. However, matches basically come down to the mindset of players during competition. To borrow a phrase from undefeated Georgia, 'Counting on everyone, waiting on no one,' expresses the confidence I have in the players to prepare themselves for each match."

The Tribe reached some impressive heights during the 2006 fall season. O'Brien and Cojanu knocked off six straight ACC foes on their way to claiming the ITA Mid-east Region Championship. The victory garnered the Tribe duo a spot in the most exclusive of the three national championship events during the season. As one of 16 teams competing in the ITA National Indoor Championship in Columbus, Ohio, O'Brien and Cojanu went 2-2 at the event, including a victory over the No. 15 nationally ranked team. The pair advanced to the consolation finals of the event.

As a result of O'Brien and Cojanu playing at the National Indoor Championships, the other Tribe players had the chance to move up and play some stiffer competition at the Crowne Plaza Tribe Invitational. In its first home fall event in four years, W&M battled players the likes of ACC foes North Carolina State and Maryland as well a top-20 foe in Notre Dame.

"This fall has presented me with a picture of our team that has been unselfish, hard-working and committed to a structured and demanding conditioning program as well as each player's personal on-court development," Daub said. "This team has embodied the phrase 'Love the process' rather than complaining or not accepting the coaching demands put on them. They have seen results from their efforts, and that has pushed them even harder. I am exceptionally proud of their feedback and relationship with me during these demanding times."

O'Brien was a First-Team All-CAA and VaSID All-State selection as a junior. He finished with a 19-17 record, playing almost exclusively at the No. 1 slot. In fact, 12 of its 17 defeats came to players ranked among the top 80 in the country.

Cojanu finished with 19 wins playing primarily at the No. 2 and No. 3 positions. He moved into the No. 2 slot and finished the fall season with an 8-2 mark at the position. The Hallandale, Fla., native was 19-14 in singles and 24-12 in doubles. Cojanu was a Third-Team All-CAA selection in singles and a second-team honoree in doubles. He finished the 2006 fall season with seven victories, including a pair of ranked opponents.

Junior Kavi Sud also returns as upperclassmen for the Tribe in 2007. Sud finished last season with a 15-8 overall singles mark. He moved up to the No. 3 slot against George Mason and defeated Jay Friedman in straight sets, 6-2, 6-1. Sud went 5-3 playing at the No. 6 position. During the fall of 2006, Sud tallied five wins.

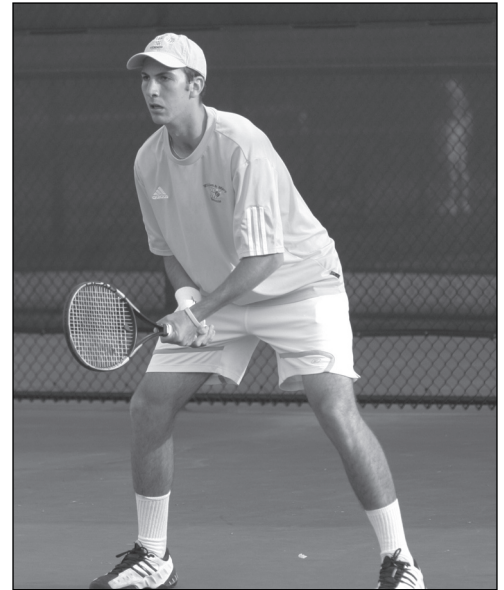

The sophomore trio of Dominic Pagon, Marwan Ramadan and Alex Zuck return for their second season with the Tribe. Pagon put together a 7-4 singles mark during the 2006 fall season after finishing with 11 wins as a rookie playing at the No. 4, No. 5 and No. 6 positions. He also won 16 doubles matches during his freshman campaign.

Ramadan joined the Tribe prior to the 2006 spring season and finished the year with a 4-2 mark. The Alexandria, Va., native continued his solid play during the 2006 fall season. Ramadan finished with a 5-1 mark, including victories in his final four matches. Three of those final four wins came at the Crowne Plaza Tribe Invite.

Zuck put together a solid rookie campaign, finishing as one of two Tribe players with 20-plus victories. He competed in 25 dual matches, racking up a 13-12 mark.

Freshmen Richard Wardell and Keziel Juneau are the Tribe's pair of newcomers. Wardell was ranked No. 74 nationally by the Tennis Recruiting Network. The Fort Myers, Fla., native won five singles and six doubles matches during the 2006 fall season. Juneau was one of the top-ranked junior players in Canada in both singles and doubles. During the 2006 fall campaign, he finished with five singles victories.

The Tribe will continue to face some stiff competition in 2007 as the spring dual match season includes 13 teams that finished last season ranked among the ITA top 75. Included in that number are eight teams who were in the top 30. The list of 2006 ranked foes the Tribe will be facing in 2007 include: No. 2 Georgia, No. 8 Virginia, No. 14 VCU, No. 17 Notre Dame, No. 26 Louisville, No. 27 Boise State, No. 28 Wake Forest, No. 29 Rice, No. 33 Middle Tennessee State, No. 38 Michigan, No. 57 Old Dominion, No. 60 Oklahoma and No. 63

Junior Alex Cojanu defeated a pair of ranked foes, including the No. 28 player nationally during the 2006 fall season.

Brown, Richmond, Michigan, Notre Dame, Wake Forest, Georgia, Boise State, Virginia, Rice, Middle Tennessee State, Brown, Louisville and VCU were the 12 teams to advance to the 2006 NCAA Tournament.

"The direction I have taken with our program is to give our student-athletes the most challenging schedule possible," Daub said. "We have the attitude of playing anybody, any place, anytime. Over my 14 years, I have never focused on our win-loss record. My only ambition is to put us in a position to play in the NCAA Tournament at the end of the year, regardless of our record, and for us to be ready for that level of play. In order for us to do that, we must grow from each match, and overachieve when it comes to the learning process of playing opponents who may be more skilled."

The College will have 14 dual matches in Williamsburg, including the first four dual-match contests of the season against Virginia (Jan. 24), Notre Dame (Jan. 27), Richmond (Jan. 28) and East Carolina (Jan. 28). W&M's slated away matches are at Wake Forest (Feb. 3), at Georgia (Feb. 4), at Maryland (March 3) and at Louisville (March 11).

Along with the scheduled dual match affairs, the Tribe will compete in a pair of spring tournament during the latter weekends of March. W&M will play in the Blue-Grey Classic in Montgomery, Ala., March 15-18. The Tribe will also travel to the 46th annual Rice Invitational in Houston, Texas. William and Mary will play in the four-team round robin event and face Rice, Oklahoma and Middle Tennessee State.

"With the concept of personal growth that will lead to an NCAA bid, the foundation of this program is built on each person striving for excellence through a tremendous work ethic," Daub said. "The win-loss record will be what it is, but it will not define us."

- 2006 USTPA Mid-Atlantic College Coach of the Year
- First tennis player to be inducted into the Findlay College Athletic Hall of Fame

DAUB'S EXPERTISE — "WILD AND CRAZY DOUBLES"

As successful as the entire W&M program has been under Daub, the quality of doubles has been highly productive on the pro and college level. If Daub has a specialty within his coaching skills, it is in doubles, where he has coached players to the round of 16 at Wimbledon twice. He has also coached the United States doubles team to a gold medal at the World Games in Japan.

In the 2001 spring season, he guided W&M in capturing an incredible 20 of 25 doubles points in team competition. Also that year the 26th-ranked team of Patrick Brown and Trevor Spracklin combined for an impressive 17-3 record at No. 1 doubles and defeated Texas in the first round of the NCAAs. This past fall, the Tribe doubles team of Alex Cojanu and Colin O'Brien captured the ITA Mid-east Region title and earned a spot in the ITA Indoor National Championship as one of only 16 teams in the country at the event. Daub's slogan of "Wild and Crazy Doubles" revolves around constant movement and motion in a very aggressive, structured atmosphere.

Boasting a wealth of coaching and playing experience, two-time Colonial Athletic Association Coach of the Year Peter Daub brings an impeccable list of credentials to William and Mary. As he enters his 14th season with the College, his knowledge, work ethic and enthusiasm will continue to lead the program towards a bright future.

In his 21st season of coaching during the 2006 season, Daub reached a career milestone, recording victory No. 400 in the Tribe's 4-3 win over Georgia State on April 9, 2006. He has spent 21 years as a head men's coach and another seven as a head women's coach. In his 13 years with W&M, Daub's teams have posted a 190-157 record.

Under his tutelage, the Tribe continues to improve, winning the CAA title in 2005 with a victory over nine-time champion Virginia Commonwealth. With the Green and Gold reaching the finals of the conference tournament for the fifth time in the last eight seasons, the Tribe became the first team to beat VCU in the CAA Tournament since the Rams joined the league in the 1996 season. The Tribe knocked off the Rams, 4-2, in the CAA Championship match on April 24, 2005.

Despite a tough start to a season that was fraught with injuries, W&M won seven of its last eight matches, culminating with the team's first conference title since 1990 and first NCAA Tournament appearance since 1999. Daub was named the United States Professional Tennis Association Mid-Atlantic College Coach of the Year after guiding the Tribe to the CAA title and the NCAA Tournament in 2005.

In 2004, W&M achieved a number of milestones in its quest for national prominence. The Tribe upset Tennessee on the road, 4-3, in the program's first win over a top-10 SEC team in more than 30 years. W&M also stunned VCU with a win in Richmond, handing the seventh-ranked Rams its first loss in CAA play, as the Tribe earned another win over a top 10 opponent.

Individually, the Tribe has excelled as well. Jeff Kader (a 2005 graduate) led the way by competing in the NCAA Singles Tournament for the second straight season, the first W&M player to participate in the event since Gardner Larned won the event in 1947. In the fall of 2003, Kader became the first W&M player to compete at the ITA National Indoor Championship, where he upset the nation's fourth-ranked player. Voted the most outstanding performer of the 2005 CAA Tournament, Kader went 3-0 in both singles and doubles at the event, upsetting the CAA's 2005 Co-Players of the Year in straight sets at No. 1 singles in the final two rounds. Alex Cojanu was named the CAA's Co-Rookie of the Year last season, as the College had three singles players and two doubles teams earn all-conference honors.

In 2001, the Tribe doubles team of Patrick Brown and Trevor Spracklin advanced to the second round of the NCAA Tournament, the first for a W&M duo under the current structure. In 1999, when Daub won his first CAA Coach of the Year award, he also led the team to its eighth NCAA Tournament appearance.

Prior to his arrival at W&M, Daub spent two years as the assistant coach at Georgia, where he helped the Bulldogs achieve No. 4 and No. 2 national rankings and a showing at the 1993 NCAA Championship finals. In 1995, he coached the United States to a gold medal at the World University Games in Japan. In past years, Daub has also coached at the Australian Open, Wimbledon and the U.S. Open.

A graduate of Findlay College, Daub received his master's degree in education (sports administration) at Temple University. Daub coached at Redlands College for two seasons, and was the men's head coach at Temple from 1982 through 1989, he also led the women's team from 1985 to 1989. His players on the combined teams won the "Highest Student-Athlete GPA Award" for averaging over a 3.0 GPA for eight semesters.

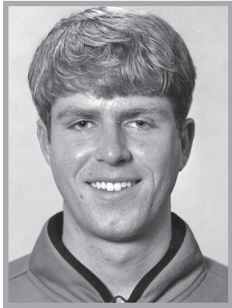

Daub has been a featured speaker at various events, including the USTA and USPTA national conventions and the ITA Coaches Convention. At the 1997 and 2000 U.S. Opens, Daub gave clinics at the USTA Tennis Teachers Conference. He also has served as the coach of the Mid-Atlantic section at the Junior Davis Cup. A former coach and captain of varsity tennis at Findlay, Daub competed internationally on various professional circuits, winning titles in Australia and New Zealand.

Daub lives in Williamsburg with his wife Ruth, a former touring professional, who in 2001 won the Virginia state 45 and over singles championship. The couple has a daughter, Kate, and son, Doug, who won the 2000 high school state doubles title.

The William and Mary men's tennis program has not only produced successful student-athletes in the business world, but in the professional tennis ranks as well. Jeff Kader, a 2005 graduate, played professionally in France upon graduation from the college, but has since moved into the assistant men's tennis coach position at North Carolina State. Currently, two former W&M players in Trevor Spracklin (a 2001 graduate of the college) and Stephen Ward (a 2006 graduate) are playing on the professional circuit.

"The conditioning, technique development and on-court strategy that we employ at William and Mary allows our players to grow to the pace and quickness of college tennis, and sets them on a path, if they desire, to play at the professional level after graduation. (Assistant Coach Marcos) Asse and myself spend a tremendous amount of time each week with private lessons and personal enhancement of each player's game. Our structure and demanding conditioning program helps players understand what is required of their bodies and minds to help them adjust to the pace and quickness of the highest level of tennis."

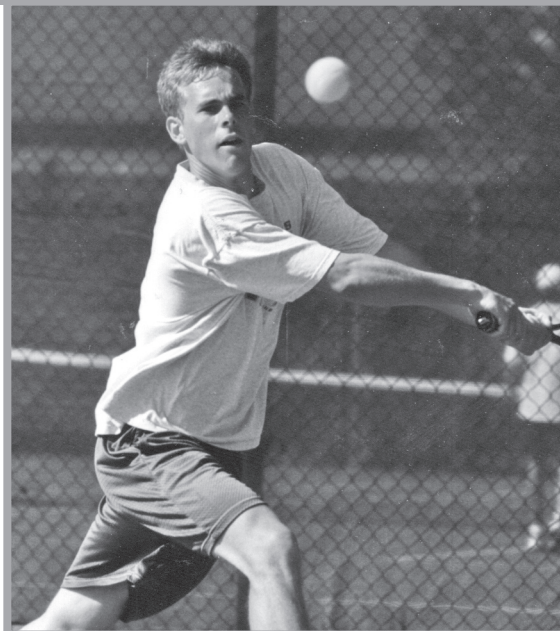

- Head Coach Peter Daub -

The 1999 Colonial Athletic Association Player of the Year and a four-time first team all-conference selection, Trevor Spracklin has been playing professional tennis since graduating from W&M. He has been ranked as high as 734th in in singles and 319th in doubles in the ATP World Rankings. Spracklin has won more than 10 doubles titles in his career, including events in the United States, Ecuador, Israel, Thailand, Portugal and Jamaica. In 2006, he won the Mid-Atlantic Clay Court doubles championship, while advancing to the finals in singles and mixed doubles as well.

"There is no better training ground [for playing in the pros] than college, where everything is taken care of for you and you can focus solely on playing tennis and academics. Even now on the professional tour, I would kill for the kind of treatment I received in college, in terms of meals, travel and care for injuries.

"Playing against one of the toughest schedules in the country at W&M, I played against some of the best players in the nation and grew exponentially, more than I ever thought I could. Because of the strong schedule, I played against some of the toughest players in the country, guys who turn out to be tough in the pros, or who are already established in the college ranks.

"My weaknesses were exposed in college, where I was able to fix them and become an even better player. Coach Daub was never satisfied with my game and, in turn, neither was I. He was always trying to build me so that I could compete in college and become better in the pros."

Stephen Ward began playing professionally in the French Federation of Tennis (FFT) upon his graduation from the college. An All-CAA selection during his four years at W&M, Ward won his first USTA Pro Circuit championship, taking home the doubles title at the Laguna Niguel Pro Futures Classic. It was just his third event playing on the USTA Futures circuit. Based on his performance during 10 tournaments with the FFT, he was invited back to play for a regional team in La Baule, France in May of 2007.

"The College of William and Mary was a great preparatory platform for my goal to play on the professional tennis circuit. I came into the program with a lot of athletic potential but through my four-year career I was able to channel that ability into production and results. Many factors contributed to this success including an extremely hard working, but more importantly, caring coaching staff, world class facilities and a great medical treatment staff. Futhermore, the schedule my teammates and I were facing was the creme of the crop. Coach Daub was always trying to put us up against the best players and teams he could in order for us to challenge ourselves and see where we had room to improve.

The concepts and mentalities I learned to develop at the collegiate level were a great start to what is expected of you on tour. The players at the next level are extremely talented and hard working where tennis is always on the mind. Fotunately for me I was able to carry with me the strategies I learned from my college coaches and bring home a professional doubles title in my first attempt. The tennis tour is extremely demanding, but I am glad I have my William and Mary background as a base."
