HISTORY

In 1918 the Flat Hat (the College's student-newspaper) had this to say as the first class of women matriculated at William and Mary: "Don't think because girls are coming here, that we must lose spirit. Dig harder and show the girls that this is a men's college where men work like men and not as babies or grammar school 'hotten-tots.'" Just three years later, in 1921, the "girls" took on the challenge of women's intercollegiate basketball. From here things progressed rapidly, with the ladies taking "their first trip North," to Washington in 1923.

One of those adventurous women on the first varsity team was Martha Barksdale (1899-1974). She was both a forward and the manager of the team that year. In 1926, Barksdale joined the W&M faculty as a physical education teacher, Women's Athletic Council member and basketball coach. She devoted her entire professional career of 45 years to teaching and coaching sports at W&M. Barksdale, the first woman to receive the bachelor of arts degree at the College, was a prime force in establishing the Women's Intercollegiate Athletics Program.

In 1944 the program took a short break, eliminating varsity competition due to World War II. After the war the number of scheduled games decreased. But by 1960, Barksdale's last year of coaching, things were back in full swing. Forty women arrived ready to play on the first day of practice.

In 1977, coach Eloise Jacobs described her players as the "best all-around team in 16 years." That was W&M Athletic Hall of Fame member Lynn Norenberg's first season with the Tribe and the first of four years as the team's scoring leader. During her college career, Norenberg re-wrote the Tribe record books establishing career marks for most points (1,500), best scoring average per game (18.3), best field goal percentage (.619), most field goals (607) and best free throw percentage (77.5). The two-time Academic All-America and Phi Beta Kappa honoree was a member of three all-state teams, three all-state tournament teams and one all-region team.

Between 1977 and 1981 the Tribe women, including Norenberg, broke every team season record.

The 1983-84 season signaled the beginning of a new era for women's basketball at W&M as the Tribe moved from the AIAW to unofficial ECAC-South competition. In 1984-85, the Tribe made the move from Division II to NCAA Division I membership, and played its first official ECAC-South season. W&M joined the Colonial Athletic Association at its inception in 1985.

The 1993-94 team broke the school record for wins in a season (20), winning percentage (.714), scoring average (71.3) and assists (399).

W&M women's basketball records date back to 1970 when Pat Crowe was the head coach. Eloise Jacobs led the program from 1976-78 prior to an eight-year reign by current Senior Executive Associate Athletics Director Barbara Blosser, the first full-time women's basketball coach at the College. Patrick Megel took over the program when Blosser moved into the administrative ranks and was succeeded by Trina Thomas Patterson in 1991. In 1999, former Tribe basketball and lacrosse player and 1986 graduate Debbie Taylor took over at the helm, where she begins her eighth year.

Women's

"I have parlayed my W&M chemistry degree into a rewarding career in the pharmaceutical/biotechnology industries. My W&M experience left an indelible mark on me intellectually, athletically and personally. The classroom prepared me for the journey ahead by equipping me with an ability to think critically and strategically. On the hardwood I developed an outstanding work ethic, competitiveness, accountability and interpersonal skills. Finally, one of my dearest and closest friends today is a former teammate (Nina McIntyre). I am still consistently rewarded with respect when others discover my alma mater, and it is always a joy to experience the camaraderie of fellow alumnae of all ages with whom I occasionally cross paths."

-Tara Roberson Carey - Class of 1995

B.S. Chemistry
Presently a Diagnostic Specialist for Bracco Diagnostics, Inc.
(formerly Bristol Myers Squibb Diagnostics)
Laurel, MD

"Shortly after graduating from college, I discovered my true calling in law enforcement, first as a police officer and detective in Norfolk, VA and now as a Special Agent for NCIS. The spectrum of the responsibilities attached to my duties as a federal agent include investigating some of the most heinous crimes to providing the security of the military forces that protect and fight for our freedom as Americans. Little did I know how much my college experiences, both on and off the basketball court, would serve as a benchmark for the successes I have achieved within my life and career."

-Maureen Evans - Class of 1988

B.A. Theatre
Presently a Special Agent for the Naval Criminal Investigative Services
Norfolk, VA

"My decision to attend William and Mary is without a doubt the best decision I have made in my life to date. The quality of people that I was exposed to both on and off the court was like no other. My William and Mary experience not only helped prepare me for life and the workplace, it also provided me with an opportunity to form relationships that will last forever. I am always extremely proud to say that I am a part of the W&M family."

-Tiffany Stone - Class of 1991

B.S. Marketing
Presently the Vice President of Community Development,
Atlanta Spirit, LLC
(Parent company of the Atlanta Hawks)
Atlanta, GA

"Playing basketball at W&M turned out to be incredible preparation for leading people through the challenges and excitement of making a company successful. Some of the lessons learned – working effectively with others with the same goal but different means of getting there, not letting the recent missed "shot" or bad decision hurt your ability to focus on the task at hand, enjoy the moment, give 100% and you will have few regrets – are ones that come to mind almost every day of my life."

Basketball Alumnae

"I can't begin to express my gratitude towards the coaches, the College itself and the support staff at William and Mary. As soon as I stepped foot onto campus, I knew that it was an extraordinary place. I was able to pursue not only an education that is nationally renowned, but also a myriad of culturally and intellectually stimulating events outside of the classroom. My education undoubtedly prepared me for the challenges I am currently facing in law school. The education I received taught me how to think, analyze, and process information differently and in a more critical manner. My experiences on the women's basketball team at William and Mary has forever changed my life. I left W&M not simply as a degree holder, but as a better person because of the guidance I was given by my coaches and support staff. They taught me the importance of leadership, teamwork, family and perseverance. The young ladies I was honored to have played with throughout my tenure were exceptional, and we will remain friends because of bonds made and trials overcome during our time together."

-Megan Baier - Class of 2004

B.S./B.A. Marketing/English
Presently in law school pursuing a Juris Doctorate at
The University of Michigan
Ann Arbor, MI

"My most valuable experience at W&M was playing on the women's basketball team. Not only did I learn about competition and teamwork which served me well in the business world, I also made a number of life long friends who have always been there to support me in life's ups and downs."

-Kris Huntley - Class of 1981

B.S. Accounting
M.B.A. University of Virginia
Presently a retired Managing Director of Investment Banking
Morgan Stanley, Dean Witter and Discover
Seattle, WA

"I cannot even begin to express how remarkable my experience was at the College of William and Mary, and as a member of the women's basketball team. In addition to earning a degree from an outstanding academic institution, I also learned valuable life lessons from both my coaches and teammates. I am certain that these acquired attributes will help me face any forthcoming obstacles, as I embark on a new stage of my life as a pre-med student. The women's basketball program at W&M not only furthered my development as an athlete; but also as an individual. I feel truly blessed to be a member of the Tribe family."

- Christin Gethers - Class of 2004

B.S. Kinesiology
Presently a pre-medical student, University of Pennsylvania
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

"My years at W&M served as a springboard for everything I am today. Barb Blosser taught me life lessons through basketball - how to believe in myself, give back to others, put forth maximum effort, and work to accomplish goals. After twenty years, I still maintain most of my basketball friendships and cherish this period as one of the most rewarding times of my life."

-Cheryl Yarbrough - Class of 1983

B.S./B.A. English/Economics
M.A. George Washington University
Presently a private business owner/Head Coach

LYNN NORENBURG-BARRY

February 17, 2002 was a banner day for the William and Mary women's basketball program and also for the 10 other women's sports that the College sponsors.

Lynn Barry (formerly Norenberg), one of the most highly decorated athletes in the College's rich athletic history, became the first female athlete to have her jersey number retired. Barry's No. 22 jersey was raised to the rafters of William and Mary Hall during halftime festivities of the Tribe's final home game of 2002 against Delaware, which culminated a weekend-long celebration of Barry's accomplishments during her time at the College, from 1978-1981.

A 1981 Phi Beta Kappa graduate of William and Mary, Barry was a two-time Academic All-American in women's basketball. She graduated with a 3.97 GPA as a physical education major, ranked seventh in a class of 869 and was the school's Homecoming Queen.

Barry is considered the premier player in the history of William and Mary women's basketball. As a co-captain and four-year starter, Barry was named conference Player of the Year as a freshman and led the team to the VAIAW state championship during her sophomore campaign. Despite missing a significant number of games due to injuries as a junior and senior, she finished her career with 11 school records, and is currently the holder of seven. She also lettered in track and field and was the state discus champion in 1977. Barry was elected to the William and Mary Athletic Hall of fame in 1991.

Lynn was joined by husband Rick and son Canyon

Following graduation Barry earned a master's degree from the University of Kentucky with a 4.0 GPA and went on to work as an enforcement representative for the NCAA, the only woman on a 10-person staff of field investigators.

During the past 16 years, Barry has been instrumental in the development and growth of women's basketball, both domestically and internationally.

As the assistant director of USA Basketball from 1985-1996, she organized all women's basketball teams for participation in the Olympics, World Championships, Pan-American Games and numerous other basketball events. Following the United States women's gold medal performance at the 1996 Atlanta Olympics, Barry left USA Basketball to become a special advisor to the WNBA, where she assisted for five years with all facets of the league and its many women's basketball initiatives.

On June 26, 2001, Barry was one of five outstanding former college student-athletes inducted into the prestigious Verizon Academic All-America Hall of Fame at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City. Since 1988, the Verizon Academic All-America Hall of Fame has honored 78 outstanding former college scholar-athletes for their achievements in academics, athletics, professional career and community service.

Barry was inducted with Cris Collinsworth (University of Florida, Class of 1981), Jennifer Harris Trospen (MIT, Class of 1990) and John R. Hall (Vanderbilt University, Class of 1955), and Dr. Gary Hall, Sr. (Indiana University, Class of 1973).

A resident of Colorado Springs, Colorado, Barry, who is married to NBA Hall of Fame member Rick Barry, is a frequent guest speaker at youth basketball camps and clinics.
