The University Databook, published annually by the Office of Institutional Research, is designed to provide the most frequently requested information about the College of William and Mary, using data from a wide variety of sources.

Information in the Databook is presented in tabular or graphic form, and occasionally in both formats. The aim is to present the information in the clearest, most useful manner. Suggestions based on actual use of the Databook are welcome, although space limitations do affect the amount and depth of information presented.

The information found in the Databook comes from the College's computerized databases, and certain offices of the College (please note citations on the tables and graphs). The cooperation of those offices is greatly appreciated.

The information in the Databook can be found on the World Wide Web at:

Mission Statement

The College of William and Mary, a public university in Williamsburg, Virginia, is the second-oldest institution of higher learning in the United States. Established in 1693 by British royal charter, William and Mary is proud of its role as the Alma Mater of generations of American patriots, leaders, and public servants. Now, in its fourth century, it continues this tradition of excellence by combining the best features of an undergraduate college with the opportunities offered by a modern research university. Its moderate size, dedicated faculty, and distinctive history give William and Mary a unique character among public institutions, and create a learning environment that fosters close interaction among students and teachers.

The university's predominantly residential undergraduate program provides a broad liberal education in a stimulating academic environment enhanced by a talented and diverse student body. This nationally acclaimed undergraduate program is integrated with selected graduate and professional programs in five faculties -- Arts and Sciences, Business, Education, Law, and Marine Science. Masters and doctoral programs in the humanities, the sciences, the social sciences, business, education, and law provide a wide variety of intellectual opportunities for students at both graduate and undergraduate levels.

At William and Mary, teaching, research, and public service are linked through programs designed to preserve, transmit, and expand knowledge. Effective teaching imparts knowledge and encourages the intellectual development of both student and teacher. Quality research supports the educational program by introducing students to the challenge and excitement of original discovery, and is a source of the knowledge and understanding needed for a better society. The university recognizes its special responsibility to the citizens of Virginia through public and community service to the Commonwealth as well as to national and international communities. Teaching, research, and public service are all integral parts of the mission of William and Mary.

Goals

In fulfilling its mission, William and Mary adopts the following specific goals:

- to attract outstanding students from diverse backgrounds;
- to develop a diverse faculty which is nationally and internationally recognized for excellence in both teaching and research;
- to provide a challenging undergraduate program with a liberal arts and sciences curriculum that encourages creativity, independent thought, and intellectual depth, breadth, and curiosity;
- to offer high quality graduate and professional programs that prepare students for intellectual, professional, and public leadership;
- to instill in its students an appreciation for the human condition, a concern for the public well-being, and a life-long commitment to learning; and
- to use the scholarship and skills of its faculty and students to further human knowledge and understanding, and to address specific problems confronting the Commonwealth of Virginia, the nation, and the world.

* The original A. B. degree was the result of the efforts of Lord Botetourt, colonial governor of Virginia, to stimulate students to complete the examinations for the degree of bachelor of arts. In 1792, after the American Revolution, the Board of Visitors established explicit requirements for the bachelor of arts, as well as the bachelor of law degree. Certain bachelors degrees are now identified as B. A. degrees.

Note: At certain times in its history, the College has offered earned degrees including Bachelor of Chemistry (B. C.), Bachelor of Civil Law (B. C. L.), Bachelor of Law (B. L.), Bachelor of Philosophy, Certificate of Advanced Graduate Studies in Education (C. A. G. S.), Doctor of Laws - Science (J. S. D.), Licentiate of Instruction (L. I.), Master of Arts in Teaching (M. A. T.), Master of Law and Taxation (M. L. T.), Master of Taxation (M. T.), Master of Teaching in Science (M. T. S.), and Doctor of Law (LL. D.). In addition, honorary degrees including Doctor of Fine Arts (A. E. D.), Doctor of Arts (D. A.), Doctor of Divinity (D. D.), Doctor of Laws (LL. D.), Bachelor of Laws (B. L.), Doctor of Humane Letters (L. H. D.), Doctor of Literature (Litt. D.), Doctor of Taxation and Law (L. T. D.), and Doctor of Science (Sc. D.) have been awarded.

Note: Global education (formerly known as "study abroad") students are included from 1992 through 1996. See table 27 for information concerning global education students. Beginning in fall 1991, undergraduates seeking teaching certifications in education were counted with Arts and Sciences, because such students were required to declare primary concentrations in Arts and Sciences. Masters programs in English, Government, Mathematics, and Sociology were phased out through implementation of the strategic plan, explained in Into the Fourth Century: A Plan for the Future of the College of William and Mary (1994). The plan implementation also restructured graduate programs in the School of Education. Results of the restructuring are reflected beginning with 1995.

Note: Percentages refer to percents of school totals. Global education students are included in 1995 and 1996. See table 27 for information concerning global education students. Masters programs in English, Government, Mathematics, and Sociology were phased out through implementation of the strategic plan, explained in Into the Fourth Century: A Plan for the Future of the College of William and Mary (1994). The plan implementation also restructured graduate programs in the School of Education. Results of the restructuring are reflected beginning with 1995.
