ROANOKE MAROONS HOLD W. & M. TEAM TO TIE

UNFAVORABLE WEATHER KEEPS BOTH TEAMS FROM DEVELOPING SUSTAINED OFFENSIVE

SCORING ALL DONE IN SECOND QUARTER

Field A Sea of Mud

Captain Todd, "Dicky" Charles and "Hunk" Hurt of Roanoke Are Stars.

Hampered by a sea of mud and blinded by a driving rain, William and Mary and the Roanoke Maroons played to a 7-to-7 tie in Newport News Saturday. Calm weather ruled only for a single period and during that time the Indians uncorked a brilliant offensive that scored a touchdown a few minutes before the downpour ensued. A costly Indian misplay, a blocked punt and a crucial penalty gave Roanoke her chance to score immediately after William and Mary had crossed the goal line, tying the score, which neither team could break, though try as they may.

The last three quarters of the battle were fought in an uncharted pond in the heart of Newport News, making football play well nigh impossible, the contest narrowing down to the ability of either eleven to keep their hands upon the ball and to punt when necessary.

Miss Rose Willis, of Norfolk, Directing Play; To Be Presented in Richmond Wednesday.

The first appearance of the Dramatic Club for this season will be made next Tuesday night, when the organization will present J. C. and Elliott Nugent's play, "Kempy," in Cameron Hall. The play was given last spring and met with such success that it was decided to repeat the performance this fall.

The play is a farce comedy, centering about the efforts of a young artist with little but ambitions to win the hand of his beloved from a shrewd and skeptical father. The title role is played by one of the Dramatic Club's veteran leading men, Charles Pollard, while the other parts are well taken by other members of the club.

The members of the cast are:

Dad Bence—Robert B. Wynne.
Ma Bence—Josephine Carter Barney.

Jane Wade—Anne Colle Townsend.

Cross-Country Team Meets Randolph-Macon

Race Will Start and End Near Jefferson Hall; Runners in Fine Condition.

William and Mary and Randolph-Macon will clash in a cross-country race here today for the first time in the history of the two institutions. This will also be the first time that an Indian team has ever carried the Green, Gold and Silver in a cross-country meet in Williamsburg.

The Indian team should have gathered some valuable practical experience during the meet with the veteran team from Maryland University at College Park last Saturday, which should give them a slight edge over the visitors. The meet today is the first cross-country race that Randolph-Macon has engaged in this year.

The race starts at 2:30 this afternoon from the end of Jefferson Hall. Because of a request of the Randolph-Macon coaches, the distance will be only four miles; extending down the Jamestown road and finishing at Jefferson Hall. If it is agreeable to Randolph-Macon, Coaches Siersma and Chandler expect to start all the men who are out for the cross-country team in this race. If only one team

Matsu Leads Attack

Thirtieth Time Gold, Green and Silver Has Met Red and Blue

Next Thursday, at Mayo Island Park in Richmond, the climax and end of a great football season will see Coach Tasker's "Fighting Virginians" facing their time-honored foe, the University of Richmond.

For the thirtieth time the Gold, Green and Silver will face the Red and Blue in a gridiron engagement, and incidentally will strike the keynote of their athletic rivalry.

William and Mary, boasting the best gridiron record of her existence, appears to have a slight edge over Dobson's charges. While the Indians have had a successful season, the Spiders have been fighting an uphill fight, getting off to a bad start, but showing signs of much strength towards the last of the season.

In preparing for the Turkey Day clash, Coach Tasker has driven his men through the hardest week's work of the season, sparing no pains to

W. & M. Has Won Eight, Tied Two and Lost Nineteen Battles Out of Twenty-nine.

In 1898 the first football game between the Indians and the Spiders was played. Since then, the two rivals have played twenty-nine games, William and Mary winning eight, tying two and losing nineteen.

Roanoke Declines A Post-Season Game

Notice was issued Wednesday by officials of Roanoke College that they would decline a post-season game with William and Mary to decide the State Collegiate Championship. The reasons given for declining the Indian challenge were that the Maroon squad would have to stay in training for two weeks extra time and their own uncertainty of the outcome of the Richmond-William and Mary game November 27.

SHOWS INDIANS ARE

the same number of games won, lost, and tied, but the Generals have not piled up the number of points as have the Taskerites.

After walking roughshod over their opponents in several practice games, William and Mary opened her 1924 collegiate football schedule at Annapolis, played the Navy eleven almost to a standstill, but finally lost 14 to 7. The Indians showed to advantage in every department of the game, the line not giving an inch to the heavier Navy line and the backfield tearing off gains for a total of 203 yards to 174 yards gained by Navy. Cain carried the ball over for William and Mary's touchdown after a pass, Matsu to Davis, had netted 35 yards. Matsu passed to Collier for extra point. It was in this game that John Todd was taken out for the first time in his gridiron career on account of injuries. His nose was broken in the final quarter of the game in one of the Navy's many plunges at center.

Following the encounter with the Midshipmen, Coach Tasker led his players against his old Alma Mater, Syracuse. Defeated 24 to 7, William and Mary nevertheless won for herself from the press of the North the title of "Those Fighting Virginians." And well did the Indians deserve such a nickname; for they held Syracuse to a 7 to 7 tie during the first half of the game. The 20,000 spectators were brought to their feet repeatedly as the Taskerites cut daring pass after pass lose that baffled the big New York team. The Indians showed class in all departments of the game. The Matsu-to-Davis pass took another step toward gridiron glory for it was by this method that William and Mary scored, Matsu adding point after touchdown by a drop-kick.

Next the Indians returned home to do battle with their ancient foe from Ashland, Randolph-Macon. Using only straight football plays, as King College and Trinity College football scouts were on the field, Coach Tasker's team won 27 to 0. The second team played a quarter of the game and had little trouble in doing better than their own against the Yellow Jackets. Collier and Cooke each took the ball over for a touchdown while Wince Irwin slipped across the Randolph-Macon goal twice with the ball in his arms. Matsu made two points after touchdowns, and Davis added one by a pass from Matsu.

Being well primed for the Trinity Blue Devils and anything that Howard Jones' men might try to pull off, William and Mary invaded Norfolk, October 25, and returned home that night with a 21 to 3 victory. The entire team "Did its stuff" and brought the fans of Norfolk to their feet by the dazzling and slashing attack. Especially brilliant in this game was the aerial offensive that brought gain after gain, while Trinity could not unravel the forward passing formations of the Taskerites. Only once did the Blue Devils threaten to score a touchdown and that when Lagerstadt, the headgearless, went on a rampage and tore through the Indian line for several substantial gains which paved the way for Trinity's field goal. Coach Tasker used almost his entire squad before the game was over. In order to get a line on his reserve strength, Matsu-to-Davis was the order of the day, and this combination accounted for two touchdowns, while Cain ploughed over the lines for one counter. Matsu drop-kicked for three points after touchdowns.

Another feared enemy was King on the following week in Richmond The "Mountain Tornado" in the first few minutes of play looked formidable enough, and things did not appear rosy until the wind blew itself out on William and Mary's 38-yard line. However, this seemed to be a good tonic for the Indians; for, three minutes after that, the ball was placed decisively behind King's goal line. After the Mountain Hurricane or Tornado and the final whistle had both blown out and the dust settled the Indians found that they had 27 points while the Tornado registered zero. Charles had a big day, registering two touchdowns, while Lee Todd and Wince Irwin carried the ball with them over the King goal line for a register apiece. Matsu sent the ball between the bars for three points after touchdowns. Again the benchwarmers were given a chance on the field and proved themselves worthy.

Gridiron Gleanings

The News-Leader sums last Saturday's situation up correctly in our estimation: "William and Mary was at a disadvantage in the game with Roanoke in that her attack could not be fully staged. The Indians rely on forward passing, and did not have a chance on the muddy field Saturday. The Indians' attack is built on a fast charging line and a comparatively swift backfield rather than the driving type."

Saturday's game did not mar the Indians' record in the opinion of sports writers. One says, "Were William and Mary and Roanoke playing on a dry field, the Indians would be given a two touchdown advantage."

After the first touchdown "Then the deluge"; certainly came true in Newport News last week.

A post-season game with Roanoke seems to be the only way of fully clearing away the cloud that hangs over the collegiate championship of the state. The Indians have consented and it remains to the Maroons to consummate it.

So furious was the torrential downpour that covered the Indian-Maroon clash that every written record of statistics was destroyed, leaving no means of determining the real victor in the contest. However, it is safe to say that William and Mary made several more first downs than did the Maroons.

In field generals we will stack Matsu up against the best of them; so from the kick-off to the final whistle we place the destiny of our team in his hands.

Our backfield has the advantage over that of the Spiders in regards to experience in previous Indian-Spider clashes. Matsu, Cain, Charles and Irwin have played in one or more games against Richmond, while Savory is the only Richmond back who has faced an Indian line.

The Indians lead all state teams in the number of points scored on the gridiron. They are in a tie with Washington and Lee for the number of games won, lost and tied.

Richmond has fast backs in Sharpe and Miller. But this does not necessarily mean that they can skirt our ends or break our line. Neither the speed kinds of Trinity or King could gain any ground against the Indians.

The Indian Cinder Tribe had hard luck up at College Park Saturday. Never mind, though, boys, you'll get a crack at Randolph-Macon this afternoon.

The Scrubs, after playing in defeat throughout the season, won their game against Fort Eustis last week 3 to 0.

Scrubs Beat Eustis By Margin Field Goal

The William and Mary Scrubs journeyed down to Fort Eustis last Friday and turned in the first victory of the season, 3 to 0. The Little Indians outplayed their heavier opponents in every department of the game and never had their goal line seriously threatened by any of the three teams sent in against them. The scrubs registered the only points of the game early in the first quarter, after a march down the field to the soldiers' 20-yard line. There the heavier opposing line stiffened, but Bergoff, sent in to relieve Macon at quarter, dropped one between the uprights from the 25-yard line. Several times later in the game, the scrubs threatened to score, but were unable to deliver the final punch.

The Squad As Seen By the Sports Man

A List of the Abilities and Qualities of the Entire Indian Team.

Todd—Center.

John Todd, center, is easily the most versatile line man on the varsity, captain of the eleven, and is completing his last year of a brilliant career. He has been favorably mentioned as an All-Southern and All-South Atlantic man. He is the greatest Indian center of recent years.

House—Right Guard.

"Kerno" House, right guard, is an All-State linesman. His methods of attack are varied. He first gained fame when pitted against Carney, Navy All-American player, in 1922, whom he outfought and outplayed. He is the most dreaded of all Indian players.

Parsons—Left Guard.

Leslie Parsons, left guard, whose ability was first brought to light by Coach Bill Ingram, is an able mate to House. He is making his last appearance in an Indian uniform in Richmond next Thursday.

Little Indians Had Successful Season

Although Not Winning Many Games, Showed Great Strength Against Odds.

The 1924 football season has been the most successful enjoyed by a William and Mary scrub team in recent years. Although the Little Indians have so far turned in only one victory, their feat of holding the Newport News Apprentice team to a scoreless tie showed what they were capable of doing.

In every game the Little Indians presented a defense which, if backed up by a heady offense, would have been good for a win. The offense of the scrubs was crippled during the entire season by the loss of quarterbacks. Thorp was forced out of the game early in the season with injuries, and Moore, shifted from half to to fill his place, has been out with a torn shoulder since the game with Langley Field.

The scrubs played their last game of the season against Newport News High school Friday. Coach Nilson has built up a machine that should give a good account of themselves against "Monk" White's charges.

The Little Indians have only amassed 21 points, while their opponents have accumulated 47, but 25 points were amassed against them in one game by Langley Field. So far the scrubs have played the following games:

- At South Norfolk—South Norfolk High School, 7; W. & M. Scrubs, 0.
- At Naval Base—Naval Base, 13; W. & M. Scrubs, 6.
- At Hampton — Hampton High School, 2; W. & M. Scrubs, 0.
- At Newport News—Newport News Apprentices, 0; W. & M. Scrubs, 0.
- At Fort Eustis—Fort Eustis, 0; W. & M. Scrubs, 3.
- At Langley Field—Langley, 25; W. & M. Scrubs, 12.
- Total—Opposition, 47.
- Total—W. & M., 21.

All W. & M. All-Time Elevens Are Selected

Long List Notables Were On Team; Four Made All-American.

(By RALPH K. T. LARSON.)

Many things are to be taken into consideration in picking all-time all-William and Mary elevens. Style of play has changed a great deal during the last 150 years and records of some of the earlier players are vague. The college in its earliest history did not belong to an intercollegiate conference and consequently the eligibility rules were not as strict as they are now.

Four of Alma Mater's first players made the All-American; namely, George Washington, Tommy Jefferson, Jimmy Monroe and Johnny Tyler. Some of the best players of that day sat on the bench. These include Johnny Marshall, Johnny Blair, Bushrod (Bush, for short) Washington and Phil Barbour. Walter Camp has forgotten us for a long time, but maybe he has his eye on Art Matsu or John Todd.

The selections for All-William and Mary all-time elevens follow:

"MAISON" HOUSE

Weber—Right Tackle.

"Ducky" Weber, right tackle, is the only freshman to win a place on the first eleven this season. An ex-Boston high school player, who throws his 195 pounds effectively against opponents. He has played in the major portion of every game of the year, and is one of the most valuable men on the squad.

Elliott—Left Tackle.

"Snook" Elliott, left guard, seems to hold a reserved place on the All-State team and is considered one of the best tackles in the State. He can always be depended upon and never fails to deliver the goods.

Davis—Right End.

"Meb" Davis, right end, is a rangy wingman, playing his first year on the varsity eleven. He is the greatest receiver of the forward pass ever to don the Indian uniform, and he firmly established his record in the northern games as the scoring member of the formidable Matsu-Davis passing combination.

Todd—Left End.

said to be the most aggressive end that William and Mary has had in recent years. He is fast down the field under punts, is a swift, hard tackler and eyes the ball keenly.

Matsu—Quarterback.

"Art" Matsu, quarterback, is the mainstay of the Indian team. The little Indian field general is great in every particular and has won a wide reputation. He guides the eleven with unerring precision and his diagnosis is faultless. His passing game is spectacular, besides being a powerful scoring medium. He is an able triple-threat man.

Irwin—Halfback.

"Wince" Irwin, halfback, carries the ball with a vicious, telling effect, and

SUITS AND OVERCOATS FOR THE COLLEGE MEN

Young men between the ages of 17 and 30, what we call the college age, usually spend most of their allowance or salary in having a good time. So naturally when they go to buy their suit this fall, they are going to look for something conservative in price, but which will get the O. K. of their chums as to style and color.

We have just such a collection of suits for young men. Suits in the English lines with wide trousers, in such new colors as London lavender, rust brown, parrot blue, lava grey, burr brown. And is withal a brilliant offensive player. He is the fastest of all Indian backs. Irwin wields death-dealing blows as he rips jagged holes in the most formidable of defenses.

Charles—Halfback.

"Dicky" Charles, halfback, is the highest scoring man on the varsity. His specialty is plowing holes through an opposing line and he is brilliant at broken field running.

Cain—Fullback.

"Chesty" Cain, fullback, is the brightest battering ram on the eleven. He forces his way through all defenses in an irresistible, unstoppable manner, and it is always Cain who delivers the final punch that carries the ball over the last white line.

Brasseur—Quarterback.

Brasseur, quarterback, fresh from prep school, is displaying marked qualities of leadership, besides being able to pass accurately and to run elusively.

Cook—Halfback.

Cook, halfback, and freshman from Petersburg high, has a knack for slipping through a line of scrimmage for telling gains. He is valuable, indeed, due to his ability as a speed demon.

Collier—Halfback.

Collier, halfback, learned the art of the game at a Philadelphia high school. That his knowledge of the game and his ability as a player are no mean things is shown by his rapid rise to the varsity in his first year.

Cofer—Fullback

"Clem" Cofer, fullback, has displayed a sturdy brand of football all the season. His speed and drive stamp him as one of the "Old Reliable."

Drewry—Halfback.

Drewry, halfback, is another freshman back who can show a clean pair of heels. As he gains in experience he will undoubtedly win a place on the first eleven.

Goetz—Quarterback.

Andre Goetz, quarterback, has played on the varsity for three years. He is a fast and snappy maneuverer and has done an excellent work for the squad.

Elliott—End.

Elliott, right end, is experiencing his first year on the varsity. He is a product of Maury High, where he served his time as a high school star.

Fletcher—Tackle.

Tex Fletcher, right tackle, gleaned all his knowledge of the game by battling with the varsity last year.

Groves—Tackle.

"Tiny" Groves, right tackle, has made the varsity in his first year. This veritable giant gives promise of using his 206 pounds of weight to the furtherance of a letter next year.

Alkire—Center.

Alkire, center, received his early training under Coach Driver, and his good work on the scrubs has won for him a place on the varsity.

Eason—Guard.

Eason, right guard, is a freshman, who has stepped into the limelight by making the squad in his freshman year.

Newman—Guard.

"Al" Newman, left guard, has gained the reputation as a shrewd and unrelenting linesman in his first few months as a varsity player.

Keister—End.

Paul Keister, left end, is one of the cleverest men on the varsity. His grit and determination are an inspiration to every Indian player.

Thanksgiving Dances Set For Dec. 1 and 2

According to a statement received from President Frank Nat Watkins, of the Cotillion Club, the Thanksgiving dances will be held December 1 and 2. Arrangements are now being made with George Null's Melodians, of Norfolk, to furnish the music for the occasion.

At a recent meeting of the Cotillion Club, it was decided that these dances will be pledged affairs. The pledge is to be construed as meaning that no person attending the dances is to take a drink of liquor ten hours prior to the dances. All men students are honor bound to report any infringement of this rule.

The decoration committee of the club is working on some novel decorations in keeping with the spirit of Thanksgiving.

The period from 1908 to 1911 may well be termed the "Golden Era" in our football history; for in those four years the Indians soundly thrashed the Richmond team four times and held them scoreless in two games. A record now stands the Indian have a task that will keep them for ten years if they hope to up the total number of victories. The students, the team and every one connected with the institution anxiously awaiting the Thanksgiving contest. Physically the team is in perfect condition. Morally nothing lacking and the team has all that characterizes winners. The fighting spirit, which has been rampant on the campus since the first game of the season, is at its climax and practically the whole student body will be in the stands to cheer the Gold, Green and Silver.

Comparative scores show that the Indians are superior to Dobson's charges, but Tasker is stopping at nothing in his preparations for the struggle.

William and Mary played good ball, there is no doubt of it, but under such overpowering obstacles of mud, water and rain, they were unable to develop an offensive and were utterly powerless to work their formidable forward passing system to advantage. The famous combination of Matsu to Davis connected on several occasions, paving the way for the Indian's touchdown, only to be checked and rendered ineffective later by the deluge from the clouds.

Numerous penalties added to the slowness of the listless affair, William and Mary receiving penalty after penalty, nipping her drives as they neared the goal posts and sending the Maroons upon several occasions deep into Indian territory, placing the ball once on the Indians' three-yard line, from whence Roanoke, in three downs, pushed over their only touchdown.

Once Lee Todd scooped up a Roanoke fumble and dashed through the Maroons for a touchdown only to be called back as the referee ruled that he had stepped outside.

Roanoke labored under difficulties as did William and Mary, but their game was of the defensive type, which the murky turf suited exactly, while the Indians' hitherto puzzling offense was held back by the muddy field.

The Indian-Maroon game was undecided in every particular, leaving very little idea of the actual strength of either team. It was highly disappointing, and could fair weather have been prevalent a great girdiron battle undoubtedly would have taken place between the contenders for the State championship.

Three names stand out in last Saturday's play, and topping these three is that of John Todd, who tried valiantly to alter the situation that took place, but to no avail. And then comes the flashy "Hunk" Hurt, Roanoke quarterback and sterling sportsman, who contributed his share of thrills to the game. Ranking on a par with the others is "Dicky" Charles.

Frequently he staved off Tiger tackles for long gains through the line. It was Cook, of William and Mary, who, though coming into the game late, made the only flashy gains of long duration.

RESUME OF SEASON SHOWS INDIANS ARE LEADING STATE TEAM

North on the following Saturday, but these invaders were turned back on Cary Field 27 to 0, one of the favorite scores of the Indians. Albright presented a heavy team and a superb punter in Gross. This big fellow was the best punter seen on Cary Field this year. Charles had another big day, this time scoring 20 of William and Mary's 27 points. Lee Todd scored the other touchdown while Matsu added an extra point. The reserves got still another chance to show their wares in this game. One of the coincidences of the game was the fact that two captains faced in the center position, Captain Todd playing opposite Captain Smith. The Indian leader had a great day, smearing up play after play.

Roanoke and her jinx, along with a sky full of descending water which saturated the clay of the high school field at Newport News, was next. Playing for the secondary collegiate title of the state, both teams were primed; but the title, just like the weather conditions on that particular day, remained unsettled, for the game ended in a tie, 7 to 7. The Indians entered their first game crippled, for Matsu was still suffering from injuries sustained in the Albright clash. Roanoke scored by punting over Matsu's head, the ball taking a "mean" hop after it seemed to be destined to roll over the goal line. William and Mary brought the ball back a little, but again lost it to Roanoke. The Indians were penalized. Roanoke carried the ball over on a long end run. Charles scored for William and Mary.
