This image shows a blank ledger page from a notebook, divided into two halves by a central gutter. Each half contains a grid of columns and rows, typical of a ledger or account book. The grid is formed by horizontal blue lines and vertical red lines. On the left side, there are four columns of varying widths. On the right side, there are also four columns of varying widths. The pages are otherwise blank, with no text or numbers written on them.

The image shows two facing pages of a ledger, numbered 78 and 79. Each page is ruled with horizontal blue lines and vertical lines in red and blue. The layout is as follows:

The pages are otherwise blank, with no text or data entered.

The image shows two facing pages of a ledger, numbered 84 and 85. Each page is ruled with horizontal lines and vertical lines to create a grid for accounting or record-keeping. The grid on page 84 consists of 10 columns and 25 rows. The grid on page 85 consists of 10 columns and 25 rows. The columns are defined by vertical lines, and the rows are defined by horizontal lines. The pages are otherwise blank.

The image shows two facing pages of a ledger, numbered 108 and 109. Each page is ruled with horizontal lines and vertical lines to create columns. On page 108, there are four vertical lines that create five columns of varying widths. On page 109, there are also four vertical lines creating five columns. The grid is empty, with no data or text entered.

The image shows two facing pages of a ledger, numbered 112 and 113. Each page is ruled with a grid of horizontal and vertical lines. The vertical lines create columns of varying widths, and the horizontal lines create rows. The grid is consistent across both pages. The paper is off-white and shows some minor signs of age, such as small brown spots near the center fold.

The image shows two facing pages of a ledger, numbered 114 and 115. Both pages are ruled with a grid of horizontal and vertical lines. The grid consists of approximately 25 horizontal rows and 10 vertical columns. The columns are of varying widths, with the first column on the left being the widest. The lines are printed in a light blue or purple color. The pages are otherwise blank, with no handwriting or printed text.

The image shows two facing pages of a ledger, numbered 116 and 117. Each page is ruled with a grid of horizontal and vertical lines. The grid is divided into two main sections by a vertical line down the center. Each section contains several columns of varying widths and many horizontal rows. The lines are thin and light-colored, typical of a ledger or account book. The pages are otherwise blank.

The image shows two facing pages of a ledger, numbered 118 and 119. Both pages are blank and feature a grid layout. The grid consists of horizontal blue lines and vertical red and blue lines. On page 118, there is a wide left column and a narrower right column. The right column is further subdivided into several smaller columns by vertical lines. The same layout is present on page 119. The pages are otherwise empty of any text or data.
