

PASCHALL

WILL RECEIVE OATH

by Linda Jean Livesay

The inauguration of William and Mary's 23rd President, Dr. Davis Y. Paschall, will be the focus of campus activity on Friday, October 13.

Tickets for the inauguration ceremonies will be handed out at the main desk of the Campus Center. After the thousand available tickets are gone, students will have to find their own seats. Those in charge of the inauguration program emphasize that late-comers will be able to find plenty of room in the Wren Yard. There will be no classes during the inauguration so that all students may attend the ceremonies. All students are urged to be present.

The main inaugural address will be made by President Paschall himself. His address will emphasize problems which the College must overcome and the objectives on which it should concentrate.

Top delegates and special guests will attend the presentation to the college of a portrait of Queen Anne, a gift from the Draper's Company. This is the Company with which the College of William and Mary sponsors an Exchange Scholarship enabling an outstanding graduate of this college to study for a two-year period at a British University and a British undergraduate student to study for a two-year period toward a Bachelor's Degree at the College of William and Mary.

Sir Ernest Pooley, Baronet, a Past Master and member of the Court of the Draper's Company is coming from England to make the presentation. Sir Ernest, who was knighted in 1932 and was created a baronet in 1953, has served the Draper's Company in many capacities including Assistant Clerk, Clerk, Master, and member of the Court.

He has also been on the Board of Education and an active participant in the activities of many British colleges and universities. He is a past chairman of the King Edward's Hospital Fund, one of the great charities of Great Britain.

Following the presentation of the Queen Anne portrait, a luncheon for the inauguration guests will be held in the cafeteria and the Campus Center. All special guests and delegates will participate. Students will secure their box lunches from the field kitchen on the Women's athletic field.

The investiture of the newly formed Queen's Guard will complete the inauguration day's activities. A sunset parade will take place at 5 in the Sunken Garden. A select group of sixty men from the Reserve Officers' Training Corps will make up the Queen's Guard which has been established in recognition of the honors bestowed upon the College of William and Mary by Queen Mary II, Queen Anne, and Queen Elizabeth II. This group is under the supervision of the Head of the Department of Military Science and includes the Cadet Drum and Bugle Corps.

In regard to the honors that this college has received from the three queens in whose honor the Guard was established, Queen Mary II, along with her joint sovereign King William III, granted a charter to the College in 1693. This charter made William and Mary the first colonial college to be established by royal charter.

Queen Anne, with her gift of nearly 2,000 pounds for rebuilding, kept this college alive after the 1705 fire in the Sir Christopher Wren Building.

Queen Elizabeth II and her consort, Prince Philip, visited the college on October 16, 1957.

SG Holds Re-election Of Homecoming Court

by Cathy Day

A heated discussion causing much tension and uproar in the regular student government meeting Tuesday, October 3 at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center resulted in nullification of the Homecoming Queen Elections held last Monday.

Constitutionality of the election procedure was questioned by junior assemblywoman Ann Harvey when she stated that she felt elections should be reheld. Reasons that Ann gave for her objection were that there had been no publicity for the elections, the system used discriminated against the independents and the assembly had not approved the plan used.

President Tom Johnson stated that he had changed the past procedure relying on his own judgement for he could find no policy to rely on. An amendment from the 1960 September 27 minutes revealed that the assembly voted on a specific homecoming election procedure.

Johnson apologized for his error and asked the assembly to consider the matter and decide upon a procedure to be followed next year.

Senior assemblyman Nick Brown moved that the vote be declared valid; but the motion was defeated. A motion by Mary Bradbury, sophomore assemblywoman to hold the elections again using the 1960 procedure was passed.

A primary election using class rosters of all women students is to be Monday, October 9, at which time each respective class will vote for three senior women, two juniors, two sophomores and one freshman.

At the second election, Wednesday October 11, each person will vote for the same number of girls but from lists of six seniors, four juniors, four sophomores and two freshmen. The second election will be based upon the primary results.

Student government members will be appointed temporary Honor Council members to help with the counting of votes as Council Chairman Jim Thomas feels the re-election will be too much for the Honor Council to handle quickly.

Sophomore assemblyman Jim Bennett urged that a definite policy be made to eliminate the problem from arising again.

Committee reports were given by the respective chairmen and resulted in steps being taken by Student Government to handle the question of cutting in in the cafeteria line.

A dance for freshmen and upperclassmen who wish to come, will be held Saturday from 8 to 10:45 p.m. in the Little Theater of the Campus Center.

Stars Famous Actor

Theater Stages Wilde Production

by Mary French

The Importance of Being Oscar, a special performance Wednesday, October 11, at 8 p.m. at Phi Beta Kappa Hall, will open William and Mary Theater's 1961-62 season. This "vivid and memorable evening" based on the wit, triumph and tragedy of Oscar Wilde stars the distinguished Irish actor Michael MacLiammoir.

This performance will be his only appearance in Virginia. MacLiammoir has previously performed his evocation of Oscar Wilde in Dublin, London, New York and Paris.

MacLiammoir has been a student of the 1890's and particularly of Oscar Wilde. He has dramatized The Picture of Dorian Gray and has appeared on television as Wilde in the recent Famous Trial Series. His autobiography All For Hecuba was published in 1946 and in 1954 he published his diary of the making of Orson Welles' film, Othello, in which he played Iago.

Commenting on MacLiammoir's New York appearance in The Importance of Being Oscar, Taubman of The New York Times said: "Out of the life and works of Oscar Wilde and out of his own sympathies and dramatic skills, Michael MacLiammoir has created a vivid and memorable evening in the theater. . . . It is a virtuoso performance."

Tickets for all William and Mary Theater productions may be purchased at Phi Beta Kappa Hall. Single admission for The Importance of Being Oscar is $2.50. Season tickets for the William and Mary Theater are $4 or, with the two special performances, $8. (See Picture, Page 3)

The FLAT HAT

Existentialism, Communism, Bible Among Religious Discussion Topics

Christian Existentialism," "Communism in Vietnam" and "The Authority of the Bible — A Contemporary View" are among the topics of discussion Sunday evening for several of William and Mary's religious organizations.

Balfour-Hillel will hold a business meeting Sunday evening, October 8, at 7:30 p.m. Plans for the social activities of the coming semester will be discussed, as will the annual regional convention in Richmond.

Baptist Union Retreat

"The Authority of the Bible — A Contemporary View" is the topic for the fall retreat of the Baptist Student Union to be held Saturday and Sunday, October 7 and 8. Dr. Stewart A. Newman of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary will conduct the discussion period.

Dr. Newman is a professor of theology and philosophy of religion and is widely recognized as a favorite with college students. The retreat sessions will be held this year at the Baptist Student Center beginning with supper at 6 p.m. on Saturday and ending on Sunday at 7 p.m.

Canterbury Group

The Canterbury Group will hold its regular weekly supper and meeting at 5:45 p.m. this Sunday in the new wing of Bruton Parish House. The primary purpose of the meeting will be organizational with the meeting breaking up into the areas of worship, special projects and programs.

Peter Tapke will speak and lead a discussion on "Christian existentialism" this Sunday at a combined meeting of Changing Forum and the Lutheran Student Association.

The meeting will take place in the Campus Center meeting rooms A and B at 7 p.m. Both the Christian and atheistic interpretations of existentialism will be discussed.

The meeting of the Newman Club will be held at 6:30 p.m. Sunday. Reverend Joseph Zung will speak on his experiences in Vietnam and the growth of Communism there.

Wesley Foundation

"Why are we here?" will be a question asked at the Wesley Foundation meeting this Sunday from 5-7 p.m. at the Methodist Church. Joe White, the Methodist Student Movement Director in Virginia, will speak and direct the discussion.

Westminster Fellowship

Reid Huntley, campus minister, will review Kierkegaard's "Purity of Heart Is to Will One Thing" at the Presbyterian Church. An autumn retreat will be held this week at Camp Hanover near Richmond. Time of departure is 1 p.m. Saturday. A study on Paul's Letter to the Philippians will be conducted by Dr. Robert Boyd, a faculty member of the Presbyterian School of Christian Education.

Student of the Week

Thomas Evaluates Honor System, Emphasizes Individual Integrity

The wiry Alexandrian behind the present state of change that the Honor System is undergoing is Jim Thomas, this week's Student of the Week.

Last May Jim set a precedent by being elected to Chairman of the Men's Honor Council after being here only one year. He is also one of the few non-fraternity men to hold this office.

A philosophy major, Thomas is program chairman of the local Baptist Student Union, a student philosophy instructor, a Dean's List student and President of the State Baptist Student Union.

Thomas plans to go into college chaplaincy after graduating from seminary. His hectic summers have included a trip to Europe for a Bible fellowship conference, six week sessions serving as a counselor at the American Youth Foundation camp

When he took over Thomas felt that there was a great deal of confusion on campus concerning the council and its functions. Since then, four steps have been taken: 1) a booklet has been published for the students to comment on, 2) an Honor Council Office has been established, 3) a complete re-evaluation of procedures is being carried out by the members of the council and 4) monthly meetings of the Men's Council and joint meetings with the Women's Council have been initiated this year.

His philosophy concerning the system is that "the major purpose of the honor system is not to stop people from cheating, but to provide an opportunity for individual growth in terms of personal integrity, honesty and intellectual ability."

Clubs to Schedule 'Echo' Pix

This year the organization pictures for the Colonial Echo will be taken in a different manner, Margaret Johns, organizations editor, announces.

Pictures will be scheduled at the convenience of the photographer, rather than at the regular club meetings as has previously been done. All pictures will be taken in the Ballroom of the Campus Center on fifteen minute intervals throughout the afternoon and evening.

To make appointment with the photographer please come or send a representative to the Colonial Echo office on Tuesday, October 10 or Wednesday, October 11 from 2-5 or 7-9 p. m. This method will be similar to that followed for making individual picture appointments.

A schedule will be posted in the Campus Center lobby, on the door to the Colonial Echo office and in the dormitories so that there should be no confusion regarding the time.

The services of the professional photographer will allow the Colonial Echo to have all organization pictures taken within several days, which could not be done with student photographers. This will insure the high quality of the pictures. The tentative dates for the taking of the pictures are: Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of the weeks of October 17 and October 24.

If your club has not met yet this year, but you are planning to be a member, be sure to come for that picture at the assigned time.

Due to the inauguration of President Paschall all picture appointments for Friday, October 13 will be cancelled. Those with picture appointments on that day may have their picture taken at their own convenience any day the next week, Monday-Thursday from 9a. m. to 1 p. m. or 1-5 p. m.

College Choir Sells Newly-Made Discs Of Spring Concert

A new record by the William and Mary choir is currently available to the campus, announced director Dr. Carl Fehr. Made from tapes recorded in concerts last year, it offers a variety of selections.

On one side is "Rejoice, Beloved Christians" by Buxtehude. Selections on the other side include several folk songs and the William and Mary Hymn and Alma Mater. The record is available for $4.50 in either the bookstore or Ewell 205. The cover contains information about the choir.

"Many students and friends of the College have asked us about a record," said Dr. Fehr. "Now that one is available, we hope that these people will support our project and buy it." The record project is solely a choir venture.

The choir is now busy preparing for several performances during the year including President Paschall's inauguration Friday, October 13. They will also sing for a managers' convention at Williamsburg Lodge today.

Sergeant Scavera Retires After Many Years of Service

Sergeant-First-Class James Scavera retired from the Army after over twenty years of service. An informal retirement ceremony was held in the Military Department Saturday, September 30, with Lt. Col. Thomas A. Duke, Jr., Professor of Military Science, paying tribute to the Sergeant for his long and faithful service.

Sgt. Scavera was assigned to this ROTC detachment in August, 1959 and has served as Detachment Supply Sergeant and assistant instructor. Sgt. Scavera was born in Polk, Ohio, but has lived most of his life in Spring Valley, N. Y. He presently resides with his wife at 594 Penniman Road, Williamsburg, Virginia.

He entered the Army on July 1, 1938 at Fort Slocum, N. Y.

Entering the U. S. Marine Corps in 1941 and afterwards serving at Portsmouth Navy Yard, N. H., he later joined the 4th Marine Raiders at Camp Pendleton, California. He underwent rigorous training in the Pacific in New Caledonia, New Hebrides and Guadalcanal and participated in the fierce fighting done at New Georgia, Bismarck - Archipelago and Guam.

Following World War II, he was discharged from the Marine Corps and reentered the Army in 1947.

Lloyd Names Staff For Station WCWM

The complete staff of WCWM for the coming year has been announced by Don Lloyd, station program manager.

The faculty advisor for WCWM will be James Sawyer; station manager, Carl G. Balson; program director, Don Lloyd; music director, Tom Sodeman; chief announcer, Bob Stewart.

Other personnel include Continuity director Elizabeth Powers; production director, William Young and news and public relations manager, Joe Weston.

Broadcast Time

WCWM broadcasts every day from 3 to 12 p. m. The broadcast takes place on a frequency of 89.1 megacycles FM on a power of 10 watts.

The daily schedule offers a variety of programs. Musical programs include both light popular, folk and dinner music. NBC news coverage is broadcast at 4, 5, 7 and 11 p.m. "Concert Hall," broadcast every week night from 9-10:30, is devoted to the music of classical composers.

In addition to these programs, "Dissertation" with Stuart Richardson consists of commentary and readings of prose and poetry. WCWM also features programs concerning such special interests as the armed forces.

Crucial Year for WSCGA

The renewed activity this year of the WSCGA Re-organization Committee which was established last spring to consider possible structural and social changes in WSCGA organization is encouraging and we commend the efforts of committee members and WSCGA officers to continue the vitality of the committee.

We would like to re-emphasize the points made in our editorial of October 28 and November 4, 1960, entitled "WSCGA: An Obsolete Concept . . . Parts I and II" in which we urged re-organization of WSCGA on the grounds that it does not effectively represent the women students and is harmful to efficient Student Government. We stressed that the Women's Honor Council should be separate from WSCGA and on an equal plane with the Men's Honor Council, and that neither executive nor judicial councils should be represented on the Student Government except in the capacity of a club or an organization.

We encourage that Evaluation Committee and the officers of WSCGA in the interest they have shown in abolishing the executive committee altogether and leaving only a dormitory council which would perform the duties of the existing executive and judicial councils. Although this is a move which is a step further than we anticipated in our earlier editorial, we approve highly of the plan and urge the Evaluation Committee to consider it seriously. We believe this is the final solution to the WSCGA problem. We support it completely.

Elections for new members to the Re-Organization Committee are now being held in dormitories and we plead with women students to think carefully before casting their vote for the women who will represent them in this vital position. The woman elected must be mature, creative, responsible, broadminded, and she must have a deep interest in and understanding of the life of women students on the campus. Members of this committee are in the position to abolish WSCGA, which has existed since 1918 and is now out-of-date, and to establish a form of women's government which would be more in line with the attitudes of the women on our campus today.

This is a heavy responsibility — these students must establish a program which will serve the women well for many years. They are setting an important precedent for women's government, and they must be fully competent and must appreciate the nature of their responsibility. They must, in other words, understand fully the implications which accompany this responsibility so they may think in far-reaching terms. Only in this way can we utilize well the importance of this challenge.

A 'New Deal' for IFC

The recent actions of the Alumni Interfraternity Council to revitalize the fraternity system on this campus are, laudable. In establishing fraternity alumni panel discussions, a purposeful step has been taken toward the achievement of a strong fraternity system.

For some time, the fraternities on this campus have operated in a predominately social capacity. Seldom has an individual fraternity risen above this level and assumed its position as a "molder of men." Indeed, lacking the unity of the fraternity house, our frater often fails to profit from his fraternal experience in the areas of leadership, scholarship, developed ideals and character.

Now, through the interest of dedicated fraternity alumni and national executive fraternity officers, the fraternity man may profit from discussions on the development and maintenance of a strong chapter. Topics of finance, scholarship, and fraternal ideals, all key points in successful chapter operation, will offer important ideas to the active brother.

Open to freshmen men, the panel discussions will acquaint the prospective rushee with ideals of sound fraternalism. As a result, freshmen men should enter rush this year with an adequate code by which to judge a strong and well-rounded fraternity. Pressured by well informed rushees, fraternities will have to look forward strengthening their ideals and their financial and scholastic programs if they hope to pledge conscientious men.

Looking toward the future, as the Alumni Council has done, the panel discussions constitute the first steps in a program designed to reinstate fraternity houses on this campus. Fraternity houses, the bastions of the strong and purposeful chapter, will be necessary on an expanded campus if the fraternity system is to survive.

The improvement, indeed, the very existence of fraternities at William and Mary hinges on these preliminary programs. The participation of the fraternity man in these programs will be part of the criteria for their success.

Fraternity men must decide for themselves what they are seeking for the future of fraternity life on this campus. We feel very strongly that such a program as is now being offered by IFC will help fraternities plan for their future at William and Mary. Fraternities are currently lost in the wilderness; they really don't understand the potential force for good they can have on the campus. But with a program that offers them the chance to examine their internal and external relations, they are beginning to adapt themselves to the future.

FROM PRESIDENT JOHNSON

(Editor's Note: Tom Johnson, Student Body President has written an open letter to students which attempts to explain the circumstances and events that lead up to re-election of the Homecoming Court.)

The Student Government meeting this week was lively, to say the least. The Assembly decided to have a re-election for the Homecoming Queen and her Court. The election was conducted by nominations from various interest groups with the final selection having been held this past Monday. Although this method differed from ones used in past years, it was felt that the modifications made this year were fairer to all concerned. The decision to change the election procedure was an executive one, and was made on the basis that it was a "special" election which involved no set procedure.

The Assembly, however, interpreted the election section of the Constitution to mean that the assembly had the prerogative to regulate this type of election. What is significant here is not the procedure itself, but the fact that the authority we give the present Constitution is not agreed upon by the Assembly. The Constitution is now undergoing considerable revision, and in this transition period, we must make clearer the authority it will have over our actions; that is, we must resolve more definitely the conflict between our theoretical duty to adhere to its principles as long as it is in operation and the inadequate practical provisions that it contains at present.

At the next Student Government meeting (October 17—a Tuesday—at 7 p.m.) we will clarify our position on this important issue.

At this time, I would like to take the opportunity to ask all of you to support the College this week by participating in the Inauguration of our new President. Your attendance at this occasion will mean much to the success of the Inauguration, and will contribute substantially to the spirit of the ceremonies.

Students Voice Criticisms and Protests

Korn from Kansas

To the Editor:

In past years the readers of the Flat Hat have been subjected to such nauseating literary (to use the term loosely) efforts of one Allen C. Brownfeld. With the passing of Brownfeld from the scene, many students felt that the Flat Hat would make an attempt to acquire a columnist having some degree of intelligence and ethics, no matter how small. Unfortunately this hope has not materialized.

Until the last issue, Mr. Powers, the eloquent Kansan, did not even become controversial. But this issue he made the Big Plunge. Now he is attempting to take the place of "The Immortal." In doing this he has proven that he has even less intelligence than his illustrious predecessor.

His barbaric treatment of Mr. Stewart is completely unfair and uncalled for. He should be severely reprimanded for allowing himself to write such garbage. I suggest that Mr. Powers enter a public apology to Mr. Stewart. Then Mr. Powers should follow up this action by not bothering to write anything else for the newspaper. We want news and views, not petty bigotry!

Name Withheld

'To Be or Not To Be'

To the Editor:

We question the right of the Student Government to set itself up as judge and jury to "evaluate the clubs as to their efficiency and worth." As we understand it, the committee that will investigate student organizations apparently has good intentions: "to weed out the duds," but who is to say which clubs are "duds." The method of weeding out these clubs is one which we, as members of campus clubs, object to. There seems to be a cry among our student body for more active and interested participation in campus organizations. How can this be achieved if a committee investigates and declares valueless certain clubs that, even though of small membership, are of considerable worth to those who are members! Wouldn't this stifling of one activity be detrimental to all-around campus activity? We concede that some groups need a "shot in the arm," but is it necessary to cut off the arm entirely? We are afraid clubs will suffer if they receive unfavorable publicity in the Flat Hat. How can a club encourage students to join and help improve it once it has been judged worthless by the method proposed?

We would also like to call attention to this statement in the Sotto Voce: "There should be no opposition from either the administration or the Student Government to any group of students who wish to form a club for a worthwhile purpose, whether or not it meets completely with the total approval of the deciding powers." If this is what the author believes, how can he head a committee which will be a form of indirect opposition to many clubs which have a worthwhile purpose.

If the Student Government is interested in improving our campus clubs, why doesn't it go through with the investigation as planned and the offer helpful suggestions to the clubs involved, rather than making a public statement that these clubs are valueless?

The Powers That Be

To the Editor:

Ed Powers column of last week entitled "Baloney from Bryan" did more to upset me than anything that has appeared in the Flat Hat since I started reading it. I cannot help but react to it publicly.

My association with Bryan has been short, and my direct concern with its functions has been even shorter. What has happened there in the past does not concern me in the least. The conduct of past Dorm Councils, to which Mr. Powers refers in his column, does not have any affect on its conduct in the future. My understanding of the purpose of the Dorm Council and its powers is this: it is intended to decentralize power from the administration into the hands of the students — to have the students decide how things should be run rather than the Deans. This, in itself, might seem like a rather revolutionary idea, and in some ways it is. It was, however, the idea of Dean Barnes, and it is an idea that deserves a fair trial.

The fact must be brought out that the meeting which Mr. Powers referred to as "Stewart's Folly," was called for the sole purpose of electing a candidate for Homecoming Queen. There was a suggestion that Bob Stewart mention that the elections for the Dorm Council were coming up, and this Stewart did. Here is where, as Powers says, "the poorest dormitory meeting" came into being; the reason can be traced without benefit of a logic course to the simple fact that Dorm Councils in years past have been just what this meeting indicated: A joke. However, everyone was laughing too hard (all but Powers, I am glad to see) to listen to the facts. I am glad, as I said, that Mr. Powers was not laughing so that he could give us all a very nicely bigoted account of what happened. This could be stomached, but Ed seems to have gotten the wrong play from someone. Could it be that he doesn't understand what the council is to do?

"It is the dormitory managers and residence counsellor who are responsible directly to the Dean of Men for order and discipline in the dormitories," says Powers. This is a fact that cannot be disputed. Therefore, from this he concludes that "The idea of a dormitory council seems utterly foolish to me." And this too we could allow as long as we knew that the person who made the statement did not understand what the Council is going to do. However, we all know that Ed Powers would never spring anything without full knowledge of what he was saying. And, if this is true, then there is something wrong. Either the Dorm President, who has had conferences with the Dean of Men and who has had the plan of what the Council should do explained to him, is wrong, or Mr. Powers who has not had any briefing on the subject is wrong. I think that the belaborment of the obvious is unnecessary.

The Dorm Council has not been given this experimental job by Dean Barnes so that it can don its black robes and meet in secret sessions in the dark corners of the Bryan basement. This is not at all the case. It has been given this job for the soul reason of seeing whether the students of this school can, in time, take the job of running dormitory life away from the residence counsellors and the dormitory managers. If this works, AND AS OF NOW WE CANNOT REALLY SAY WHETHER IT WILL OR NOT, then it is the hope that this can be initiated in all dormitories.

I was also very glad to see that Powers had the foresight and good planning to bring in something to this eloquent poison-pen letter that really didn't have anything to do with his theme — namely to rip apart Stewart, his Council and Bryan Dorm. He decided to rip apart the whole student body while he had his poison darts and blow gun out. If I may quote: "How can anyone expect to have a responsible Student Government representation if the students who do the electing are not responsible themselves?" Thank you, Ed, for this little bit of useless judgment. I know that it made all of our Fridays brighter to know that you consider us irresponsible. May I also thank him for being farsighted enough to condemn an idea before it has been given a chance. May I thank him for doing such a good job of writing on something that he knows nothing about. I leave with this one question. Ed: did you need copy to fill your column?

Holds 1st Meeting

Poli. Sci. Club to Stimulate Interest in Local Politics; Rejuvenated Organization Holds 1st Campus Meeting

by Sandy Heagy

The Political Science Club held its first meeting of the year on Thursday evening, October 5, in the Little Theater of the Campus Center. Under the leadership of George Gravely, the club began a reorganization intended to rejuvenate interest in the club and in political life of the students.

The new structure of the Political Science Club will be based on the following two principles: the division of interested students into five committees, each studying one field of political science and presenting programs based on their studies; and criticism by the students of the curriculum available to political science majors at William and Mary.

The five committees will correspond to the two different interests found in the Department of Government, which are Public Administration, American Government, Political Philosophy, International Relations, and Comparative Government. Faculty members of the department will advise students working on these committees.

Proposed Slate

A major activity of the meeting was selecting officers for the year 1961-62. Gravely announced that Dr. Moss, together with a student committee, had selected a slate of candidates for office.

Moss had worked closely with these nominees in preparing them for office in the club.

Gravely requested that the members of the club ratify these nominees. He said that nominations from the floor would be welcomed but that any such nominee, if elected, would be requested to undergo a similar training to that received by the prepared slate of nominees.

New Officers

The slate of nominees included the following: President, George Gravely; Vice-president, Dick Pearles; and Secretary-Treasurer, Hale Almy. The club members ratified the nominees.

When the business meeting had been concluded, Gravely introduced Dr. I-Kua Chou, Professor of Government, who spoke on the topic, "Discipline of Political Science."

In his talk, Dr. Chou expressed his ideas of the nature of political science and of the political scientist. The latter should be "broadly informed, not only in the field of government, but also in the related fields of sociology, philosophy, economics, and history," Dr. Chou asserted.

Three Night Run

'The Crucible' Opens Stand October 26 at Phi Beta

The Crucible, to be presented at Phi Beta Kappa on Thursday, Friday, Saturday, October 26, 27 and 28, concerns the tragedy of the notorious Salem trials for witchcraft toward the end of the 17th century.

In this drama the basic issue depicts the struggle between the rights of free men and the mass efforts to destroy these rights under the guise of defending decency and right-mindedness. The townspeople and Puritans in Salem prove extremely susceptible to hysterical violence.

Abigail, the conniving servant girl played by Susan Howard, is largely responsible for starting the hysteria. Through the townspeople the lies of this servant girl build up until the whole town is aroused. Despite a young farmer's efforts he is unable to save his wife who has been accused of witchcraft and instead finds himself accused, imprisoned and condemned.

The Crucible by Arthur Miller was first produced in 1953. Similar to Miller's works this drama is essentially a social one. The problems faced in Miller's plays are invariably moral ones. In analyzing the quality of contemporary American civilization, Miller finds moral weaknesses in our society.

Among Miller's other works is The Death of a Salesman. Tickets for The Crucible are $1.50 and may be purchased at Phi Beta Kappa. This is the first production of the William and Mary Theater group.

DeBord Announces One-Week Deadline For Influenza Shots

Deadline for the first of the series of two influenza shots is Friday, October 13, according to the college physician, Dr. R. E. DeBord.

The College has made the influenza vaccine available to students at a reduced rate because of many medical reports from the Virginia State Department of Health that flu will be on the upsurge again this year.

LUCKY STRIKE presents:
LUCKY TUFFERS "THE FRESHMEN"

"Get a kid away from home, send him off to college, and right away, look what happens."

"I'd keep out of there, Frosh. That's the School of Pyrotechnics."

"Hurry up, Harry. You'll be late for the Freshman Smoker."

"This is your dormitory, Clyde. You'll share it with 19 other boys."

Fight at SG Meeting

by ed powers

Tuesday night was the bi-monthly meeting of Student Government. It was very illuminating. The meeting was normal until the Homecoming court was announced; then the fireworks began.

The disagreement arose over the new system of election used by Student Government this year. No standard method of procedure could be found in SG records by the time a decision had to be made, so Tom Johnson felt he had sufficient power to arrange a new system without consulting the Assembly. He considered the Homecoming election a "special" election under the constitution. John Black, chairman of the constitution committee, agreed with Johnson.

But others thought differently. Ann Harvey led a group which thought that Homecoming elections were not "special" and thus required Assembly consent on procedure. She pointed out a section in the constitution in substantiation of her point. But, by her own admission, the phrasing was vague. Nevertheless, her stand was based on the present constitution.

Both of these people have a legitimate point of view. The present Student Government constitution has proven to be highly ineffective in this case as well as many others. The difference of opinion between Ann Harvey and Tom Johnson is a sound one, and re-emphasizes what many have long known to be the case: Student Government badly needs a new constitution. Under a constitution written with an understanding of the problems facing Student Government, such disagreements as this would never arise. It is fair to joint out that these difficulties will continue until a new constitution is written.

A second point which needs to be made is the totally unrepresentative method for electing the Student Assembly. The motion to declare the Homecoming election invalid was passed 13-11. The majority was clearly a certain bloc of people with a similar opinion. This bloc was led by Ann Harvey, ably aided by Carol Kirkup.

What is interesting is Miss Harvey's changing attitude on the matter. A week before at the Student Government advisory committee, Ann made no protest at all against the new voting procedure as Hank Benson carefully outlined it. Two weeks ago at the Student Government meeting, Hank explained the voting procedure in general terms to the whole Assembly. No one protested.

At the Assembly meeting of Tuesday night, however, Ann protested rather strongly against the procedure. Her complaint was valid, but why did she wait until then to make the point?

The fact that such a bloc as this could suddenly change their point of view, and force the whole Student Government to acquiesce suggests some intrinsic flaw. Many people around the campus realize that it is only a certain group of people in each of the classes who win the class-wide elections for the Assembly. This group is able to win only because the elections are held on a class-wide basis. It takes only a small number of the total class membership to swing an election for a certain person. Such machinations would be impossible if Assembly members were elected from the various interest groups around the campus which actually represent the thinking of the Student Body. This would mean a larger, but much more representative Assembly. I think such a change is a sine qua non to vigorous campus interest.

The second important issue brought up implicitly at the SG meeting was that of executive authority. Tom Johnson is trying to do the best job he can, but some members of the Assembly are impeding him because of their narrow, personal interests. Many have the idea that any change from the past is bad because it is change. He is hamstrung because people will not allow him to do a job but refuse to do it themselves. A properly written constitution would eliminate this.

These are not the only ills plaguing the Student Government — and thus the campus. But all the others can be properly pointed out and discussed only if the whole student body is willing to take sufficient interest and time in their campus to do the job. I sit at this typewriter each week and give my opinion of the facts as I understand them, and promptly get cussed out for it. If I am "so out-of-the-picture," why doesn't someone do something about it besides cutting me up behind my back? If you have an idea, express it — to me or to anyone else who can publicize it. Otherwise, I can't see that you have a gripe coming.

Drewer Picks Barry Fratkin To Handle Sports Publicity

Barry Fratkin, Sports Editor of the Flat Hat has been named Director of Sports Information for William and Mary by Athletic Director Milt Drewer.

As Director, Barry is responsible for all publicity for the college's athletic department. This includes the preparation of press releases for over 200 newspapers, schools and radio stations. In addition, he is responsible for all athletic statistics, the press box during all games and the preparation of football and basketball press guide books.

Richmond Sophomore

Barry, who is a sophomore from Richmond and a sociology major, succeeded Bill Bryant who has gone to Europe on a journalism scholarship. In other Southern Conference schools this job is done by a full-time publicity agent, but William and Mary has always appointed a student to the position.

His closeness to the sports world is not entirely through the writing field. In high school he played varsity golf and jayvee basketball. At the College of William and Mary during his freshman year he was a member of the College freshman golf team. He was the number three man on the team.

When asked about his new position Barry had this to say, "I have found in my couple of months work in the publicity office that it is a demanding but fascinating job, one in which many interesting and important people are met. It is a great experience in journalism, public relations and creative organization."

Jobs Complementary

Fratkin noted thus after making three trips with the football team: "I have found that the dual position as publicity director and Flat Hat sports editor has helped to give the Flat Hat better coverage of campus athletics. Actually the two work hand in hand, aside from the fact that the two jobs have hindered study time."

Students Tell of Travels, Find Europe Not Like U.S.

by Bucky Reigelman, Pete Crow and Bobbi McDermott

An unusual interest has recently spread throughout the campus concerning travel abroad. This is due largely to the increasingly important position that Europe is playing in world affairs and the many facilities which are now available for European travel.

Last summer 27 William and Mary students toured the continent. On this page and the next, we have tried to select a cross-section of students to express their impressions and ideas which struck them during their stay.

The Experiment in International Living, Inc., of Putney, Vermont, sends more than 1200 young people overseas each summer. Two of our students joined this group for the summer and below inform us of their life as spent with European families. Two other students represented American and European firms this past summer. One of our students traveled to Wimbledon to represent the United States in the International Tennis Tournament. Most below made the trip not as demanding tourists, but presented themselves as Americans concerned with the state of world affairs.

Several of our roving ambassadors traveled alone while others were accompanied by friends. These adventuresome youths braved the perils of continental hitch-hiking, railroads, Volkswagon busses and English bikes. There were even those brave souls who worked their way through Europe, and bring us back vivid recollections of their trips.

For us stay-at-homes there are new plans in the making to help us on our way to Europe. Two trips of thirty and forty-five days are now being planned for next summer. The approximate cost will be $1,000, which would include all meals, tips and taxis, sight-seeing costs and transfer fees. Mr. Jack Corrigan, owner of Williamsburg Travel Agency, has proposed the trip especially for William and Mary College students.

The Travelers' Recreation Information Program was established to help all European travelers by acquainting them with customs and national traits before they arrive. Further information may be obtained by writing T. R. I. P., 179 Broadway, New York 17, New York.

Scott Sees Germans As Unconcerned

Polly Scott left New York City aboard the RMS Queen Mary on June 14. Arriving in Southampton, England, she continued her way on a two-month's tour of the continent. Among the countries she visited were England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Italy and France. She returned to the United States in mid-August.

According to Polly Scott the people of Germany are "the friendliest but most unconcerned in Europe." They were interested in hearing about the United States and were eager to tell of West German progress. "These people have confidence in the United States since they believe that we are genuinely concerned with their future."

"The truly startling aspect of the Berlin crisis was that when it was reaching its climax the West German people hardly seemed concerned." Polly stated that these people were so pre-occupied with the problem of a divided nation that they could scarcely keep up with every new development from the other side of the border.

Her visit to the border revealed the determination of the East Germans to keep people from fleeing to the West. "I was amazed at the contrast between the friendly, fertile Western side and the desolation of the Eastern side."

Scott Impressed With Beauty of Swiss Cities

On her sixty day trip, Carolyn Scott joined tourists headed overseas this summer. Her itinerary included France, Switzerland, Italy, Austria, Germany, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium and England. She particularly enjoyed her brief stays in the Swiss cities of Lucerne, Geneva and Interlaken.

The seven days that she spent in Switzerland were enough to give Carolyn Scott a delightful impression of the country. "Lucerne and Geneva are built on the edge of picturesque lakes and are beautifully kept. The scenery in these two cities was breathtaking, especially with a background of snow-capped mountains."

Carolyn found the people eager to talk to her about their country. She was quite impressed by their ability to speak well in several languages.

"The Swiss were very anxious that the tourists have an enjoyable time while visiting so they arrange parties and festivals on every possible occasion." These gala events were made colorful with native songs and dances of these mountain people.

While hiking through the Swiss countryside Carolyn had a run-in with a bovine, but was not injured. She describes this tiny neutral nation as a country of myrian flowers, crisp air, majestic mountains and friendly folk. "Switzerland is truly a picture postcard country."

Despard Finds Frenchmen Lazy, But Friendly

Turk Despard left Philadelphia for London on June 14. After crossing the channel to Calais several days later, Despard went to Lyon, the second largest city in France, where he spent six weeks working in a machine shop. After quitting work in late July, Despard toured the Riviera, northern Italy, Germany and Switzerland before reboarding an airliner in London to return to the United States.

In Lyon, France, Turk Despard and his cousin became acquainted with the French working class by working with them for six weeks in a machine shop. The observations he has made, he stresses, are limited by the fact that he was only in one French city and that even in six weeks he cannot presume to be able to draw any penetrating conclusions about the French way of life.

"The French working man couldn't care less about the cold war. Rather, he is much more disturbed about the farm crisis which is presently taking place in France." Again Despard thinks De Gaulle remains popular among the workers of Lyons because of his domestic and Tunisian policies.

Another comment by Despard states that the French are a lazy people from what he saw, and their standard of living is lower than America's. However, even with these deficiencies their food is excellent and their temperament is a very friendly one.

The language barrier originally was Despard's main problem, as he had only one year of French. As few of them spoke English he was forced to learn and use their language. The problem did not last long as he states that he "was amazed at how fast (he) picked up their language."

Finally, before heading for England, the duo visited Germany, Austria, Brussels and Rotterdam. Back in England Despard had the rare opportunity to see the spectacular International Fair in Edinburgh.

Kucewitz Makes Private Tour of Vienna

Bill Kucewitz left the United States on a Pan American jet airliner for Paris on June 17. After several days in Paris he took a train to Baden Baden, Germany. From there he motored into Luxembourg, Belgium, Holland, East Germany, Switzerland and Austria before returning home.

A four day sidetrip to Vienna left the greatest impression on Bill Kucewitz. Staying in a hotel which was only ten minutes from the Danube he was in an excellent position to sightsee and investigate the old city.

Kucewitz first took a commercial tour of the city, but returned by auto to further investigate the places he found most interesting. The beauty of the architecture, the fountains and the old gas street lamps made a lasting impression on him.

"The political philosophy of Austria is intensely reactionary," said Kucewitz. He thinks that their feeling toward the Soviet Union is one of disdain, no doubt precipitated by the Russians' wanton destruction of their country during the Second World War. "Their attitude toward America is apathetic." He found the Austrians realistic not only with themselves but with what they see of other countries. "For these reasons I will always respect them."

Skinner Arrested While on Tour in Poland

Steve Skinner left the United States on June 20, with a destination of Poland. In reaching his destination he passed through France and both Germanys, and Scandinavia on the return trip. Steve's trip was paid for and sponsored by the Experiment in International Living exchange program. He returned on August 20.

After spending two weeks of getting acquainted with his Polish "family" Steve Skinner started on a two-week tour of the country. "While on this jaunt we saw Danzig, where we were arrested for unknowingly breaking a minor law and had our own summit with some Russians. Then we saw grim, industrial Joznon; Breslau, which is trying to erase its German past and Cracow, the memories of which are spoiled only by our visit to Auschwitz."

The travelers hit East Berlin for a four day stay just as the border was closed. Steve said, "Unfortunately, I left for Scandinavia before most of the fun started but my friends had quite a time before rejoining me in Paris for the flight home."

Skinner feels that the trip provided him a most unique experience. He wanted to get information and answers by talking to people. He was able to do this throughout Western Europe and Russia. "Because Poles have a great deal of personal freedom we were allowed to live in private homes and thus learned a great deal more than could be done otherwise."

Udell's Ideas Not Disillusioned by Holland

Jeff Udell left for Europe from Idlewild Airport in New York on June 10. During his trip which was made with his family, he visited seven countries: Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Holland, France, England and Scotland. His twenty-four day trip throughout Europe included eight different flights on three airlines.

The country in which Jeff spent the greatest amount of time was Holland. His preconceived ideas about the beauty of the countryside suffered little disillusionment as he saw windmills, tulip fields, and people wearing wooden shoes and native costumes just as he had pictured them.

Jeff especially liked Amsterdam despite the fact that he didn't find it very picturesque. He describes the city as having no continuity, the buildings seemingly placed at odd angles and constructed in weird shapes. "The canals are filled with garbage but still retain some beauty because of the numerous flower barges and markets. The natives said that these canals were quite convenient during the German occupation for drowning drunk German soldiers."

One of Jeff's most interesting experiences was his enlightening conversation with a Dutchman at a sidewalk cafe. This man had definite ideas about Americans, morals and the world situation. He did not like American women at all because he felt that they were "trying to turn the world upside down." Jeff's acquaintance contended that women should stay out of politics and the business world and remain at home.

The picturesque native liked Jack Kennedy but could not stand Jackie, entirely in keeping with his views on American women. He seemed to feel that America was still the most powerful nation in the world, but really didn't care who ruled the world if he had his food, wine and if his family was safe. Udell added that this statement was rather amusing since he had just spoken of his unfaithfulness to his wife.

Dean Thinks Spain Differs from Other Countries

Callie Dean left New York on June 28 on the S. S. Groot Beer bound for Rotterdam. Under a program sponsored by the Netherlands International Students Program she toured England, Denmark, Norway, Germany, Italy, Switzerland and Spain before returning to the United States early in September.

Callie Dean, who spent two and one-half months in Europe this summer, considers Spain the most interesting country in Europe. "Large cities and villages were inhabited by those natives who thought more of the simple things of life." The students lived with the families and spoke to them in Spanish; Callie feels this is the only way to get to know a people.

"In most ways Spain is different from all the other countries of Europe. Politics is one instance. People did not feel free to speak openly about their government as did most Europeans. The standard of living is low compared to all of Europe, but the people seem content."

Callie got the impression that the American student is thought of more highly than the run-of-the-mill tourist, because a student goes there to meet and gain a knowledge of the people. Most tourists go just to see the sights. Callie advises all who travel to Europe to go to understand the people, and not to become the "ugly Americans" who present the wrong side of America to the people of Europe.

Shaw Finds West Berlin Very Beautiful

Lynn Shaw left the United States on August 1, after returning from ROTC Camp at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. Shaw first visited England before flying to Paris. Touring southern Europe by car he went to Rome, Florence and up into Switzerland. From Munich he took a train to Berlin where he spent two impressionable days. He returned to this country on September 10.

Lynn Shaw spent two days in Berlin this summer. Staying in Western sector he roomed in a dormitory at a large university.

On Shaw's first day in Berlin he visited and observed the western sector which he found "surprisingly beautiful" in view of the fact that it has been rebuilt from scratch since the end of the Second World War.

The second day Shaw and another boarded the underground and road into East Berlin. In spite of the fact that Soviet Cosmonaut Titov had been in the city the day before and that the flags were still flying in honor of him, Shaw found the city drab and depressing with many evidences of the war remaining. Said Shaw: "The visit was quite a lesson in how the Communists do business."

As their day in East Berlin concluded they walked past an old museum of German culture which the Communists had fenced off and boarded up. "And then, of course" Shaw solemnly reports, "we watched the construction of a concrete wall across the middle of the street."

Leaving Berlin in its chaos, Shaw returned to the United States.

Weisbrod Compares Belgium with U. S.

On June 30, Diana Weisbrod drove to Putney, Vermont, where she received final training for a summer in Belgium under the Experiment in International Living program. After a brief stop in London, her plane continued to Brussels, where she met the family with whom she was to live for two months. She made several sightseeing excursions to neighboring countries during her stay.

"The national beverage is beer and the people eat bread with chocolate or cheese for breakfast and dinner," states Diana Weisbrod concerning Belgian food. While living with her adopted "family" she discovered that "behind the bouffant hair-do's and moustaches are an extremely friendly and sensitive people."

Diana said that the Belgians accept the apathetic spirit of their youth on world affairs as a product of the times. Most of the people she talked with weren't interested in who was winning the "cold war." She also discovered that the Belgium class system is much stronger than American one. "The upper class supports the king and provides most of the nationalistic spirit while the bourgeois tend to shun all chauvinistic events."

Floyd Sees Great Tennis Interest in England

Donna Floyd left Friendship Airport in Baltimore, Maryland on June 10 and arrived in London the next morning.

Her first week was spent at Bechenham, a suburb of London, where she stayed with another American girl in an English home. She spent her second week at a guest house near Hyde Park before going to Wimbledon to play in the two week International Tennis Tournament. After a week in Ireland, she re-crossed the Atlantic via jet.

The primary purpose of Donna Floyd's trip to England this summer was to play in the world tennis tournament at Wimbledon. However, she had time before and after the tournament to tour the British Isles.

"It was very cold and rainy the first few days that I was in England and I spent most of my time sleeping due to the seven hour time difference. Our host and hostess for the first week were very hospitable in their English fashion, but to our standards they seemed a bit reserved and aloof."

Donna found that the English are tremendously interested in tennis and feel that Wimbledon is one of the highlights of their year. Before the tournament she had some time to learn her way around London and meet the people, whose interest was mounting concerning the coming Tournament. The London underground is the best transportation system that she has seen. "I even ran into Turk Despard one evening in the underground when he was on his way to France."

Polly Scott, on her way to the continent, stopped to see her play one day at Queens. She stayed at the home of a Kappa Alpha Theta alumni of William and Mary while the Tournament was going on. "The competitors' box adjoined the Royal Box so that we were able to see the Duchess of Kent, Princess Ann, Princess Margaret and Anthony Armstrong-Jones when they attended the matches. The Duchess of Kent only missed one day. Hundreds of people attended the matches and many were unable to even get a seat in the Center Court so that they had to be content to follow the matches on the electric scoreboard outside."

"The standing room was usually unable to hold all those who would have liked to see the matches. In addition there would be a line that moved up only when someone would faint in the stand room section. One day 250 people fainted in the sun. For the final day of matches, people lined up the preceding afternoon, sleeping through the night outside the gate in order to get tickets for the next day.

The most enjoyable part of her stay abroad was the final week when she toured Ireland. "The Irish" she says, "could not have been more hospitable, friendly and easy going." "These proud people" were only too glad to show off their green island. A problem developed on her return flight when BOAC went on strike but she switched airlines with only a 6 hour delay.

Hitt Finds Belgians a 'Strange Mixture'

Dave Hitt boarded the Italian Liner, "Aurelia," on June 9 and docked at Southampton England eight days later. During his visit, he visited England, France, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland, spending most of his time in Brussels, Belgium. He served as a camp counselor and did some sightseeing before returning to the U. S.

"The general attitude towards Kennedy has been favorable, but the Belgians feel very sensitive to the possibility that he would go to war over Berlin. They had their war; they want no more of its scourge," says Dave Hitt.

Hitt, who lived in a boys' camp south of Brussels near Waterloo for 4 weeks feels that the Belgians are a strange mixture of socialists and individualists. He found that the people with whom he was associated were used to French with an American accent from the many tourists.

During July, Hitt traveled throughout France and Switzerland hitch-hiking. He was with friends who shared expenses, so he was able to live on $125 for 4 weeks. "I found that Europeans spend a great deal of time in their city parks, which are often the most beautiful part of town." He thinks that Belgium's economy is closer than any other European country to that of the United States economy.

Johnson Finds Austria Most Interesting

Tom Johnson flew to Frankfurt, Germany from New York on June 14. He toured Germany, Switzerland, France and Austria. Before returning he spent several days in Berlin, Munich, Amsterdam, Paris, Wien and Vienna. Johnson returned to the United States from London on August 26.

In touring Europe this summer Tom Johnson found Austria one of the most interesting countries which he visited. Before he had been there, he admits, he knew nothing about the country, but in retrospect, finds it more interesting than Paris.

Johnson stressed that the Austrian standard of living was by no means on a low level. "This is not a backward country. It enjoys one of the highest standards of living in Europe. Many American cars dot Austrian roads.

"A pleasing looking people, the Austrians speak German which can be understood." He found the prices low and accommodations good throughout the country.

Johnson suggests these tips for European tourists: first, "leave your white socks at home along with your Ivy League clothes. This is, of course, if you don't want to appear conspicuous and have people look at you. I wore European clothes and was not recognized as an American."

Secondly, "having some knowledge of the language of the country is a must. It save you money and you will enjoy the people more." He feels that European travel is best accomplished by car.

Horton Feels at Home in Copenhagen, Denmark

Ed Horton boarded an Air France jet on July 16 bound for Paris. After spending three weeks there, he flew to Copenhagen for several days before moving on to Dusseldorf, Germany. Continuing his tour of Europe, Horton visited Frankfurt, Geneva and London before heading homeward.

"The Danish are too close to the Communists and have seen war too often," explained Ed Horton. "They just don't think about it and hope for the best."

Horton liked Copenhagen more than any other European city he visited because he felt more at home there. He thinks that in France, the French expect the tourists to speak their language while in Denmark the natives make a real effort to learn English. Also helping to make him feel perfectly at home in Denmark is the fact that their food is strikingly similar to ours.

He remarked that he was especially impressed by their cleanliness. "I felt that it would almost be criminal to drop any trash anywhere in Denmark."

Home Clash Pits Tribe with Paladins

by Brian Geary

Unbeaten Furman storms into Williamsburg tomorrow to be the guest of the winless Indians. However, the zooming Paladins from Greenville, South Carolina, are not expected to show the courteous manners of an invited guest.

Led by fullback Tom Campbell all Southern Conference back last season, and quarterback Bill Canty, the Paladins lead the SC this year in passing offense and in total rushing yardage, averaging 410 yards per game.

Canty Throwing

With senior quarterback Canty doing the bulk of the throwing, the offensive-minded Paladins have traveled the airlines for nearly a third of their total yardage. And with the Indian's secondary allowing Navy to complete 13 of 21 passes last week for 233 yards, Canty figures to keep right on pitching.

Furman's strength does not lie only in its passing skill. With 26 lettermen returning this season, losing only 6, the Paladins can count on lettermen being two-deep at every position with surplus doses at tackle, guard, halfback and fullback.

On the Indian's Side

The Tribe has worked on three objectives this week: (1) to bolster its sagging ground attack; (2) to improve its pass defense and (3) to iron out the kinks in its fairly effective aerial attack. Keeping fumbles to a minimum also rates high on Drew's work sheet since the Tribe has already fumbled 11 times, losing 8.

Changes in last week's starting lineup include sophomore end Bill Corley replacing Dennis O'Toole and senior tackle Cal Whealton replacing T. W. Alley. Corley currently leads Indian pass-catchers with five receptions for 97 yards.

Weaver Back

After missing two games with a leg injury, sophomore halfback Charlie Weaver returns to the Indian's lineup. Also, ailing Arnie Jones is back in top form and will give the Tribe some depth in the backfield.

Since the Tribe has used an average of only 20 men per game, injuries hurt the Indians more than normally would be expected. As Navy scout Steve Belichick said, "After the first team, they're (W&M) really hurting."

Furman Fired Up

The Paladins will have plenty of incentive to be steamed up tomorrow. A win over the Indians would leave Furman only one step away from a perfect SC record and, possibly, their first league championship.

Ironically, William and Mary's losing streak started with a 25-23 loss to Furman last year at Greenville. Since that upset, which came on a late game TD run by Canty, the Indians have scored only 34 points and have been blanked four times.

Bottoms up to fleet Roger Hale as two Middies put up a wedge as the Tribe Co-captain finds the hole suddenly dissolved. Hale was the tribe's leading ground gainer against Navy.

Navy Aerials, Interceptions Drop Indians, 44-6, after Close Start

by Barry Fratkin

Ron Klemick riddled William and Mary's previously untested pass defense and led his Navy teammates to a resounding 44-6 conquest last Saturday in Annapolis. Down only 14-0 at the half, W&M fell to the superior pass patterns of the midshipmen that netted the academy 233 yards.

The Tribe put on an aerial show of its own with Dan Henning doing the tossing. With Dan Barton injured on the fifth offensive play of the game, the second string sophomore quarterback uncorked his throwing arm early.

Impressive First Half

Playing what has been clearly analyzed as their best half of the season, the Tribe moved the ball through the air on the wings of a 44-yard Henning to Hale pass. W&M continued to press the surprised Naval Academy and penetrated into Navyland only to have a fourth down TD pass overthrown by inches to halfback Dave Yanish in the end zone.

From there the Midshipmen went to work and with their ground attack gaining steam, Klemick startled the Tribe secondary with a home-run aerial to Navy's Jim Stewart, who raced 54 yards for the first tally early in the second quarter.

Big Interception

Undismayed, the Indians fought back and after an exchange of the ball again penetrated deep into Navy territory. With three seconds remaining in the half, the Tribe called time to try for the TD. Dan Henning's hurried aerial fell short and into the hands of Dick Markoff, who shocked the 17,803 fans with an 80-yard runback to score as the clock ran out.

Middies Cheer Indians

The play of the day, though, belonged to the Tribe. Late in the fourth quarter with the game out of reach, Henning unleashed a long pass that caught halfback Tom Scott perfectly and the second stringer raced the remainder of the distance untouched to score. The play covered 86 yards and received a warm ovation from the Navy faithful who could afford to be warm-hearted at the time.

In all the Tribe passed for 149 yards but could only muster a measly 35 yards on the ground. Roger Hale, running 9 times, carried for 28 yards to pace the Tribe land operations.

Statistics Show Two Sides To Tribe's Football Record

They say that statistics lie, but William and Mary's lack lustre 0-3 record is supported with some telling figures after three games. The Tribe has garnered but 185 yards on the ground for last place in the SC. Furthermore, the Indians have yielded 85 points to only three TD's of their own. But there is a bright side to the factual world.

Dan Driscoll, junior quarterback and punter, has averaged 37.5 yards per boot to place third in the Southern Conference derby. Another quarterback, Dan Henning, ranks high in the league in passing, having thrown 28 times for 194 yards.

The Tribe has come up with three outstanding offensive showings, two of which resulted in scores. Against Virginia Dennis O'Toole intercepted an errant Cavalier aerial and raced 87 yards for the score. Tom Scott toured the same distance only in the fashion of a long heave from Henning to score against Navy last week.

Bill Corley came off the bench to give one of the loop's best pass catching shows as he grabbed five tosses for a total of 97 yards against Virginia. Roger Hale, O'Toole and Scott have each tallied one TD for the Tribe. As yet the Indians have not converted an extra point in three tries.

KA Squeaks Past Theta Delt, 14-12; SAE, Sigma Pi Continue to Ramble

At the outset of the Theta Delta - KA football game on Wednesday, the grandstand quarterbacks were speculating on the margin of KA's triumph. At the contest's finish, however, the question on everyone's lips was: would KA survive the remainder of their schedule without defeat? Theta Delt gave the Southerners their second bad scare in eight days, but survive KA did, 14-12!

KA's two TDs came on E. J. Bowen aerials to Carroll Owens and Ed Sharbaugh while Theta Delta scored on a Jim Robinson - Guy Harley pass and a Dan Dopp - Bill Shuler combination. The margin of victory turned out to be Bill Lehner's successful extra point after the second score.

In their previous encounter, KA stormed back from a 6-0 deficit to win handily from Sigma Nu, 40-13. Scoring punch was supplied by Shelley Williams, Bob Simpson and Owens, who scored three times. Sigma Nu's two scores were engineered by Wayne Coddling and Pete Bosch.

In Theta Delt's other action of the week, their scoring machinery routed Pi Lamb 52-7. Also running up a large score was SAE, who downed Kappa Sig, 36-6, as Don Hardy, Larry Simpson, Don Robertson and Pete Stout all tallied on Bob Melton passes. Kappa Sig fared slightly better against Sig Ep as the two squads battled in the mud to a 0-0 standstill.

Sigma Nu failed to enter the victory column against Phi Tau, bowing 15-0 as John Hazard threw two touchdown passes, one to (Continued on Page 11)

Berths Still Open

With one victory under their belts this season and a ten meet win skein which covers two years in progress, Coach Harry Groves contends there is still plenty of room for anyone interested in running freshman cross country. Groves will see interested parties anytime after 3:30 p.m. on the track.

Frosh Harriers Win In Initial Meet

Tom Yerkes copped a first and a sextet of William and Mary freshmen cross country runners combined their talents to squeak out a narrow 27-30 triumph at the expense of visiting Southampton High School.

In the 'low score wins' meet, Yerkes ran in the time of 13:50, good considering the mud and the rain that fell throughout the entire meet.

Southampton's best, Ed Storey, was a full minute behind Yerkes but it was good enough for a second. William and Mary's next finisher was Bill Hurley who managed a fifth. Behind him an array of five more Tribesmen followed in succession. John Hobbs, who finished ninth, bested the high schooler Garcian Cox to insure the win.

Other placers for harriers were Ben Blanton, sixth; L. T. Lilliston, seventh; and Jerry Stettler, eighth.

Next on the undefeated frosh's agenda is a meet with Richmond's yearlings in Richmond, which will be run in conjunction with the varsity's meet with the Spiders and West Virginia.

Harriers Crush Opponents, Take First Eight Places

The William and Mary cross-country team, captained by Ray Coldwell and Marty Aronauer, defeated its first two opponents of the season in a triangular meet at Haverford, Pennsylvania, by perfect scores over Haverford College and Albright College Saturday, September 30. Over the four and two-tenths mile course, led by soph Bob Lawson who finished first in the field, the Indians swept the first eight places in the meet.

Bob Lawson

Second place went to Charlie Cooke, another sophomore, who was clocked at 22 minutes 55 seconds over the 22:29 clocking of winner Lawson. Following Cooke were co-captain Ray Coldwell, Bill Cleveland, Pete Raihofer, Frank Brown, Al In-sley and Tom Palmer, in that order. Only the first five finished for each team count in the team scoring.

By taking the first five places in the meet, the Indians had a perfect score. In Cross-country scoring the winner gets one point the second man, two points, etc. Thus, the lowest score wins a meet and the lowest possible score is 15 points.

Tomorrow the team travels to Richmond to take on the University of Richmond and West Virginia University in another triangular meet.

At Chester Tonight

Frosh Battle Richmond

The William and Mary frosh gridders meet the Richmond freshmen in the Industrial Bowl tonight at Chester, Virginia. Sponsored by the Chesterfield Chamber of Commerce, the annual event is an off-spring from the traditional Richmond-W&M school rivalry. Last year's game found the fighting Indians an upset victor over Richmond, undefeated going into the game. With only seconds remaining and less than a TD behind, the Indian squad had one play left. Quarterback Dan Henning spotted Charley Weaver open in the Spider's secondary and hit the elusive speedster, who raced for the winning tally as the gun sounded.

After an initial loss of 8-0 to the Newport News Apprentice School, coach Larry Peccatiello has, for the past two weeks, been ironing out flaws in his offensive attack and has scrimmaged his frosh units against the varsity third string. He is confident of fielding a strong Indian team, improved through experience and practice.

Richmond coach Ben Jones, in his first year as frosh coach, matches wits with Indian coach Peccatiello in tonight's clash, which promises to be well-fought.

Quarterback Bill Howe who hopes to spark the Indian offense that failed to score against Newport News and fullback Howard Rausch, who also runs at half with Dick Prillaman, will be chief offensive operatives. Jeff Craig, Larry Walk and Tom Feola bolster the yearling forward wall.

Tackle Jeff Craig

Behemoth Jeff Craig, tackle for Larry Peccatiello's frosh, and hard-running fullback Sam Miller are two reasons why this year's frosh gridders have been labeled as "the best." Both Miller and Craig are from the Harrisburg area in Pennsylvania.

from we to they

by Barry Fratkin

who "we"? no "they"

In the dual role of Flat Hat sports editor and publicity director of the athletic department, I have made the football trip to all three away games. I watched the pre-school practices and then the daily practices after the season got under way. I have become distinctly familiar with the football program here at William and Mary. My point here is not to establish myself as an expert, but to present a situation.

After I returned from each game I met a flurry of interested students who wanted to know the reasons, causes and events of the game. The first week was fine. My greeters were disappointed that we lost but still interested. The next two weeks were to give rise to a curious and disheartening swaying of tone and mood. These at-first-eager interrogators who had asked, "What happened to US" and "Why did WE lose" suddenly had changed their questions to "THEY lost again" and "Navy beat THEM."

I was somewhat taken back by this switch from the personal "we" to the more impersonal third person. I realized that these people no longer associated themselves with the fortunes and mis-fortunes of the William and Mary football program. They felt no responsibility to the team. They only wanted to criticize.

I became bitter that these people were griping without seeing a game, without knowing the situation, and worst yet, not feeling a part of the responsibility that goes along with fielding a William and Mary football team.

seeing is believing

I ask these people, "Were you ever dissatisfied with your best effort?" "Did you ever criticize yourself when you did your best?" I doubt it. No one expects more than an "all out effort." This year's team is giving just that. I've seen them before the game, their determination in the locker room and their distress after the game. Anyone could see they have put out a hundred per cent effort. The only way that they can prove it to you, the students, who have not seen them play, is for YOU to see them play.

If this is the best that a William and Mary football team can do under the existing situations, under the financial conditions surrounding the program, and with the present staff of coaches, what more can we, the student body, ask?

Students here are "steaming off" about a subject on which they know little facts. Complain if you know what you are griping about, not until. There is but one way to know the facts. See the game for yourself and see them all.

Keep in mind that I am not giving you the old "rah, rah, come out to the game" routine, but rather I want those chronic grippers to have something of worth to gripe about. It may be that after these "mouth runners" have taken my advice, that they will sound off louder and more violent. I say fine if they know what they are running their mouths about. But I feel confident they will come away from the games with the same feelings that I have; that you will feel a close association with the problem of the football Indians and that you feel a part of these problems.

one all out effort

If out of all this typewriter pounding we can get a closer unity between the supposed W&M supporters and the football program, if we can feel that we are working for a common cause, if we feel that your problems in this area are my problems, then we have come a long way in the solving of a sad case of football apathy here on the campus.

Let's do it up big. Give it our all and watch the results. They can't be any worse. I am not saying that if we have 2007 students at the game that we will win 20-7; spirit is no guarantee, but we can give the effort the football players are giving everyday, and that is a determined job. Convert that abundant energy so strongly employed to downgrade the previously unseen Indians to an instrument of support in a full campaign to cheer the Indians

In the 37-0 rout, Jim Hunter ran for one tally and passed for five others, as Harry Green caught two, Carl Zavitkovsky caught two and Bill Mirquet caught one.

Against PIKA, Sigma Pi slipped and slid to a 13-8 victory on a clutch 15-yard TD run by Hunter with two minutes remaining. Mirquet scored the other goal while a Jim Gumaer-Phil Tutschek aerial accounted for PIKA's score.

In another tight ball game, PIKA emerged victorious over Sig Ep, 14-8, as Al Strang and Bob Buckley each gathered in a Gumaer pass for six points. Sig Ep scored on a long Dean Flippo throw to Jerry Gimmel.

Huntley Takes Over WestFel Directorship

New campus minister for the Presbyterian Church and director of the Westminster Fellowship is Reverend Reid Huntley, a June graduate of the Yale Divinity School. Reverend Huntley, who replaced Reverend David Ross, has planned a program which will include discussion groups, retreats and social activities for the 400 members of the Fellowship.

Born and reared in Charlotte, North Carolina, Reverend Huntley attended Duke University as an undergraduate. He majored in history and German, and in his junior year studied at the University of Munich as an exchange student.

"During the summer I dug ditches, worked in a filling station, and was a bell boy at Chautaugua, New York," reports Reverend Huntley. Other college summer activities including aiding at a Raleigh, North Carolina mental hospital and working at the College Club in Chautaugua.

Because the Yale Divinity School encourages its students to "get out into the world," Reverend Huntley worked with youth groups in the Yale area and program director at the International House associated with Yale.

Also he spent a year of minister internship at the University of Denver under a Danforth Foundation grant.

Since his arrival in Williamsburg on August 1, Reverend Huntley has been acquainting himself with the College and its students.

The program Reverend Huntley has set up for the Westminster Fellowship includes weekly study groups of approximately an hour in length. Such diversified topics as "Jazz and the Christian Expression," "Nuclear Testing and Disarmament," and "Comic Strips: The Subtlety Behind the Humor" are to be presented.

Discussion sessions will also be conducted on contemporary literature of such authors as Hemingway, Faulkner and Salinger.

Bruton Church Adds New Curate, Parish House

Reverend L. J. Taylor, the new Curate of Bruton Parish, assumes his duties concerned with the college students this fall.

Bruton Parish is also adding a new Parish House on Duke of Gloucester Street this fall. Although coincidental that Taylor assumes his duties at the same time the new house is to be completed, the Reverend Cotesworth P. Lewis states that the new curate and house show the rise of interest in the church.

Taylor, his wife Polly and their three sons are living at 404 South England Street, south of the Williamsburg Lodge.

After graduating from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1944, Taylor went on carrier duty in the Pacific as an officer for the remainder of the war. Returning to the States, he entered Naval Flight Training school and received his "wings" in the spring of 1947.

In 1958 after much deliberation he decided to study for the ministry. He entered Seabury-Western Seminary in Evanston, Illinois from which he just recently graduated.

This position as curate of Bruton Parish is his first assignment. His time will be split between his duties as assistant to Reverend Lewis and the responsibility of being Chaplain to the students of the college.

As Chaplain, he will conduct Holy Communion on Wednesdays and Holy Days at 7:25 a.m. in the Wren Chapel. Provisions will be made for students to get to 8 o'clock classes. Taylor also has organized a study group which meets every Thursday afternoon at 4:30 to aid interested students to delve deeper into the problems and implications of their faith.

Paschall, Students Discuss Revisions of Honor System

President Davis Y. Paschall's address of last week in which he focused attention on the new brochure detailing the structure of the Honor System, was highly successful, reported Jennie Yoder and Jim Thomas, Women's and Men's Honor Council Chairmen, respectively. The turnout of upperclassmen and women was excellent at the Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall according to the chairmen.

In general, the meeting was highly stimulating and thought-provoking. Jerry Van Voorhis, editor of the brochure, brought up the question of making the lying and cheating clauses apply only to academic situations. However, most students disagreed with Van Voorhis on this issue, the chairmen stated.

Brochures Distributed

Booklets, now including an adequate explanation of the Honor System, were received by all sophomores, juniors and seniors. Freshmen will have brochures distributed at their dorms.

Honor Council chairmen, Jim Thomas and Jennie Yoder, and all the other council members are anxious for student suggestions and reactions concerning the new brochure. They stressed their eagerness in receiving visits and ideas from everyone.

Continuous Project

During the remainder of the year, the Honor Council will be working on improving more highly the coordinated and systemized procedure. The men's and women's councils are trying to co-ordinate their ideas and plans. Permanent records of proceedings will also be accurately kept.

Color Film, 'The Long Flight Back,' To Launch Season's Audubon Series

"The Long Flight Back," the first film in this season's Audubon series will be presented Monday October 9, 1961, at 8 p.m. in Room 100, Washington Hall. This is the seventh season of the Audubon Wildlife series at the College.

The cost of a student ticket for the series of five films is $4.00; a single admission will cost $1.25. Tickets may be obtained from Dr. Baldwin, Washington Hall, room 109.

Program Begin Soon

"The Long Flight Back" is an all-color film of the fight to save vanishing wildlife. It is the story of the whooping crane's journeys and the come-back of America's roseate spoonbill and flamingo.

Mr. Kenneth Morrison, director of the Mountain Lake Sanctuary, Lake Wales, Florida, will be at the College to present the film. Giving an introduction to the film, he will also serve as narrator.

Remaining Programs

Other programs scheduled for this season and their narrators are: "The Land the Glaciers Forgot" narrated by Howard L. Orrians, Saturday, January 13; Charles T. Hotchkiss and "Tenton Trails," Saturday, February 10, 1962; Robert C. Hermes, "Nova Scotia: Land of the Sea" Tuesday, March 20, 1962; and to close out the season Friday, April 13, 1962, Karl H. Maslowski and "Gone With the Wilderness."

If anyone desires further information about the series they may contact Mr. Bladwin.

SAIL ON, SAIL ON!

I suppose October 12 is just another day to you. You get up in the ordinary way and do all the ordinary things you ordinarily do. You have your breakfast, you walk your ocelot, you go to classes, you write home for money, you burn the dean in effigy, you watch Howdy-Doody, and you go to bed. And do you give one little thought to the fact that October 12 is Columbus Day? No, you do not.

Nobody thinks about Columbus these days. Let us, therefore, pause for a moment and retell his ever-glorious, endlessly stirring saga.

Columbus never wanted to clap eyes on a horse again...

Christopher Columbus was born in Genoa on August 25, 1451. His father, Ralph T. Columbus, was in the three-minute auto wash game. His mother, Eleanor (Swiftly) Columbus, was a sprinter. Christopher was an only child, except for his four brothers and eight sisters. With his father busy all day at the auto wash and his mother constantly away at track meets, young Columbus was left pretty much to his own devices. However, the lad did not sulk or brood. He was an avid reader and spent all his waking hours immersed in a book. Unfortunately, there was only one book in Genoa at the time—Care of the Horse by Aristotle—and after several years of reading Care of the Horse, Columbus grew restless. So when rumor reached him that there was another book in Barcelona, off he ran as fast as his fat little legs would carry him.

The rumor, alas, proved false. The only book in Barcelona was Cuidar un Caballo by Aristotle, which proved to be nothing more than a Spanish translation of Care of the Horse.

Bitterly disappointed, Columbus began to dream of going to India where, according to legend, there were thousands of books. But the only way to go to India was on horseback, and after so many years of reading Care of the Horse, Columbus never wanted to clap eyes on a horse again. Then a new thought struck him: perhaps it was possible to get to India by sea!

Fired with his revolutionary new idea, Columbus raced to the court of Ferdinand and Isabella on his little fat legs (Columbus, though six feet tall, was plagued with little fat legs all his life) and pleaded his case with such fervor that the rulers were persuaded.

On October 12, 1492, Columbus set foot on the New World. The following year he returned to Spain with a cargo of wonders never before seen in Europe—spices and metals and plants and flowers and—most wondrous of all—tobacco! Oh, what a sensation tobacco caused in Europe! The filter had long since been invented (by Aristotle, curiously enough) but nobody knew what to do with it. Now Columbus, the Great Discoverer, made still another great discovery: he took a filter, put tobacco in front of it, and invented the world's first filter cigarette!

Through the centuries filters have been steadily improved and so has tobacco, until today we have achieved the ultimate in the filter cigarette—Marlboro, of course! Oh, what a piece of work is Marlboro! Great tobacco, great filter, great smoke! And so, good friends, when next you enjoy a fine Marlboro Cigarette, give a thought to the plucky Genoese, Christopher Columbus, whose vision and perseverance made the whole lovely thing possible.

And thank Columbus too for the king-size Philip Morris Commander. If unfiltered cigarettes are your choice, you'll find Commander the choice of the unfiltered. Welcome aboard.

Cadet First Lieutenant Alfred Marshall Acuff, Jr., is a member of Economics Club, SAM, and Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. He is from Eastville.

Other outstanding Reserve Officer Training Corps members are Cadet Captain Rudolph D.

Hardy, Jr., from Newport News and Cadet Major James Michael Lyle, from Castine, Maine.

These Distinguished Military Students were designated by the Professor of Military Science, Lieutenant Colonel Thomas A. Duke, Jr., and approved by President Davis Y. Paschall.

Qualifications require that honored Reserve Officer Training Corps members possess outstanding qualities of leadership and high moral character as well as having exhibited a definite aptitude for the military service.

Stewart's Folly

by Bob Stewart

The members of the Campus Center Publicity Committee urge you to stop by the lobby of the Student Union Building and visit with "Stretch." Stretch is an amusing picture of a giraffe that is a part of the Popular Photography Exhibit being held at the Campus Center right now and continuing until October 21. On exhibit are over 100 black and white and color photographs done by "photobugs" representing many countries.

Bob Stewart

These pictures are the ones which took top honors in the Popular Photographers yearly competition. The photographs are appealing and interesting and range from dramatic to humorous and from landscapes to portraits in their subject matter. For those interested in the details of modern photography, the exhibit is accompanied by technical information on each picture, such as the type of equipment used and camera settings.

Last year the Dublin International Festival resounded with cheers when the distinguished Irish actor Michael Mac Liammoir first presented his dramatic, moving and witty evocation of the life and times of Oscar Wilde. London's acclaim followed, then New York's, and this past spring The Importance of Being Oscar proved the unqualified hit of the Paris International Theatre Festival. Now this exciting evening in the theater comes to audiences throughout America. I assure that this October 11th will be an exciting and vivid evening at Phi Beta Kappa Hall. With direction by Hilton Edwards, The Importance of Being Oscar comes to William and Mary. The wit, triumph, and tragedy of Oscar Wilde are brought to life. Tickets are on sale at the Phi Beta Box Office for $2.50.

Coming to the Williamsburg Theater the following week are the following pictures: Homicidal with Glenn Corbett and Patricia Breslin (Saturday); Francis of Assisi with Bradford Dillman and Dolores Hart (Sunday, Monday, & Tuesday); Picnic with Kim Novak and William Holden (Wednesday); Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea (Thursday, Friday, & Saturday).

For all those who like jazz, may I remind you that WCWM is carrying jazz programs this year. Every Tuesday and Thursday, Don Lloyd hosts Jazz For Moderns from 8:30 to 9 p. m. On Saturdays and Sundays from 3 to 5 p. m. two other jazz programs: Saturday Jam Session with Knox Lovell and Accent on Jazz with Bill Young.

Every so often someone gets an itchy typewriting finger and proceeds "to tell the world." Well, as you probably know, that's exactly what happened last week when a "noted" columnist proceeded to put his foot in his mouth. Trying to play tin-god by criticizing things about which he suffers from lack of knowledge, this person proceeded to analyze a situation known only to the Dean of Men and the Bryan Dorm President.

Stewart's Folly salutes the genial man with his head in a cocked hat and recommends that "irresponsible" people follow the further antics in his drive to be the "Champion of Lost Causes." Newspaper space is valuable and there's no sense in belaboring the point, so allow me just to call your attention to the "Letters to the Editor" in this issue.

James Assumes Bureau Editorship, Releases Publicity on Inauguration

John P. James has recently assumed office as the new editor of the William and Mary News Bureau. Assisting him are Jane Pierpont and Mary Margaret Mann.

The primary function of the College News Bureau is the release of news concerning William and Mary students to their hometown newspapers and local, state and national releases on College events.

Publicity For Inauguration

In addition to his position as News Bureau editor, James is in charge of publicity for the inauguration of President Davis Y. Paschall. Publicity releases of the inauguration to be held on Friday, October 13, have already been sent to colleges and newspapers over the country.

Taught At James Blair

James formerly taught the seventh grade at James Blair High School in Williamsburg. He also has served as publicity director for the Common Glory. A graduate of Roanoke College, James worked in the news bureau there as a student.

The former editor of the College News Bureau is Betty Joyce Nunn who is presently teaching government at the College. She was acting head of the Bureau until June when James took over the position.

Former Editors

In former years several editors of the Flat Hat also served

'The Rivals' Opens; W&M Players Give Comedy Production

The William and Mary Players will present their first production of Richard Sheridan's "The Rivals" October 22 at the Colonial Williamsburg Auditorium. They will portray the humorous characters in the comedy each Friday night through November 3.

Annual Series

The series is annually presented under the direction of Mr. Howard Scammon, director of the William and Mary Theater. This year the play stars Eric Howell in the roles of Captain Absolute and Ensign Beverley and Marcia Hoffman as Lydia Languish.

In this 18th-century comedy the captain and Ensign Beverley are pitted against each other for the affections of Miss Languish. As the plot unfolds, a variety of other characters become involved in the seemingly simple situation of the play.

Cast Members

Other members of the cast are as follows: Jeanne Raab, Mrs. Malaprop; Douglas Scott Goheen, Sir Lucius O'Trigger; Terry Brown, Bob Acres; Tobey Sindt, Fag; Jim Guy, Thomas; Jim Perry, Mr. Faulkland; Charlotte Edmonds, Julia; John Reese, Sir Anthony Absolute; and Cynthia Moore, Lucy. The cast will present the play on New Year's Eve and again in the spring as well as at conventions throughout the year.

Tickets may be purchased at a special rate for students at the Information Center and on the days of performances, at the Williamsburg Lodge. Curtain time is 8:15.

First of Three Meetings

Panel Discussion of Major Problems Opens Alumni Intra-Fraternity Council

The Alumni Intra-Fraternity Council, on Monday, October 2, led the first of three meetings which it will hold with William and Mary's fraternity men.

During these meetings, alumni and collegiates will cooperate in seeking to acquaint fraternity men with the problems of fraternity life. As the chief event of the first meeting, a panel composed of six alumni members, representing several different fraternities, led the discussion which centered on the topic of fraternity finances.

Panel members were the following: Jim Anthony, Kappa Alpha; Bob Hornsby, Pi Kappa Alpha; Jim Kelly, Phi Kappa tau; Carl Lindberg, Theta Delta Chi; Pat Usry, Sigma Phi Epsilon and Richard Whiteman, Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Each panel member spoke about one or more of the problems confronting fraternities. In addition to finances, the participants discussed the relationship of the fraternities with the alumni members.

Budget Use

To close the panel discussion, Dick Whiteman, the last speaker, gave a summation of the major topics covered. One of these topics was the problem of whether the fraternities should use the budget or the assessment system in asking their members for dues. The alumni advised use of the budget.

Whiteman said that the chief financial problem confronting the fraternities was bettering themselves financially now, so that if they should later ask the school for houses, they would have the means of supporting themselves in them.

General Discussion

During a session which followed the general discussion, fraternity men raised the questions concerning fraternity rents, condition of the lodges and fraternity parties during scheduled college functions.

Play Tryouts

The annual play given by the Student Religious Union will be presented in November. Tryouts for the play, "Cry Down in Dark Babylon," are to be held in the Wren Chapel on October 9 from 3-5 p.m. and on October 10 from 2-4 p.m.

Director Jim Perry has announced the cast and enact a scene to arouse interest in trying out.

SOCIAL NOTES ON CAMPUS

by Jo Ann Dotson

Socially speaking, pinnings, engagements and marriages seem to compose the better part of the news. Read on while we reiterate the marital events of the summer.

Martha Dietrich, '61, Kappa Delta, married Thomas Guthrie, '60, Va. Tech. At the KD National Convention this summer Alpha Pi initiated Jimmy Lubin, Susan Stitt, and Doris Williams, all '64. Pinned are Margaret Johns, '63, and Rolf Nijhuis, Pi Lambda Phi; Sally Robert, '62, and Bob Campbell, Delta Chi, Lehigh, '61.

Kappa Sigma held a Rathskeller Party Sept. 29 at the Lodge. The German beer-garden motif was carried out with German signs, checked table cloths, and wax-covered candles. Welcomed back are Charlie "Goby" Gobrecht, Jim Gudinas, Steve Bishop and Ed Day. Major Jenkins of the ROTC Dept., was pledged as the new faculty advisor. Tom Myers, '64, and Paul Cowley, '63, pledge Sept. 19. Dave Bottoms, '61, and Laurie Schaeffer, '60, Chi Omega, are married.

Phi Mu sisters held a slumber party Sept. 16 with breakfast Sept. 17. Sue Bruton, '61, and Dean Bailey, '61, Hampden-Sydney; Jan Moore, '61, and Hugh Blackwell, '59; Peggy Perkins, '63, and Robert Lloyd, Univ. of London; Hannah Trice, '61, and James C. Richardson, '61, USNA; Carol Veazy, '61 and Edward Titmus, NC State, are married. Engaged are Sandy Harris, '63, and James C. Carney, '60, Univ. of Ill., Alpha Sigma Phi; and Pat Horne, '62, and James Dresser, '59, Purdue, Theta Tau.

Members of Kappa Alpha Theta gathered at a "Back-to-College" luncheon at the House Sept. 17 to catch up on each other's summer activities. Polly Scott, '62, Janice Royson, and Carolyn Scott, both '63, talked of their European travels. Donna Floyd, '62, went abroad for the Wimbledon Tournament, and later toured the U. S. playing tennis. "Home" for a visit was Mary Jo Shaw, '61. Dorcas Brown, '62, and Paul Bankes, '62, Pi Kappa Alpha, are engaged. Maxine Steinbach, '64, and Dave Rodgers, Theta Delt, '64 are pinned as are Janice Royson, '63, and Tom Dellarno, PiKa, '61. Betty Ann Lewis, '61, the reigning Miss Williamsburg, is engaged to Rex Lashley, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Univ. of New Mexico, '59. Three marriages took place this summer: Marty Cawley, '61, to Bob Doughtie, Sigma Pi, '58; Bunni King, '61, to Jim Neff, Delta Upsilon, Dartmouth, '59; Diane LaFerriere, '63, to Bob Aubrey, DU, '63, W&L. Theta recently pledged Gretchen Scherer, '64.

Theta Delta Chi initiated four pledges on Sept. 25: Max Tongier, '62; Bill Henry, '63; Pat Slatterey, '64; and Arnie Jones, '63. The services so impressed Arnie that he went right out and got pinned the next day to Patty O'Doherty, '64, Delta Delta Delta. The Tri Deltas entertained their alumnae advisors at a tea Sept. 26. Linda Stein, '63, is engaged to Lt. H. C. Cooper, '57, Lambda Chi Alpha. The Kappa Sigs and Tri Deltas will party at the Lodge Oct. 8. The Tri Deltas repledged Debbe Battles, '62, and pledged Judy McKay, '64, Oct. 3.

The alumni of Phi Kappa Tau gave the undergraduate brothers a hamburger fry at Ed Spencer's home Sept. 1. Tom Palmer was married to Susie McAnally and Mike Patterson was married to Rosemary Ashby, Madison, this summer. Warren Haley is engaged to Helen Walker.

Alpha Chi Omega pledged Vee Jones, '64, Oct. 3.

The following marriages of brothers in Lambda Chi took place this summer: Bill Coe, '61, and Bess Bryson; John Lacey, '61, and Linda Atwell; and Ron Monark, '61, and Dottie Holland.

New Kappa Kappa Gamma pledges are Bev Richell and Cindy Harris, both '64. Kathy O'Connor, '64 is pinned to Steve Wisner, George Washington, '62, Phi Sigma Kappa. Coach Drewer spoke to the Kappas last week on football.

Cafe Sponsors Buffets

Three hundred students, depending on their cafeteria ticket number, will be invited to attend a buffet each week in the Colony Room of the cafeteria.

The first of the Thursday evening buffets was September 28 with Dr. and Mrs. Davis Y. Paschall present. Miss Rebecca Tinker, head of the cafeteria, explained that the purpose of the buffets was to create "better relationships," and contributed the idea to her assistant in charge of the Main Cafeteria and Colony Room, Mr. Allen.

With the initial buffet attracting an excellent turnout, the menu is being lengthened

Little Indians Boast Cheerleading Squad

For the first time in freshman football history, the Little Indians can boast a cheerleading squad. The freshman girls will cheer not only for the home games, Friday, October 13 and Friday, November 11, but also for the basketball matches.

Chosen by the varsity team, the group includes Margie Hodges, Jean Freeman, Mary Lynn Sigmon, Bonnie Cheshire, Micki Leef, Laurie Yingling, Judy Pollard and Sandy Bolick. These eight performed individually for the upperclassmen, and were selected from an original field of twenty.

All From Virginia

Coincidentally, the entire team consists of Virginians. Margie

Hodges, one of the original instigators of the freshman team, hails from Roanoke. While in high school, Margie claimed the honor of second place in 1960's State French Tournament. Also from Roanoke is Mary Lynn Sigmon.

Micki Leef and Laurie Yingling claim Alexandria as their hometown. While in high school, both girls were members of their student government and National Honor Society.

Bolick Former Captain

Sandra Jo "Sandy" Bolick hails from Charlottesville. Sandy can boast cheerleading participation which dates back to the eighth grade, and editorship of her high school newspaper. From Norfolk, Jean Freeman was a high school cheerleader as well as Key Club Sweetheart.

Judy Pollard, of Richmond, was a varsity cheerleader in high school, as well as being secretary of her student government. The last versatile miss, Bonnie Cheshire, hails from Martinsville.

Inauguration Work Slows Convocation Schedule

Annual Autumn Honors Convocation will be Wednesday, October 25, at 11 a.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Auditorium, Dr. Alexander Kallos, chairman of the activity, announced.

Kallos stated that definite plans for Convocation have not yet been settled by the committee. This is due to the faculty members' involvement in planning and concern with the inauguration of Dr. Davis Y. Paschall on Friday, October 13. Paschall will be inaugurated as the 23rd President of William and Mary.

Ceremony Performed

Traditionally, however, the Autumn Convocation includes tapping of new members for Phi Beta Kappa Honorary fraternity. At this time also, the student assembly and officers of the respective classes are introduced to the campus.

As in past years, the William and Mary choir will process to the College Hymn and will be followed by the faculty and administration.

New Merit Scholars

Merit scholars for the 1961-62 school year will be announced and introduced during Convocation. Among them will be the Chancellor, "King" Carter, John B. Lightfoot, Mary Minor Lightfoot, President Bryan, Jackson W. Davis, Graves, Soutter, George Blow and Joseph Prentiss scholarships.

Campus to Select Queen

by Viki Williams

Balloting for the Homecoming Queen will be re-held Monday, October 9, for the primaries and Wednesday, October 11, for the finals. The new election was called because of an objection to the new voting system. It was claimed that it was not voted on by the Student Government assembly and therefore violated the Constitution.

The voting will be a complete re-election of all nominees who will now represent the different classes instead of the dorms, fraternities, and sororities. This year will be the first year that this new system has been tried.

President Paschall's inauguration will start the weekend this year Friday, October 13. Classes will be suspended Friday for the inauguration as well as the usual Saturday suspension. A parade will follow the inauguration Friday afternoon.

Friday night from 10 p.m. until 2 a.m., Ralph Flannigan and his fifteen-piece orchestra will play for the formal dance in Blow Gym. A smaller band will play for the Saturday semi-formal dance from 9 p.m. to 12 p.m.

'Mardi Gras' will be the theme of this year's Homecoming dance as announced by Paul Bankes, the dance committee chairman. Paul and his decorations chairman, Bill Allen, will carry out the theme elaborately with 38 parachutes. These parachutes of red, green, blue, orange, yellow, black, white, and purple, will be suspended from the ceiling and will cover the gym walls.

Tables covered with checkered tablecloths, Parisian café style, will be placed along the walls. The Queen and her court will enter the gym for the crowning Friday night through the eight foot mouth of a devil placed opposite the band stand.

Committee Studies WSCGA Structure

by Nancy Ginter

Perhaps the most important committee under the administration of the Women Students' Cooperative Government Association this year will prove to be the evaluation committee, for the group is enthusiastic about its project. Cindy Peery and Peggy Brown are the two committeewomen left from last year.

The new members of the WSCGA Evaluation Committee, elected on the basis of one per dorm, are Pat Patterson from Chandler, Peggy List from Landrum, Lynn Meushaw from Jefferson and Judy Goodridge from Ludwell. Sorority Court and Barrett will elect their representatives this week. The committee's job will be to propose and consider various plans for actual structural changes in the organization of WSCGA.

The Evaluation Committee of 1960-61 has developed a skeleton plan for a "new WSCGA" that will be very different from the present one.

Under the proposed plan of the former Committee the Women's Honor Council would be a separate organization. There would no longer be three councils but one which would be a Dormitory Council. On this council would be the presidents of each dormitory.

Judicially, this body would function much as the Judicial Council does now but only for major cases. A system of automatic penalties will be devised, replacing the demerit system and eliminating the necessity for many trials on both the house and Dormitory Council level.

The election was conducted in the dormitories from 7 to 11 p.m. Monday in order to fill the posts vacated by John Supak and Bob Soleau who did not return to William and Mary this year.

Watters, who is a pre-med student is from Natrona Heights, Pennsylvania, where he gained leadership experience as president of his sophomore, junior and senior classes. Presently he is working on the cafeteria committee.

Gooding, a chemistry major, is from Lima, Ohio. At William and Mary on a basketball scholarship, he played basketball and track on the freshman teams his first year. Last year he played first string forward on the varsity basketball team and was also a member of the varsity track team.

Paper to Publish Golden Issue

During March, 1962, a special issue of the Flat Hat commemorating its 50th anniversary, will recall and review its fifty years on campus. The first issue of the Flat Hat was published October 2, 1911, fifty years ago this week. This year will be devoted to preparing for the issue which includes a whole selection of activities.

The issue is designed to recapitulate the past fifty years of William and Mary history in a total and grand scope. Other activities will surround the issue, and it will encompass every phase of student life. Definite plans have not been arranged yet, but as they are made, the Flat Hat will report them.

The Flat Hat is enlisting the co-operation of the Student Government; Pi Delta Epsilon, international honorary journalism fraternity; Phi Alpha Theta, honorary history society and any other students and groups who are interested in searching old files and writing articles.

Help Wanted

Students who are interested should contact Mary Margaret Mann, director of the entire program. There will also be faculty advisors who will give ideas of what should be included in the issue.

"Paper" Yearbook

Jerry Van Voorhis, editor of the Flat Hat stated, "This will be a yearbook for the past 50 years of college history, and the year will be an unusual one for the paper."

He also stated that the commemorative issue would reflect all aspects of campus life at William and Mary since the Flat Hat first started publication.
