

Sept. 24, 1772

Dear Sir

I am a little uneasy when I consider in what a Light I must appear to you. So many opportunities on your side I must be regarded as one that promises without ever intending to perform. But learn from hence, Mr George, not to judge too rashly. I always designed to send you the Letters, & it was only the Fault of my Situation that you did not receive it sooner. Give my Compliments to Davis, & tell him that I heartily thank him for the Trouble he took about the Commissary's Letters. Mrs Lilly had forgot to send them to me. I wish you an agreeable Journey & am, dear Sir,

Your very Obedient Servant!

Robert Anderson.

P.S. Mr. Nelson is rode out.

Dear Tucker

Since you judge it proper to publish the Wormwoodian, you may assure yourself that I shall do every thing in my Power to promote its Success. The Copies subscribed for are 330, & many in this Town have not yet been applied to. Before it is read, to be delivered, I am in Hopes they may amount to 500. I believe I shall some Time this Week be called to Gloucester to inspect the Surveying of a Tract of Land, when I shall have an Opportunity of procuring the Names of some of the Gentlemen of that County to your Paper. This Excursion will oblige me to lay the Trouble of copying the Poem upon you. Our Friend Mr. Page is to set out next Week for Mannsfield. I design to transmit him a Subscription Paper, & I am certain he will spare no Pains to get Subscribers. The Dedication I have never seen, nor indeed before did I ever hear of it. I have expected you in York every Day this Postnight, & heartily wish that you may soon meet with a Conveyance hither. Give my Compliments to our Friend James, & tell him that by this Time his Hazard of meeting with Eliza might have so much subsided as to have permitted him to think a little of any Sermon, Sermon Cafe, &c. O! there a sweet Girl Adieu!

I am your very affectionate Friend

Dear St George

I have only Time to tell you that I left our Professors Friends well yesterday Morng, & that Page is determined to try his Influence with       . His Opinion of what you had best do, I imagine, was contained in his Letter to you. If you have your Poems in Readiness, pray send them down by the Col. I told Mrs of the Bargain you made with one for her, which met with <sup>the</sup> highest Approbation. If you can find Leisure, write to me. I am, dear St.

Dear M.

To oblige a favourite Lady you will not neglect to send down the second Volume of Peregrine Pickle by some one of the Hellfire Boys & the Hermit for a week or two will be very acceptable to your humble servant. I feel myself inclined this morning to take notice of a Reflection you cast upon me last Saturday at your Lodgings, but alas! the God of Sleep prevailed too long to allow me this satisfaction. I think the most proper Punishment I can inflict upon you for your Crime is to keep you in Suspence concerning the Nature of it till I see you. — My best Compliments to the Major. I might perhaps vindicate my Orthodoxy, but what should I gain by it? To be even with <sup>you for</sup> your Reflection, but little credit, I fear, in Williamsburg. The Major will unravel this Mystery. I am, dear M

Yours sincerely

My dear St. George

Wmfbury October 2. 1776

I have just been informed by Mr. Page that Capt. Tucker is in Town, & will sail immediately. Though he has already a Letter for you from me, yet as some Time has pass'd since it was written, I must again indulge the Impulse of Friendship by scribbling a few Lines. Mr. Page, I presume, has acquainted you with what is passing in the great World, so that I may be well excus'd that Task, tho' indeed it would be cheerfully undertaken if I thought you would thereby receive any new Information. He has without Doubt given you an account of our unfortunate Affairs on Long Island, which was made, by a parsimonious Spirit which seems to prevail too much in our great Council, the Grave of many a brave man. Amongst those who fell that Day in Defence of their Country was a Brother of mine. From all accounts our little Band did Wonders, which & the Cause he died for, tho' they do not suppress, alleviate not a little what I should feel for such a Loss. - I am, my dear Tucker, growing acquainted with Trouble & sorrow. It is not yet a Fortnight since I resign'd to the cold Bosom of the Earth a most lovely Infant, which lived only five Days; & at this moment my dearest Betty lies ill in the next Room.

Perhaps by the Time another opportunity offers I shall be able to entertain you with more pleasing Subjects; at present the melancholy State of my own Family engrosses me. Adieu, St. Georges

Three or four Vessels from Bermuda lately & not a Letter, come & make your apology

Yours ever affectionately

My dear Friend

I am not fond either of making or receiving apologies, & indeed I have seldom observed that they are of any great Service; however where I must appear so much the Delinquent, & at the same Time know myself so little guilty, I cannot help aiming at something like one in order, if possible, to regain my former Place in your Esteem & Friendship.

I was by no means forgetful of your kind Invitation, & I assure you no one could have received greater Pleasure than I should in seeing my Friend made happy. But as the Time approached I found it impracticable to enjoy that high Satisfaction - I had a Visit to make which Duty rendered indispensable, which I was prevented by unavoidable accidents from dispatching sooner & which other Duties would permit me no longer to defer. I might then have written you'll say; & so I had determined to do, but Fate had ordered it otherwise. I met with several Opportunities, but it so happened that one of the Parties, when the Moment was critical, was always on Horseback, a Circumstance, you will allow, perfectly disqualifying. What your Sentiments may be after reading so far I cannot pretend to conjecture, but mine are that the most blameable thing I have yet done is the writing so much without congratulating you on the happy Event which has taken Place

My Heart however, St George, has not waited for my Pen, but from that Hour in which I supposed the indissoluble Knot was tied, it has rejoiced in your Happiness, & breathed its fervent Wishes that it <sup>might</sup> continue full & unmixed as in this State of Mortality we are permitted to expect. — Innes shewed me yesterday what he styles your pastoral Letter, Part of which I discovered you intended for me. I was pleased to observe that amongst the Benefits you have derived from Matrimony, some Knowledge of what the Scriptures contain is one, & I hope you will in Time become an Example of Piety & godly Wisdom to the Husbands of this degenerate Age. I myself expect to receive some very edifying Lessons from you when I have the Pleasure of seeing you. — There is some News, but it is of such a Complexion, that whenever you hear it, it will be soon enough. You will be so kind as to ~~insert~~ present my very respectful Compliments to your Lady I am, my dear Sir, yours affectionately

Robert Andrews

The Bermudian Letter I picked up at Postmouth. By the bye I heard when these that your Brig had arrived safe at Southwary from France. If it be true, again I say rejoice.

Dear Tucker

When your letter sent by Mr. Johnson reached my House I was neither free nor too much employed to devote a few Moments to a private de tête.
I was much at Leisure & perfectly disposed to return your friendly Greeting. But Mr. Johnson, by sending the Letter by a little Boy belonging to Wyley the Barber, & return afterwards calling on me or informing me where he lodged, put it out of my Power to gratify my Inclination in complying with your well founded Expectation. I had even a Tooth Brush for you, not indeed of the most polite or elegant Structure, but it was new, & I believe would have worn well. You will perhaps ask, why is it not now sent? I forgot it yesterday, when I left Richmond, but it shall be referred to brighten up the Councillor's Teeth before he opens his Mouth in the Chamber of State.

I have done nothing with your Accounts. The latter as well as the former must be countersigned by Gen. Lawson.
I think the Principle on which you charge for the whole

Term of your Appointment is perfectly just, but it may be judged otherwise, & therefore I would take the Liberty of advising you not to do it. You will find the small Receipt audited, & I am sorry I was so forward in having it done, as ten Days afterwards the Executive directed the Auditors to allow one thousand for one in such Settlements.

Shall I see you in Richmond before I leave it? Out of Office
I am waiting only for milder Weather to return to Wexburg.
I shall ency. wth me your Poem on the Independence of America, which fell lately into my Hands so mutilated that I shall be puzzled to make out a Copy of it. Your letter by Innes was in this Condition when delivered to me. Part of it indeed was gone, & I was obliged from what remained to guess at the rest.

~~Of the sun & the moon & the stars~~ If you have brought your Sun out of its Eclipse it is more than I have - but perhaps no World can bear two Suns at the same Time. Explain your illusion - mine is clear enough -

My best Respects to Mr. Tucker & Adieu

Yours affectionately
Robert Andrews

Dear Sir

This will be delivered to you by Mr. Holmes young gentleman who intends to spend some time in our with a view principally, I believe, to benefit by your instructions. He is not acquainted in Williamsburg, & will therefore stand in need in the first place of your direction in getting himself fixed - I begin to feel an impatience to rejoin you, but know not when it will be in my power. The general business is yet in any forwardness. The letter of the Judges has been thought worthy of the most serious attention of the Legislature no farther attention has been yet paid to it. Neither Excise nor Revenue nor appropriation law, has yet made its appearance.

About the sale of Innes's

land

Mr. Tucker

Feb 19, 1803

Dear Sir

It has become necessary for the discharge of the claims on the estate of our friend Innes that part of the land should be sold, especially as Mrs Innes purchased of the personal property to the value of about eight hundred pounds; it I think as that lady is situated it will be best for her to change, as she is empowered to do, the real property she possesses into something more productive. These considerations have induced me to recommend to her the measures referred to in the sketch of a power of attorney, which Robert will deliver to you, for which I wish you to amend where you shall see necessary. This business ought to be immediately arranged, as I apprehend a knowledge of her loss, which she must have ere long, will unfit her for the transaction of any business for a time.

Answered — advising that P. Randolph } should be associated with Mr. Andrews }
