Debate Team Brings Home Trophies

The William and Mary debaters started off their 1972-73 competition schedule in fine style by claiming five trophies at their first tournament, the Washington and Lee University Invitational in Lexington recently.

Two freshman debaters, James Klagge of Cleveland, Ohio, and Alan Sykes of McLean, had a 5-1 record for the tournament and won the first place trophy in the novice division.

The William and Mary team was tied for first place with several other teams but won the trophy on the basis of top speaker points. Alan Sykes, fourth in the novice division in speaker points, helped his team gain the top award.

The debaters tied for first place in the varsity division with the University of Richmond with the team of James Weekley of Norfolk and Joan Harrigan, Wyckoff, N.J. The debaters were awarded the second place trophy, Richmond winning on the basis of speaker points as well as their win-loss record. James Weekley was second place speaker.

Marcia Carl of Norfolk brought home the trophy for the top speaker in the varsity division. Miss Carl and Sharon Pandak of Staunton won third place as a team in the varsity division.

Patsy Holstein, Mexico City, and Nancy Warden, Harrisonburg, debating in the novice division, had a 2-4 win-loss record for the tournament.

Lord Garner Will Speak on Campus

A noted English diplomat, Lord Garner, former Head of Her Majesty's Diplomatic Service, will give two lectures at the College, October 13.

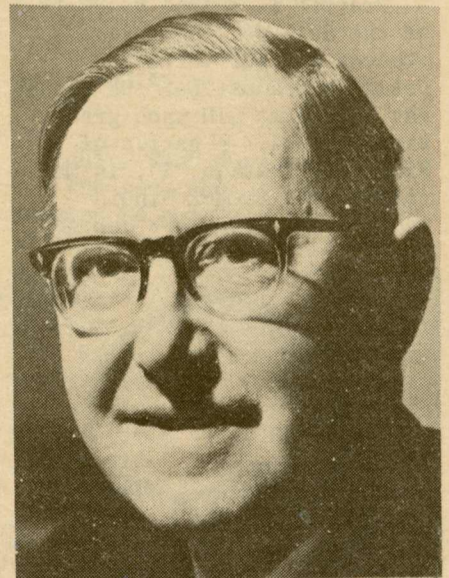

Lord Garner will speak on "The House of Lords is With It," at 3 p.m. in Room 20 of the new Social Sciences Classroom building on Jamestown Road adjacent to Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

At 8 p.m. that evening he will speak on "Does Anyone Love America?" at Project Plus in the new residential complex next to The Commons.

Both lectures are open to the public. They are part of the current Visiting Lecture Series at the College and arranged in cooperation with the University Center in Virginia, Inc.

A graduate of Jesus College at Cambridge, he became a Life Peer in 1969 and attends the House of Lords debates regularly. He speaks mainly on Commonwealth subjects and Britain's entry into Europe. He sits on the cross benches and is chairman of a Commonwealth group formed early in 1972. It includes members of both Houses of Parliament.

Since his retirement in 1968, Lord Garner has served as the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Commonwealth Institute in London and chairman of the Commonwealth Scholarship Commission in the United Kingdom.

Fratkin Gets Foundation Post

Barry Fratkin, sports information director at William and Mary for the past 12 years, has been named the full-time executive director of the William and Mary Educational Foundation, the College's athletic fundraising group.

Fratkin will continue as sports information director as well, but will be hiring a full-time assistant SID by November 1, the effective date of his new appointment.

The announcement was made jointly by Director of Athletics Ben Carnevale and president of the Foundation, Elliot Schaubach, after a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Educational Foundation.

"One of my first recommendations that I made to the Educational Foundation when I came in was that they needed a full-time executive director," Carnevale said, "and after full consideration, I think Barry is the most qualified to handle this position."

Elliot Schaubach, president of the Educational Foundation, said, "Barry has worked with the Foundation for several years and knows its operation well. With his William and Mary background and knowledge of William and Mary friends and alumni, I am sure he is the man to coordinate the Foundation's activities."

Fratkin has handled some of the Foundation's activities in the past, writing a weekly newsletter and showing films of football games to alumni groups in the area.

"William and Mary athletics have a tremendous potential," said Fratkin. "With the new physical facilities we have and the new members of our coaching and administrative staffs, now is the time for our athletic program to start taking giant steps forward and I am excited about the opportunity to coordinate the activities of the Educational Foundation so that we can meet our goals financially."

Fratkin is a 1964 graduate of the College, who served as student SID for three years prior to graduation. He became the full-time SID upon graduation in 1964. A native of Richmond, Fratkin, 30, is married to the former Winnie Goodman and they have one son, Bryan, two.

William J. Carter, vice president for business affairs, will give a short talk on the scope of his office and participate in an informal discussion. This meeting will allow Mr. Carter and the faculty to become better acquainted and allow for the discussion of policies affecting the faculty that are administered by his office.

All faculty members, regardless of their affiliation with A.A.U.P., are encouraged to attend this meeting which holds promise of an open discussion of problems and issues. Membership in the local chapter involves yearly dues of $2 and may be paid the night of the meeting. Membership in the national organization is not a requirement for local membership.

Touch Football Ends in 0-0 Tie

Phi Beta Kappa Field, Oct. 1 - After a spectacular showing against the Bishop Madison Society, the administration football team geared this week for its 6th annual confrontation with The Flat Hat.

The game against the Flat Hat will be played on October 15, beginning at 2:30 p.m., on the same turf where the administration gridiron greats battled to a zero to zero tie with Bishop Madison.

Despite the presence of a former all-southern conference linebacker on their side, the Bishop Madison Society was unable to penetrate the administration's end zone during the game. With only 30 seconds left, the administration drove to within one foot of the Bishop Madison end zone but time ran out when the administration tried an ill conceived one foot pass from sore-arm Sonny Smith, a recruit from ROTC, to Sam Sadler, who was hit ferociously by a Madison defender from the School of Business.

Despite the scoreless tie, the administration felt it had improved on prior performances. In five years of playing against the Flat Hat and it has yet to win a game but all of that is expected to change in the game on October 15.

French Club to Present Films

Two short films by Albert Lamorisse, sponsored by the Alliance Francaise Cintheque Movie Club, will be shown Tuesday, October 10, in the Campus Center Little Theatre at 8 p.m. They are "Crim Blanc," winner of the Cannes Festival Grand Prix in 1963, and "Bim." General admission is $1; 50¢ for students. Proceeds will be contributed toward the scholarship fund of Alliance Francaise.

Staff Profile Mrs. Grace Jones

Mrs. Grace Jones, secretary in the department of history, loves to explain the many postcards which adorn her office wall in the Social Sciences Building.

Her collection has grown over the years and she now has a world-wide collection of more than 50 on the wall behind her desk.

The cards were sent to Mrs. Jones by professors in the department and students and represent research and travel to dozens of countries.

"I didn't ask for them," explained Mrs. Jones, "people saw I enjoyed postcards and so they sent me some when they were travelling." Mrs. Jones added that she is hopeful that the current high cost of mailing and purchasing cards won't cut down on expansion of her collection.

For new students to the department, waiting for an appointment with a professor, the card collection is a conversation piece. Mrs. Jones fills them in on some of the research projects in the department, represented through the cards.

Mrs. Jones came to the campus in 1958 as secretary to J. Wilfred Lambert, then dean of students and registrar. She left that office in 1964 to join the staff of the department of history as secretary, where she remains. Mrs. Jones has seen the history staff grow from approximately five to 15 full-time professors.

A native of Aurora, Illinois, Mrs. Jones and her husband, William, who is a member of the plant department staff, have two sons and two daughters. She attended Metropolitan Business College in Aurora.

The Jones are members of Lebanon Church of Christ in Lee Hall. Mrs. Jones is president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Elks, of which her husband is Exalted Ruler. Knitting, plants and, of course, collecting postcards are her hobbies.

Official Memoranda

Building towards a College Assembly

To: All Faculties and Students
 From: Carter O. Lowance
 Subject: Recommended Establishment of College Assembly

On October 6, 1971, President Graves appointed a study committee to look into the desirability of a College Senate or Assembly and to give him the benefit of its findings and recommendations. The committee made its initial report last spring recommending establishment of a College Assembly "to facilitate communication within the College and to study and formulate policy recommendations upon any matter of general College concern." The report was reviewed by the Administrative Council, which includes all the principal administrative officers of the College, and received its unanimous approval last June. In early September, the report also was reviewed with representatives of the Student Association and the Student Bar Association, all of whom endorsed the general concept. The latter discussions did result in some suggestions for modifying the ratification procedure.

These recommendations were reviewed further by the study committee, approved by it, and incorporated in a revised report which has now been submitted to the President. He has accepted the report as in keeping with his charge to the study committee, and copies are being distributed with this memorandum to all faculties and students as the first step in the College-wide consideration and ratification procedure.

At the meeting with student leaders, Dr. Graves emphasized that if the College Assembly plan were approved there would be no interruptions in work that the Board of Student Affairs might have under way or planned. In other words, the Board of Student Affairs as presently constituted will continue functioning until a committee or agency of the College Assembly is fully organized and well prepared to assume the functions of the B. S. A. It will be the province of the Assembly to determine the composition of the successor agency to the B. S. A., but it appears to be the consensus of those with whom this question has been discussed that the practical result might be continuation of the current membership of the B. S. A. through this academic year.

Dr. Graves has requested members of the study committee, headed by Dr. John E. Selby, to serve as a steering committee during the ratification process and the committee has agreed to do so. As such, it will serve as the primary source of information on the recommendations and the rationale of the committee's report. To replace graduating and retiring members of the committee, the President has appointed Bruce Gould, Mark Robertson and Professor Frank Evans. Members of the committee will be available to meet with faculties and other groups as may be requested and feasible for explanatory sessions and to respond to questions.

The Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences and the Deans of the several Schools will be responsible for determining, in consultation with their faculties, the precise procedures to be followed by their respective constituencies in submitting the recommendations for ratification. Each faculty member and each student is urged to read the report carefully and to seek answers to any questions that may arise. You will note that failure of ratification by any one faculty or the Student Association will mean the rejection of the report.

The Student Association Senate will be responsible for determining the method of submitting the proposal to the Student Association, and the various graduate student associations will have similar responsibility for submission to their members.

It is important that all exercise the opportunity of expressing themselves on this question. In order that there may be ample time for full discussion and explanations, the President is not setting a specific ratification deadline, but it is requested that the students and the faculties take immediate steps to prepare the way for all constituencies to act on the report and recommendations as early as practicable during this fall.

Carter O. Lowance
 Executive Vice President

Steering Committee

Chairman: John E. Selby (History)
 Faculty: Frank Evans (English), W. W. Liddell (Bus. Adm.)
 Students: Bruce Gould (Senior), Mark Robertson (Junior)
 Administration: Richard B. Brooks (Dean, School of Educa.)
 George R. Healy (Vice President for Academic Affairs)

To: Thomas A. Graves, Jr., President of the College
 From: Committee on a College Assembly
 Subject: Report (revised in accordance with the recommendations of the Administrative Council, and representatives of the Board of Student Affairs, the Student Association, and the Student Bar Association)

This committee was created by your memorandum of 6 October 1971, in which you instructed it "to consider the desirability of the establishment of a College Senate or Assembly at this time" and to "direct its attention to the possible function, structure and membership of such a body, and how it would be related to the overall communications and governance process of the College."

In this context, the committee distinguishes between a Faculty Senate and a College Assembly. The former term refers to a body elected by the several faculties of the College to which the faculties would delegate some of their current legislative authority and in which administrators would most likely serve only by virtue of being faculty members and students only as additional members of committees directly concerned with their interests. The term Assembly is used to mean an organization whose functions would be largely advisory to yourself and in which administrators and students, as members of two of the three major constituencies of the College, would participate with full accreditation.

This committee recommends that an Assembly of the College of William and Mary be established as expeditiously as possible and includes a proposed constitution with this report.

The committee wishes to make clear that it does not thereby recommend against the establishment of a Faculty Senate. It has concluded, however, that in terms of "the overall communications and governance process of the College" a Senate should not, and indeed, in view of the student desires, perhaps politically could not, be established without an Assembly, and that the question whether two central governing bodies are advisable in an institution of this College's size will be best answered by time.

Meanwhile, the committee recommends that regular meetings of the full Faculty of the College be held, at which reports of College committees and other business concerning all the faculties may be considered. No change in current bylaws would be necessary to accomplish this.

But should it be concluded that a Faculty Senate is desirable, this committee recommends that a body representing the faculties be convened to draft a constitution.

The role that an Assembly will fill in College affairs has been demonstrated in part this year by the Board of Student Affairs, whose interests have reached beyond strictly student affairs to wider questions of College policy. The committee applauds this development and views the establishment of an Assembly as its logical extension. Broader representation of faculty and administration will enable the Assembly to assume and expand the present functions of the Board to encompass all matters of general College concern.

The committee recommends a relatively large membership of sixty delegates for the Assembly to insure adequate representation of the many constituencies of the College and to enable the Assembly to attend to a wide variety of business without unfairly taxing its members. The committee assumes that committees will normally perform the detailed work of the Assembly, even though the entire body may choose to meet more frequently than the required three times a semester.

The manner of representing the several faculties is another important consideration in this proposal for an Assembly. For understandable reasons of College history, members of the professional school faculties generally desire equal representation with the Faculty of Arts and Sciences despite the great disparity in numbers of faculty members, while members of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences favor the rule of "one man, one vote."

To resolve these differences, the committee recommends that representation in the Assembly assure each faculty of a minimum voice but otherwise be based upon elections at large. Under the system recommended in the draft constitution each faculty voter in the at-large elections will rank thirteen choices in order. First choices will be counted until a candidate receives a quota of votes equal to the quotient of the number of votes cast divided by the number of seats plus one, rounded to the next highest unit. Once a candidate is elected, the second choices of that candidate's surplus ballots will be counted until another candidate obtains the required quota. If at some point no candidate can be elected, the candidate with the lowest number of votes will be dropped and the next choices of those who voted for him distributed among the remaining candidates, and so on until thirteen delegates are selected. This system will assure representation of minority opinion, play down divisiveness by encouraging balloting across faculty lines, and eliminate the need for frequent readjustment of the representative formula as the numerical ratio of the faculties fluctuates.

The committee proposes that otherwise the constitution of the Assembly be brief and simple since it is impossible to foretell accurately how it will develop as an institution. The statement of purpose in Article II with the guaranteed right to ask questions affords unlimited scope for its deliberations and precludes predictions of the interests it will follow and thus, for example, the committees or officers it will need.

With regard to the mechanics for liaison between the faculty and the Board of Visitors and between the students and the Board, the committee recommends that these not be altered at this time. Although such liaison might conceivably be the concern of a central organization in which all are represented, there seems no pressing reason to propose changes in procedures only recently adopted by the Board of Visitors.

Finally, the committee recommends that the Assembly not include representatives from the School of Marine Science. Although the faculty and students at the School are members of the College community, the committee believes that because of distance and the semi-autonomous nature of their program very little of the Assembly's business will interest them. Dean William Hargis concurs in this assessment. The committee suggests, however, that the Assembly inform the School if matters concerning it come before it and extend the School the privilege of sending spokesmen on these occasions.

The Jim Root Story

Jim Root, in his first year at William and Mary, has his team perched on top of the Southern Conference.

The Indians have looked impressive in their two conference wins, blasting Furman 31-7, and then The Citadel before a drenched Cary Field crowd two weeks ago, 31-12. Both games were at home and gave strong indications that the Indians will probably battle down to the wire for that Southern Conference championship. The Indians finish the season with three straight SC games with Davidson, East Carolina (home) and Richmond.

For a closer look at the man who is directing the Indians this year, here is the Jim Root story:

Jim Root, who played under two of America's most well known football coaches, has some strong thoughts on whether sophomores, especially quarterbacks can help. "It used to really burn me up that Woody would never start me," Root recalls of his quarterback days under Woody Hayes at Miami of Ohio. "I played most of every game that year and we won the conference championship, but Woody would always start a senior and then turn to me when we weren't moving the ball and say 'let's see what you can do' and I would windup as the quarterback for the rest of the game."

Hayes went to Ohio State and Ara Parseghian replaced him and Root got to play under another of football's great names in coaching for two years.

Since then Root has been moving, playing and coaching football for 20 years before settling at William and Mary, ready to build the program into a winner.

Root graduated from Miami in 1953 and played quarterback for the Chicago Cardinals of the NFL and then went to the Ottawa Rough Riders the next fall. After a two year stint in the Army at Ft. Bliss in Texas, he returned to the Cardinals for the 1956 season.

His first jump into coaching came at Tulane where he was the back-field coach in 1958 and 1959. He then went to Miami (Fla.) under Andy Gustafson for four years as the offensive co-ordinator and helped develop All-American George Mira as the Hurricanes went to two bowl games while he was there (1961 Gotham Bowl and 1962 Liberty Bowl).

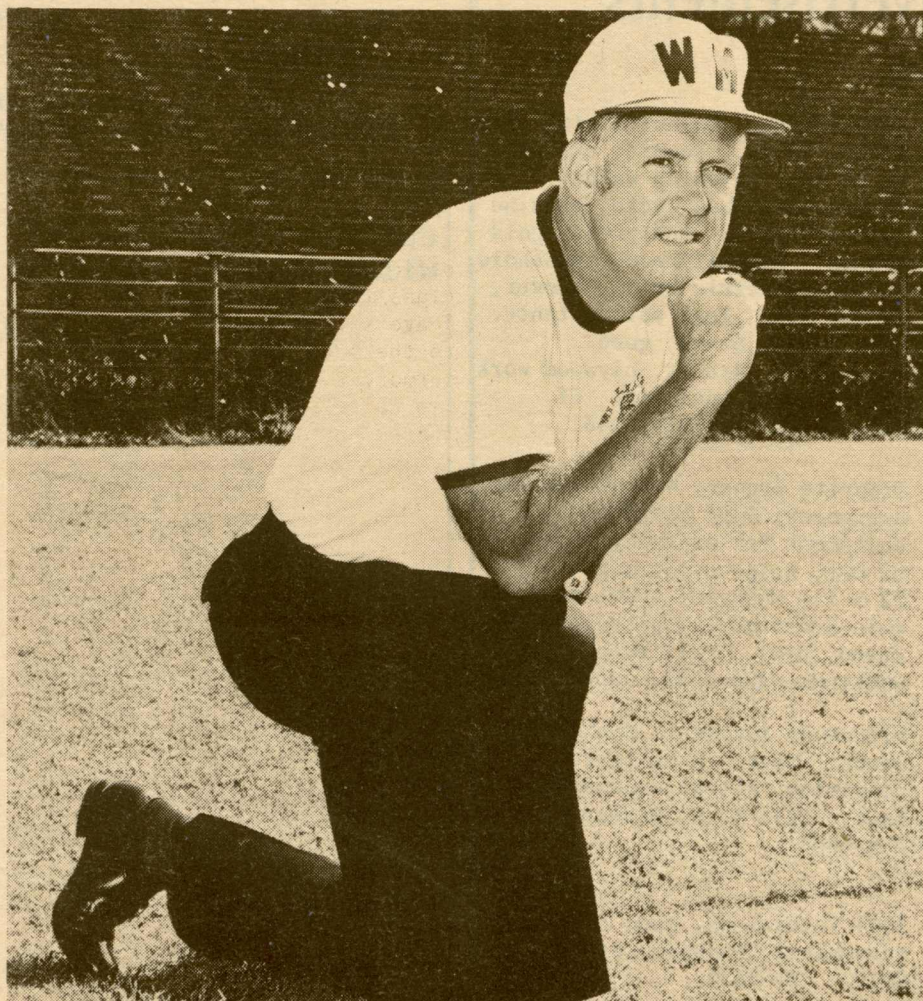

He left Miami for Dartmouth, working under Bob Blackman for a year and then went to Yale as offensive coordinator under another Miami (Ohio) grad, Carmen Cozza. He stayed at Yale three years and his last year there (1967) Yale won the Ivy title.

Off that success he was named the head coach at New Hampshire for the 1968 season and his first year his team posted a surprising 6-2 record, earning him small college Coach-of-the-Year honors.

Overall, his New Hampshire four year stay produced a winning 18-14-1 record. He was named W&M's new coach on December 17, 1971.

Root was born on August 17, 1931 in Toledo, Ohio and was a basketball and football star at Libbey-Toledo High School before going to Miami where he was a standout for three years. Miami was conference champs in 1951.

Root likes all outdoor activities, especially golf, hunting and fishing. He is building a home in Williamsburg's Kingspoint area which he hopes will be completed before the season gets underway. He and his wife, the former Janet Kesling, have three children: Mistina Lin (Misty), Jim Jr. (Skip) and Dale. Misty will be attending college back in New Hampshire while Skip and Dale will be in high school.
