Dean Sadler Named to New Post

W. Samuel Sadler, Dean of Men, has been appointed Dean of Students effective next September 1, as part of the reorganization of student affairs which began earlier this year.

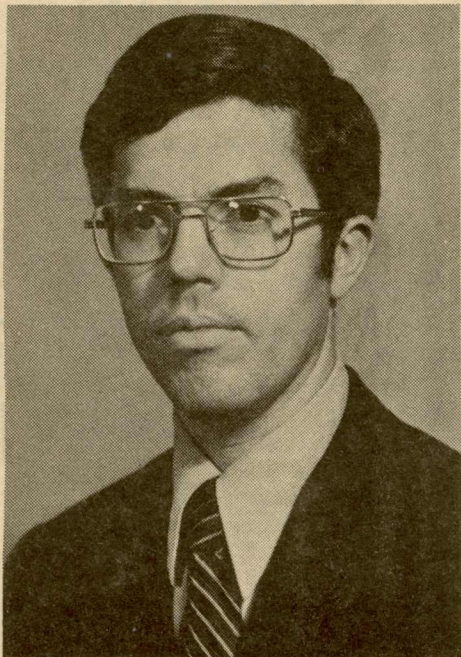

Sadler's appointment was approved by the Board of Visitors at its November 10 meeting. He will be responsible to the newly designated Dean of the Undergraduate Program, Dr. James C. Livingston, who takes office next July 1.

President Graves, in a memorandum announcing the Board's action (published in this issue of The News), said Sadler will begin working immediately with faculty, students and administration to plan for reorganization of the student affairs program.

Studies leading toward reorganization of the student affairs program were begun in view of the impending retirement of J. Wilfred Lambert as Vice President for Student Affairs next August.

Sadler, who is 30 years old, is a 1964 alumnus of William and Mary who earned his master's degree in education here in 1971. He had worked with public health service programs from 1964 until he returned in 1967 as Assistant Dean of Admissions at the College. He was named Acting Dean of Men in August, 1970, following Barnes' promotion from that post.

He is active in a number of campus activities and is a trustee of the Williamsburg United Methodist Church, a director of the Wesley Foundation and a director of the Williamsburg Drug Action Center. He was named one of 1972's Outstanding Young Men of America.

Mr. Downing Presents Flag to Mr. Graves

Newly elected first district congressman Thomas N. Downing presents a flag for the campus to President Thomas A. Graves, Jr. Participating in the presentation ceremony is Mrs. Robert V. H. Duncan, a member of the Board of Visitors from Alexandria.

Charter Day Convocation Speaker Announced

President Graves has announced that the Honorable Colgate W. Darden, former Governor of Virginia, statesman and educator, will be the speaker for the 1973 Charter Day convocation, Saturday, February 10.

The program, in observance of the 280th anniversary of the granting of the College's Royal Charter, will be held at 11 a.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Governor Darden has had a unique career in public service to Virginia and the nation as Congressman, Governor, delegate to the United Nations, President of the University of Virginia, and Chancellor of the College of William and Mary. He has served in many other public and civic capacities.

Business, Law, Education Approve Assembly

To date, the College Assembly proposal has been approved by the faculties of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, the School of Business Administration and the School of Education.

President's Reception

President and Mrs. Thomas A. Graves, Jr., cordially invite foreign students and members of the International Circle to a reception at the President's House on Sunday, November 19, from 4 - 6 p.m.

Director of Health Services Appointed

Dr. Richard D. Cilley, a physician on the University of New Hampshire's student health service staff, has been appointed Director of Student Health Services at the College effective January 1.

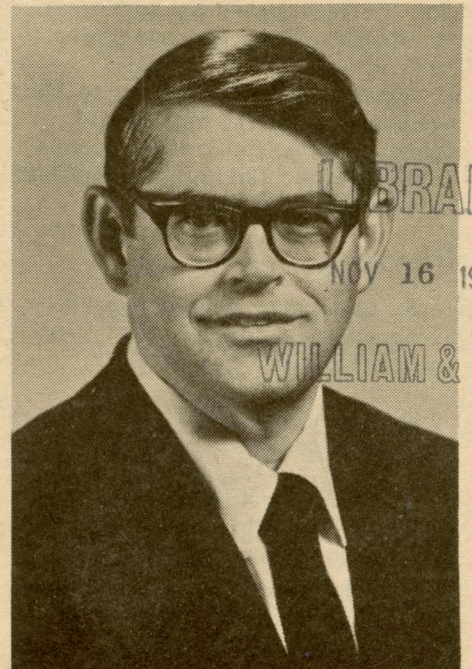

Dr. Cilley's appointment was approved by the Board of Visitors at its meeting November 10. His appointment was on recommendation of a student-faculty-administration committee which had contacted numerous candidates and interviewed nine since last spring.

The College reorganized the student health program on the recommendation of Dr. Willard Dalrymple, president-elect of the American College Health Association, who conducted a study at the request of the College. The reorganization is in connection with construction of the new College Infirmary, due to be completed next spring.

A second full-time physician is also to be appointed, and a search for candidates for this post is now underway.

Currently, the infirmary employs two physicians on a part-time basis. Both are also engaged in general medical practice in Williamsburg.

Dr. Cilley, 46, is a native of New Hampshire. He received his undergraduate degree from Tufts University, his medical degree from the Boston University School of Medicine, and his training at the Hartford, Conn., Hospital. He engaged in private practice for ten years and also served as school physician at Loomis Institute. He joined the University of New Hampshire staff in 1966.

Faculty News

Education

The November meeting of the School of Education Research Colloquium was held today in the Gold Room of the Campus Center at 8:45 a.m.

Ronald Wheeler presented a paper entitled "Effects of Cooperative and Competitive Classroom Environments on Attitudes and Achievement of Elementary School Children Engaged in Social Studies Inquiry Activities."

English

Donald Ball, John Conlee, Bruce Southard, professors, attended the annual convention of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association in Jacksonville, Fla., November 3.

Fraser Neiman, Nathaniel Elliott and James Marlow, professors, attended the Victorians Institute Meeting at North Carolina State, Raleigh, N.C., October 28.

Geology

Kenneth F. Bick, Bruce K. Goodwin, Gerald H. Johnson and twelve students from the Department, participated in the Fourth Annual Virginia Geological Field Conference held in Abingdon on Oct. 27, 28, and 29. The group studied and discussed the structure, stratigraphy, and paleontology of the well-exposed Paleozoic rocks in that area.

Law

Emeric Fischer, vice-chairman of the sub-committee on reducing cost of transfer of residential property of the Virginia House Commission, presented a talk to the Peninsula Real Estate Salesmen's Association on Oct. 24 at the Holiday Inn in Hampton.

Modern Languages

Three members of the Department attended the annual convention of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association in Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 2-4: Alexander Kallos in German and John A. Moore and R. Merritt Cox in Spanish. Mr. Moore presented a paper, "Death in Alejandro Casona's Plays -- Its Impact on their Structure." Mr. Kallos served as secretary-treasurer of the German group.

Alexander Kallos spoke to the German Club of Hampton High School on the topic "New Trends in the German College Curriculum" on October 25.

Physics

A. Sher gave a talk for the Richmond Physics Club last week on "La F₃ - Strange Stuff."

M. Ruderman, Institute for Advanced Studies, Columbia University, will speak Friday, November 17 at 4:30 p.m. in the William Small Physical Laboratory, Room 109. He will speak on "Matter in Superstrong Magnetic Fields." Coffee will be served at 4 p.m. in the Conference Room.

Project Plus

Carlyle Beyer, director, was elected vice-president of the National Collegiate Honors Council at its Annual Conference held in San Francisco recently.

Sociology

Michael A. Faia has been invited to deliver a paper entitled "The 'Myth' of Functional Analysis: A Critique of Kingsley Davis," at the International Institute of Sociology. Meetings of the 23rd Congress are being held in Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 20-25.

Emeritus Professors Honored

The William and Mary Faculty Club will honor Emeritus professors at its next cocktail party on Friday, November 17. The event will take place in the Campus Center Ballroom from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. with the Emeritus professors and their spouses being guests of the club.

Tickets for the event may be obtained from Richard Prosl at the following rates: Members $1.50 per person; non-drinking members $.50 per person; and non-members $3 per person.

Staff Notes

Administration

W. Samuel Sadler attended a workshop entitled "Students in Residence: Developmental Programs," in Washington, D.C., Nov. 1 - 3, sponsored by the American College Personnel Association. He was a respondent to a presentation by Melvne Hardee, professor of higher education at Florida State University at Tallahassee, on "Politics, Pluralities and the Student Personnel Point of View."

Placement Adds New Staffer

Dave Stuckel, a student in the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, will serve this year as pre-law advisor for the Placement Office.

Students interested in talking with him or in securing information on the study of law should contact Mr. Stuckel through the Office of Placement.

Swem Library

Mrs. Mary Lou Cobb, head, Cataloging Department, and Alva W. Stewart, associate librarian, attended the joint conference of the Southeastern and Southwestern Library Associations in New Orleans, November 2 - 4. The theme of the 1972 conference was "New Faces of Cooperation" and major speakers were Robert Wedgeworth, Jr., executive director, American Library Association, and Robert Cromie, Chicago Tribune columnist and contributing editor of Book World. Approximately 2,000 librarians attended the meeting.

CAMPUS PROFILE/James S. Kelly - Violet Clarke

With the planning of activities for Parents' Day behind them, James S. Kelly, assistant to the President, and his secretary, Violet Clarke, can settle down to routine office duties. The two have been very busy working with the SA and students for the two-day affair which took place last week.

Mr. Kelly, before assuming his present position, served concurrently as alumni secretary ('54-72), editor of the Alumni Gazette ('54-64), and director of development ('56-72).

A 1951 graduate of the College, he is a member of Bruton Parish Church and has served as president of the following local organizations: Chamber of Commerce, Red Cross, United Fund Drive, and Peninsula Council of the Boy Scouts of America (BSA). Currently, he is vice-president of the BSA.

Mr. Kelly is married to the former Beverly Simonton of York, Pa., a 1953 graduate of the College. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly have three children - Sandy, 17; Sharra, 14; and Beverly, 4. A colonel in the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve, he is a wildlife enthusiast (note "Tiger" in background) and a native of Bristol.

In his travels, Mr. Kelly has visited many college campuses, but still thinks this is the best place to be. "I have never been bored with my work," he stated. "I have a wonderful association with the students and alumni. In the new position in the President's office, I have been able to continue these relationships. I look forward to working with the community of Williamsburg as well as with the academic community," he added.

Pandak Appointed Ombudsman

Sharon Pandak, a sophomore from Staunton, has been appointed Student Ombudsman by the Student Association Senate.

In announcing her appointment, Cornell Christianson, Student Association president, said that the Student Association "has recognized the need for a person to whom students can direct complaints and problems involving student life and administrative policy. . . She will handle problems of individual students involving such areas as academics, housing, the registrar's office and affairs of particular groups such as foreign, day and transfer students."

Mrs. Clarke has been working on campus "a little over five years." She was previously secretary to the Evening College and worked at the Tidewater Automobile Association in Norfolk while her husband, Phillip, was serving a tour of duty overseas. Mr. Clarke, who attends Evening College at Thomas Nelson, is assistant sales manager of the Craft Shops in Colonial Williamsburg.

Mrs. Clarke is a graduate of Walsingham Academy and attended Pan-American Business College in Richmond. The mother of two children, Charlene, 8, and Phillip, 6, she is a member of St. Bedes Catholic Church and a native of Newport News. Swimming, camping, sewing, and gardening are her hobbies.

WCWM Temporarily Off Air

WCWM went off the air last Thursday and will come back on Monday, Nov. 27, contingent upon FCC approval of the station's new license. This new license includes an increase in power from 10 to 50 watts.

Admissions to Meet with CEEB Representative

The Admissions Committee will meet with Dan Beshara of the regional office of the College Entrance Examination Board, Monday, November 20 in Conference Room C of the Campus Center at 4:15 p.m. to discuss the available services and changing policies of CEEB.

Kappa Delta Pi

Kappa Delta Pi is a national honor society in education. The society inducts men and women at both the graduate and undergraduate levels who rank in the top one-fifth of their classes. Candidates must also show promise for or demonstrate current success in the field of education.

The society also inducts as laureates those who, although not educators, have contributed to education. At the national level people such as Albert Einstein, Eleanor Roosevelt, and William Fulbright have been inducted into the society as laureate members.

The William and Mary Alpha Xi Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi also has inducted distinguished people as laureates. These include the late Edward R. Murrow, CBS radio and television newsman; Senator William B. Spong of Virginia; Terry Sanford, former governor of North Carolina and now president of Duke University; Winthrop Rockefeller, former governor of Arkansas and director of Colonial Williamsburg; and Edith Green, a ranking member of the Education and Labor Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Each year the Alpha Xi Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi awards one or more scholarships to deserving undergraduate and graduate students who are attending William and Mary.

Environmental Law Lectures

David D. Dominick will present the second in a series of Environmental Law lectures on Tuesday evening, November 21, in the Moot Court Room of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law - at 7:30 p.m.

Mr. Dominick, 35, of Cody, Wyoming, was nominated by President Nixon to be Assistant Administrator for Categorical Programs, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, June 1, 1971.

From March 1969, until his appointment to the EPA, Mr. Dominick served as Commissioner of the Federal Water Quality Administration. Prior to that time, he served as legislative assistant to U.S. Senator Clifford P. Hansen of Wyoming from 1966 to 1969. While serving on Senator Hansen's staff, he handled all staff matters relating to the Department of the Interior, natural resources, and water issues.

He is a member of the Wyoming State Bar, the Colorado State Bar, the American Bar Association, Natural Resources Section, the Sierra Club, the Wyoming Wildlife Federation, and the Wyoming State Historical Society.

A graduate of the University of Colorado School of Law with a Juris Doctor degree in 1966, Mr. Dominick authored a Law Review article entitled "Oil Shale--The Need for a National Policy," which won the Rocky Mountain Mineral Law Foundation award for research and scholarship in 1966.

Mr. Dominick majored in the anthropology honors program at Yale University and was graduated in 1960 with a B.A. degree.

Welsh Elected Fellow of American Physical Society

Robert E. Welsh, professor of physics, has been elected Fellow of the American Physical Society. This honor is afforded to those who, according to the Charter of the Society, "have contributed to the advancement of physics by independent, original research." His field of research has been the experimental investigation of elementary particles, and atomic nuclei.

Mr. Welsh was born in 1932 and in 1954 obtained his B.S. from Georgetown University. He earned his Ph.D. in Physics at Pennsylvania State University in 1960. After a brief stay at Carnegie Tech, (now Carnegie-Mellon University) in Pittsburgh, he joined the faculty of William and Mary in 1963. In 1968 he was made full professor and assistant director of the Space Radiation Effects Laboratory in Newport News. At present he is on leave of absence as researcher at the Rutherford High Energy Laboratory in England.

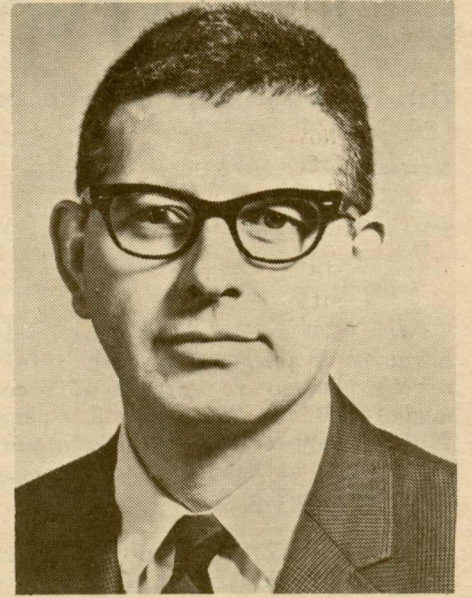

During the last decade Mr. Welsh has published over 20 articles in professional journals, given talks at an International Conference in Dubna, USSR, and at many meetings of the American Physical Society. These talks and papers were based on work performed jointly by Mr. Welsh, his colleagues at William and Mary, and graduate students and physicists from other universities around the country. In addition to this scientific productivity, he found time to be active in community affairs in Williamsburg and James City County where he lives with his wife Rita and three sons.

The American Physical Society is the professional Association of American physicists. It was founded in 1899 and has since grown to about 28,000 members. Fellows are elected by the Council of the Society which consists of 34 members, many of them Nobel Laureates, chosen from the best physicists in the country.

AAUP to Meet

The William and Mary chapter of the A.A.U.P. will hold a meeting on Monday, November 20, at 8 p.m. in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Hall. The topic for the meeting will be the new Faculty Appointment and Tenure Policy of the Virginia Community College System which was recently put into effect.

This new policy does away with tenure, except for those already on it, and is in conflict with A.A.U.P. Standards for Notice of Nonreappointment. Grounds for dismissal under the policy include, but are not limited to, "incompetence, inadequate performance of duties, insubordination, misconduct, or mental or physical incapacity which prevents the faculty member from adequately performing his duties."

George S. Welsh, clinical psychologist, will speak in the Campus Center Theatre tomorrow at 8 p.m. on "Assessment of Creativity and Intelligence." His lecture is part of the Visiting Scholars Series on campus.

Mr. Welsh is professor of psychology at the University of North Carolina where he has taught since 1953. Prior to receiving his doctorate at the University of Minnesota in 1949, he was on the faculty at the University of Pennsylvania and psychologist for the U.S. Army. From 1949-53 he was clinical psychologist with the Veterans Administration, in addition to serving as consultant to the Carmel Unified School District and Gerber Products Company in California.

A native of Pennsylvania, he was a visiting Fulbright professor at the Instituto de Psicologia of the University of Florence in 1956. Two years later he was a visiting professor at the University of California at Berkeley. He has since acted as consultant to several governmental health organizations and the Institute of Personality Assessment and Research at Berkeley.

Mr. Welsh is author of numerous articles published in professional journals and co-author of Personality: A Behavioral Science and An MMPI Handbook: A Guide to Use in Clinical Practice and Research.

W&M Second in Cross Country Championships

William and Mary placed second behind East Tennessee State in the NCAA Region 3 Cross Country Championships Saturday.

The top 15 finishers made the All Southern team. W&M runners were Bill Louv, sixth; Mac Collins, 12th; Reggie Clark, 25th; Steve Snyder, 27th; Ron Martin, 29th; John Greenplate, 28th; and Tim Cooke, 65th. Both Martin and Cooke are recovering from injuries and are not in top form.

Coach Randolph's harriers by their performance Saturday qualified second out of the six teams chosen to compete in the NCAA National Cross Country Championship to be held next weekend in Houston.

W&M runners received high praise from Randolph Saturday, who noted that East Tennessee State ranks fifth in the nation and includes three olympians and two All Americans.

OFFICIAL MEMORANDA

Board Appoints Sadler New Dean

November 10, 1972

To: The College Community

You will recall that last spring the Board of Visitors approved a reorganization of student affairs and academic affairs, in view of the pending retirement of Vice President J. Wilfred Lambert in August, 1973. This led subsequently last spring to the Board of Visitors approving the appointment of Professor James C. Livingston as Dean of the Undergraduate Program, effective for the 1973-74 session.

In view of this major reorganization of student affairs resulting from these two Board actions (envisioned for the 1973-74 academic year), it was decided to move toward the appointment of a new Dean of Students effective as of September, 1973. It was also agreed that an early decision on such an appointment was important and desirable so that organizational and personnel planning for student affairs 1973-74 could begin promptly during the year and be carried out in time for any appropriate changes to be made, effective as of the fall semester of 1973.

This fall a substantial number of intensive discussions have been held with students, faculty members and administrative officers, toward reaching a consensus on the appointment of a new Dean of Students. I am pleased to report that such a consensus has been reached, and that the Board of Visitors at its November meeting approved, on my recommendation, the appointment of W. Samuel Sadler, currently Dean of Men, as Dean of Students, to become effective by September 1, 1973.

Dean Sadler will be working with faculty members, students and administrators throughout the College in the weeks immediately ahead to develop plans for student affairs for 1973-74, consistent with the reorganization already announced. Your support of and cooperation in this important effort will be greatly appreciated.

Thomas A. Graves, Jr.
President

Board Concurs with Statement of Aims and Purposes of College

The Board of Visitors has voted its concurrence in the objectives of the proposed Statement of Aims and Purposes of the College, drafted as part of the Self-Study. The Board's action follows favorable action on the Statement by the faculties of Arts and Sciences and each of the graduate schools, as well as by the Senate of the undergraduate Student Association. The Board's action was limited to approval of the objectives outlined in the Statement.

Board of Visitors Passes Resolution

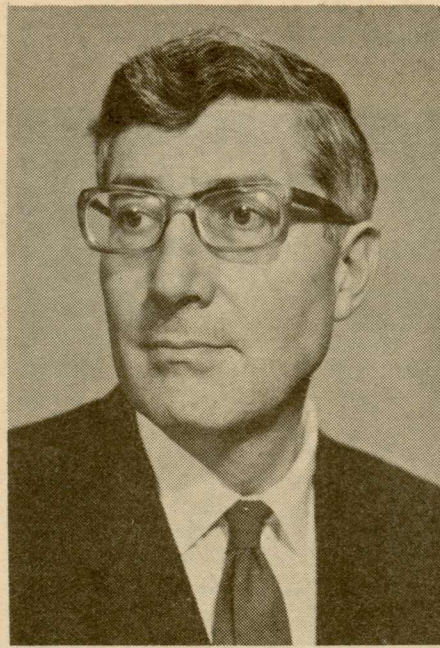

The following resolution on salaries of faculty and other employees at William and Mary was adopted November 10 by the Board of Visitors:

"Compensation of employees of the College of William and Mary, including members of both the classified service and the faculties, is substantially below desirable levels and is the source of growing concern.

"In response to a request from the State Secretary of Education for recommendations on the allocation of the State's receipts from the new Federal revenue-sharing legislation, the President of the College placed improvement of salary and wage scales as a top priority.

"The wage-price freeze has further retarded efforts to improve the compensation picture and has left this College in a very poor competitive situation in relation to institutions of comparable character.

"BE IT RESOLVED, That the Board of Visitors reaffirm the recommendations of the President of the College with respect to improving the salary and wage structure, and that the President be authorized to explore with the appropriate authorities any avenues that are open to the institution for obtaining an exception to the Economic Stabilization Act."

Harrison Lectures

Andre Bourde, who holds the James Pinckney Harrison Chair of History at the College for the fall semester, will present the two Harrison Chair lectures November 14 and December 6.

He will lecture on "Culture and Politics in the Baroque Era: The Order of the Holy Spirit at the End of the Ancien Regime in France" today at 8 p.m. in the Dodge Room of PhiBeta Kappa Hall.

His lecture on the "Indomitable City: Marseilles from Baroque to Classicism" will be presented Wed., Dec. 6 at 8 p.m. in Room 220 of the Social Sciences Building.

A French scholar who is an authority on the social and economic history of the eighteenth century, Bourde is a Visiting Professor in the College history department, where he teaches a course on eighteenth-century France.

Bourde is a member of the Faculty of Letters of the University of Provence at Aix-en-Provence, France. In addition, he is President of the Center of Eighteenth Century Studies in Aix. A native of Marseilles, he holds degrees in history, philosophy and geography from the Sorbonne and from the University of Provence and Cambridge University. He has held visiting professorships in several universities in the United States as well as in several foreign countries.

Swim Meet Today in Adair Pool

The varsity swimming teams are giving a swimming preview in the form of a Green vs. Gold Swimming Meet to be held today at 4:30 p.m. at Adair Pool.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

The men's and women's varsity swimming teams are combining to form two co-ed teams. Co-captains are Hossie Gibson and Rusty Bruni for the green team and Peggy Lawlor and Joe Ackerman for the gold team.

President's Calendar

President Graves will meet with alumni chapters in Wilmington and Newark, Delaware, November 16 - 17.

Bulletin Designation of Beneficiary

Keep your designation of beneficiary up-to-date; that is, the person or persons to whom the contributions and interest credited to your Virginia Supplemental Retirement System and Group Life Insurance are to be paid on the event of your death. Employees participating in the V.S.R.S. program should go to the Personnel Office, Room 201, James Blair Hall, and execute changes on beneficiary forms when appropriate.

Holiday

All administrative offices will be closed on Thanksgiving Day, November 23. A leave slip is not required for the taking of this day as a holiday.

Job Openings

The following positions are open at the College. For information about these positions, apply at the Personnel Office in person, Room 201, James Blair Hall:

1 Clerk-Stenographer

1 Clerk-Typist B

Individuals who are currently employed by the College will be considered for these positions provided that they have first advised their immediate supervisors in writing of their interest in being considered for other positions. A copy of this correspondence and an acknowledgement by the employee's supervisor must be received in the Personnel Office before the applicant will be considered.

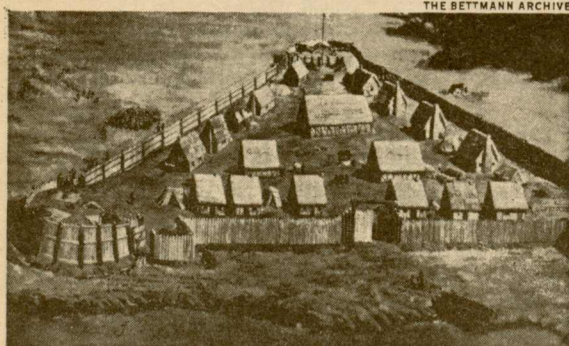

Puppets Present 'Don Quixote'

The forthcoming professional production to be sponsored by The William and Mary Theatre will be a performance of "Don Quixote" by The Little Theatre of Sicilian Puppets. This unusual form of Theatre will be presented in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall on November 18 at 8:15 p.m.

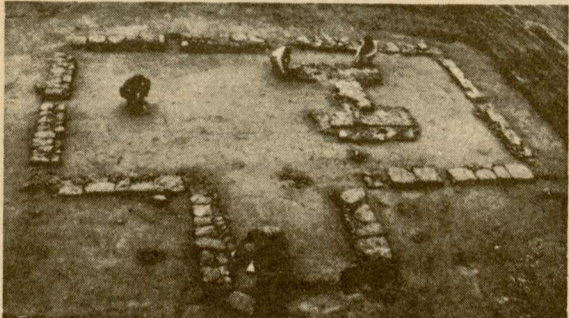

The Sicilian puppets are the last remaining form of popular theatre in Southern Italy. The plays are traditionally based upon the great medieval knightly cycles, which originate from the "Chansons de Roland." The puppets most typically represent Christian and Saracen knights, in polished brass armor, who clash dialectically and in rhythmic and rather violent duels.

Tickets for The Sicilian Puppets may be obtained at the Box Office, Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, 3 to 5:30 p.m., today through Friday. The box office will be open on Saturday from 7 to 8:15 p.m. Reservations may be made by calling 229-300, Ext. 272 or 469. Single admission is $3.

Anthropology in 'Time' This Week

EARLY FORTIFIED SETTLEMENT AT JAMESTOWN

EXCAVATED FOUNDATIONS OF CRUCK HOUSE AT FLOWERDEW
From a little spadework, a sampling of colonial America.

BARKA WITH MODEL

TIME, NOVEMBER 20, 1972

The Department of Anthropology project at Flowerdew Hundred has been attracting considerable newspaper and TV attention the past few months.

Following a press day at the site several months ago, a Washington Post feature story has run in newspapers across the country.

Treasure of Flowerdew

Located in the heart of Tidewater Virginia, the 1,400-acre farm is hardly distinguishable from its neighbors along the James River. There are fields of soybeans, corn and peanuts; well-fed cattle roam the pastures. Only its name seems special: "Flowerdew Hundred" has survived almost intact since 1618 when it was chosen by its first owner, Governor Sir George Yeardley, in honor of his wife, Temperance Flowerdieu ("hundred" is an old English land division). But now Flowerdew Hundred has acquired unexpected fame: within its boundaries, diggers have discovered the remains of one of the earliest English plantations in the New World.

The man who moved Flowerdew out of bucolic obscurity is a shrewd, self-taught archaeologist named Leverette Gregory. He suspected that Flowerdew might still harbor relics from the original Yeardley settlement, which is known from old chronicles to have been founded shortly after the first settlement at nearby Jamestown. Thus Gregory asked the farm's owners, New York Investment Banker David A. Harrison III and his wife, for permission to do a little spadework. He soon found pieces of exposed sandstone that were not native to the area and clearly cut and shaped by human hands. A little digging suggested that the stones—which may have been brought from England as ballast in ships—were part of the foundation of an ancient building. Most convincing of all, there were telltale gaps in the foundation where timbers might have been lodged.

To Norman Barka and other archaeologists at William and Mary, the regular spaces offered convincing evidence of so-called "cruck" architecture, used in medieval England for construction of cottages and farm dwellings. Naturally curved timbers were split down the middle and placed opposite to each other—as in modern A-frame houses—to form the supports. If the Flowerdew remnants are in fact from a cruck building, they would be the first evidence that this construction technique was used by early Americans.

Since April, when really serious digging began, no fewer than 1,000 major artifacts have been unearthed. The catalogue ranges from ancient Indian relics to a wide sampling of colonial Americana that includes a rusty piece of armor, flintlocks, riding spurs, china and cutlery, locks and keys, hand-wrought iron nails and pins, a wine-bottle seal and even Venetian glass beads (apparently for barter with the Indians).

Decade of Digging. The William and Mary researchers are convinced that digging will yield still more treasures: the plantation's original cemetery, which perhaps includes headstones for the six settlers killed in a 1622 Indian massacre that nearly ended English colonization in Virginia; the foundations of other plantation buildings and fortifications; perhaps even traces of the old windmill, the first in English America, that stood on a promontory, still known as Windmill Point, overlooking the James River. Indeed, the archaeologists are certain that there is such a bonanza buried under Flowerdew Hundred that it will take at least a decade to dig it all up.

To speed their work, the team is turning to the latest technological innovations. Technicians are using a high-powered gun that sprays a stream of fine-grain abrasive particles to remove grit and rust from fragile artifacts, yet does not damage them. The diggers have also enlisted a computer. With it they have calculated the area of the cruck-house roof (1,722 sq. ft.) and the total number of tiles required for it (6,378). Eager to reveal Flowerdew Hundred's hidden trove to the public, the Harrisons are generously supporting the excavation and hope one day to restore the plantation to its original early-17th century condition.

PBK Announces Campus Honors

Alpha of Virginia Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa will honor President Graves, a chemistry professor and thirty-eight members of the senior class at its annual meeting, December 5.

Thomas A. Graves, Jr., president, has been selected for honorary membership in Phi Beta Kappa and Melvyn D. Schiavelli, associate professor of chemistry, will be presented with the Faculty Award for Advancement of Scholarship. The faculty award is presented annually "in recognition of distinguished teaching and meritorious scholarship," and is made possible through the generosity of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who was a member of the Chapter.

The annual public meeting on Dec. 5 will be held in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, beginning at 8 p.m. The name of the principal speaker has not yet been announced.

Although the exact place of the founding of Phi Beta Kappa is not stated in the surviving minutes of the organization, it is traditionally thought to have been founded in the Apollo Room of the Raleigh Tavern by five students of the College on December 5, 1776.

New members-elect of Alpha of Virginia, Phi Beta Kappa, their majors, and hometowns are as follows:

Mary Harriet Jacobsen, English, Annandale; Katherine Winfree, English, Alexandria; Robert Victor Jones, biology and Mary Shawn Moore, English, Arlington; Lynda Lee Butler, mathematics, David Spencer Peterson, history, and Elizabeth Stone Thiele, biology, Charlottesville; John Adrian Gibney, Jr., English, Coatesville, Pa.; Hazel Jeanette Heddings, biology, Catlett; Edward Scott May, mathematics, Clarksville, Md.; Philip Byrd Eastham, Jr., history, Hume; Daniel William Gepford, philosophy, Fanwood, N.J.; John Ruston Pagan, history, Little Rock, Ark.; Carolyn Arthur Martin, English, Lynchburg; Vanda Kay Reynolds, mathematics, Martinsburg, W.Va.; Alison Josephine Smith, French, Mamaroneck, N.Y.; Ruth Hansford Blevins, French, Marian Patricia Haase, German, and Mary Elizabeth Jeter, sociology, Richmond. Also Sharon Lucille Deardorff, mathematics, Rockville, Md.; Debra Anne Geoghegan, biology, Rocky Mount; Douglas Michael Kerr, psychology, Rumson, N.J.; Robert David Korty, physics, Riverdale, Md.; William Robert Hammond, biology, Silver Spring, Md.; Christopher Joseph Schreck, Classical Studies, Savannah, Ga.; John Ralph Vile, government, Stanley; Karen Buckley, history, Wilmington, Ohio; Steven Frederick Glessner, biology, Warsaw; Carol Lynne Diehl, English, Wakefield, Mass.; Charles Patrick Kennedy, economics, Frank Lloyd Smith, English, Lark Ilene Garges Smith, Spanish, Williamsburg; Margaret Elliott Echlin, philosophy, Virginia Beach; Maureen Ellen McHenry, German, Virginia Beach; Charles Allen Brown, French, Wilmette, Ill.; Jean Louise Zettler, psychology, Yardley, Pa.; Catherine Crawford Dillon, French, FPO New York, N.Y.; and Anne Carlisle Scott, mathematics, Belize City, British Honduras.

Wanted: Expert Rock Mover

A talk by Linda Collins Reilly of the Classical Studies Department before the southern section of the Classical Association of the Middle West and South focused attention again on an unusual problem on campus—the two giant rocks in Washington Hall.

Mrs. Reilly spoke on the inscription on the two stones—parts of a large Greek inscription.

The stones, found in 1923 at Koptos in lower Egypt by the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, came to William and Mary on permanent loan in 1953 through the efforts of the late professor George Ryan. When they were delivered it required a tremendous effort by the entire College work force to drag the stones up ramps into Washington Hall.

J. Ward Jones, chairman of the Department of Classical Studies, says that he would like to have the stones housed in the Department's new quarters in Hugh Jones Hall, but transportation is a problem because of their extreme weight. The first, larger portion is 15" x 30" x 25" and weighs over 1200 lbs. and the second is 18" x 32" x 14" and weighs about 825 lbs. If the Boston Museum recalled the loan the Classical Studies Department would be glad to give them back, but would leave the moving job up to the museum. Mr. Jones does not feel that this is likely though, because the bulk of the stones demands a great deal of museum space, probably outweighing their historical value.

According to Mrs. Reilly, the inscription on the stones, which may be dated sometime between 200-212 A.D., is in honor of an Egyptian aristocrat. The letters are large, carefully cut and in an excellent state of preservation.

The two stones, lodged on the second floor of Washington Hall, are sometimes less than revered. The larger portion is used as a bench or ashtray by students and the smaller portion rests in a classroom formerly used as a museum.

One professor promised an "A" to a student who could come up with a workable plan to get the stones from Washington Hall over to Jones Hall.

Novelist John Barth on Campus

The College Wide Reading Program will sponsor John Barth, novelist, reading from his works Monday, December 4, in Millington Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Mr. Barth was born in Cambridge, Md., in 1930 and attended Johns Hopkins University where he received his M.A. in 1952. Following an appointment at Pennsylvania State University as professor of English from 1953-65, he was Edward H. Butler Professor of English at the State University of New York at Buffalo. He is currently teaching at Boston University in Cambridge, Mass.

Mr. Barth published four novels during the ten year period 1956-66 entitled "The Floating Opera," "The End of the Road," "The Sot-Weed Factor," and "Giles Goat Boy." He has also written "Lost in the Funhouse: Fiction for Print, Tape, Live Voice." His latest novel, "Chimera," was recently published by Random House.

American Society for Legal History

The American Society for Legal History, a national organization devoted to the study of the history of all legal systems, held its second annual meeting at the Williamsburg Lodge, November 3 - 4.

The program for the meeting was arranged by a committee acting under the chairmanship of Professor Charles M. Gray of the University of Chicago Department of History. Charles T. Cullen, associate editor of the Papers of John Marshall at the Institute of Early American History and Culture, was in charge of local arrangements.

BSU Sponsors Bus to Football Game

The Baptist Student Union is sponsoring a bus to the William and Mary-Richmond football game in Richmond, November 18.

The bus has a capacity of 38. It will leave from William and Mary Hall at 10:30 a.m., Nov. 18, and return passengers to the Hall directly following the game. Cost of the round trip is $2.50.

Any students, faculty members or College employees who would like to reserve a seat on the bus are asked to send $1 and their name and address to "Bus Trip," Drawer JB, Williamsburg, 23185.

For further details, contact Paul Lee, director of the Baptist Student Union, at his office, 229-3471 or at home, 229-6054.

Drapers' Scholars Nominated

Miss Carol Lynne Diehl, Wakefield, Mass., and Philip Byrd Eastham, Jr., Hume, both seniors, have been nominated for the Drapers' Company Exchange Scholarships for 1973-75.

Both nominees hope to study at either Oxford or Cambridge University in England.

Miss Diehl, an accomplished violinist, was a student at the New England Conservatory of Music before coming to the College. She is currently an English major and is doing honors work on Virginia Woolf. Her major interest is British and American fiction. She serves on the Student Advisory Committee for the English department.

Mr. Eastham, a history major, hopes to go into the field of art history. He has been a Merit Scholar on campus for the past two years. He was elected to Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honorary and is a member of Pi Delta Phi, French honorary and the Scabbard and Blade. He will receive an ROTC commission at June Commencement and has been both a member and officer in the Queen's Guard.

The Drapers' Company scholarships have been sponsored jointly since 1959 by the College and the Drapers' Company of London, a trade guild rich in historical associations from the Middle Ages, which has now become a philanthropic foundation.

Each year two seniors from the College are sent to England to study at British universities of their choice. In turn, the College accepts one or two students from England each year for three years of study leading to the bachelor's degree.

James Schwabacher in Concert Nov. 19

The fourth event in the Collegium Musicum Series sponsored by the Department of Music, under the direction of F. Donald Truesdell, will feature James Schwabacher, tenor, on Sunday, November 19 at 4 p.m. at the Campus Center Ballroom. Mr. Schwabacher will be assisted by Robin Roark, tenor and lecturer in music and voice, and a small string ensemble prepared by Alan Stewart.

A few highlights of his program are a Solo Cantata for High Voice by Carissimi, Ariette for Tenor, Two Violins and Continuo by Scarlatti, a Chamber Duet for Two Tenors by Cesti, and a group of selections from members of the Bach family.

Mr. Schwabacher sings with the San Francisco Opera Company and has been leading tenor of the Carmel Bach Festival for 15 years. His New York debut was greeted enthusiastically by both critics and audience alike, and led to subsequent engagements in Carnegie Hall and Philharmonic Hall as soloist with the Master Work Chorus in six different seasons. Mr. Roark is well known to local audiences as a member of the Bruton Parish Church Choir and the Williamsburg Madrigal singers, having received his B.M. degree with honors from Oklahoma Baptist University. He earned his M.M. degree at the University of Southern California.

Next on Concert Series

The William and Mary Concert Series will present the Beryozka Dance Company as its second offering of the current season, Nov. 21 at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Direct from the Soviet Union, this company of 100 men and women dancers, singers and musicians, display vitality, discipline, rhythmic color and inventive choreography. Dancers will perform not simply dances, but choreographic stories, highlighted by a specialty of kaleidoscopic patterns. Dancers will leap and whirl around the floor in stunning costumes to the accompaniment of singing and an orchestra consisting of fourteen Russian folk instruments including domras, bayans and gusli.

The box office at Phi Beta Kappa will be open at 7 p.m., Nov. 14 for the sale of a limited number of single admission tickets at $3 each.

Alumnus Appointed New SID

Robert A. Sheeran, recently hired as assistant sports information director for the College, is happy in his new position.

"This is the job and the place I've looked for since graduation from William and Mary in 1967," he said. "I've had my sights set on it for a long time. In fact, it has been paramount in my mind," he added.

Mr. Sheeran is a native of Newtown, Pa., and is married to the former Janie McKay, also a 1967 graduate of the College.

As assistant sports information director, he will be responsible for College athletic publications, promotion, and publicity.

Formerly a sports writer for the Bucks County Courier Times, in Levittown, Pa., and the Doylestown (Pa.) Intelligencer, he has worked as a sports columnist for the Virginia Gazette.

A hunting and fishing enthusiast, he played basketball, baseball, and football in high school. He is vice-president of the William and Mary Quarterback Club.

Madison High Students to Visit Campus

Over 40 students from James Madison High School in Vienna, members of the National Honor Society, will visit campus November 15.

The students will visit various classes, eat lunch at the Commons, and later tour the campus before returning home.

They will be accompanied by James Strohm, guidance director and senior college advisor at James Madison High School and Mrs. Helene Dyke, NHS sponsor and teacher of Advanced Placement English.

Study Abroad Programs

There will be an informational meeting for all students interested in the two study-abroad programs - the William and Mary year in England on the campus of Sussex University and the William and Mary year in France program at Montpellier University, Nov. 16 at 7 p.m. in the Sit 'N Bull room of the Campus Center.

The English program is open to any student in academic good standing who is a rising sophomore or junior. The French program is open to rising juniors who are in academic good standing and have evidence of language proficiency. It is not, however, exclusively for French language majors.

For further information concerning both programs, please contact John H. Willis, Jr., Ext. 426.

Debators Win Trophies

Two sophomores, debating together for the first time, were trophy winners recently at the Appalachia State College tournament in Boone, N.C.

Joan Harrigan, Wyckoff, N.J., and Sharon Pandak, Staunton, were semi-finalists in the tournament. They had a 4-2 record in the preliminary rounds and advanced in the quarterfinals by defeating the University of North Carolina. They were beaten in the semi-finals by a team from Middle Tennessee University. Miss Harrigan won fourth place award in original oratory, an individual event in the tournament.

In the same tournament, Brian Yanofchick, Falls Church, and Charles R. Hopkins, III, Roanoke, had a one win, four loss score in the preliminaries.

At the Peachtree Tournament at Emory University in Atlanta, two teams of William and Mary debaters had 5-3 records for the preliminaries but did not advance to the finals. Stephen Snoke, Detroit, Mich., was teamed with Chuck Kennedy of Williamsburg, and Nancy Dunbar, Lithia, debated with John Vile, Stanley.
