New Director of Student Health Begins Campus Practice

Richard D. Cilley, the new director of student health services, arrived on campus recently to head the newly reorganized student health program which will eventually include two full-time physicians and six nurses in the new infirmary scheduled for completion this spring.

Dr. Cilley's office hours at the infirmary are 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 2 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 to 11 a.m. on Saturday. He will be on call for emergencies only during the weekend.

The former associate director of health services at the University of New Hampshire is excited about his new assignment, and is looking forward to working with students. He prefers a campus practice over a general practice because he enjoys working with young people and their particular needs. It is important, he feels, for a campus physician to be someone students feel they can confide in and not have that confidence violated.

While at the University of New Hampshire, Dr. Cilley oftentimes held informal group discussions with students. Noting that the topics very seldom centered around drugs, he commented, "Usually these sessions were in dormitories and we talked mainly about contraception and venereal diseases because these were the things students asked about." This, he feels, was because of other extremely good sources of information and help on the campus provided by peer groups as well as professionals.

"In general I think there is a decrease in the use of drugs by students during the last five years. I think the students are getting smarter and are realizing they're not gaining anything by using the hard drugs," he added.

"I don't believe this decrease in drug use is true on the urban campuses. They're still having problems with drugs on campuses in or near large cities, but on the more rural campuses, those in small towns such as the University of New Hampshire in Durham, the drug problem does seem to be on the decline," he concluded.

Dr. Cilley is looking forward to completion of the new infirmary building. The prospect of a brand new facility, he said, was one of the attractions that lured him away from New England where he had just moved into a new home. Dr. Cilley and his family are currently residing at 205 Richmond Road.

Commenting on the health program on campus, he states, "We already have an extremely good staff of nurses and we're looking for a second physician." He sees the campus physician's role as quite a bit more than a dispenser of medical services. "I think you need to talk to students to get to know them," he concluded.

This understanding and involvement is necessary in getting full utilization of student health services, he commented. Surveys show that, on an average, the campus health facility is used about five times a school year per student.

Dr. Cilley, a native of Concord, N.H., received his bachelor's degree from Tufts University, his M.D. degree from the Boston University School of Medicine, and his training at the Hartford Hospital, Hartford, Conn.

He is happy to see the growing popularity of ice hockey in the area. As physician for both the football and hockey teams at the University of New Hampshire, he developed a great love for the sport.

'Who's Who' Twenty-Three Students Selected

Twenty-three students were recently selected for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, according to an announcement by Carson H. Barnes, Jr., dean of students.

The students were selected on the basis of their scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, citizenship and service to the school as well as their promise of future success.

Chosen for the honor were: Dennis I. Belcher, economics; Sue A. Billingsley, sociology; Louis E. Burnett, Jr., biology; Cornell T. Christianson, economics; Daniel J. Coakley, philosophy; Madeleine C. Collins, government; Kermit H. Dance, mathematics; Heather L. Dorion, government; Daniel W. Gepford, philosophy.

Also Bruce H. Gould, government; Jane C. Halbleib, mathematics; Charles A. Hall, philosophy; William R. Hammond, biology; Douglas M. Kerr, philosophy; Mary E. Mann, chemistry; Curtis S. Moyer, English; John R. Pagan, history; Donald A. Purdy, government; Robert H. Ranson, history; Sharon P. Shank, physical education for men; Margaret M. Walsh, English; and Barbara S. Woodall, interdisciplinary.

Dorothy A. Bryant, former secretary in the School of Education, a position she held from September, 1970 until her recent promotion, assumed the position of assistant registrar effective January 1.

She is a 1961 graduate of William and Mary with an A.B. degree in ancient languages, and was a Fulbright Fellow at the University of Naples in Italy during the academic year 1961-62. Mrs. Bryant has also attended the Evening College on campus.

Her husband, William, a journalist-turned-writer, is a 1963 graduate of the College. The Bryants are the parents of two sons, David, 9, and Michael, 8, students at Rawls Byrd Elementary School.

A native of Roanoke, Mrs. Bryant was secretary in the Colonial Williamsburg archaeological laboratory from 1962 to 1963.

Faculty News Chemistry

Elliot Montroll, Albert Einstein Professor of Physics at the University of Rochester, will speak on "Modeling Transportation Systems" on Monday, Feb. 5 at 8 p.m. in Room 113 of the Physics building. He is participating in the Chemistry Department's Seminar Program in Applied Chemistry. Prof. Montroll is the first of a series of people from Industry and Government who will be discussing the role of Chemistry in Industry and Government and its relation to Economics and Sociology. The lecture is open to all interested persons.

History

An article entitled "The Booneville Power Administration and the New Deal: The Federal Perspective" written by Philip J. Funigiello, associate professor, has been accepted for publication in Prologue: The Journal of the National Archives.

Math-Physics Colloquium

A joint colloquium of the Mathematics and Physics Departments will be held Friday, Feb. 2 at 4:30 p.m. in Room 109 of William Small Physical Laboratory. The speaker will be James M. Ortega, research professor at the Computer Science Center at the University of Maryland. His topic will be "A Mathematician Looks at Stellar Evolution."

Music

F. Donald Truesdell, chairman, presided over a meeting of the advisory board of Virginia Music Teachers Association in Charlottesville on January 13. He is in his fourth year as president of this Association which is a state affiliate of Music Teachers National Association, the oldest professional music association in the United States. MTNA is preparing for its centennial celebration the same year America observes its bicentennial.

Staff Notes

Admissions

Mrs. Juanita R. Wallace, assistant dean, attended the Chesapeake and Potomac Counselors of Admission Association meeting last week at Towson State College, Baltimore, Md.

Adair Pool Schedule

Adair Pool will be open second semester to students, faculty, and staff of the College for recreational swimming at the times listed below. Interested persons should file this information for reference throughout the semester. These hours are also posted on the main door of Adair.

Sunday	2-4:30 p.m.
Monday	6:30-9 p.m.
Tuesday	12:25-1:15 p.m. & 9-11 p.m.
Wednesday	9-11 p.m.
Thursday	12:25-1:15 p.m. & 9-11 p.m.
Friday	2:30-4:30 p.m.
Saturday	2-4:30 p.m.

Recreational swimming is cancelled when it conflicts with a regular scheduled pool event, such as a varsity swim meet or Mermettes water show.

'Aerobics' Introduced in Women's P.E.

"There is an epidemic of inactivity in our society," believes an assistant professor of women's physical education at the College.

Christina Jackson, who is also the women's swimming coach at the College, is a firm believer in proper exercise as a guide to good health and physical fitness. This semester she will introduce Aerobics as a new physical education course at William and Mary.

Aerobics is the form of exercise in which the body consumes an increased amount of oxygen but does not produce too great an oxygen debt so that the exercise may be continued for a long period of time. There are many types of aerobic exercises: running, swimming, cycling, walking, stationary running, handball, basketball, and squash, in that order, are considered among the best.

Mrs. Jackson, who jogs over two miles daily, feels that jogging is the easiest form of aerobic exercise because it is so simple and does not demand special equipment or facilities.

She feels that interest on campus in her new course will be very high. Already a number of William and Mary co-eds jog and many swim laps daily. She realizes, however, that although many persons are interested in improving their physical fitness they are not disciplined enough to follow a daily exercise program on their own. These are the ones she hopes to enroll in her course.

Faculty Wives Permitted to Audit Classes

Wives of faculty members can audit classes without charge, where there are openings, by filling out audit forms in the office of Harold L. Fowler, dean of the faculty, School of Arts and Sciences, James Blair Hall, Room 112.

Circle K to Meet

Circle K will hold a "General Projects Meeting" tomorrow night in the Campus Center ballroom and will solicit volunteers for its several service programs.

Circle K currently has child care, youth recreation, tutoring, and senior citizens projects underway. Volunteers will be recruited for each of these programs.

CAMPUS PROFILE/Mrs. Blatt

Patricia Curtis Blatt is leading a double life.

In addition to her Monday to Friday job as Administrative Assistant to the Director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture, she "moonlights" in one of the leading roles of the current Williamsburg Players production of "Suddenly Last Summer."

Mrs. Blatt is no newcomer to the theatre. In addition to acting in many summer stock productions in New York State and New England while attending Leland Powers School of the Theatre in Boston, she also traveled with George Abbott's New York road company and acted in the Erie Playhouse in Pennsylvania and the Cleveland Playhouse and Cain Park Theatre, also in Cleveland.

Since her arrival in Williamsburg, Mrs. Blatt has seen the Players grow by leaps and bounds from a play reading group to a theatrical company with its own building.

Mrs. Blatt has been an active member of the Players since 1959. "I've had just about every job imaginable," she said. As well as acting in numerous productions, she has also produced, directed, done make-up, and handled sets and publicity. Presently she is serving the Board of Directors of the Players as secretary.

She has held title roles with the Players in many productions including "Elizabeth the Queen," "Medea," "Critics Choice," and "Ghosts." Currently she is Mrs. Venable in "Suddenly Last Summer."

Mrs. Blatt

Mrs. Blatt is also a successful director. She received the Daily Press Critic's Award for her direction of "The Play's the Thing," for the 1970-71 season, and the next year "Mary, Mary," which she directed, was selected for the Best Production Award. Later this season she will direct "Wait Until Dark."

Mrs. Blatt, who likes both comic and serious roles, feels that her role as Mrs. Venable is one of the most demanding parts she has ever played.

Poet on Campus Friday

The distinguished American poet, Richard Eberhart, will give a public reading from his works at 4 p.m. on Friday in Millington Hall auditorium. His reading is open to all members of the College community and general public without charge.

Mr. Eberhart, who is professor of English emeritus at Dartmouth College, was recipient of the Pulitzer Prize for poetry in 1966 and in 1972 was named honorary president of the Poetry Society of America. Among the many other prizes and awards for poetry he has received are the Bollingen Prize (1962) and an award of $5,000 in 1969 for "distinguished poetic achievement" from the Academy of American Poets.

Educated at Dartmouth, Cambridge University and Harvard, Mr. Eberhart has also had a distinguished career as a teacher, serving as poet-in-residence, professor or lecturer in several universities on both the East and West coasts of the United States.

Career Choice Interviews

Employer representatives from investments, retailing, life insurance, and wholesalers will be in Room A of the Campus Center Thursday, February 8, at 4 p.m. to discuss careers in sales and marketing.

All students are invited to attend. For further information, contact the Office of Placement, second floor, Ewell Hall, Ext. 518.

President's Calendar

Mr. Graves will be in Boston on February 7 where he will meet with alumni of the College and attend a Board of Trustees meeting at Clark University.

OFFICIAL MEMORANDA

Language Houses

A new residential program, proposed by the College Committee on Foreign Study, will be started in September 1973.

The program, called Language Houses, will be open to all students. A language major will not be required. The program carries no academic credit. The Language Houses will be located in the new dormitory complex which now includes Project Plus. Room rates will be those already established for the complex.

This pilot project, supportive of the academic program, is aimed at providing students with "total immersion" in language study by adding the unstructured learning situation of a residence program to the conventional classroom instruction.

Initially, Houses for German, French and Spanish will be established. Others may be added as the demand for them is indicated by student interest. Each house will occupy a separate wing of the residential complex.

To participate in the Language Houses, student must have completed a 200 level course in a language, have the endorsement of their instructor, and pledge to speak only the language while in residence.

As part of the Program the College, in cooperation with the Institute of International Education in New York, will select on a competitive basis from universities abroad two pre-doctoral students for each Language House. These native speakers will serve as discussion leaders in each house. Their leadership will be supported in the Houses by radio, films, T.V. programs, contemporary books, magazines and newspapers.

Program planners also hope to include members of the community who have lived, studied, or traveled abroad to participate in special programs at the Houses. Guest speakers, including other students, embassy and government officials, scientists, artists and businessmen will also be invited to the houses.

Intra-College Mail

In response to several questions which have been asked regarding the delivery of mail which originates within the College and which is designated for other College offices and/or individuals (faculty, staff or students), the following guidelines are suggested:

1. The faculty and staff mailboxes which were located in James Blair Hall are now in the new Campus Post Office. Methods of delivery to, and pick up from, these boxes remain the same as before, except that entry into the box area will be restricted to those individuals who are there on College business. (In other words, only faculty and staff members, plus others who have legitimate College business, may have direct access to the boxes.)
Also, the hours during which these boxes are accessible are from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., Monday through Friday; 8 a.m. until noon on Saturdays; and the boxes will not be accessible on Sundays.
2. Mail designated for delivery on the campus should continue to carry a notation of "Campus Mail," or some similar wording, to indicate that no postage is required.
3. Communications addressed to students apparently are causing most of the confusion thus far. It is suggested that, if you are not positive of a student's mailing address, you should address it with the student's name and designate it "c/o Dean McGurk" or "c/o Dean Moseley," as might be appropriate for a man or a woman.

Please DO NOT address any mail simply to a name, in care of the Campus Post Office, and expect it to be delivered, because if the individual does not happen to receive mail at the Campus Post Office, there would be no reason to go there asking for mail. (The student may have a U. S. Post Office box, or may be receiving mail at an outside address.)

I am sure that other points will be raised as time goes along with respect to the campus mail delivery, and we will attempt to clarify the procedures as necessary.

Thank you for your patience and understanding in this matter.

Dennis K. Cogle
Assistant to the Vice-President for Business Affairs

Some state and federal income tax forms are available in the Personnel Office.

OFFICE OF DEVELOPMENT

Competition Slated By NIE For Research Funds in Three Areas

The new National Institute of Education reported this week that it will award between $7 million and $10 million this spring for support of field-initiated education research, its first program. The institute said that researchers are being invited to submit proposals on topics "promising to extend knowledge about American education" in nationwide competition.

It said that colleges, universities, state departments of education, profit or nonprofit public or private agencies, and individuals are eligible to apply for grants in the following three areas:

Selected Disciplines Research: Support will be provided to encourage anthropologists, economists, political scientists and persons interested in legal issues to apply their expertise to education problems. Each of the four competitions in this area will support ten to 15 projects averaging about $50,000 for up to three years. Applicants are being asked to submit prospectuses postmarked by Feb. 17. Those submitting the best prospectuses then will be invited to submit formal proposals.

Grants for Research in Education: An undetermined number of grants and contracts of varying size will be provided for research by established investigators in fields other than the selected disciplines. Awards will be based on the proposal's technical quality and educational significance, the investigator's qualifications, and the adequacy of his research facilities. Support will be provided for up to three years.

Small Grants Research: Grants and contracts of up to $10,000 will be awarded to qualified but less experienced or established researchers in any field. In addition to the adequacy of available research facilities and the quality and significance of the proposal, criteria for selection include the probability of completing the proposed work within 18 months and within the researcher's budget estimate.

Applicants in the last two areas are being asked to submit formal proposals postmarked by March 1. Proposals and prospectuses submitted in all areas will be reviewed by the NIE staff, assisted by outside experts.

The competition announcements, guidelines, application forms and additional information can be obtained from: Field Initiated Studies Program, National Institute of Education, Code 600, Washington, D.C. 20202.
