VARC Awarded $35,000 Grant

Man's environment and how it affects his health will be studied in a new research program announced last week by Henry Aceto, Jr., director of the Virginia Associated Research Campus.

A $35,000 grant award has been made to VARC by the Technology Utilization Office of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for an interdisciplinary research program entitled "Trace Elements in the Environment and Disease."

The program partly involves a study of the correlation between diseased states and levels of trace elements in the human body. Survey information relating the environmental trace metal levels in the Tidewater area will be used in conjunction with the disease-trace element data.

The rationale for the study, explained Mr. Aceto, is based on recent findings in several different laboratories. "A positive correlation has been reported, for example, between cadmium content in air and mortality ratios associated with heart disease. Hypertension in patients has been shown to correspond to either high cadmium levels or increased ratios of cadmium to zinc in the kidneys of such patients. Certain rheumatoid conditions such as arthritis have been shown in some instances to correlate with increased copper levels in the blood," Mr. Aceto said.

The VARC program is designed to extend the search for such correlations to the levels of trace metals in both human leukemia and breast cancer, utilizing the relatively new and extremely sensitive technique of trace metal analysis--charged particle-induced X-ray fluorescence.

Principal investigators of the project with Mr. Aceto are R. K. Jolly, lecturer in physics and senior research physicist at VARC, and R. E. Welsh, professor of physics.

Irish Diplomat to Speak

The former Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, Baron Terence O'Neill of the Maine, will speak Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom. He will take as the topic of his talk, "Ulster At The Crossroads," the title of his book published in 1969.

Publishing Scholarship Announced

Establishment of the annual William Cross Ferguson Graduate Scholarship in Publishing was announced Friday at the College.

The scholarship grant will cover the tuition and other costs for a current senior or a recent William and Mary graduate to attend the prestigious Publishing Procedures Course held at Radcliffe College every summer.

The Radcliffe Publishing Procedures Course is a six-week intensive professional program, open to recent college graduates, both men and women, who are seriously considering a career in book or magazine publishing.

The newly announced scholarship is an outgrowth of a gift of money to the College from Walter F. C. Ferguson in honor of his brother, William Cross Ferguson, who died in 1967. William Cross Ferguson, a William and Mary graduate in the class of 1916, had a long career in book publishing, ultimately becoming president of the World Book Company. Prior to his death he expressed an interest in establishing at his alma mater various programs that would stimulate student interest in publishing as a career.

In 1970 the Ferguson Seminar in Publishing, a two-day event, was inaugurated at the College.

William and Mary students in their senior year, or recent graduates, who wish to apply for the Ferguson Scholarship may get application forms and further information from Norman Fiering, Institute of Early American History and Culture (P.O. Box 220), Williamsburg, Va. 23185. Applications must be returned by April 27. Announcement of the winner will be made the first week in May.

Statement Given Heavy Endorsement

The proposed Statement of Rights and Responsibilities received an overwhelming vote of endorsement from faculty, students, and administrators in the College-wide referendum held last week. Final totals as released by the Board of Student Affairs are: Students, 1705 for, 81 against, 9 abstentions; Faculty, 118 for, 18 against; Administration, 8 for, 1 against.

The proposed Statement now awaits President Graves' signature for subsequent forwarding to the Board of Visitors at their May meeting.

Alliance Francaise Scholarship Awarded to Ruth Blevins

Ruth Blevins, a senior from Richmond, has been awarded a $400 travel scholarship by the Williamsburg Chapter of the Alliance Francaise. She was selected on the basis of a two-hour examination in French. The purpose of this annual scholarship is to help a future teacher of French to become acquainted with France and its people.

Miss Blevins plans to use the award to travel in France next fall. With the aid of a summer job, she hopes to earn additional money for travel. "I am looking into job possibilities in France.

It's possible that I might live with a French family or get a temporary job, such as picking grapes, so that I can stay longer," she said. She also plans to travel in Germany.

Miss Blevins is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and president of Pi Delta Phi, French honorary society. She is currently working part time at the William and Mary language laboratory. In the future, she plans to attend graduate school to pursue her study of French.

Janet (right) counseling Letitia Cash in role of blind person.

Janet Clatterbuck is currently teaching an actress how to react as a blind person. And a good teacher she is - perhaps too good. Janet's gift of adaptation to the world around her is extraordinary. After learning from Janet, the actress wonders whether the audience will think of her as blind.

Janet, whose area of concentration is sociology, is a senior from Nokesville. She is engaged to Howard Underwood, '74, a sociology major and native of Pittsburg, Pa.

Blinded some eight years ago in an automobile accident which took the lives of her parents, Janet decided that life must go on. She knew, too, that the initial sympathy lavished on her would be short-lived.

Within three months, she had learned enough braille to enter the Virginia School for the Blind in Staunton. From then on she resumed her high school career much like any other teenager.

Never one for moping around, Janet prefers to live an active life. She learned to bowl in high school, starting with a 39 average and working up to an 80. Her highest average was 97 and she was able to make a strike once.

She sews. And she dances! "You hear the music and sort of move around," she beamed.

Summer Jobs in Norfolk Area

Survey Workers-Survey retail stores in Norfolk, Virginia Beach, Chesapeake; approximately $2.50 per hour; must have car. Beginning June 1. Applications available in Office of Placement, Ewell Hall, Second Floor.

Several factors underline Janet's determination in life: her faith (she's Catholic), an interest in helping others, particularly the handicapped, and a strong will to overcome.

The Honor Council does not permit campaigning by any person seeking a position on the Council. The only "campaigning" as such will take the form of the declaration of intent that the candidate provides for the Council on his petition. The Council will be responsible solely for the distribution of these declarations of intent throughout the campus.

Additional information can be obtained from present members of the Honor Council. Again, the deadline for the filing period is April 4 at 5 p.m.

Nominations and supporting statements should be submitted in writing not later than April 1 to any member of the council or the present head of the publication in question. All questions should be referred to Council Chairman Tom A. Collins of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Willoughby is the author of several influential books, including The Movement for Budgetary Reform in the States (1918) and The National Budget System, with Suggestions for its Improvement (1927).

Local Plays in State Drama Festival

"Where Have All The Lightning Bugs Gone," written by Louis E. Catron of the Department of Theatre and Speech; and "The Triumvirate," by Janet McMahon, '71, are two of the plays which will be in competition in Charlottesville next month at the State High School Drama Festival.

Mr. Catron's play, performed by students at James Blair High School in Williamsburg, won a superior rating in the Peninsula District competition held recently at Menchville High School in Newport News. Students from Hampton High School produced Miss McMahon's play and also received top honors.

"Triumvirate" was written by Miss McMahon during her junior year and produced initially by the Premiere Theatre on campus. It was also produced in 1971 by a summer theatre group at Ford's Theatre in Washington, D.C. Miss McMahon is currently a reporter with The Virginia Gazette.

"Where Have All The Lightning Bugs Gone" was one of the most frequently produced one-act plays in the country last year. It has also been presented in Mexico and Canada.

Chemist to Give Three Talks

John D. Hoffman, director, Institute for Materials Research, National Bureau of Standards, will deliver three lectures as part of the current Applied Chemistry Seminar Program, April 3 and 4.

The least technical of his three talks, "Materials Research in a Government Laboratory," will be given Tuesday, April 3, at 8 p.m. in Room 113 of William Small Physical Laboratory.

Mr. Hoffman will speak on "Polymer Crystallization and Chain Folding," Wednesday, April 4, at noon in Rogers Hall, Room 300. That evening he will speak at 8 p.m. in Room 113 of the physics building on "Mechanical and Dielectric Properties of Polymers."

All three lectures are open to the public.

Mr. Hoffman first joined the staff of the National Bureau of Standards in 1942 and worked on projects involving the analysis of uranium and the recovery of alumina from clay. He left NBS in 1944 to join the Army, and was assigned to the Manhattan Project. He served at Oak Ridge, Tenn., where he worked on the separation of U-235 by liquid thermal diffusion, and later at the University of Chicago on nuclear reactor problems. He rejoined NBS in 1954.

In 1971 he was awarded, as recipient with J. I. Lauritzen, Jr., the High Polymer Physics Prize of the American Physical Society.

Leaves of Absence for Permanent Classified Employees

A revision of the rule on sick leave allows State employees suffering disabilities caused or contributed to by pregnancy, miscarriage, abortion, childbirth, and recovery therefrom, and who plan to return to work following termination of their disability, to charge a portion of the resulting absence from work to sick leave accumulations under certain conditions.

In order to be eligible for this benefit, an employee must, on learning of her condition, furnish her supervisor with a statement certifying the estimated date of delivery and a statement of the date she and her physician conclude that she must cease work because of medical disability. The latter statement must be furnished to the supervisor at least thirty days prior to the employee's cessation of work. If there are any subsequent changes in either of the dates furnished, notification must be furnished the supervisor immediately.

Only that period of the employee's absence prior to and following delivery which is certified as medically disabling by her physician can be charged to sick leave accumulations. Any other absence following cessation of work during which the employee elects to be absent from work must be charged to annual leave accumulations, if any, or leave without pay.

The rule on sick leave has also been revised to prohibit the use of sick leave for an absence determined as being the result of non-State employment only in those cases where the employee failed to report and/or receive approval from his appointing authority to engage in employment outside the State service. Employees who wish to receive approval to engage in such employment must submit their request in writing to the College Personnel Office. The request must specifically include the name of the employer, the type of work, and the time schedule of such employment. Approval of such request is contingent on whether or not the outside work will jeopardize the employees' effectiveness in his College employment.
