Earth Day at W&M

Students are shown cleaning up an area around Crim Dell as part of the Earth Day program held on campus Saturday, April 14. Earth Day was planned by Project PLUS students, Alan Finder, Elizabeth B. Cumby, Patricia Kaericher, Stephen Libera, Douglas Pilley and Cary White. Gerald Johnson of the Geology Department was faculty adviser for the group.

New Honorary Society on Campus

Eighteen students, two businessmen, and two educators will comprise the charter group of initiates when the College Chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma, the only national honorary scholarship society in the field of business administration, is installed on April 23. Robert O. Harvey, dean of the School of Business Administration at the University of Connecticut and national president of Beta Gamma Sigma, will be present to install the chapter and present the charter.

Beta Gamma Sigma was founded in 1907 to encourage and reward scholarship and accomplishment in the field of business studies, to promote advancement of education in business, and to foster principles of honesty and integrity in business practice. Only those institutions whose programs in business are accredited by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business are eligible to have a chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma.

Eleven undergraduate students, including nine seniors and two juniors, will be inducted into membership in recognition of their outstanding scholastic records. The seniors are as follows: Christi Lee Cherry, Richmond; Mary Ann Conner, Newport News; Debra Ann Lunsford, Richmond; Timothy Albert Maloney, Norfolk; Nick Edward Nelson, Crisfield, Md.; Robert Thomas Ritter, New Milford, N.J.; Sara Jean Struckell, Ocean City, N.J.; John William Truban, Woodstock; and John Gregory Wass, Fort Wayne, Ind.

The juniors are: Deborah Jane Houghton, Sarasota, Fla.; and Frank Joseph Wood III, Virginia Beach.

Seven graduate students, who either have been or are enrolled in the M.B.A. program and who have demonstrated superior academic achievement are also to be honored. They are: James Burton and George Frank Denison, Hampton; Edward Paul Kane, Atlanta, Ga.; Martha Lockwood Links, Saluda; Lemuel Edward Mauldin III and William Russell Rittenhouse, Williamsburg; and Joseph Anthony Ross, Jr., Newport News.

The educators to be inducted are President Graves and Marvin M. Stanley, associate dean for Graduate Studies in the School of Business Administration.

Two leading businessmen in the area are to be initiated as honorary members of Beta Gamma Sigma. They are L. C. Ackerman, chairman of the Board and chief executive officer of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company (and also an executive vice president of Tenneco Inc.), and W. Brooks George, chairman of the Board of The House of Edgeworth. Mr. Ackerman is also chairman of the Board of Directors of the School of Business Administration Sponsors, Inc., of William and Mary. Mr. George also has close ties with the College, being an alumnus and having served as rector of the Board of Visitors and currently serving as a member of the aforementioned Sponsors Board.

Spring Honors Convocation Friday, April 20

The College will hold its annual Spring Honors Convocation, Friday, April 20, at 11 a.m. in Blow Gymnasium, with J. Wilfred Lambert, vice president for student affairs, presiding.

Announcement of the William and Mary Educational Foundation Award will be made by Foundation president Elliot Schaubach, followed by the presentation of the L. Tucker Jones athletic awards by H. L. Fowler, dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

Members-elect of Phi Beta Kappa will be introduced by Alfred R. Armstrong, recording secretary, Alpha of Virginia Chapter. Other presentations will include the Alpha Lambda Delta Award, by Anne Davis, president of Alpha Lambda Delta, and the Kays Gary-Charles McDowell, Jr. Award, by Alexander Kallos, chairman of the Colonial Booklet Fund.

Tom A. Collins, chairman of the Publications Council, will introduce the editors-in-chief of the Flat Hat, Colonial Echo and the William and Mary Review and the station manager of WCWM.

A musical selection will be rendered by the St. Bede's Folk Group, after which Cornell Christianson, president of the SA, will deliver the main address.

Mortar Board Awards and announcement of new members will be made by Board president Madeleine Collins. Dennis Belcher, president of Omicron Delta Kappa, will present the fraternity's Leadership Award and announce its new members.

Happy Easter

We cordially invite all Faculty and Staff children between the ages of three and six years to an Easter Egg Hunt at the President's House, on Sunday, April 22, at 3:30 p.m. We shall provide the Easter Baskets for the Hunt.

Parents and younger and older brothers and sisters are invited to come and watch the festivities and enjoy punch and cookies. In case of rain the Easter Egg Hunt will be cancelled--if in doubt, please telephone 229-3030.

Happy Hunting!

President and Mrs. Graves

Fulbright Fellow

Viola Osborne

Viola Osborne, '73, has been awarded a Fulbright Fellowship to study in Germany during the academic year 1973-74.

A reception, in recognition of this achievement, was given in her honor Sunday, April 15, at the home of Mrs. Juanita Wallace, assistant dean of admissions, and Mr. Wallace.

A 1969 graduate of Northfield School, E. Northfield, Mass., Miss Osborne received a Martin Luther King Scholarship to study at William and Mary during the same year.

While in high school she was secretary of her senior class and the Student Council Association. She is currently vice president of the Black Students Organization.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton C. Osborne of Richmond, Miss Osborne is engaged to Archer L. Baskerville, a candidate for the M.D. degree at the Medical College of Virginia.

Biology

The following paper has been published recently:

"The Distribution and Metabolism of Corticosterone in Birds," W. N. Holmes (Univ. of Calif.), E. L. Bradley (William and Mary), E. D. Helton (Worcester Foundation) and Mo Yin Chan (Univ. of Hong Kong), Proceedings of the 6th International Symposium on Comparative Endocrinology, Banff, Canada, and General and Comparative Endocrinology, Supplement 3.

Chemistry

Robert C. Fay of Cornell University was guest lecturer at a chemistry seminar Friday, April 13, in Rogers Room 300. His topic was "Stereochemical Studies on Coordination Compounds of Titanium."

Classical Studies

James R. Baron, assistant professor, has been awarded a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the American Council of Learned Societies to participate in the second Summer Institute of Roman Law conducted by the Law School of the University of California, Berkeley, from June 20 to July 31. Mr. Baron received a similar grant to participate in the first such Institute held in the summer of 1972. The Institutes are directed by David Daube of Oxford and Reuven Yaron of Jerusalem.

English

C. P. Daw, assistant professor, represented the Department at the thirtieth annual meeting of the Southeastern Renaissance Conference at the University of Kentucky on April 6-7.

Modern Languages

Joanne Basso, instructor, was elected president of the Virginia Chapter of the American Association of Teachers of Italian (AATI) at the joint meeting of the AATI and the American Association of Language Teachers held at Longwood College, April 6-7.

Luke Martel, associate professor, who also attended the meeting, was elected vice-president of the American Association of Teachers of French, Virginia Chapter. It was reported that since September, 1970, there has been a drop, in the State of Virginia alone, of 10,000 enrollments in French.

Miss Basso also participated in a meeting called by the State Supervisor of Foreign Languages to find ways of increasing offerings in the secondary schools of this state. Many schools in Virginia, it was revealed, find it impossible to offer Italian because of a lack of qualified teachers.

Physics

The Chesapeake Section of the AAPT (American Association of Physics Teachers) held its spring meeting recently in William Small Physical Laboratory.

Sociology

Gary A. Kreps, assistant professor, (with Russell Dynes and E. L. Quarantelli) has just published A Perspective on Disaster Planning through the Disaster Research Center, Ohio State University.

Thomas W. Christ, assistant professor, successfully defended his doctoral dissertation, at Cornell University. The title of the dissertation is "The State of the Art: The Social Foundation of Bodies of Technical Knowledge."

On March 23 and 24, Lawrence S. Beckhouse, associate professor; Satoshi Ito, associate professor; John Kerner, assistant professor; Marion G. Vanfossen, professor, and Mr. Kreps attended the Third Annual Mid-Atlantic Research Symposium in Richmond. The Symposium is sponsored by Virginia Commonwealth University and Alpha Kappa Delta. Mr. Beckhouse served as chairman of the section on Social Psychology; Mr. Kreps chaired the section on Teaching Undergraduate Sociology. Ms. Lark Janes, a senior sociology major, presented a paper entitled "A Discussion of Metalinguistic Theory."

Staff Notes

Bookstore

The Virginia College Stores association met in Williamsburg on April 5, 6 and 7, and about 50 people representing some 30 stores in Virginia were in attendance. Attending from William and Mary were Bruce Locke, Elton Bomberger, Elizabeth Obenshain, John Freeman and Jane Gilliam.

Bruce Locke was moderator of a panel on "Bookstore-Administration Relations," and William J. Carter, vice president for business affairs, was a principal speaker on this panel.

Campus Center

Kenneth C. Smith, associate director of the Campus Center, attended the 50th annual conference of the Association of College Unions - International held March 18-22 at the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco.

Swem

Six staff members attending the Fifth Virginia Library Institute at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond April 12-13 included: Mary Lou Cobb, head, Cataloging Department; Ailene Zirkle, head, Acquisitions Department; Berna Heyman, assistant cataloging librarian; Kathryn Blue, assistant cataloging librarian; Suzanne Foley, reference librarian, and Dortha Skelton, assistant reference librarian. The theme of the Institute was professionalism as it applies to librarians.

English Department Adds Black Studies Next Fall

The Department of English will offer two new courses next year in Black American literature, the first such courses to be offered at the College on a regular continuing basis.

In the fall semester, the Department will offer English 460, Black Literature in America, a lecture course which will be described in the forthcoming catalogue as "a study of selected works by leading Black American writers, with emphasis upon their ethnic concerns and their contributions to the general development of American literary culture." The course will fulfill one "sequence course" credit in English.

In the spring semester, the course to be offered will be under a new departmental rubric, English 480, Special Topics in Literature, in a section devoted to a study of "Black Fiction" at an advanced level. This will be a combination lecture and seminar course in which works by twelve important Black American novelists from the 19th and 20th centuries will be studied. This course will not carry either "area" or "sequence" credit and it is recommended that non-concentrators who enroll for it have completed English 460 before doing so.

Both courses will be taught by Trudier Harris, a specialist in Black American literature and folklore, who has accepted appointment as an assistant professor of English, effective next September. Miss Harris' appointment is subject to approval by the Board of Visitors at its May meeting. At the present time, she is a candidate for the Ph.D. degree and a teaching assistant at Ohio State University.

A native of Tuscaloosa, Ala., Miss Harris received her B.A. degree in English, magna cum laude, from Stillman College, in Tuscaloosa, in 1969 and her M.A. degree from Ohio State in 1972. She has taught Freshman Composition at Ohio State as well as serving as a seminar instructor in the Black Studies Department there. This summer she will hold a full-time faculty appointment in the Ohio State summer session. Her doctoral dissertation on The Use of Folklore in the Fiction of Charles Waddell Chesnut, Jean Toomer and Ralph Ellison is expected to be completed by September. She presented a chapter from it as a paper at the meeting of the Midwestern Modern Language Association, in St. Louis, this past October. In addition to her area of specialization in Black literature and folklore, Miss Harris also has teaching fields in medieval literature, in general American literature, and in modern British literature.

In Spring 1971, the Department of English offered a Senior Seminar for English concentrators in twentieth century American ethnic poetry, with emphasis on Black poets, by Visiting Professor Nancy McGhee, of Hampton Institute, and interdisciplinary colloquia on "The Black Experience," including literature, have been offered in the past under the General Honors Program of the College. So far as is known, however, the two courses Miss Harris will teach next year are the first regularly-scheduled departmental offerings in Black American literature to be made available to virtually all advanced-level students of the College.

Largest 'Snoopy' Collection Claimed by Geology

The Geology Department, which can claim the largest collection of Snoopy drawings of any department on campus, has added Snoopy in a new dimension - needlepoint.

The new Snoopy is a gift from Mrs. Irene Bell of Miami, Fla., the mother of Leslie Ann Bell, '74, a geology major.

Mrs. Bell on visits to the campus noted the many Snoopy pictures and decided to add one of her own. It came in the mail recently to Gerald Johnson who plans to display Mrs. Bell's handiwork on his office wall.

The Snoopy legacy began with a sketch on the back of a laboratory cabinet by David Rohr, of Portsmouth, a 1969 graduate who went on to receive his doctorate in paleontology and is now at the University of Oregon.

Jay Chambers

The Center for Psychological Services at the College has adopted what Jay Chambers, director, refers to as a "non-treatment" approach.

"We don't want those who come to us to think that we can do all the work for them," he said. "We can't provide prescriptions or formulas to relieve an individual of his anxieties - there is no pat formula when one is dealing with psychological matters. People who come to us for help must work with us, and above all, they should be highly motivated to work at learning about themselves."

The staff at the Center consists of five clinical psychologists, including Mr. Chambers, who work part time and also hold appointments in the Department of Psychology. Sloane Payne, Larry Ventis and Glenn Shean are staff members. Dee Appley, currently on leave from the University of Massachusetts, comes to campus twice a week from her home in Norfolk. Mr. Chambers hopes to obtain a woman psychologist to work full time next year.

Although the Center serves students primarily, its services are also available to faculty and staff. Last semester approximately 250 students came to the Center for either individual or group therapy or consultation, Mr. Chambers noted.

"The majority of the problems which concern students here are interpersonal ones," he observed. "Most students who come to college are away from home and on their own for the first time. They are realizing that they must not only be responsible for making important decisions, but also that they must accept the consequences for them. Questions such as 'what are my values?' and 'what do I believe in?' are very real problems for some individuals," he said.

Confidentiality of all records is emphasized at the Center. "Nothing goes on a student's permanent record here," stated Mr. Chambers. "Files are destroyed upon an individual's graduation or departure from the College. We never talk about a particular student without his written request," he added.

"When a student makes an appointment with us it is not usually because he has waited until he is desperate for someone to talk to about his problems. Most students call and make an appointment several days in advance. This is an indication of a more healthy outlook toward psychological help than has been the case in the past," observed Mr. Chambers, "and a hopeful sign that students do not regard themselves as 'sick' if they decide to seek psychological aid."

"Our goal here at the Center is to try to get the student to view his visit as a learning situation. We all need to learn how to get our thoughts and feelings and actions in harmony - working together, instead of being at odds with one another. It's a matter of raising questions and problem solving. We have to define and understand our problems and then experiment with ways of dealing with them," he said.

"I see it simply as a collaborative research effort where motivation is high on both sides and we guide each other in order to achieve the most satisfactory results," Mr. Chambers concluded.

Geology Receives $7,200 NSF Grant

Bruce K. Goodwin, chairman of the Department of Geology, has been awarded a grant of $7,200 by the National Science Foundation for a program of Undergraduate Research Participation during the summer.

This grant will allow four undergraduate students, two from William and Mary and two from Virginia State College, to devote a ten week period to independent research projects under the supervision of a faculty member from the Department of Geology.

Only eleven such grants in geology were awarded in the United States this year and this was the only one for independent study in geology awarded to a Virginia institution.

The Geology Department has received similar grants for the past four years and independent undergraduate research has become a strong component of the Department's program.

Many undergraduate students present their research findings as papers before the Geology Section of the Virginia Academy of Science and since 1968, twenty six such papers have been presented by undergraduate students from the Department of Geology.

King Scholarship Recipients Visit Campus

Martin Luther King Scholarship recipients, their counselors and parents were on campus Tuesday, April 17, in observance of the Martin Luther King Scholarship Awards Day.

Activities for the group included a visit with President Graves, a tour of the campus, departmental discussions, a visit with Vice President for Academic Affairs George R. Healy, a financial aid briefing, and informal group discussions.

Lecture Series Brings Cancer Researcher to Campus

Van Potter

Mr. Potter, who holds the rank of professor, is assistant director of the McArdle Laboratory at the University of Wisconsin where he received his doctorate in 1938. A native of South Dakota, he was an NRC fellow at the Biokemiska Institute, the University of Stockholm; a Rockefeller fellow at the University of Sheffield, England and the University of Chicago; and a Bowman Fellow at the McArdle Laboratory.

Mr. Potter holds honorary membership in the Japanese Biochemical Society and is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He has contributed many articles concerning his cancer research to his field and is the author of Nucleic Acid Outlines; Bioethics, Bridge to the Future; Enzymes, Growth and Cancer and DNA Model Kit.

In recognition of his scientific achievements, he has received many awards and honors. Among them, the Paul Lewis Medal and Award in Enzyme Chemistry from the American Chemical Society; the Bertner Foundation Lectureship, Medal, and Award "for outstanding achievement in fundamental cancer research;" and the Clowes Lectureship Medal and Award from the American Association for Cancer Research.

Van R. Potter, noted scholar and cancer researcher, will speak Wednesday, April 18, on "Ethics, Bioethics and Survival" in the Campus Center Theatre at 8 p.m.

His lecture is part of the current Visiting Scholars Series on campus arranged in cooperation with the University Center in Virginia, Incorporated.

SA Election Results

Chris Owens, '74, of Whaleyville, is the new president of the Student Association. Elections were held Tuesday, April 10. She defeated incumbent Cornell Christianson, '74, of Fair Lawn, N.J., and John Finta, '74, of Arlington. Sharon Pandak, of Staunton, was elected SA vice-president. Due to ballot irregularities, elections for SA secretary will be held again at a later date.

Craig Cornwell, of Leesburg, is the new senior class president; vice-president is Scottye Hedstrom, of Largo, Fla., and secretary-treasurer is Earle Mackenzie of Norfolk.

Honor Council members for 1973-74 are seniors Doug Pinter, Kathy Hobbs, Laurie Baxter, and Chris Honenberger; juniors Mary Beth Leibowitz, Dave Russo, Cindi Lewis, and Nancy Norman; and sophomores Maureen J. Lacey, Gayle K. Yamada, Martha Lufkin, and Nancy C. Turrentine.

Debaters Complete Season

Chuck Kennedy of Williamsburg and Steven Snoke of Detroit, Mich., competing in the National Debate Tournament last week at the Naval Academy, had a 4-4 record in the preliminaries but lacked one ballot of getting into the final rounds.

They beat Rhode Island University in the first round, lost to California State at Fullerton in the second, and Augustana College in the third. They won over Seton Hall in the fourth, UCLA in the fifth and George Washington in the sixth, but lost to Southern California University in the seventh and Indiana State in the eighth.

The tournament was sponsored by the National Forensic Association and the Ford Foundation. It winds up the regular season of tournament competition for the College's varsity debaters.

W&M Theatre in Last Production of Year

R. Storm & E. Mills in 'The Trojan Women'

Poseidon, played by Robert Storm, Jr., is indifferent to the pleas of Athena, played by Emelyn Mills, in a scene from "The Trojan Women," a classical Greek tragedy by Euripides being presented by The William and Mary Theatre in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, April 18-21. Storm is a senior history concentrator making his first appearance for The Theatre, and Ms. Mills is a junior theatre concentrator in her third William and Mary Theatre production. "The Trojan Women," written over 2300 years ago, remains timely today in its treatment of the harrowing aftermaths of war. The William and Mary Theatre's box office, in the foyer of PBK, is open Tuesday through Friday, 3-5:30 p.m. It will also open 7-8:15 p.m. Wednesday-Saturday. During those hours (and not other times) telephone reservations are accepted at Ext. 272 or 469.

Office of Development

Application deadline for National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) Youthgrant Awards for projects beginning after September 1, is May 19, 1973. The Awards are intended for the "support of humanities projects initiated and conducted by young people." College and high school students are eligible. Academic degrees or affiliation are not a requirement. Individuals may apply directly but are encouraged to apply through nonprofit organizations. Grants are usually under $5,000 with $10,000 the maximum. The Endowment urges interested persons to make preliminary inquiries at least two months before submitting a formal application. Inquiries to: Youthgrants in the Humanities; National Endowment for the Humanities; Washington, D.C. 20506.

FOREIGN AREA FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM DEADLINES

Proposals for future Inter-American Research Training Seminars will be accepted from postdoctoral scholars in Latin America, the Caribbean and the United States until May 1, 1973 by the Foreign Area Fellowship Program (FAFP). The FAFP will also accept proposals for future Collaborative Research Training Projects from advanced scholars in Latin America, the Caribbean, and the United States until May 1. Information and forms from: Foreign Area Fellowship Program; 110 East 59th Street; New York City, New York 10022.

SENIOR FULBRIGHT-HAYS RESEARCH GRANTS

The Committee on International Exchange of Persons plans to award 550 grants for lecturing and advanced research in more than 75 countries during 1974-75, as authorized by the senior Fulbright-Hays Program. Applicants must be United States citizens and are required to have a doctorate or college teaching experience in the social sciences. Application deadline for research awards is July 1, 1973. July 1 is also the suggested deadline for lectureship applications. Interested individuals may write for a registration form from: Senior Fulbright-Hays Program; 2101 Constitution Avenue; Washington, D.C. 20418.

Senior Fulbright-Hays Program for '74-75

The Committee on International Exchange of Persons announces that applications for senior Fulbright-Hays awards for university lecturing and advanced research during 1974-75 in over 75 countries are now being accepted. The booklet on the program for this period is available on request to the Committee (2101 Constitution Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20418), and it may be consulted at the office of the faculty Fulbright adviser, Gary A. Smith, Washington 106B.

Application requirements include: U.S. citizenship; for lectureships, college or university teaching experience; for research awards, a doctorate or, in some fields, recognized professional standing as demonstrated by faculty rank, publications, compositions, exhibition record, etc.

July 1 is the deadline for applying for most of the announced research awards, and it is the suggested date for filing for lectureships.

Also Laura Jane Alsleben, psychology, and Stacey Earl Mills, biology, both of Hampton; Catherine Mary Lambert, history, Hopewell; Lucie Henriette Rivoire, fine arts, Lewisburg, Pa.; Judith Virginia Auping, chemistry, Maple Heights, Ohio; Cheryl Phyllis Ehemann, mathematics, Newport News; Sheldon Gary Karasik, English, New York City; Kandice Helene Kahl, mathematics, Petersburg; and Roberta Ellen Morrisette, mathematics, Richmond.

Model U.N. Delegation to Represent Kenya

A five-member student delegation from William and Mary will attend the National Model United Nations session to be held in New York City, April 24 through April 29.

Celia L. Williams, a senior from Sterling, will be chairman of the delegation which includes Barbara Rambo, a junior and Bruce Cleland, a sophomore, both from Arlington; Christine Howlett, a junior from McLean, and Steven Hopkins, a junior from Pittsburgh, Pa. The delegation will be accompanied by their faculty adviser, Chonghan Kim, professor of government.

The William and Mary delegation will represent Kenya in the sessions and will meet with members of the Kenya mission to the United Nations for briefings on current issues in the United Nations.

The delegation has learned that the resolution it submitted on the Apartheid doctrine in South Africa has been accepted and will be one of the topics under discussion at meetings of the humanitarian and cultural committee at the model general assembly.

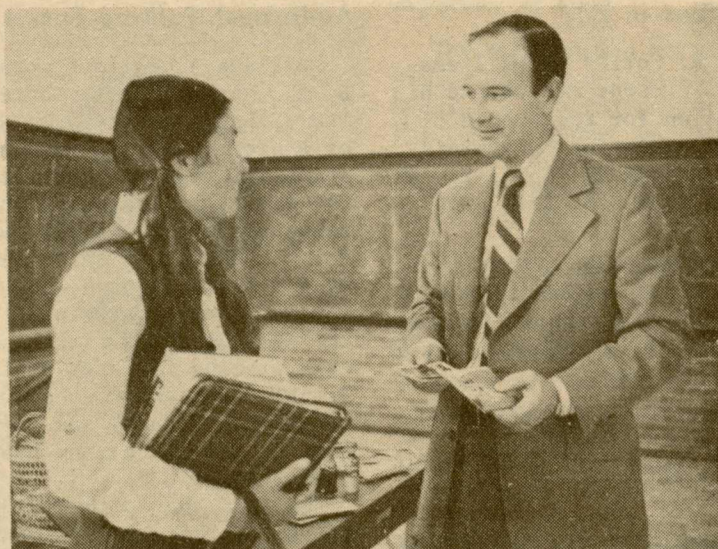

One of the highlights of the week-long session will be an address before the model general assembly by the Secretary General of the United Nations.

Senior Fulbright-Hays awards generally consist of a maintenance allowance in local currency to cover normal living costs of the grantee and family while in residence abroad, and roundtrip travel for the grantee (transportation is not provided for dependents). For lecturers going to most non-European countries, the award includes a dollar supplement, subject to the availability of funds, or carries a stipend in dollars and foreign currency, the amount depending on the assignment, the lecturer's qualifications, salary, and other factors.

Nine Selected for Orchesis

Following tryouts last week, nine new members were selected for Orchesis. They are: Larry Conklin, McLean; Meg Lascara, Norfolk; Barbara McCulloh, Laurel, Md.; Kathy McMullan and Sally Moran, both of Waynesboro; Shannon Odom, Kingspoint, Tenn.; Kathy Todd, Richmond; Tracy Trentadue, Tannersville; and Sara Vinzant, Fayetteville, Ark.

Delegate Pickett Speaks to Russian Class

Owen B. Pickett, a member of the Virginia House of Delegates, checks materials for a campus talk with his daughter, Laura Pickett, a sophomore. Delegate Pickett was on campus Friday to give a talk to several of Mrs. Netick's Russian classes on his recent trip to the USSR with the Washington Bar Association. He visited Moscow, Leningrad, and Sochi and gave highlights of his stay in each city.

Anthropology Announces New Visiting Professor

Nathan Altshuler, chairman of the Department of Anthropology, has announced that Mario D. Zamora of the Philippines will be a visiting professor in the Department for the 1973-74 session.

During the fall semester he will teach social anthropology, the Philippines: colonial innovations and traditional responses, and a seminar for the Project PLUS program entitled "The Anthropology of War and Peace." In the spring semester he will teach courses dealing with minority groups in Asia.

His appointment is the latest in a series of visiting professorships in the Department aimed at broadening the scope of course offerings. In recent years visiting faculty members from Chile, Guyana and Nigeria have taught courses in the Department. Mr. Zamora's appointment, said Mr. Altshuler, was made specifically to strengthen the program in Tropical Studies at the College. Mr. Altshuler met Mr. Zamora in the Philippines in 1967 and tried at that time to effect an exchange between the respective universities.

Mr. Zamora will be on leave from the University of the Philippines where he is professor of anthropology and Dean of the University of the Philippines at Baguio City, the Philippines' summer capital.

Mr. Zamora was formerly chairman of the U.P. Anthropology Department, director general of the Philippine Government's National Research Center for Ethnic Minorities, and in charge of the Museum and Institute of Ethnology and Archeology at the University. He received his doctorate from Cornell University.

Mr. Zamora has received many honors during his career and in 1967 was the first Filipino Adlai Stevenson Research Fellow to the United Nations. He is the co-author/editor of 12 books including Studies in Philippine Anthropology and Cultural Anthropology: Its Dimensions, Its Limitations, Its Applications.

Mr. Zamora is a life member of the Indian Sociological Society, and editor for the Philippines of the International Journal of Asian and African Studies. He is fluent in Spanish and Tagalog, as well as several other languages spoken in the Philippines.

Concert Series for '73-74 Announced

The William and Mary Concert Series for the 1973-74 season was announced last week at the final concert of the current series given by cellist James Kreger.

The Richmond Symphony, with Jacques Houtmann conducting, will open the concert series next year in Phi Beta Kappa Hall. Oct. 23.

A Marlboro Festival performance - "Music from Marlboro," Oct. 30, will offer an opportunity to hear a wide variety of seldom heard chamber music works, often combining piano, strings, woodwinds and voice in a single concert.

Pilar Lorengar, soprano with Berlin's Deutsche Oper, will be heard Feb. 14. Miss Lorengar has sung at La Scala, the Metropolitan Opera, Covent Garden and many of Europe's most prestigious festivals.

The Goldovsky Grand Opera Theatre, enthusiastically received in an earlier series performance of "La Boheme," returns March 5 with two one-act operas, Mozart's "The Impresario" and Menotti's "The Old Maid and the Thief."

The season will close March 13 with a performance by The Harkness Ballet of New York.

Warren J. Green of the concert committee announced that a subscription drive for the 1973-74 series would be initiated on or about May 1. Details concerning the series should be addressed to Mr. Green at the Campus Center, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. 23185.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dissertations in Ed.

David R. Corley of Williamsburg will present and defend his dissertation for the degree of Doctor of Education in administration, Wednesday, April 25, at 9 a.m. in Room C of the Campus Center.

His dissertation title is "A Study of the Relationship Between Teacher Satisfaction and Attitude Toward Collective Negotiations of Secondary Teachers."

All interested members of the faculties and students are invited to attend.

Two candidates for the Doctor of Education degree will present and defend their dissertations in the near future.

Janice Lee Harris of Norfolk will make her presentation Friday, April 20 at 2 p.m. in Room C of the Campus Center. Miss Harris' dissertation is entitled "Counselor Reputation and Previous Performance As An Influence Upon Counselor Interaction and Attitude In a Group Experience."

Miss Harris is a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Education in Counseling.

Edward E. Brickell, Jr., of Virginia Beach will make his presentation and defense of his dissertation entitled "An Analysis of School Board Member Expectations for Virginia School Superintendents" April 26 at 9 a.m. in Room C of the Campus Center.

Mr. Brickell is a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Education in Educational Administration.

Interested members of the faculties are invited to attend both sessions.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the lights will go off at 9 o'clock regardless of weather. An astronomy class observing the sky cannot see when the lights are on.

Additional Parking Spaces

Wallace A. Elliott, chairman of the Motor Vehicle Control Board, has announced the addition of approximately 25 parking spaces, designated for faculty and staff, in the plant and maintenance area behind the Quonset Huts. "Ideally," said Elliott, "those staff members who work in the maintenance area will utilize the newly created parking area, thus freeing the area behind Trinkle Hall and the Campus Center for faculty and staff who work on the old campus near Jamestown Road."

He said that although some gravel has been placed in the new parking area, more will be added later.

Student ID Photos

Student identification card photos of all undergraduates who will return to the College in September, 1973, will be taken in the Green Room of the Campus Center on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, April 25, 26 and 27 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

By having your photo taken on one of those days, you will be able to obtain your finished ID at registration, rather than standing in line to have your picture taken.

German Club Speaker

The German Club will sponsor a lecture by a visiting German scholar and diplomat on Monday, April 30, at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center, Rooms A&B. The lecturer is Monika Wulf-Mathies who is presently employed as a special advisor in the Federal Chancellery of West Germany. She is presently occupied with writing speeches for the Chancellor on domestic politics. Her topic will be "From the Conservative to the Social-Liberal Government--A Change in German Politics."

Kayak Handling Demonstrated

For those who would like to see the fine points of kayak handling, there will be a demonstration in Adair Pool Tuesday, April 17, at 7 p.m.

According to Mrs. Christina Jackson, who teaches canoeing in the Women's Physical Education Department, the demonstration was planned primarily for her students but interested visitors are welcome.

Single, racing type kayaks will be used and demonstrations given of the Eskimo roll and paddling techniques.

Mrs. Jackson adds that anyone wishing to participate in the demonstration should bring a bathing suit.

Women's Varsity Lacrosse

The schedule for varsity women's lacrosse is as follows:

April 17, Westhampton, 4 p.m.
 April 19, Madison, 4 p.m.
 April 24, Great Britain Touring Team vs. U.S. Squad Team-Cary Field, 4 p.m.
 May 2, Roanoke College, 3 p.m.
 May 5, Virginia Club, 10 a.m.
 May 10, St. Catherine's, 4 p.m. (These are all home games.)

Oral Interpretation Festival

The Department of Theatre and Speech is sponsoring an Oral Interpretation Festival, Thursday and Friday, May 9-10, at 1:30 p.m.

The festival is open to all William and Mary students interested in the skill of communicating literary art (individual readings of participant's choice - not to last longer than ten minutes).

Interested parties should sign up for participation with Marian M. Brown (Ext. 274) or the secretary of the Department of Theatre and Speech (Ext. 395) in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. The cut off date for notification is Friday, May 4.

Dissertation in Physics

Francis R. Kane will defend his Ph.D. dissertation in Physics entitled "Total and Partial Muon Capture Rates on ^{16}O Leading to Bound Levels in ^{16}N ," Wednesday, April 18, at 10:30 a.m. The defense will take place in the Conference Room of the William Small Physical Laboratory. R. E. Welsh is Mr. Kane's advisor. The public is cordially invited.

Publications Council to Meet

The Publications Council will meet Thursday, April 19, at 7:30 p.m. in Room A of the Campus Center to receive budgets from the five publications under the Council's authority, according to Tom A. Collins, chairman of the Council. Anyone in the College community is invited to attend, Mr. Collins stated.

Physics Colloquia

Two colloquia are scheduled to be held this week in Room 109 of the William Small Physical Laboratory.

M. P. Remler of the Department of Neurology at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, will speak Tuesday, April 17, at 2 p.m. on "Semi-Quantitative Theory of Synaptic Vesicle Movements."

Speaking Friday, April 20, is I. D. Weisman of the Alloy Physics Section of the National Bureau of Standards, Gaithersburg, Md. Mr. Weisman will lecture on "Electronic Structure and Knight Shifts in Pseudobinary Alloys of AuIn_2 , AuAl_2 , AuGa_2 ."

Coffee will be served Friday at 4 p.m.

Fine Arts Exhibits & Sales

A display of works by faculty members in the Fine Arts Department opened Monday, April 16, in the Andrews Hall gallery and will be up until May 5. The gallery is open daily Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

The exhibit includes paintings, drawings, and ceramic work and graphics.

There will be a sale of prints from the Roten Gallery of Baltimore, Md., in the lobby of Andrews Hall, Wednesday, April 25, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

An exhibition of student work will be held in the gallery of Andrews Hall, May 7 - 21.

Alonzo Players Highlight Black Culture Week

The Alonzo Players, a theatrical group from New York, will present "Four Hundred Years Overdue" as a part of Black Culture Week in Blow Gymnasium Thursday, April 19, at 8 p.m. Also appearing on the week-long program, sponsored by the Black Students Organization, are the Norfolk State College Modern Dance Group Tuesday, April 17, at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center and the Virginia State College Choir Wednesday, April 18, in Blow Gym at 8 p.m. The week's culminating activity is a dance featuring the 21st Century Band of Norfolk, Saturday, April 21, at 8 p.m. in William and Mary Hall. Tickets for the Players are $2 for students and $2.50 for adults. All other events are open to the public without charge.

Raft Debate Sponsored by Philosophy Club

The Philosophy Club will sponsor its annual Raft Debate, tonight, April 17, at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom.

The audience is asked to imagine a shipwreck situation and a raft big enough for one man. Three faculty members will debate the merits of their particular discipline for a place on the raft.

The audience will be given an opportunity to ask questions of the debaters before making its decision on which "survivor" shall get a place on the raft.

Alan Ward, associate professor of government, will serve as moderator. Elsa Diduk, assistant professor of modern languages, will serve as the Devil's Advocate. Debaters will include Peter Derks, professor of psychology; Robert P. Maccubbin, assistant professor of English; and A. Z. Freeman, professor of history.

Project PLUS Selectees Meet April 18

A general informational meeting for students who have been selected for Project PLUS next year will be held Wednesday, April 18, in Room 113 of William Small Physical Laboratory at 7:30 p.m.

The director of Project PLUS, R. Carlyle Beyer and Robert J. Fehrenbach, chairman of the Committee on Honors and Experimental Programs, will outline the program for 1973-74. The theme for next year will be "Conflict and Conflict Resolution."

Instead of having 72 sophomores and 12 juniors and seniors (Resident Associates), the new program will have approximately 42 sophomores, 21 juniors and 21 seniors.

The academic format, instead of consisting of two kinds of courses (the colloquium and the tutorial) each worth three credits each semester, next year will be composed of a tutorial and a forum which, in combination, will earn four credits. Each student will be enrolled in one of the ten tutorials; and all students will be required to attend a two-hour forum meeting once a week.

A picnic for all new students in Project PLUS will be held April 28.

Art Exhibit in Campus Center

"Images II," an exhibit on loan from the Virginia Museum, is presently on display in the lobby of the Campus Center. Amazing technological advancements in the field of photography have made it possible to create astounding and revealing images of areas previously invisible to the human eye. This exhibition offers the rare opportunity to see from unheard-of vantage points, to view objects frozen at tremendous speeds, and to marvel at the shape and form of life beneath the lenses of high power microscopes. This exhibit of 18 photographs will be on display until April 23.

R. E. Damon Studies Congress

Faced with the current problem of presidential impoundment of funds, the House of Representatives is making a major attempt to strengthen its power by means of a rules change.

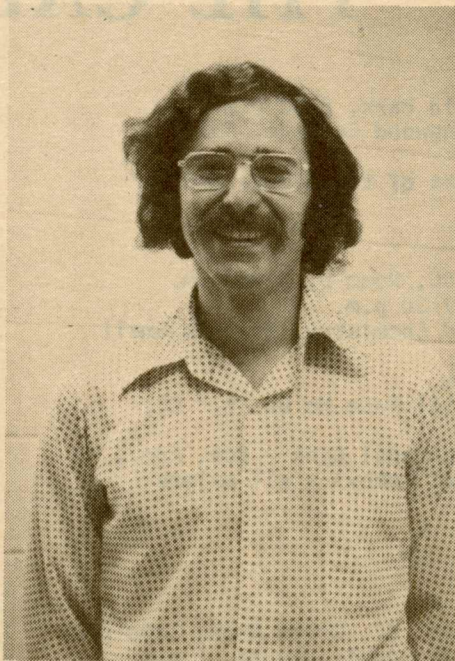

This is the opinion of a scholar who is currently studying the inner workings of Congress.

"The major concern of the House is the protection of its power of the purse," asserts Richard E. Damon, assistant professor of government. "The use of appropriations has been a problem since the 1880's, when presidents began spending more than what was appropriated, forcing Congress to make additional appropriations. Today the problem is reversed, with the President refusing to use Congressional appropriations."

In the past, presidents would compromise on the appropriations issue in order to have a certain piece of legislation passed by Congress, said Damon. "Today the President's philosophy is that federal government rule should be reduced. Therefore, he seeks no new legislation from Congress and no longer has to compromise," he added.

According to Mr. Damon, with the use of rules the House cannot guarantee that the balance of power between the executive and legislative branches will be restored. However, he feels that the major attempt to restore House power is being made through the procedural rules.

In the past, presidents have sent budget requests to the Congress, but no spending ceiling has existed, said Mr. Damon. Thus, Congress has made piecemeal appropriations rather than basing them on the availability of tax money. In addition, appropriation sub-committees have often worked autonomously, giving little attention to the total budget. "Because of this, past handling of appropriations in the House of Representatives has been criticized," Damon said.

A committee recommendation for a rules change is now under consideration. "A rules change would allow the formation of a new committee which would study the state of the economy, determine a set figure for the budget, and bind all committees to stick to this figure," observed Mr. Damon. "This provides a way for the House to discipline itself, preventing committees, which are fighting for their own programs, from going over the budget," he added.

Mr. Damon's research interests center around conflict management. He plans to study devices, in addition to the rules, which are used to resolve conflicts in Congress. Through the study of deviance in Congressional

Dusha Quartet to Appear May 5

The William and Mary Concert Series has announced it will sponsor a special performance of the Dusha Quartet on Saturday, May 5, at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom. Admission will be $1 per person, payable at the door.

The group will play Olivier Messiaen's "Quartet for the End of Time," the unique chamber work written while the composer was a prisoner of war in 1941.

All members of the Dusha Quartet are artist teachers at the Interlochen Center for the Arts in Michigan. Australian-born violinist Brian Hanly has appeared as soloist with symphony orchestras in Australia and the United States and as a member of the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra in London. Fred Ormand, clarinetist, holds degrees from the University of Michigan and Michigan State University and has been a Fulbright Scholar in England. Frederick Miller, cellist, received the Master of Music degree from the Eastman School of Music, and the Doctor of Musical Arts degree from the University of Southern California. Gary Kirkpatrick received his training at the Eastman School of Music and the Academy of Music in Vienna.

"Performances of the 'Quartet for the End of Time' are rare indeed, and we feel most fortunate in being able to offer it in a special concert at this time," said Warren J. Green, director of the Concert Series.

decision-making, he plans to determine exactly what constitutes institutionalization. He also plans to undertake a comparison of institutional forms in this country with those in other countries.

Winners Announced

Twenty-Fifth W&M Science Contest

Winners have been announced in the twenty-fifth annual science contest, sponsored by the College, in which 175 high school students participated.

Scholarships valued at $500 and $300 have been given to high school juniors and seniors who placed either first or second in examinations in physics, chemistry, biology and mathematics.

First place winners in the various fields are as follows: Elizabeth Anne Weekly, Norview High School, Norfolk, biology; Karl Gangstad, West Springfield High School, chemistry; Douglas Fowley, Annandale High School, mathematics; and Sayre Swartzauber, McLean High School, physics.

Second place winners are: John Brineman, Annandale High School, biology; Huyen Tran, Douglas S. Freeman High School, Richmond, chemistry; Martha Youngblood, West Springfield High School, mathematics; and Lewis Kyle Hedges, Washington and Lee High School, Arlington, physics.

Organized to encourage and assist capable students in the various fields of science and mathematics, the contest is also aimed at stimulating interest in the study of these courses in high school.

With announcements of the contest this year, high schools in the state received notice that this may be the last such contest to be sponsored by the College.

George W. Crawford of the Physics Department, who has been handling arrangements for the contests for the past 13 years, informed schools that lack of funds may halt the current program.

"I regret," said Mr. Crawford, "that it has become necessary to take this action. The science contest has been a means of attracting outstanding students from Virginia high schools to the College of William and Mary."

The College, Mr. Crawford added, is endeavoring to obtain private funds for the continuance of the contest in its present or a modified form.

In its present form, the contest was originated in 1948 although the initial contest had been started in the Chemistry Department by the late William G. Guy in the 1930's.

Over 4,000 students have participated in the contest over the years and approximately 200 awards have been made.

The value of the awards has increased through the years. The first year of the contest, awards of $100 for three years were made to the first place winners and $100 for two years to second place winners.

In 1962 mathematics was added to the list of examination fields and in 1970 the contest was opened to women. According to Mr. Crawford, the question of permitting women to participate was taken up in 1951 but turned down.

This year the contest was given on a Saturday to avoid conflict with high school classes. Originally the contest was a three-day event and students were taken on a tour of science departments on campus during that time.

Thought to be one of the few contests available to high school students, and probably the only one of its kind in Virginia, the contest is the second step of a merit award since many must first compete in an elimination contest in their own high schools.
