New Circle K Bus Needs A Name

The members of the Circle K Club are sponsoring a College-wide contest to secure a name for their recently acquired bus. The new bus is a replacement for "Fat Albert," a 1953 Ford bus previously used to transport underprivileged children to community recreation programs in James City County.

The Circle K projects this year include the weekday preschool program for children from the Mooretown and Chickahominy communities; the Saturday morning tutoring program which matches elementary-aged children with individual college students in a type of big brother (or sister) situation; and the Saturday recreation program, in which children take part in campus activities or travel to nearby places with cultural or recreational value.

Circle K's newest project is a Senior Opportunities program, which attempts to provide essential transportation services to the area's elderly people.

President of Circle K is Thomas Duncan, '74; vice-president is Joseph Stubbs, '75; and projects chairman is Marshall Miller, '75.

Society of the Alumni Homecoming Activities

William and Mary alumni returned by the thousands to their alma mater Friday for Homecoming, the first time that the College has had an Alumni House to serve as their headquarters.

President Thomas A. Graves, Jr. praised leaders of the Society of the Alumni for undertaking a "labor of love" by raising the funds used to create the new facility.

"It is a symbol of your affection for, and support for your College," he told hundreds of alumni at the Society's annual meeting Friday night in the Williamsburg Lodge.

The Society earlier this year completely renovated the former Bright House next to Cary Field. The building is leased from the College.

At its annual meeting the Society elected four new members of its Board of Directors, reelected another director, and voted to amend its by-laws to specify that the Society's chief administrator be known as executive vice president. Formerly, the administrator--Gordon C. Vliet--was known as executive secretary.

The directors are Harold M. Bates, '52, a lawyer from Roanoke; Marjorie Retzke Gibbs, '43, an active civic worker in Cleveland, Ohio; Elaine Elias Kappel, '53, an artist from Pittsburgh, Pa.; R. T. Waller, '40, executive vice president of the Cecil-Waller Company, Inc., of Richmond, investment brokers; and Hillsman V. Wilson, '51, vice president-secretary and general counsel for McCormick and Company, Inc., of Lutherville-Timonium, Md.

Recipients of Alumni Medallions for service and loyalty were H. Wescott Cunningham, headmaster of Pingry School in New Jersey; Robert A. Duncan III, former president of the Peninsula Bank and Trust Company of Williamsburg for 20 years; Emil O. Johnson, a retired executive of the duPont Company; and H. Caskie Stinnett, editor-in-chief of the American Express Publication, Travel and Leisure.

Board of Visitors Appoints Hanes

Governor Linwood Holton's office announced Friday the appointment of John Wesley Hanes, Jr., a New York investment banker and former State Department official to the Board of Visitors of the College.

Mr. Hanes will fill the unexpired term of William Holmes Trapnell of Richmond who died August 12.

A partner in the firm of Wertheim & Co. in New York City since 1964, Mr. Hanes is a director of Squibb-Beechnut, Inc., the Olin Corporation and Red Food Stores. He has been president and director of the Hanes Foundation since 1952.

He is a trustee of Deerfield Academy and has served as vice president of Governor Holton's Council on the Environment since 1970.

Assistant Secretary of State for Security and Consular Affairs from 1958-61, Mr. Hanes served as an economic specialist with the Office of the High Commissioner in Germany from 1950-52. He was Special Assistant Secretary of State from 1953-57; and Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for International Organizational Affairs during 1957-58.

He was a delegate to SEATO conferences in London and Bermuda in 1957 and the UNESCO conference in 1958. A member of the Commission on International Judicial Procedures from 1959 to 1961, he was chairman of the United States section of the Caribbean Commission during 1960-61.

A native of New York City, Mr. Hanes graduated from Deerfield Academy and received his bachelor's degree at Yale University in 1950.

Mr. Hanes and his wife, the former Lucy Pomeroy Deans, make their home in Great Falls, Va.

Affirmation Report

Desk reserve copies of the Affirmative Action Report submitted to the State Council of Higher Education on October 17 are available at the Reference Desk in Swem Library, the Campus Center lounge, and the President's Office. Anyone desiring information concerning the report should contact Jerry Van Voorhis in the President's Office.

FACULTY NEWS

Economics

Leonard G. Schifrin, professor, participated in the Second Seminar on the Dynamics of Pharmaceutical Innovation and Economics, conducted by the American University in Bethesda, Md., October 14-16. He was a member of the panel on the subject of "True Profitability Measures."

For the past 10 months, Mr. Schifrin has been serving as a consultant to the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice. In that capacity he has been preparing a section of the Economic Brief for the United States, in the Sherman Antitrust Act suit filed by the government against the five major companies engaged in the manufacture and sale of the broad-spectrum antibiotic tetracycline.

During this past summer, Mr. Schifrin worked with the Bureau of Competition of the Federal Trade Commission in the preparation of the Commission's case in its challenge of the recent merger between the Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical Company and Parke, Davis Company under the provisions of Section 7 of the Clayton Act.

Mr. Schifrin's article "Thalidomide and Beyond: Some Recommendations Regarding Public Policy Toward the Ethical Drug Industry" will be the lead article in the forthcoming issue of the International Journal of Health Services dealing with various economic and medical aspects of the prescription drug industry.

Education

On October 12, Stuart Flanagan, associate professor, was a speaker for the 11th Annual Mathematics Conference held in Norfolk. The topic addressed was "Curriculum Alternatives for Seniors in the Academic Program."

Armand Galfo, professor, took part in a panel discussion on the topic "Publish or Perish" which was aired by stations WTAR, Norfolk and WRVA, Richmond on October 14.

STAFF NOTES

Swem Library

Librarian William C. Pollard attended the annual meeting and seminar of the Virginia History Federation in Staunton, October 19-20.

Henry Grunder, curator of rare books, participated in the Second Seminar on the Conservation of Library and Archival Materials, in North Andover, Mass., earlier this month. A highlight of the international seminar was the dedication of the New England Document Conservation Center, a facility established by the New England Library Compact. He subsequently visited the Intermuseum Association Conservation Laboratory in Oberlin, Ohio.

Mary Ann Reynolds of Newport News assumed duties as a clerk-typist B in the Periodicals Department. Mrs. Reynolds is a 1973 graduate of Bridgewater College.

Several Swem Library staff members will attend the annual conference of the Virginia Library Association in Richmond, October 25-27. Major speakers include novelist Tom Wolfe and Robert Wedgeworth, executive secretary, American Library Association. Mary Louise Cobb, head, Cataloging Department, is the Virginia Library Association's secretary.

English

Donald L. Ball, associate professor, represented the department at the annual meeting of the North Carolina-Virginia College English Association at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte on Oct. 13. Mr. Ball served as chairman of the nominating committee for the association.

Robert P. Maccubbin, associate professor of English, will speak on "Graphic Satire" Thursday, October 25, at 8 p.m. in the Fraternity Complex Unit B Lounge.

His lecture is part of the John Burley Jeffries Discussion Series.

History

Thad Tate, professor, spoke at the annual conference of the Canadian Association for American Studies, held at the University of New Brunswick, Fredericton, on October 11-14. His topic was "The American Revolution: Present and Past." John Selby, professor, served as commentator for a session on the American Revolution at the same conference. Mr. Tate was also commentator for a session on "The Slave Issue in the Revolutionary Era" at the annual meeting of the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History in New York City on October 20.

Modern Languages

James W. Coke, associate professor, served on October 12 as a visiting member of an examining committee for the Ph.D. in French literature at George Washington University, Washington, D.C. Nancy Rogers Wall defended her dissertation entitled "The Persuasive Style of the Young George Sand."

Mr. Coke is also conducting a graduate seminar this semester at George Washington University on "17th Century French Theatre before Racine."

Recent Promotions

Recent promotions announced by the Personnel Office are: Margi Taylor, formerly a clerk-typist B in the Registrar's Office, to clerk-typist C in the Purchasing Office, and Joanne Wilkerson, a clerk-typist A in the Registrar's Office to clerk-typist B in the School of Education.

Peggy Dooley, clerk-typist A in the Cataloging Department of Swem Library, will assume duties as clerk-typist B in the Reference Department effective October 29. Patricia Parks, clerk-typist C in the Cataloging Department, will begin her duties as a library assistant in the Reference Department November 1.

Life Assurance Agent

A representative of the American Family Life Assurance Company, with which many of our employees carry a cancer insurance policy, will be in James Blair Hall, on the first floor, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Monday, October 29. This representative will be available to answer questions and/or to make any policy changes for those employees who are currently enrolled in the program.

On October 12, Elsa Diduk, assistant professor, spoke on the "Crisis in Language Teaching and Student Motivation" to a meeting of Northern Virginia Modern Language Teachers at Mary Washington College.

Sociology

Lawrence S. Beckhouse, associate professor, and Jon S. Kerner, assistant professor, have been asked to serve as consultant reviewers for Choice, a monthly book selection journal published by the Association of College and Research Libraries, a division of the American Library Association.

R. Wayne Kernodle, professor, was recently appointed to the Board of Directors of the Williamsburg area chapter of the Virginia Mental Health Association.

VARC

VARC research investigators, in collaboration with scientists from other institutions, will be presenting two papers at the meeting of the American Society of Therapeutic Radiologists in New Orleans on October 24-28.

The papers, which represent progress in research activities at the Research Campus of the College, are as follows:

"Preliminary Clinical Observations After Bragg Peak Helium Ion Irradiation," by Giulio J. D'Angio, M.D., Henry Aceto, Lourdes Z. Nisce, M.D.; Jae Ho Kim, M.D., Raj Jolly, David Buckle, J. Garrett Holt.

College of William and Mary, VARC, and Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, New York City.

"Radiation Control of Occult Metastases by Helium Ions or ⁶⁰Co," by Anas M. El Mahdi, M.D., James Shaeffer, Mr. Aceto, and William C. Constable, M.D.

University of Virginia Medical Center, Charlottesville, and College of William and Mary, VARC.

Funds for Research

The Committee for Faculty Research now has available a fund of $10,000 to cover minor research costs incurred by both faculty and students (graduate and undergraduate) at the College.

Students involved in research may apply to the Committee for Faculty Research for funds to cover such costs as travel expenses related to research activity or the acquisition of materials vital to a research project. The Committee expects that most requests will not exceed $200.

Letters of application should include a brief description of the project and a detailed budgetary statement. Applications should be submitted directly to Lewis W. Leadbeater, chairman, Committee for Faculty Research, in accordance with the following deadlines:

1. January 2 (for February announcements)
2. April 1 (for May announcements)

Give the United Way

Swindler Heads National Committee on Judiciary History

A law professor at the College is heading a national committee on the history of the judiciary to establish a permanent exhibit in the U.S. Supreme Court building in Washington, D.C.

William F. Swindler, a nationally recognized authority on the federal and state Constitutions, has been asked by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger to help arrange for the exhibit "to communicate to all Americans a sense of the story of the Supreme Court as a living institution and in that process to add warmth and humanity to the building itself."

Visitors to the Supreme Court--and there are nearly 500,000 of them a year--see only stately halls, the rich furnishings of the courtroom and portraits of former justices. Few even see the court in session.

The Supreme Court remains, as Mr. Swindler has called it, "the least-known branch of government."

What Chief Justice Burger wants, Mr. Swindler reports, "is an exhibition to feature the great persons associated with the Supreme Court, such as Marshall and Charles Evans Hughes, and the great issues faced by the Court, such as the Marbury vs. Madison decision which established the superiority of the Constitution over acts of Congress."

The exhibit would recount important periods in the history of the court "to explain the evolution of the court as an institution," Mr. Swindler said. The exhibits themselves would be changed from time to time to feature a particular personality associated with the court. An exhibit relating to Dred Scott is a possibility, Mr. Swindler noted.

CAMPUS PROFILE / James C. Rees

The "new look" Flat Hat has been established on campus under the leadership of James C. "Jim" Rees, '74, Richmond, editor-in-chief for the 1973-74 academic year.

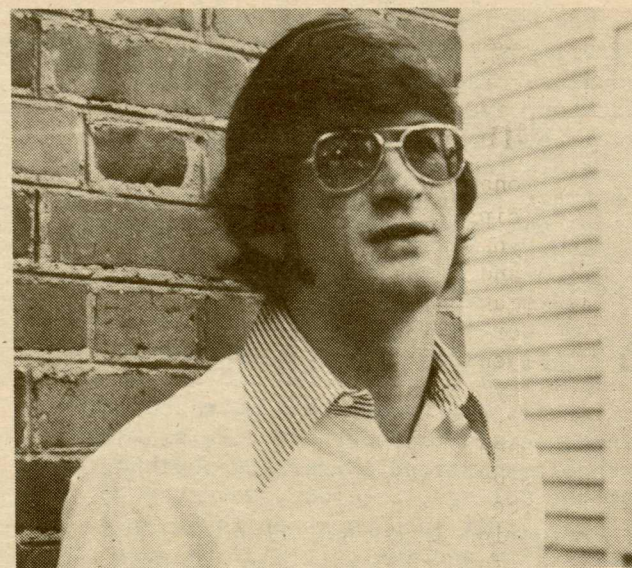

The Flat Hat staff this year is striving for more congruence and communicativeness among its members, according to Mr. Rees.

"In one way, we turned not having a paper during the first few weeks of school to an advantage. For once, at the beginning of the year, the editors had time to help the freshman staff members," he said.

The Flat Hat began efforts to recruit freshmen at Interest Night and afterwards a journalism short course was initiated for new staff members. The course included a film and group discussions and proved a "great help," said Mr. Rees.

The Flat Hat is concentrating on news features this year, said Mr. Rees, explaining that these features are in-depth personalized reports of campus news. In the areas of arts and sports, the paper is emphasizing personalities and behind-the-scene happenings, he said.

An English major, Mr. Rees brings to his new position an extensive background in newspaper work. He has served on The Flat Hat as reporter, assistant sports editor, sports editor, advertising manager, photographer and regular columnist.

He was a columnist, managing editor and sports editor for his high school paper, the Douglas Freeman Commentator of Richmond.

Mr. Rees worked as a copy boy for the Richmond Times-Dispatch the summer after his senior year.

He is president of Sigma Chi fraternity this year.

William F. Swindler

Mr. Swindler and his nine-member advisory committee, appointed by the Chief Justice, arranged for a special exhibition earlier this year on John Marshall, the fourth chief justice who attended law lectures at William and Mary. The Marshall exhibit in the Supreme Court Building was set up in conjunction with a meeting of the American Bar Association and is a temporary display due to come down next month.

The Supreme Court's advisory committee on judicial history has taken steps to incorporate as the Historical Association of the United States Supreme Court so that it can receive artifacts, mementos, documents and other exhibit material.

The group, which includes historians, museum specialists and federal government officials, has started making inventories of pertinent historical items already in the possession of the court and other public agencies. Of particular assistance, according to Mr. Swindler, have been the Smithsonian Institution and curators at the State Department. The Winterthur Museum in Wilmington, Del., also has given assistance.

An important objective of the present historical search is to locate portraits of former justices. Of the 101 men who have been appointed to the court, only 65 are represented among portraits now in the building.

Among those missing is a portrait of Philip Pendleton Barbour, one of four justices who studied at William and Mary. Barbour, who was appointed by President Andrew Jackson, served on the bench from 1836 to 1841.

The other justices who studied at William and Mary, in addition to Barbour and John Marshall, are John Blair, a member of the original court, and Bushrod Washington, a nephew of George Washington who was appointed by President John Adams and served from 1798 to 1829.

Mr. Swindler has been a member of the faculty at William and Mary's Marshall-Wythe Law School since 1958. The school, the nation's first to offer courses in law, is named for the great chief justice and George Wythe, a Virginia signer of the Declaration of Independence who taught law at William and Mary.

Mr. Swindler, a scholar of the U.S. Constitution for 30 years, has written The Constitution of the United States: A 20th Century Interpretation and has edited a documentary series on the evolution of the various state constitutions.

Couples' Workshop

The College Counseling Center is offering a limited workshop for couples. The workshop will consist of two-hour evening sessions for four weeks beginning Wednesday, October 31. Possible topics include: Intimacy, Contract Negotiation, Conflict Resolution, and Communication. Interested couples should call the Counseling Center for information at Ext. 231.

Yearbook Workshop

An invitation has been extended to yearbook staff members in Virginia high schools to attend a yearbook workshop at the College, Saturday, November 10.

The first such workshop to be held at William and Mary, it will be conducted entirely by the College's Colonial Echo yearbook staff.

According to Brian O'Boyle, 1974 Colonial Echo editor, the workshop is designed to "help other schools with problems they may have encountered - to offer practical advice and to stress the basics which are so often ignored."

The focus of the workshop will be the 1974 yearbook - the plans, problems, and opportunities of each particular school's yearbook. Presentations will include group discussions and will be followed by basic sessions for working on individual yearbooks. Workshop leaders will confer with individual staffs and help them with specific plans for their books.

The workshop, to be held at the Campus Center, will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. and will conclude at 4:30 p.m. The day's program will include two talks on "Themes for High School Yearbooks in the Seventies" and "Yearbook Hangups"; a basic layout session; luncheon in the Hoi Polloi of the Campus Center; and separate sessions on such topics as the new journalism in yearbooks, copy techniques, and photography and graphics.

Foreign Studies Advisor

James C. Livingston, dean of the undergraduate program, announces that Lynn Schulz, associate dean of students for student development, has been appointed foreign studies advisor. This appointment will allow for a central office for information for William and Mary students on foreign study opportunities. Ms. Schulz will develop a library of materials on foreign study programs, will advise students on specific programs and make referrals to the faculty with special expertise. Students and faculty interested in learning about foreign study opportunities are encouraged to contact Ms. Schulz in Room 210, James Blair Hall.

Poet Will Speak

Poet Robert Hayden will lecture on "Development of Contemporary Poems," Thursday, Oct. 25, at 8 p.m. in the Little Theatre of the Campus Center.

Mr. Hayden has published several volumes of poetry, including A Ballad of Remembrance and Words in the Mourning Time. He is currently professor of English at the University of Michigan.

State Teachers' Loans

Virginia State Teachers Scholarship Loans are available for the second semester. Applications can be obtained from the Teacher Placement Office, Room 212, Washington Hall. Deadline is January 15, 1974.

BBS Lectures Set

The Botetourt Bibliographical Society has announced three lectures this fall.

David L. Parker, technical officer of fine arts for motion pictures in the Prints and Photographs Division of the Library of Congress, will speak Monday, Oct. 29, in a lecture on the problems of preserving old film prints, entitled "Quick Before It Melts." A consultant to the American Film Institute, Mr. Parker is responsible for the care and restoration of film prints in the National Film Collection of the Library of Congress.

Daniel Poteet, assistant professor of English at the University of Delaware, will speak Thursday, Nov. 8, on "Sacrament and Medieval Time: An Approach to the Aesthetics of the English Mystery Plays." A specialist in medieval drama, Mr. Poteet will base his lecture in part on his translations of twelfth century Latin liturgical dramas.

Both will lecture in the Sit 'N Bull Room of the Campus Center at 8:15 p.m.

Thomas F. Brummer, director of purchasing for the City of Newport News, will speak Sunday, December 9, on "A Collector's View of Frank Lloyd Wright." He will lecture in the Rare Book Room of Swem Library at 8:15 p.m.

NASA Grant Extension

The Applied Science Program of the College has received a $100,000 extension to a National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) grant.

The Applied Science Program is an interdisciplinary educational program taught cooperatively by the members of the Chemistry, Mathematics, and Physics Departments. The program leads to an M.S. degree in applied mathematics, computer science, atmospheric science and material science. Co-directors of the program are George T. Rublein, associate professor of mathematics and Arden Sher, professor of physics.

This new grant is one of a sequence of grants that over the last three years have totaled over $590,000.

In the last academic year and summer, the Applied Science grants helped to support the research of fifteen faculty and thirteen students. The research conducted ranged over the fields of applied mathematics, computer science, plasma physics, solid state physics, atomic and molecular physics, polymer chemistry, radiation chemistry, and transition metal co-ordinator chemistry.

Most of the research was motivated by fundamental questions. The answers to these questions have application to the characteristics and use of a new class of computers known as "parallel and pipeline processors"; the energy balance of the earth's atmosphere; the chemical properties of a class of carcinogenic pollutants introduced into the atmosphere by burning fossil fuels; the structural strength and dielectric properties of plastics; the electrical characteristics of an important class of semiconductors used for microwave oscillators, solar cells, and lasers; and the storage of hydrogen in materials - an important aspect of the hydrogen based economy as a possible solution to the energy crisis.

Student Jobs Available

The Student Aid Office, James Blair Hall 310, encourages all students who are interested in part-time work to complete an application for employment. Many jobs are available and they include both regular part-time and occasional work on and off campus.

Anyone desiring further information should call Ext. 301 or 233.

Equipment Demonstration

A demonstration of calculating equipment will be given by the Tide-water Office Machines Company, Tuesday, November 8, in Room C of the Campus Center, from 10 a.m.-1 p.m.

International Circle

The International Circle will sell pumpkins for Halloween to raise money for the Circle's activities. The sale will take place on Friday, October 26, from 1-5 p.m., and Saturday, October 27, from 9 a.m.-12 noon, in front of the Commons. Prices will range from $.75 to $1.50. Interested persons are invited to come by during the above hours, or place an order in advance by calling Carlos Monserrate, Applied Science Program, Ext. 471; Janet Dysinger, Project Plus, Ext. 537; or Gary Smith, Ext. 424 or 229-8005.

The International Circle is a student organization which brings together foreign and American students at the College. At an organizational meeting earlier in the semester, Miss Dysinger and Mr. Monserrate were chosen as co-chairmen, and suggestions for activities were aired. The first social event will be a Halloween Party on Saturday evening, October 27, at 8 p.m. in the French Language House. All interested students, faculty and staff members are invited. The Circle would also like to undertake other activities, such as a trip to the Charlottesville area in the spring, international films and dinners, etc.

Because the resources of the Circle are rather limited, other campus organizations are encouraged to plan activities which would include foreign students. In order to facilitate such efforts, Mr. Smith is preparing a list of foreign students at the College to be distributed to residential units, student organizations and any other interested persons. Anyone desiring a copy of the list should contact Mr. Smith.

'W&M Review' Deadline

The deadline for submission of poetry, fiction, non-fiction and art (including drawings, paintings and photographs) to The William and Mary Review literary magazine is Thursday, November 1.

Faculty, staff and students are urged to contribute, says Chris Bram, '74, editor-in-chief.

Two issues of The Review will be published during the academic year, in January and May, 1974.

United Fund Drive

October is the month for the annual United Fund drive in the Williamsburg-James City area. The goal for the College community this year is $9,000. Have you done your share?

Music from Marlboro

Cellist Peter Rejto of the Marlboro Music Festival Group

The Marlboro Music Festival will present an unusually varied program of chamber music in its "Music from Marlboro" concert at Phi Beta Kappa Hall, October 30 at 8:15 p.m., as part of the current College of William and Mary Concert Series.

College 'Bio-Bureau' Aids Public School Students

The College "bio-bureau" is a community service project for students in the Williamsburg-James City County public school system.

The Department of Biology is offering presentations by faculty members and graduate students on topics which run the gamut from bagpipes and chicken embryos to studies in population regulation. This is the second time the department sponsored project is being undertaken - last year it was highly successful and biologists anticipate another good year.

Under the "bio-bureau" program, a wide variety of lectures, demonstrations, and field trips are offered to students in the local community during the fall and spring semesters. The program is available to all levels of public school students.

Presentations designed to interest students on all grade levels include an illustrated lecture on birds by Jerry Via, a graduate student, and an illustrated lecture on the chemical regulation of plant growth by Martin Mathes, associate professor, who is also offering tours of the College's penthouse greenhouse atop Millington Hall.

Students on the primary grade levels will receive a show and tell lecture demonstration on chicken embryos by Lawrence Wiseman, assistant professor, and a show and listen demonstration on bagpipes by Bruce Grant, assistant professor. Norman Fashing, assistant professor, is providing students on both the primary and junior high school levels with a lecture demonstration on insects.

Carl Vermeulen, associate professor, is presenting a lecture entitled, "What is Biochemistry," to junior and senior high school students this year, and Mr. Wiseman is giving lecture demonstra-

Marshall Scholarship Candidates Endorsed

1974-76 Drapers' Scholars Named

Drapers' Scholarship nominees and candidates for the Marshall Scholarship have been named by the College.

Gerald Glen Miller, Wausau, Wisc., and Scott Barnes Wilcox, Phillipsburg, N.J., both seniors at the College, have been nominated for the Drapers' Company Exchange Scholarships for 1974-76.

David Hess, '74, Springfield, and Bruce Spiegelman, '74, Massapequa, N.Y., have been endorsed by the College as candidates for the Marshall Scholarship.

The Drapers' Company scholarships have been sponsored jointly since 1959 by the College and the Drapers' Company of London, a trade guild rich in historical associations from the Middle Ages which has now become a philanthropic foundation.

Each year two seniors from the College are sent to England to study at British universities of their choice under this program. In turn, the College accepts one or two students from England each year for three years of study leading to the bachelor's degree.

Thirty Marshall scholarships nationwide will be awarded in the spring. The Marshall scholarships enable U.S. citizens who are graduates of U.S. colleges and universities to study for a university degree in the United Kingdom for a period of at least two academic years.

Mr. Miller, a philosophy concentrator, plans to use his Drapers' scholarship to study law at a British university. He was a student at the University of Wisconsin before coming to William and Mary. A member of the Philosophy Club, he is especially interested in British empiricism. He was awarded a Johnston Merit Scholarship by the College.

Mr. Wilcox, a fine arts major, plans to use his scholarship to continue his work in art history at a British university. A student assistant in the College fine arts department, he is also art editor for The William and Mary Review literary magazine and president of the Botetourt Bibliographical Society. He spent his junior year at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland.

tions on cancer and tissue culture to students on the junior and senior high school level. Stephen Keller, a graduate student, is presenting lectures and tours on electron microscopy to high school students.

Joseph Scott, assistant professor, is providing high school students with a lecture and accompanying slides on algae and cell structure, and Marvin Freadman, a graduate student, is offering lectures with slides on clams to students at this level.

Lectures with accompanying slides on studies in population, designed primarily for senior high school students, are being given by Richard Terman, professor of biology.

Mr. Mathes, director of the program, said that students participating in the "bio-bureau" program have the opportunity of "direct contact with students and faculty research in a program of mutual educational benefit."

Mr. Hess is an anthropology major enrolled in the senior honors program. He is a teaching assistant in that department and has worked with summer archaeological excavations at Yorktown. Mr. Spiegelman, who is enrolled in the biology senior honors program, plans to specialize in microbial biochemistry and molecular genetics. An exchange student at the University of Exeter in England during his junior year, he is a member of the varsity tennis team and was a Student Association senator.

Two alternates and two finalists for the Drapers' scholarships were also named. Roger Pratt, '74, Arlington, is first alternate and Michael Sullivan, '74, Spottsylvania, is second alternate. Patricia Mayer, '74, Hershey, Pa., and Robert Moncrief, '74, Hanover, Pa., are finalists.

Mr. Pratt is an interdisciplinary concentrator, studying economics, government, history and sociology in a program aimed at a career in urban planning. Mr. Sullivan, an English major, is a transfer student from Richard Bland College. He has written various plays, poetry and fiction.

Miss Mayer, a government major, is feature editor of The Flat Hat student newspaper. She spent her junior year as an exchange student at the University of Exeter. Mr. Moncrief, a music concentrator, is assistant organist-choirmaster at Bruton Parish Episcopal Church in Williamsburg. President of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia music fraternity, he is active in the Sinfonicon Opera Company.

Faculty vs. Tennis Team

A group of faculty members has challenged the Women's Varsity Tennis Team to a tennis match on Tuesday, Oct. 30.

The match will begin at 3:15 p.m. at the Adair Courts.

Science Colloquium

A. Kadir Aziz, Icase Visiting Scientist at NASA Langley Research Center, will speak on "On the Solution of Partial Differential Equations of Mixed Type," at the Applied Science Colloquium, Thursday, October 25 in Morton Hall, Room 20, at 8 p.m.

Study in France Program

All inquiries with reference to the 1974-75 Study in France Program should be directed to the dean of the undergraduate program, James C. Livingston.

BSO Sponsors Dinner

The Black Students Organization is sponsoring an Afro-American dinner Sunday, October 28, from 4-7 p.m. in Lodge 14. There is a charge of $1.75 per dinner. The College community is invited to attend.

PERSONNEL BULLETIN

Annual Service Ratings

Each year all permanent classified employees at the College of William and Mary who have been employed on or before September 1, receive a service rating. This rating is prepared annually by an appropriate supervisor. Each employee is rated on habits of work, amount of work, quality of work, cooperation, intelligence, and initiative. Adjectival ratings are poor, fair, good, very good, and excellent. When an employee's service rating includes more than two appraisals of "fair" or any appraisals of "poor," the employee may not receive a merit increase. The service rating must be discussed with the employee by the supervisor. This is not a decision to be made by the rating official. Employees are required to sign their names at the top of the completed service rating form to indicate that they have seen and discussed the rating with the supervisor. Instructions for preparation of the service ratings for this year were forwarded to rating officials on October 15, 1973.

Daylight Saving Time Ends

Please note that Daylight Saving Time terminates as of 2 a.m. on Sunday, October 28, 1973.

Job Openings

The following positions at the College are or will be vacant. Qualified employees who wish to be transferred to these positions may receive additional information at the College Personnel Office. The College of William and Mary is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Accordingly, women and minority employees are encouraged to apply for those positions for which they feel they are qualified.

Students Improve Language Skills in Trips to Russia and Yugoslavia

Norah Lulich (l) and Douglas Conley

Only a few American students who spend a summer in Europe stay in a Yugoslavian fishing village or make Russian friends. While enjoying such unusual opportunities this summer, two William and Mary students were also able to sharpen their language skills.

Norah Lulich, '75, Falls Church, spent the summer traveling through Europe and then staying with relatives in Trpanj, Yugoslavia. Douglas Conley, '74, Alexandria, on his first trip abroad, spent six weeks in the U.S.S.R., meeting fellow students and studying the language. Both students spoke the native language of the countries they visited during the major part of their stay.

Miss Lulich has made three previous trips to the Yugoslavian town where her father was born and where a number of her relatives presently live. While staying with her relatives in Trpanj, she speaks Serbo-Croatian, a Slavic language which she has learned largely as a result of hearing it spoken during her visits.

She has found that an "easier assimilation of language is possible by speaking it everyday." In addition, language study is more enjoyable when the cultural aspects of life are closely integrated with the speaking of a language. "Shopping for items you need to buy or wanting to talk to others provides an impetus for learning," she said.

Her visits are valuable, she said, in terms of being able to learn more about the different economic and social systems in a village which is organized around specialized labor and individual craftsmen's trades.

"My family started going to Yugoslavia in 1969 when we discovered that it was less expensive than the traditional vacations we had been taking," she said. "Trpanj is a fishing village on the Dalmatian coast with a resident population of 350 and a summer population of 3000, when many East European tourists arrive. The village itself is 1300 years old. Its major attractions as a resort are the sea and the rock beaches." The village is well-known for its unusually clear water, its ancient buildings, including Roman ruins, and the Svete Ilija mountain, the highest on the peninsula, which extends directly to the sea.

Miss Lulich has returned to live in the French Language House at the College, where she has the opportunity to speak French everyday. She has also studied Russian and is interested in a diplomatic corps career.

Douglas Conley spent three weeks in Moscow and three in Leningrad, traveling with a study group sponsored by the American Institute of Foreign Study. He did much sightseeing on his own in both cities and undertook walking tours in the countryside. He began his trip with a visit to Poland and also visited several Yugoslavian towns, including Trpanj.

In Moscow, he took classes at the Methodological Institute, which specializes in teaching Russian to foreigners. "I studied with a class of about ten students. It was a particularly challenging course because the professors spoke no English," he said.

In Leningrad he continued his studies with faculty members from Leningrad State University. While in Leningrad he met some Russian students interested in buying American consumer goods. This encounter resulted in conversations about Russian and American tastes and invitations to Russian homes. Since most of the Russians he met spoke no English, he had to communicate almost exclusively in Russian.

Russian students, he found, appeared to consider American friends prestigious. They expressed strongly patriotic views about their country in combination with a realistic view of its problems. "Most of the students had some background in a foreign language from their elementary school classes. Beyond the elementary level, classes become more specialized. The students I talked to wished mainly for the chance to take more elective subjects in college and for the opportunity for more travel," he said.

Mr. Conley is studying Russian literature and history this year, having studied the Russian language for the past five years. He plans to continue his Russian studies in the future.

VARC Courses' Deadline

A registration deadline of Nov. 1 has been set for two non-credit courses to be offered at the Virginia Associated Research Campus in Newport News by the Office of Special Programs.

S. Dean Olson, director of publications, will offer a course in "Business Communication" from Nov. 13 through Jan. 29; and "Career Planning," being taught by two William and Mary professors in the School of Education, is a five-week course offered from Nov. 10 through Dec. 8.

Fees and registration details may be obtained from the Director of Special Programs at VARC, phone 877-9231.

"Business Communication" will provide a brief theoretical understanding of communication within a business organization and will update and review the student's knowledge of basic communication as well as show how communication skills are used for business letters, reports and memoranda.

Mr. Olson has an M.A. in communications from the University of Washington. He has taught writing and has been a member of the College's administrative staff for the past six years. A journalist and former free-lance writer, he has published a number of articles in newspapers and magazines.

"Career Planning," designed for adults considering a second career and students exploring an occupation for the first time, will include counseling and testing to determine personality and interest patterns.

Biographical data will be incorporated into the final counseling sessions to assure compatibility with an individual's life style. Individual sessions will be scheduled for testing, interpretation and counseling for the purpose of identifying educational or career goals and assisting the student to obtain these objectives.

Instructors for the course will be Fred Adair and Kevin Geoffroy who both have extensive experience in the field of career planning.

Mr. Adair has served as director, Career Planning, Testing and Placement and as Counseling Psychologist and Director of Testing at Franklin and Marshall College before coming to William and Mary. Mr. Geoffroy has recently served as president of the Peninsula Personnel and Guidance Association and as editor-in-chief of the Virginia Personnel and Guidance Journal.

W&M Freshmen Cited

A recent issue of the UPI Reporter, an in-house newsletter for editors and reporters of the United Press International News service, devoted its front page to Williamsburg and the College.

About the College, H. L. Stevenson, UPI Editor and Vice President, wrote the following:

"More than a thousand freshmen, and a few hundred transfers from other schools, started classes at the College of William and Mary the day after Labor Day. The newcomers were welcomed one evening at a party thrown by Colonial Williamsburg. For the first time at this annual affair beer was substituted for punch. Apple cider was available, too. The cider outdrew the beer by a wide margin and this caused speculation among the adult hosts.

"Their hair and clothes look neater this year, too," someone said. For some, who never quite understood the youth revolution in the first place, the swing to more conservative dress and haircuts is just as mystifying."

Homecoming Court and Alumni Honored

President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., gives homecoming queen Susan Early a traditional kiss at the half-time of the William and Mary-Davidson tilt, as Society of the Alumni President Randy Davis looks on.

Susan Early, a senior biology major from Hillsville, was presented as Miss 1973 Homecoming Queen during half time festivities last Saturday in Cary Field. Miss Early was escorted by William Brun, chairman of the Board of Student Affairs.

Other members of the court and their escorts included: Freshman princesses Melita Love of Bowie, Md., escorted by Dave Ryan of Schenectady, N.Y., junior representative to the Board of Student Affairs, and April Wells of Richmond, escorted by Steve Hopkins of Pittsburgh, Pa., past speaker of the SA Senate.

Sophomore princesses presented were Sherry Hanson of Arlington and Karen Larson of Davenport, Iowa. Their escorts were Dave Oelberg of Hyattsville, Md., president of the Interfraternity Council and Jim Rees of Richmond, editor of the Flat Hat newspaper.

Junior princesses presented were Lynn Melzer of Lake Forrest, Ill., and Chris McKechnie of Fairfax. Their escorts were Douglas Pinter of Ridgefield, Conn., chairman of the Honors

Council, and Cornell Christianson of Fair Lawn, N.J., president of Omicron Delta Kappa leadership fraternity.

Lynn Adams of Portsmouth and Sarah Beeler of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, were presented as senior princesses. They were escorted by Bruce Pflaum, Geneva, Ill., speaker of the SA Senate and Earle MacKenzie of Norfolk, treasurer of the Student Association and the senior class.

A special presentation during half time festivities honored Rolf Kennard, '24, of Cheverly, Md., who was presented a certificate in recognition of his 50th consecutive homecoming.

Athletic Hall of Fame awards were presented at a special pre-game ceremony to Ralph Sazio, '43, Burlington, Ontario; Bob Steckroth, '43, Norfolk; Ed Meadows, '53, Cliffside Park, N.J.; Walter Brodie, '57, Richmond; Elliott Schaubach, '59, Norfolk; Bob Lusk, '56, Westland, Mich.; Bill Chambers, '53, Stoneham, Mass.; Fred Kovaleski, '49, New York City; Gardner Larned, '50, Flossmoor, Ill.; and Gardner Walter Fillman, '58, Haddonfield, N.J.

Ad-Men — Society Play to Second Half Tie

Fleet Defensive Halfback Graves

Despite overwhelming odds, the Administration played the Bishop Madison Society to a scoreless tie in the second half of their touch football game last Sunday.

Bishop Madison was on the Administration 3 yard line when the game ended. With three seconds left, Bishop Madison tried a desperation pass, but fleet cornerback S. Dean Olson slapped it down in the end zone.

Bishop Madison showed an impressive aerial game through much of the first half--until President Graves arrived on the field and went in at defensive halfback for the Administration. Amazingly, the Society, which includes many faculty on contract, did not complete a single pass in President Graves' zone.

"The President definitely provided the inspirational leadership for our pass defense," said an administrator who hopes to get a raise next year.

In addition to Olson and President Graves, Bob Hunt, Warren Heemann, Dudley Jensen, Fred Wallace, Jim Baron, and Mr. Foster played for the Administration. The Society, which prefers to remain anonymous, had 25 players.

It may be of interest to some readers that the Society won 26-0.
