New Wildlife Prints

A leading wildlife painter and conservationist has donated 500 prints of his latest work to the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Guy Coheleach of Huntington, N.Y., has given the prints of his painting entitled "Red-Shafted Flicker" to the Law School so that the proceeds from their sale will go towards the Environmental Law Fund. Details concerning the sale of the prints will be announced at a later time.

Some 25 different prints of recent works by Mr. Coheleach will be on exhibit at a reception in his honor, hosted by President and Mrs. Thomas A. Graves, Jr., on Thursday, November 1, in the Robert Andrews Fine Arts Hall at 6 p.m.

Mr. Coheleach's ties with William and Mary stem primarily from his close association with Scott Whitney, professor of environmental law, at the College. Both men share a deep concern for conservation and environmentalism and are members of the Explorer's Club of New York City.

Mr. Coheleach had a successful career in advertising before he began painting full-time. He is currently head of his own firm, Regency House Art, Inc.

His gift for painting character, motion, and life into his birds and animals is as deep as his thirst for adventure. He has undertaken several trips to Africa where he has painted the breathtaking beauty of an egret, the fear of a gazelle being chased by a cheetah, and the thundering fury of an angry elephant.

The youngest member ever to be admitted to the Adventurer's Club of New York, Mr. Coheleach has done illustrations for an American Heritage series, the World Book Encyclopedia, The Saturday Evening Post, and covers for Reader's Digest and color plates for ornithological publications.

His "American Eagle" was chosen by the State Department and prints of the painting are presented to visiting heads of state. One of Mr. Coheleach's finest elephant paintings is presently hanging in the White House.

Parents' Day Set

Parents' Day this year will be held Saturday, November 10.

The annual affair, sponsored by the Association of Parents and the Student Association, will get underway Friday, November 9, with a green and gold basketball game at 8 p.m. in William and Mary Hall. Later that evening the Hoi Polloi will hold a special "50's Night" for parents from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

Saturday's activities include: a continental breakfast, 8:30-10 a.m., W&M Hall; general meeting, 8:30-10 a.m., in which President Graves, SA president Chris Owens, members of the faculty, and officers of the Parents' Association will meet briefly. The new

Director of Safety and Security Appointed

College Tackles Security Problems

William and Mary, in the newest of a series of moves to attack campus security problems, announced Friday the appointment of a specially trained police officer as the College's first director of safety and security.

William J. Carter, vice president for business affairs, said that Harvey P. Gunson, 39, a seventeen-year veteran of the New York City Police Department force, will take the newly created post on January 2. In the meantime, however, Mr. Carter said, Mr. Gunson will make several visits to the campus to consult on security measures.

Mr. Gunson, who holds a bachelor's degree from the John Jay College of Criminal Justice of the City University of New York, was the unanimous choice of a student-faculty selection committee which participated in a nationwide search starting early in 1973.

Other efforts now underway to mount the attack on security problems include:

- *Installation of mercury vapor lamps at key locations and floodlights at residence hall entrances and at the ends of these buildings, to increase night-time visibility and help prevent the danger of assault. The equipment, on order for several months, was ordered as an emergency measure despite the fact that no funds were budgeted for it.

- *Employment of a secretary for the Security Office, and its relocation to larger quarters in the center of campus, in order to improve the force's operations.

- *Upgrading of the Security Office's radio communications system, with some $2,500 in equipment awaiting delivery.

- *Establishment of a volunteer student escort service, in conjunction with the campus Security Office, by the Student Association. The SA is seeking 150 volunteer students to staff the escort service beginning in November. Under the plan, the escorts will be on call each night at the Security Office in order to walk coeds through the campus and to their destinations. During inclement weather, College vehicles will be available to assist.

- *Establishment of an SA-sponsored training program aimed at teaching students the techniques of self-defense, again in cooperation with the Security Office.

- *Employment of several students to work as "plainclothes" security staff members at night, to augment the regular security force. These auxiliary staff members have been on duty since the start of the fall semester.

Mr. Carter pointed to two requests before the 1974 General Assembly which, he said, have been given "top priority" by the College for its next budget.

The request has been made for five additional security officers to expand the existing strength to 20 full-time officers.

In addition, the College has asked for $126,500 in capital outlay funds to completely revamp the campus' outdoor lighting system.

The budget requests are under review by the Governor's Budget Advisory Board and, if approved, would become part of the Governor's budget proposals for consideration by the 1974 General Assembly.

The new director of safety and security, a native of Brooklyn, served in the Army in Korea prior to joining the New York Police Department in 1956.

In his new position, Mr. Gunson will be responsible to Mr. Carter for a continuous safety and security program including direction of the Security Force.

Part of his work will involve conducting safety training and inspections to insure that employees and supervisors on the campus are familiar with safety requirements. He will also direct investigations of alleged violations of the law, coordinating his work when appropriate with federal, state or city agencies.

Current Exhibits

Exhibits presently being held on campus include:

Gutzon Collection, Andrews Hall, ending Sunday, November 19.

Tucker-Coleman Exhibit, Botetourt Gallery, Swem Library, ending Wednesday, October 31.

Business Administration

James E. Smith, associate professor, participated in the Third Annual Accounting and Auditing Conference held October 21-23 at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in Blacksburg. The conference is sponsored by the Virginia Society of CPA's and the Department of Accounting at VPI&SU.

Mr. Smith participated in a panel discussion of accounting and auditing problems.

Chemistry

Robert A. Orwoll, associate professor, has published the paper "Volume Changes of Mixing and Excess Coefficients of Expansion for Solutions of Polymethylene in n-Decane," Macromolecules, 6, 755 (1973). John A. Small, a former student, collaborated in this work.

Education

During the leadership conference sponsored by the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics in Norfolk on October 12, a committee of ten participants was formed to study the need for the existence of a state-wide leadership group to be affiliated with NCTM in addition to the local affiliated groups. Stuart Flanagan, associate professor, was appointed chairman of the committee and a grant will be forthcoming from NCTM to facilitate the study.

Tyree Elected ORAU Council Chairman

S. Y. Tyree, Jr.

Government

George Grayson, associate professor, has written a brief review of Revolutionary Change in Cuba, edited by Carmelo Mesa-Lago, that will appear in the spring number of the Journal of Politics.

Mr. Grayson's essay, "The Church and Military in Peru: From Reaction to Revolution" will appear in Religion and Political Modernization, edited by Donald E. Smith, to be published this winter by the Yale University Press.

Mr. Grayson's article analyzing Venezuela's multi-party system will be published in the January issue of Current History.

Religion

Three members of the department will attend the annual meeting of the American Academy of Religion at the Palmer House in Chicago, November 8-12.

James C. Livingston, dean of the undergraduate program, and Marc M. Kellner, lecturer in religion, will read papers at the meeting. Mr. Livingston's paper is entitled "Matthew Arnold's Religious Criticism: A Reappraisal of the Critics." The title of Mr. Kellner's paper is "The Place of Civil Disobedience in the Light of Traditional Jewish Sources."

President Graves has appointed Thomas M. Finn, associate professor, to serve on the Committee of the Ferguson Seminar in Publishing. The seminar will meet on campus November 15-16.

S. Y. Tyree, Jr., professor of chemistry, has been elected chairman of the Council of Oak Ridge Associated Universities (ORAU) for a three-year term. The post includes automatic membership on the ORAU Board of Directors.

ORAU is a nonprofit corporation of southern colleges and universities. A pioneer among corporate university management groups of its type in the United States, it was incorporated in October 1946. ORAU conducts programs of education, information and research, and human resource development under a prime operating contract with the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and on behalf of the AEC and other governmental and private organizations. Its chief governing body is the Council, composed of one representative from each of the more than 40 sponsoring institutions.

For the 1974-75 academic year the National Council of Alpha Lambda Delta will award the following fellowships for graduate study: the Maria Leonard Fellowship, the Alice Crocker Lloyd Fellowship, the Adele Hagner Stamp Fellowship, the Kathryn Sisson Phillips Fellowship, the Christine Yerges Conaway Fellowship, the May Augusta Brunson Fellowship and the Fiftieth Anniversary Miriam A. Sheldon Fellowship. The amount of each fellowship is $2,000. Attendance at a graduate school on a campus where there is a chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta is encouraged.

Any member of Alpha Lambda Delta who graduated with a cumulative average of Alpha Lambda Delta initiation standard is eligible. Graduating seniors may apply if they have achieved this average to the end of the first semester of this year.

Applicants will be judged on scholastic record, recommendations, the soundness of their stated project and purpose, and need.

Application blanks and information may be obtained from Dean Lynn S. Schulz, James Blair Hall, Room 210.

The application form must be completed by the applicant herself and submitted, by January 5, to the National Headquarters of Alpha Lambda Delta, Box 279, Lewisburg, Pa., 17837.

Career Seminar Set

A career seminar will be held in Room A of the Campus Center Tuesday, November 13, from 3-5 p.m. All students, regardless of classification, and faculty members are invited to attend the seminar.

Representatives from the following agencies will be present: National Institutes of Health, Central Intelligence Agency, General Accounting Office, Social Security Administration and the U.S. Army Audit Agency.

Brief presentations will be made by the representatives from 3-4 p.m., which will be followed by a question and discussion period.

Anyone interested in attending should notify the Office of Placement, Ext. 518 or 519, prior to Saturday, November 10.

STAFF NOTES

Buildings and Grounds

The marriage of the former Evelyn Ripley, housekeeping supervisor, to John Kilmon was recently announced. Mr. Kilmon is employed by the C&P Telephone Company in Hampton. The Kilmons are making their home in Denbigh.

Swem Library

Brenda Heywood, clerk-typist in the Cataloging Department of Swem Library, recently appeared in the lead role, Beauty, of a children's opera "Simple Simon" which was produced by the Peninsula Civic Opera Company.

Adair Pool Schedule

Schedule for recreational swimming at Adair Pool October 29-March 1:

Sunday, 1-5 p.m.
Monday-Wednesday, 11:15 a.m.-
12:15 p.m.
Monday-Thursday, 9:30-10:30 p.m.
Friday, 2-4:30 p.m.
Saturday, 2-5 p.m.

Odd Jobs Week

Phi Mu sorority is sponsoring its annual Odd Jobs Week, which ends Saturday, November 3. The funds will be used to support the hospital ship, USS Hope, the chapter's national charity.

Services include raking leaves, cleaning homes and babysitting. For details call Lydia Loo at Ext. 507 or 229-6169.

Audio-Visual Films

Films ordered through Audio-Visual by members of one department can often be utilized by other departments. Time limitations and charges imposed by film suppliers prevent unlimited showings.

Monthly listings of films ordered are supplied to Deans of Schools and Department chairmen. Faculty members may also make inquiries about these films from C. W. Reeder, Audio-Visual Department, Ext. 409.

Lecture Rescheduled

John A. Searle's lecture on "The Uses of Language" has been rescheduled for Wednesday, October 31, at 4 p.m.

The location of the lecture has been changed to the Campus Center, Rooms A&B. The lecture was previously set for October 24.

Mr. Searle is professor of philosophy at the University of California at Berkeley. His lecture is arranged in cooperation with the University Center in Virginia, Inc.

Honors Council President Elected

R. Carlyle Beyer

R. Carlyle Beyer, professor of history, was elected president of the National Collegiate Honors Council at its eighth annual meeting held in Williamsburg last week. Mr. Beyer is also director of the Honors and Experimental Program, including Project Plus.

CAMPUS PROFILE / Lynn Skerrett Schulz

Orientation was streamlined this year through the efforts of a new member of the Student Affairs staff.

Lynn Skerrett Schulz undertook this job as one of her first assignments in August as the new associate dean of students for student development.

In scheduling events for the orientation period, Ms. Schulz worked with the faculty-student orientation committee. A major concern this year, she said, was to cut down on the number of meetings freshmen had to attend, eliminating the duplication of information and generally condensing activities into a four-day period. She also helped implement an initial general group meeting which was followed by more specific individual advising sessions.

Ms. Schulz is responsible for developing programs for personal and group counseling services to freshmen and entering transfer students; advising student judicial organizations and administering College regulations. She also is first reviewer of Honor Council decisions.

Ms. Schulz is a member of the academic status, social and disciplinary committees. A former Exeter exchange student, she is especially interested in helping students plan for study in foreign countries. In her capacity as foreign studies advisor, she will provide information on various programs to interested students.

United Fund Drive

Although the United Fund campaign is going well, campus chairman Jack D. Edwards indicates the College community is still a long way from its goal.

Anyone desiring information or a pledge card should call Violet Clarke at Ext. 225.

Please submit your donation before Monday, November 5.

"I would like to meet as many students as possible and encourage them to stop by even if they don't have any problems," she said. Ms. Schulz has her office on the second floor of James Blair Hall in Room 210.

As an alumna, Ms. Schulz needed little time to become reacquainted with the campus. A 1967 graduate, with highest honors in psychology, she received the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in psychology from the University of Virginia. She was assistant professor of educational psychology in the University of Delaware's School of Education before returning to Williamsburg.

ATGSB Test on Nov. 3

The Admission Test for Graduate Study in Business, a necessary prerequisite for applicants to the Master of Business Administration program at the College, will be offered here November 3.

For the first time, the test will be available to those who have not filed advance registration with Educational Testing Service. Walk-in test registrations will be accepted on the morning of the ATGSB offering. The fee for such walk-in registrations will be the normal testing charge of $12 plus a $10 late registration fee for a total of $22.

The examination will be given in Room 301 of Hugh Jones Hall. Walk-in registrants should report no later than 8:15 a.m. on Saturday, November 3.

The Admission Test for Graduate Study in Business score is a part of the admission application requirements for individuals seeking admission to the M.B.A. degree program at the College in January 1974. This will be the last opportunity for the ATGSB to be taken prior to the January entry date.

Those interested in applying for the M.B.A. degree program entry in January 1974 should complete applications in the near future. January admission decisions will be made early in December with successful applicants, both full-time and part-time students, notified early in December. Application forms for entry into the M.B.A. program will be available in Hugh Jones 301 at the time the test is given.

Office Machines Display

The Tidewater Office Machines Company will demonstrate the SCM typewriter, adding machines and calculators Thursday, November 8, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Room C of the Campus Center.

President's Budget Presentation

The following presentation was made by President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., on October 9, to Governor Linwood Holton and his Advisory Board on the Budget.

In this capsule presentation I should like to touch briefly on the major and salient elements of the Maintenance and Operation Budget for the 1974-76 biennium, touching also on several significant factors pertinent to the development of this budget.

Two years ago the College of William and Mary requested for the 1972-74 biennium a General Fund appropriation of $22,514,000. For 1974-76 we are requesting $28,094,705, an increase of $5,580,705 or 24.78%.

Of the $22,514,000 we requested for 1972-74 we received only $16,694,675 in appropriations, or 74.15%. As a result, in order to maintain and advance the quality of our educational services and still maintain a balanced budget, we had to increase our tuition and general fees by $46 for Virginia students, and by $182 for non-Virginia students in 1972-73. Again in 1973-74 we were forced to increase our tuition and general fee by $50 for Virginia students and by $150 for non-Virginia students.

Our tuition and general fee for this academic year is $756 for Virginia students, and $1926 for non-Virginia students, both of which are among the highest within the State system of higher education.

We believe it would be unwise, financially and educationally, to increase our tuition and general fee again in 1974-75 or 1975-76, for we are already pushing to the limit the charges that are reasonable and prudent for a state institution that is in service to all Virginians, regardless of their financial status. So we respectfully request that the College be funded to the full limit of its request of $28,094,705. This is a tight, realistic budget, developed with scrupulous attention to the formulae guidelines that have been prescribed, based upon demonstrated needs and upon a new budgetary control system at the College designed to keep costs to an absolute minimum consonant with educational and financial responsibility and accountability.

William and Mary's Programs

Our total fund requirements are all for "current programs," under the definitions in the budget instructions. We are not proposing new programs not heretofore funded, nor are we markedly expanding current programs in the coming biennium. Within our current mission and range of programs, however, we wish to make specific efforts to improve and enhance the educational quality of these offerings to make them available to more students in both degree and non-degree programs.

William and Mary includes not only regular educational programs at the undergraduate, master's and doctoral levels in Williamsburg, in both arts and sciences and the professions, but graduate and special programs at the Virginia Associated Research Campus and at the Space Radiation Effects Laboratory, master's and doctoral programs at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science, the summer session, the evening division and a substantial continuing education program. We are not a large institution, however, because our resources are limited, and we believe we can best serve by serving well. So our fund requirements are relatively modest and relatively stable. At the same time, because our budget is tight, and because every dollar must count in an institution that emphasizes quality, we really need every dollar asked for. The return on this investment will be to the citizens of the Commonwealth.

In developing our fund requirements we have used the following inflation rates for 1974-76, based on the calculations of the Bureau of Business Research at William and Mary:

1973-74 - 6% over actual 1972-73 figures

1974-75 - 5% over calculated 1973-74 figures

1975-76 - 4% over calculated 1974-75 figures.

This inflation, which is a very conservative projection, accounts for a substantial part of the increase we are requesting.

Instruction and personnel costs constitute the bulk of our operating costs. Our faculty salary averages (for 9-10 months' teaching) are as follows:

1972-73, $14,047; and 1973-74, $15,285.

The standard for the peer group to which we have been assigned is $16,600 in 1973-74, placing us in a position where it is increasingly difficult to attract and retain the quality of faculty necessary to provide the quality of education expected of us by the Commonwealth. We must remedy this situation in 1974-76, and I state this as our most urgent and number one priority. The competitive problem for top faculty in our professional schools such as law and business is desperate, and in the arts and sciences we are in almost as serious a position. For example, at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law the median salaries currently rank 129 among the 148 accredited law schools in the country reporting to the American Bar Association, in comparison to the median salaries at the University of Virginia Law School ranking 13 out of 148. This is an intolerable situation that at best reflects a double standard for a law school that is expected to turn out lawyers as good as any in the land. We discussed this critical problem in detail with the State Council of Higher Education on October 2.

Budget Requests

We are asking for a faculty salary average of $16,600 for 1974-75, as designated by the Division of the Budget; and a faculty salary average of $17,928 for 1975-76, or an 8% increase over the 1974-75 average, as detailed on page 17 of the Budget Exhibit. I ask your urgent attention to this problem.

We are requesting 71.96 full time equivalent new faculty and research positions for the 1974-76 biennium, all according to prescribed ratios. More than $5,000,000 is included for new faculty positions and for regrading of faculty positions, as prescribed.

The budget request also calls for 76 new full time equivalent classified positions in the Educational and General section of the budget, again according to the formulae. Most of these are supporting and clerical personnel. But six positions are for new security and safety personnel that are urgently required to deal with an increasingly dangerous situation on our campus, as elsewhere, in order to protect the persons and properties of our students and staff. This is a top priority request.

Our enrollment will continue to rise modestly in 1974-76, held down by our lack of resources, primarily living hall space. Actual enrollment in 1972-73 was 5516 full time equivalent in regular session and summer session. This has climbed to 5873 full time equivalent in 1973-74. We forecast its rising to 5902 full time equivalent by 1975-76, for an increase of 6.9% over the 1972-73 enrollment. This is a minimum figure that could go higher if we obtain the resources to allow us to be of greater service to more citizens of the Commonwealth.

As I stated in my presentation to the State Council of Higher Education on October 2, William and Mary plays a unique role within the diversified system of higher education in Virginia, one in which I believe its citizens can be justly proud. But we desire to be of broader public service to more Virginians and especially to the adult population in the Tidewater area.

We believe that the citizens of Virginia deserve, need and desire the kind of quality education that we offer at William and Mary. We must provide this education to more citizens at no higher cost per individual than our already high tuition and general fee requires. We can do this only if we are provided with the general funds to expand and improve our educational offerings and provide education of high quality for all who desire it and who qualify for it. This requires more resources than we have. This is why our 1974-75 General Fund request is up 55.99% over our 1973-74 appropriation, why the 1975-76 request is up 7.14% over the 1974-75 request, why the biennium request is a 68.29% increase of the 1972-74 biennium appropriation.

These are significant increases, especially for 1974-75, and I know that the resources available to you in making these budget decisions are limited. But we would be remiss in trying to meet our obligations to the people of the Commonwealth if we did not request it in this biennium budget. If this request is granted, the College of William and Mary will be able to do the job that we believe you, the State Council of Higher Education, and the General Assembly, speaking for the people of Virginia, expect of it.

OFFICE OF DEVELOPMENT

The Rockefeller Foundation and The Ford Foundation--A Program in Support of Population Policy Research in the Social Sciences, Humanities, and Law

This is the fourth year of a world wide program of awards, previously restricted to social scientific and legal research, but this year extended to include research drawing on humanistic disciplines.

Suggested Research Areas: 1) Interaction of population variables and social, cultural, and humanistic concerns; 2) Interaction of population variables and economic policies; 3) Population distribution; and 4) Interaction of population variables and law.

Duration and Payment: Proposed research should begin on or after July 1, 1974 and be completed within two years. Preference will be given to projects that also have some support from the institution with which the applicant is affiliated, or from other sources, and to proposals seeking a relatively modest amount of funding. In some cases, awards may be made that cover all costs of a proposal. In no case will an award exceed $50,000, and a grant of such magnitude will be rare under this program.

Genuinely collaborative research involving scholars of more than one country will be welcomed.

Deadline: January 15, 1974

Further details on research areas, criteria, and application format are available in Mrs. Neiman's office, Ext. 519.

Graduate Fellowships

Hughes Aircraft Company: Doctoral, Engineer, and Master's Fellowship Programs for engineering, mathematics and physics students. The value of the awards, including salary associated with work assignments, ranges from $8,500 to $13,000. For further information write to: Scientific Education Office; Hughes Aircraft Co.; Building 100, U-614; Box 90515; Los Angeles, California 90009.

Mathematics Research Center, University of Wisconsin: fellowships in any of the Departments of Mathematics, Computer Sciences, or Statistics. Inquiries should be directed to: Prof. R. C. Buck, Acting Director, Mathematics Research Center, University of Wisconsin, 610 N. Walnut Street, Madison, Wisconsin 53706.

Ames Laboratory: Iowa State University--graduate assistantships in mathematical sciences. Inquiries to: Dr. R. S. Hansen, Director, Ames Laboratory, Box 1129, ISU Station, Ames, Iowa 50010.

National Academy of Sciences Exchange with USSR and Eastern European Academies invites applications from American scientists who wish to make visits beginning during the period September 1974 through August 1975 in the USSR, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Rumania or Yugoslavia. Under agreements with the respective academies of sciences, American scientists may make visits of a minimum of one month's duration for familiarization with current scientific research or longer visits of 3 to 12 months for research.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens and have a doctoral degree or its equivalent in mathematics; the physical, biological, or engineering sciences; or social or behavioral sciences by the time of the intended visit. For the purposes of the exchange programs, those social and behavioral sciences which are empirical and quantitative and which focus on individual and group behavior are included. All necessary expenses will be met by the NAS and the foreign academy, including reimbursement for salary lost up to $1,500 a month during a visit of 3 months or more and expenses for accompanying family on visits of 5 months or more.

Requests for applications should reach the Office of the Foreign Secretary not later than November 7, 1973; deadline for receiving completed applications is November 21, 1973.

Inquiries should be directed to the Office of the Foreign Secretary, USSR/EE
National Academy of Sciences
2101 Constitution Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20418

Graduate Women in Science

A grant-in-aid of $750 is available to any woman who holds a degree from a recognized institution of higher learning and has demonstrated outstanding ability and promise in research in one of the mathematical, physical, or biological sciences. The period of the grant shall not exceed one calendar year. The stipend may be applied either directly or to the research project or to course work, provided the latter is relevant to the research program. Appointments will be made irrespective of race, nationality, creed, or marital status. Special consideration will be shown to applicants 35 years of age or older, but younger women should feel free to apply.

Application form and credentials should be submitted before February 1, 1974. Announcement of awards will be made by April 1, 1974.

Further information and application forms may be obtained from:

Dr. Nell Mondy
Department of Human Nutrition and Food
MVR Hall--Cornell University
Ithaca, New York 14850.

Social Science Research Council

Research Training Fellowships: offered to social scientists who wish to obtain training in research beyond that normally required in doctoral programs in their own disciplines, to prepare them for innovative research in the social sciences. Acquisition of special technical skills, intellectual contact with scholars whose orientation is radically different from that of the applicant or training in research in another discipline may be most desirable in a given case. Promise of original contributions to the advancement of social science and the prospect that the proposed additional training may enhance the fulfillment of that promise will be the criteria of selection.

Fellowships may be held for terms of 9 to 12 months at any stage of a candidate's career subsequent to the completion of all requirements for the Ph.D. degree except for the dissertation. Applications from mature scholars are encouraged. The amount of each fellowship will be individually determined; allowance for maintenance of dependents and for tuition fees, travel, and other expenses is included when necessary. No other employment is permitted during the fellowship term.

A prospective candidate will be invited to submit a formal application only if this appears appropriate on the basis of preliminary review of his qualifications, objectives, and plans. He should first communicate with the Council, briefly describing his plans for supplementary research training and giving several specific items of information. Details in Mrs. Neiman's office, Ext. 519.

Preliminary inquiries should be made as early as possible before December 1, 1973, and formal applications submitted by January 3, 1974.

Soviet Union Grants for Research: postdoctoral research in the social sciences or humanities on Revolutionary Russia and the USSR. Preference will be given to applications in sociology, social psychology, cultural anthropology, economics, geography, and law, as well as projects which cross disciplinary boundaries. Grants may range from small sums for domestic travel or research expenses for short periods, to a maximum of $8,500 for maintenance in lieu of salary for 6 months of uninterrupted research.

Address:
American Council of Learned Societies
345 East 46th Street
New York, New York 10017.

Exxon Education Foundation: Education Research and Development Program

Support for projects that promise to lead to wide improvement in instruction, administration, or physical facilities utilization in higher education. Three types of projects: Pilot, Developmental Efforts, Studies. Most grants are in amounts not exceeding $100,000.

Deadlines: March 1, June 1, September 1, December 1

For further information, call Mrs. Neiman, Ext. 519.

Examples of projects previously supported:
American University--Video cassettes as a tool for language learning
Earlham College--Simulation games to replace psychology laboratory instruction
Harvard University--Assessment of the advantages and disadvantages of a three-year B.A. program
Virginia Polytechnic Institute--Management game for department chairmen

Grievance Procedures Studied

To help administrators of state agencies and officials of local government understand soon to be implemented employee grievance procedures, three members of the faculty are conducting seminars and workshops.

The Commonwealth of Virginia has taken initial steps to give nearly all public employees, professionals as well as hourly workers, an opportunity to air their job grievances.

By next June every county, city and town which has more than 15 employees must, by state law, have a grievance procedure patterned after the state's method of affording state employees an immediate and fair method for the resolution of disputes. The law also calls for the establishment of personnel systems including a classification plan for service and uniform pay. School teachers and administrators are exempt because they already have a grievance procedure.

The specific requirements of the new state law are covered in workshop sessions arranged by William H. Warren, associate professor of business administration; William W. Liddell, assistant professor of business administration, and Ronald C. Brown, associate professor of law at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Mr. Warren believes the requirement for grievance procedures will improve working conditions for public employees if administrators skillfully administer the grievance procedure and adopt administrative procedures to take into account the psychological needs of their employees.

A labor relations executive in industry before he turned to teaching, Mr. Warren believes more professional men and technical specialists are apt to join labor unions unless management stops ignoring their needs.

"Management does not have the human relations competence, or is not willing or patient enough to meet these needs," asserts Mr. Warren.

Scientist Thomas Hariot on Verge of New Recognition for his Discoveries

Thomas Hariot, who landed on Roanoke Island in 1585, the first English speaking scientist in America, may be on the verge of new recognition, according to a College physicist.

"Hariot is little known today for several reasons: his greatness has for centuries been obscured by the fact that he never himself published a scientific book and because his papers, although voluminous, are difficult to read and totally unsystematic," explained Hans von Baeyer, chairman of the Department of Physics. "Nevertheless, scholars have begun the task of editing Hariot and I believe the next 50 years will finally see his emergence into the light. He was a mathematician, astronomer, naturalist, and physicist who made original, fundamental discoveries in each of his fields," he said.

"Hariot's most productive period dates from 1590-1615, straddling the watershed year of 1600 when modern science began," noted Mr. von Baeyer. During this time he made many discoveries in the related fields of mathematics, astronomy, and physics. He was born in England in 1560.

In the field of mathematics Hariot introduced the use of the dot indicating multiplication, the greater than and lesser than signs, and the important convention of placing everything in an algebraic equation on one side and zero on the other, just to name a few. He made important contributions

Technicians and professionals in both industry and government are susceptible to unionism because "salaried groups are getting a smaller slice of the pie" while employers, bound by contract, must give more to union wage earners.

Employees such as engineers and other professionals "have seen the gap between their salaries and benefits and those of the blue collar work force narrow to a point where it no longer gives them the status distinctions originally differentiating blue collar and professional work," Mr. Warren notes. "And they have become subject to the insecurities of big business economic activity, including layoffs, unpleasant transfers and salary adjustments curtailed by management or limited by the Cost of Living Council."

Unionized groups have averaged almost 7 per cent pay increases since the inception of the federal pay board, but salaried employees have been held to the 5.5 per cent guideline.

And there are other, underlying unmet needs of the professional work force, Mr. Warren contends. These include the psychological needs to have influence on one's work environment and to have a voice in one's job situation, two conditions which in a period of rapidly changing industrial and social development are no longer as available to professionals as previously.

And as job related frustrations mount among professional men and technical specialists, their traditional reluctance to unionize is breaking down, Mr. Warren claims.

"Management should try to assure, by positive actions, that their professional employees do have a voice in their environment and a system of justice in the workplace," Mr. Warren said.

to the theory of interpolation, analytic geometry and experimented with binary numbers. He also discovered a rudimentary formula for computing the area of the spherical triangle, noted Mr. von Baeyer.

As an astronomer, Hariot predates Galileo in some areas, observed Mr. von Baeyer. In 1609 Hariot used a telescope to look at the moon. "It is known," he said, "that in 1610 Hariot drew clear diagrams of sunspots, anticipating Galileo." He also observed the moons of the planet Jupiter and calculated their periods and in 1607 Hariot observed what is now known as Haley's Comet.

"The fact that Hariot made all these discoveries was known to later astronomers. Around the year 1800 a German, Baron von Zach, attempted to rescue Hariot from obscurity but he was so severely rebuffed by his English colleagues, who apparently worshipped Galileo, that after a lifetime of struggle, he had to give up in defeat," explained Mr. von Baeyer.

In physics, Hariot's discoveries were all anticipations, according to Mr. von Baeyer. "That is," he said, "they are discoveries which he made privately and which were later made by others and publicized, and for which others have received the credit. Hariot's letters and manuscripts show an impressive list of discoveries which he anticipated," noted Mr. von Baeyer.

Hariot "anticipated" the law of refraction, rediscovered 20 years later

Pumpkin Contest Held

J. Roberts (l), P. Abernathy and A. Rose

"Cinderella's Coach Pumpkin," created by Amy Rose, '77, McLean, and Patricia Abernathy, '77, Alexandria, tied for first place with "Fidel Castro" created by Jody Roberts, '77, Bennington, Vt., in last Sunday night's "Pumpkin Judging Contest" at Brown dormitory.

Following a talk on "The Meaning of a Liberal Arts Education," James C. Livingston, dean of the undergraduate program, chose the winning pumpkins.

"Cinderella's Coach Pumpkin" is on display in the Student Health Services Center. Other pumpkin entries may be viewed in Brown dormitory.

Dr. Cilley to Speak

Dr. Richard D. Cilley, director of student health services, will speak and show slides in Brown Hall Tuesday, November 6, at 8 p.m. Refreshments will be served following a question-and-answer period.

by Willebrord Snell and which now bears Snell's name, said Mr. von Baeyer. Hariot also observed the dispersion of white light with the use of a prism; solved the problem of the radius of the rainbow; and in 1605, found that green and red rays have different indices of refraction, anticipating Newton by 60 years, Mr. von Baeyer added.

Hariot believed that the periphery of a circle must be composed of an infinite number of atoms, or else it would not be possible to draw an infinite number of lines from the center to the circumference, a conclusion later reached by Galileo, reported Mr. von Baeyer.

Hariot was admired during his lifetime by famous friends, among them Kepler, Gilbert and the poet Chapman, said Mr. von Baeyer. He had his enemies, too, however; another reason his work is so little known, he pointed out. In 1591 Hariot was denounced by the Church as an atheist and a conjurer. In 1594 a commission on atheism was called upon to investigate charges on Hariot. These same charges were later issued to Sir Walter Raleigh, a contemporary and friend of Hariot's, noted Mr. von Baeyer.

"Although no capital charges were framed, the stigma remained," he observed. The charge of atheism was a terribly damaging one in that time, he said, and prevented Hariot from speaking out publicly about his discoveries and kept him from publishing them.
