Library Acquires Seventeenth-Century Book

The Earl Gregg Swem Library has recently purchased a copy of A Declaration of the State of the Colony and Affaires in Virginia, printed in London in 1620. It is the Virginia Company's operating report for 1620, and includes a list of its members. Two editions were published that year, in five issues, as new information was taken back to England from Virginia. The Swem copy is the fifth and most complete issue. It contains five extra pages which had not appeared before, in which the Virginia Company discussed two ships with settlers that had sailed for the Colony in August, and ordered the departure of two supply ships, to arrive the following Spring.

Part of the book consists of the "Orders and Constitutions," the earliest printed code of government for any English colony in America. They marked the beginning of the orderly transfer of English political institutions to the New World and consist of 132 new regulations concerning the election of officials, landgrants, trade, legislation, and finance.

The purchase was made from the John Morris Presson Fund. Established by the will of Mr. Presson, Class of 1916, the Fund is to be used for "the purpose of purchasing, repairing, restoring, and maintaining Colonial Virginia books, pamphlets, documents, manuscripts, writings, and papers." Mr. Presson, a native of Harpersville, Warwick County (now part of Newport News), was a biologist who taught for many years at Girard College in Philadelphia.

The Fund has been applied in the other areas specified by Mr. Presson. It paid for extensive preservation work on the "Frenchman's Map," the famous Revolutionary War manuscript map belonging to the College, on which much of the restoration of Williamsburg has depended.

According to Henry Grunder, Swem curator of rare books, "the Presson Fund is a godsend. The things it makes possible are otherwise poorly funded even during the best of times, much less during economic pinches. The way in which the will stated the purposes of the Fund is ideal. People frequently overlook the needs of the on-going business of 'repairing, restoring, and maintaining.' But Mr. Presson apparently realized that they are just as important as acquiring. We are doubly grateful to him."

Law School Alumni Pledge $500,000

Alumni of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law have announced the pledge of $500,000 in voluntary support to the school, payable over the next ten years.

The announcement was made by D. Wayne O'Bryan, president of the Law School Association, at a kickoff meeting in Richmond of the Association's 1974 annual fund campaign.

Mr. O'Bryan said the pledge "was made on the assumption that the General Assembly will appropriate the $4.85 million necessary to construct a modern facility for the School of Law."

Construction of the facility adjacent to the National Center for State Courts will, he said, "encourage the two institutions to work in tandem in the fields of legal education and research."

The National Center this past summer decided to locate its headquarters in Williamsburg on property to be leased from the College. The decision was based in part on the opportunities for cooperative activities between the law school and the Center.

Mr. O'Bryan told the Richmond law alumni that the new school building will "allow Marshall-Wythe to expand its enrollment by one-third, thus obviating the need for establishment of a third state-supported school of law in Virginia. The half-million dollar pledge of private support for the William and Mary school is being made to help assure the continuing excellence of the instructional program during this expansion."

The law alumni last year contributed about $50,000 to the law school, double the goal of the annual campaign.

Registration for Evening College is Jan. 29

Registration for the Evening College courses will be held Tuesday, Jan. 29, in Blow Gymnasium from 7-8 p.m.

The Evening College bulletin listing the schedule and offering of courses is currently available from the Office of the Director of the Evening College, Paul N. Clem, James Blair Hall on campus.

Students in good standing may register by mail until Saturday, Jan. 19. Classes begin Thursday, Jan. 31.

As a conservation effort, the Evening College office will assist students in establishing car pools. The office is recording names, addresses, and days of the week students plan to be on campus for class as mail applications come in. A list of names, addresses, and telephone number will be provided for all commuting students. Students will be asked to arrange their own carpools however.

The principal requirement for admission to undergraduate courses offered through Evening College is graduation from a secondary school or good standing at the college or university previously attended.

Office of Special Programs Awarded $15,000 Lecture Grant

The Office of Special Programs has been awarded a grant of $15,000 from NASA, Langley Office of Research Grants and University Affairs, for the purpose of funding a free public lecture series.

The primary purpose of the program is to provide the Williamsburg-Tidewater community with an opportunity to hear speakers of national and international reputation, from a wide range of disciplines, speak on various science-related subjects. The objective is to provide the non-scientist of the community with a stimulating educational program.

Anthropology

Mario D. Zamora, visiting professor, was elected life member of the Royal Society for India, Pakistan, and Ceylon, London, England and of the Ethnographic and Folk Culture Society, Uttar Pradesh, India. He also became a member of the International Sociological Association, Milan, Italy, and was made reviewer for Modern Asian Studies, published by the Trinity College, Cambridge University, England.

English

Cecil M. McCulley, professor, attended a meeting at Thomas Nelson Community College January 4 as a member of the newly-formed Liberal Arts Advisory Council for that institution. The council, the first in Virginia established by a community college, consists of representatives of colleges and high schools in the area served by Thomas Nelson, which includes Williamsburg. The group was addressed at a luncheon by President Gerald O. Cannon, toured the campus, and met in the afternoon with Dean Arnold G. Abrams and other staff members concerned with the Associate in Arts degree program.

History

Professor Richard B. Sherman's review of J. Stanley Lemon's The Woman Citizen: Social Feminism in the 1920's was published in the December issue of The Journal of American History.

Law School

Associate professor Ron Brown's article on "Public Sector Collective Bargaining Perspective and Legislative Opportunities" appears in the most recent edition of the William and Mary Law Review. The article discusses the growth of public employee unionism in states with and without legislation and suggests appropriate legislative responses to the phenomenon.

Mr. Brown also delivered a speech on "Legal Implications of Tenure and Collective Bargaining in Higher Education" at the State Convention of the Virginia Education Association Department of Higher Education held in Richmond recently.

Mr. Brown's speech focused on the relationship between the rights of faculty as protected by traditional concepts of tenure in the Constitution and by collective bargaining.

Administration

Carter O. Lowance, Executive Vice President, has been reelected to the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges. Mr. Lowance's term expires in 1976.

CAMPUS PROFILE / Elsa Nettels

Associate professor of English Elsa Nettels, recipient of the Phi Beta Kappa Faculty Award for the Advancement of Scholarship, has concentrated in her research and teaching on the craft of fiction.

Two writers who particularly emphasize the importance of fiction as a craft, Henry James and Joseph Conrad, are the subject of a book-length study currently being undertaken by Miss Nettels. "The essential bond between James and Conrad is their dedication to the craft of fiction, which both on occasion defined in religious terms, as requiring of the artist unremitting patience, discipline and sacrifice," said Miss Nettels. In their attention to writing, "the passion for form and method which Conrad shared with James sets both writers apart from their contemporaries," she added.

As part of the common bond between James and Conrad, Miss Nettels notes that Conrad was to some extent influenced by James whom he considered the master of novelists. "For nearly twenty years James and Conrad were neighbors, correspondents and critics of each other's work. Both were aliens in England, separated for most of their adult lives from their native countries. In their fiction both writers portrayed states of alienation and isolation and analysed the contrast and conflict of cultures."

Miss Nettels has published various comparative studies of James and Conrad which she plans to incorporate into a book. No previous comprehensive study of the art of the two novelists has been made. While on leave of absence for the second semester of the 1973-74 academic year, Miss Nettels will pursue her research in Williamsburg and at the Houghton Library at Harvard University with the aid of a faculty research grant from William and Mary.

In her study she will include the character of the authors' friendship and the extent of James' influence on Conrad. She will define the process of artistic creation used by James and Conrad and the ways in which the action in certain of their novels symbolizes this process. Included will be a consideration of the relation of the novelist to his characters.

Miss Nettels' interest in a book-length study of James and Conrad began to take shape when she was giving a senior seminar on the two writers from 1967-70. She has taught the junior honors seminar in English and during the first semester taught modern fiction and a freshman colloquium on the uses of myth in modern fiction.

She has always preferred the novel to other literary forms, she says, partly because the novel is very flexible. In graduate school at the University of Wisconsin, she undertook writing a novel, an exercise which she believes can help the critical writer understand the art of fiction by illuminating the technical considerations of novelists.

Forthcoming articles by Miss Nettels will appear in Colby Library Quarterly, Nineteenth-Century Fiction, South Atlantic Bulletin and English Literature in Transition.

Putting It Together

As another service to the College community, the William and Mary News will publish periodically a section on healthful living and medical problems. Dr. Franklin Munsey, assistant director of health services, has agreed to serve as a columnist for the section.

Dr. Munsey has chosen, for his first article in the series, a feature on the Student Health Services Center.

"We're proud of our new facilities," said Dr. Munsey.

"Many students have visited the new Center," he said. "Those who haven't may want to know about us. . . . We're putting ourselves together. . . . We want students to know better how to take care of themselves and perhaps we'll even be able to encourage some to enter a health career."

The Center is open 24 hours a day when school is in session. Both doctors hold office hours from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 2 to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday and Saturdays from 10-11 a.m.

All students who have completed a physical examination form and who have paid the health service fee are entitled to the use of the Health Services facilities. There are, however, some medical services which the Student Health Service cannot provide without charge. A low rate group insurance policy to cover unexpected costs is available through the Treasurer-Auditor's Office.

All relationships between students and physicians are confidential, and at no time do the results of a diagnosis and treatment become part of a student's permanent college record. No information concerning an individual's contact with the Health Service will be released without his or her written permission.

The Center has 18 beds for in-patient care for those students who temporarily need more supervised and close medical attention.

Dr. Richard Cilley is director of Student Health Services. The Center staff includes eight registered nurses: Bettye Bracey, head nurse, Margaret Edmunds, Charlotte Bathurst, Gloria Birringer, Carol Gleason, Betty Reymer, Linda Price and Linda McCarthy.

Lois Byrd serves as medical secretary, and Shelby Haynes as clerk-receptionist. Maintenance staff members at the Center are Betty Crump, Doris Thomas and Willie Smith.

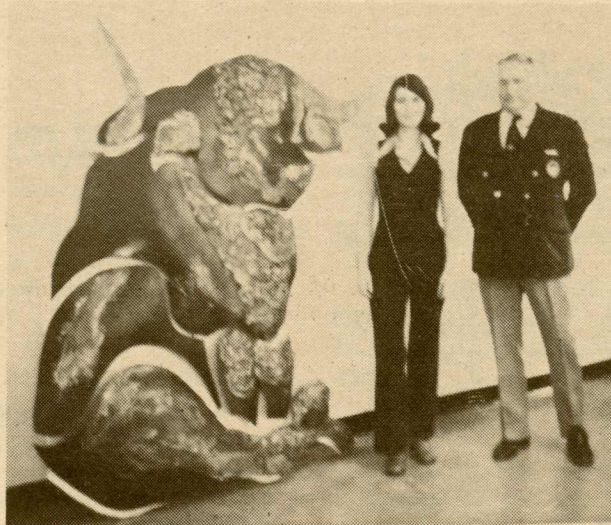

Hamada Wins High Karate Rank

Hiro Hamada took a runner-up position in the 20th All Japan National Winter Karate Championship in December. Competition was held in the ancient capital, Kyoto, City of Japan, with over 400 Black Belts participating. Mr. Hamada consecutively eliminated 6 high ranking Black-Belts and then fought against the former All Student Champion.

As a result of the tournament, and his contribution to the development of Martial Arts in the U.S., Mr. Hamada was awarded the high rank of 7th-dan Black Belt and the professional title of Kyoshi "The Instructor" from an old Japanese Master, Kumao Ono of Butokukai Association. This Association is the oldest Martial Arts organization and has over 500,000 members in Japan. Mr. Hamada is the youngest and the highest ranking holder in Karate-doh from the U.S. in this organization.

Mr. Hamada teaches karate at William and Mary, Christopher Newport College, and the Williamsburg Community Center.

Sitting Bull Sculpted for Campus Center

Kelly Richards (l) and Warren Green

The Sit 'N Bull Room of the Campus Center has finally acquired its namesake - a six foot "sitting bull." The large sculpture mounted on one wall of the room commands immediate attention.

Warren J. Green, director of the Campus Center, commissioned Kelly Richards, secretary to the Fine Arts Department, in October to construct a bull sitting on its haunches (a physical impossibility for the real animal) for the large study and meeting room on the third floor of the building. The Sit 'N Bull Room was originally located on the ground floor of the Campus Center building but later swapped space with the Flat Hat.

Using a steel base and sculpt metal, Miss Richards, a 1973 fine arts graduate of the College, worked three months to complete the massive piece of sculpture which weighs about 100 pounds. Working evenings in the Andrews Hall fine arts studio, she first drew a sketch and worked it up to scale, making patterns for the pieces of steel which she cut out with a nibble torch. Using a hammer, she pounded the metal until she achieved the effect she desired, then applied sculpt metal for a raised effect to outline the limbs of the animal. For the finishing touch, she applied a coat of silver spray paint. The bull has a ring through its nose, magnificently long eyelashes and is slightly reminiscent of Ferdinand the Bull.

A native of Ridgewood, N.J., Miss Richards plans to attend graduate school in sculpture and to pursue a career actively sculpting or teaching art.

Botetourt Medal Winner Receives Special Presentation

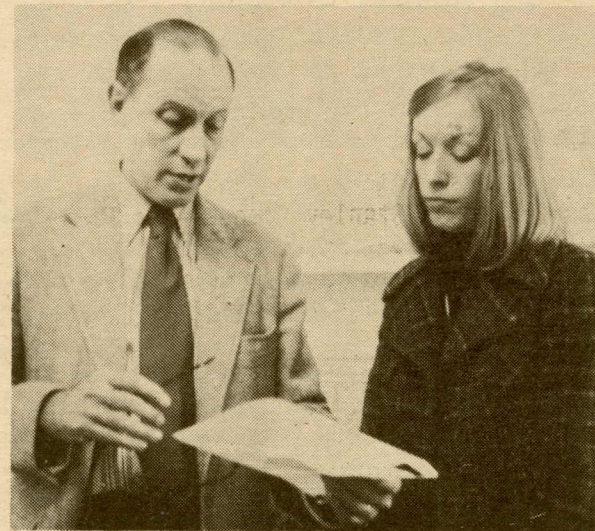

Louanna Ockerman Heuhsen, '72, now of Rodheim-Bieber, Germany, was in Williamsburg recently and stopped on campus for a special ceremony.

In his office on January 4, President Graves completed the presentation ceremony he began two years earlier.

When she graduated, Mrs. Heuhsen was designated the winner of the Lord Botetourt Medal for academic excellence but was not on hand to receive it. She had left two weeks before commencement and was a bride living in Germany.

President Graves, in announcing the award in 1972, said he hoped the audience's applause "could be heard across the Atlantic."

Mrs. Heuhsen, who with her husband is teaching English to seventh, eighth, and ninth graders in a German school, was in the United States for the first time since her marriage to attend the wedding of her sister in Kentucky, to visit her parents in Annapolis, Md., and to visit friends in Williamsburg.

President Graves and Louanna Heuhsen

The Lord Botetourt Medal was established in 1772 by Norborne Berkeley, Baron de Botetourt, Governor of Virginia, "for the honor and encouragement of literary merit." It has been revived in recent years as an award to the student from the graduating class who has attained the greatest distinction in scholarship.

Midi-Mester Courses Scheduled Jan. 17-25

A "midi-mester" offering 19 short courses and workshops in a variety of fields ranging from small appliance repair to international folk dancing, wine selection and menu reading will be held during the mid-year semester break, Thursday, January 17-Friday, January 25.

The program was instituted last year by Project Plus students, part of the academic-residential program on campus, in an effort to make innovative use of the interim period. This year the program is a College community project. Courses will be taught by faculty, staff, students, as well as members of the local community.

For information regarding the "midi-mester," contact the office of the Associate Dean for Administration, Carolyn L. Moseley, Room 208, James Blair Hall, Ext. 354.

Actions of the Board of Visitors at its Quarterly Meeting, Friday, January 11

At its regularly scheduled January meeting, held last Thursday and Friday on the Christopher Newport College campus, the Board of Visitors authorized a comprehensive study of the College's athletic policies.

The Board approved the 1974-75 Men's Athletic Association budget of $811,000, and the Athletic and Recreation Fee budget of $426,800.

Several personnel matters were discussed, some appointments made and a resolution introduced expressing appreciation for the efforts of many in the installation of a new eight-lane, all-weather track at Cary Field.

Progress reports were reviewed but no formal action taken on a lease for the proposed National Center for State Courts to be located on a part of the campus; evaluation procedures for administrative officers; student self-determination; a capital fund drive to be initiated in connection with the Bicentennial observance, and dormitory renovation for five buildings.

Reappointment of Richard Bland President

The Board approved the reappointment of Dr. Cornelis Laban as Acting President of Richard Bland College for the period September 1, 1974 - August 31, 1975.

Mr. Laban, associate professor and chairman of the Department of Biology, was appointed Acting President for the period September 1, 1974 - August 31, 1974, by the Board at its May, 1973, meeting.

Appointments

Several temporary replacements for faculty on leave of absence without pay are needed in the Faculty of Arts and Sciences for the second semester of the current academic year.

Faculty appointments to fill existing vacancies include the following:

Two faculty members were granted leaves of absence without pay during the period February 1, 1974-June 30, 1974.

GEORGE W. GRAYSON, Professor of Government, to participate in the forthcoming session of the General Assembly.

HARLAN E. SCHONE, Associate Professor of Physics, for the purpose of research and teaching at the University of British Columbia.

Deferred Retirement

The Board approved the deferred retirement of Thomas C. Fannin, supervisor in charge of all College utilities and power transmission, beyond June 30, 1974, on a temporary basis for a period of less than a full year.

Resignation

The Board accepted the resignation of Jenneth L. Peirce, instructor in English, for personal reasons, effective January 31, 1974.

Authorization of Athletic Policies Study

The Board authorized a comprehensive review of the William and Mary athletic policies, covering both men and women and both intercollegiate and intramural activities, by a special committee to be appointed by President Thomas A. Graves, Jr.

The findings and recommendations of the Committee are to be prepared in time for consideration by President Graves and the Board at its November, 1974, meeting.

The Board noted, "William and Mary continues to enjoy a high quality program of intercollegiate and intramural athletics, guided by an outstanding men's athletic director and able coaching staffs and by similarly highly qualified leaders in the field of women's athletics. These individuals and members of the faculties, the administration, and the student body recognize that current problems are not likely to diminish in the near future and feel that a comprehensive study of the overall situation is a prerequisite to setting long-term policies. Hopefully, such an examination can identify measures to augment and better distribute revenues so that the present quality and scope of programs can be maintained."

Athletic Budgets

The Board approved the 1974-75 operating budgets for the Men's Athletic Association, the Women's Athletic Association, and Athletic and Recreation Fees.

Operation Back-Track

Many alumni and friends of the College of William and Mary joined in making possible the installation of an eight-lane all-weather outdoor track at Cary Field.

Their devotion to the College and their appreciation of the leadership of Coach John Randolph in guiding outstanding student performers to numerous championships are typified in the generous gifts of Walter J. Zable, Roy R. Charles, James E. Maloney, and Steve Sacalis.

By reason of the generosity of these and others of similar dedication to the advancement of William and Mary and its character-building athletic programs, the College will formally open this fine new facility on April 6 in connection with the staging of the Colonial Relays.

RESOLVED, That the Board of Visitors hereby expresses its profound appreciation to Walter J. Zable, Roy D. Charles, James E. Maloney, and Steve Sacalis, and all those named in this testimonial for their generous contributions to "Operation Back-Track," and extends to each of them a cordial invitation to the opening of the track on April 6, 1974;

RESOLVED FURTHER, That this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this Board and that an appropriately prepared copy be placed on permanent display at the College of William and Mary.

Instructional Scientific Equipment Program

Purpose: designed to assist in the improvement of undergraduate instruction in science at two- and four-year institutions of higher learning by helping to pay for scientific equipment needed to implement new undergraduate instructional programs. Deadline for receipt of proposals is February 15, 1974.

Grants of up to $20,000 will be made on a matching fund basis under this program.

Guidelines in Mrs. Neiman's office, Ext. 519.

Research Opportunities for Faculty

One million dollars will be provided by NSF to improve science instruction through a program of Faculty Research Participation by offering faculty members the opportunity to broaden their instructional objectives by participating in research on problems of national interest and concern in an industrial setting. Research laboratories of industrial organizations, independent research laboratories or institutions, and laboratories under contract to government or university agencies may apply for project support. Faculty members should apply directly to the supported project rather than to NSF. Deadline for receipt of proposals is February 15, 1974. Further information can be obtained by contacting Reinhard L. Korgen or Lewis A. Gist, Program Manager, Instructional Improvement Implementation Section, Division of Higher Education in Science, National Science Foundation, Washington, D.C. 20550; (202) 282-7760. Pamphlet E-74-17 deals with the Faculty Research Participation Program.

NATO Travel Grants Announced for Summer of '74

The National Science Foundation plans to award international travel grants to about 90 young U.S. scientists to attend some 40 NATO Advanced Study Institutes in Europe during the summer of 1974. Junior faculty and advanced graduate and postdoctoral students who are U.S. citizens are eligible to apply. Lasting from two to three weeks, the Institutes provide advanced instruction on specific topics in the physical, life and social sciences, engineering, and mathematics. Interested persons should contact a NATO Institute Director (not NSF) to apply for the program. General information about the grants, as well as a list of funded NATO Institutes, will be available in February, 1974, and is being requested.

Field-Initiated Studies and Experimental Projects in Science Education

The Experimental Projects and Problem Assessment Group in the Office of Experimental Projects and Programs of the National Science Foundation was recently created to assume responsibility for the various proposals received by NSF which represent promising, unusual ideas in science education but that either fall outside the normal scope of the several existing science education programs or combine features of several of them. Under this new program, proposals may be submitted for assessment studies (designed to obtain understanding of a problem before a solution can be attempted) or for experimental projects (designed to test proposed solutions). No specific guidelines have been set up, since proposals will usually be "one-of-a-kind." Applicants are to follow general provisions applying to all NSF proposals, and are encouraged to be creative and novel.

Preliminary proposals and letters of inquiry should be addressed to: Experimental Projects and Problem Assessment Group, Office of Experimental Projects and Programs, National Science Foundation, Washington, D.C. 20550. Applications are accepted at any time; staff will try to respond to preliminary proposals within four weeks. The Group Director is Lafe R. Edmunds, telephone (202) 282-7947.

Workshop

The Experimental Research and Development Incentives Program of the National Science Foundation (NSF) is sponsoring a workshop ("Overcoming Barriers to the Commercialization of Innovation Technology") in connection with the annual meeting of the American Association of Small Research Companies (AASRC) to be held in Washington, D.C., January 23 and 24, 1974. Government leaders will participate in the program and subcontracting opportunities are planned.

National Geographic Society Grants Program

The National Geographic Society offers grants-in-aid to support research projects all over the world relevant to the field of geography as interpreted broadly. Applicants must have Ph.D.'s and be affiliated with an institution of higher learning or other nonprofit institution. Only occasionally are well qualified graduate students or scientific workers eligible for awards. The Society's annual budget for this program is $1,000,000; grants for up to $50,000 have been made in the past. Society policy does not permit the payment of overhead, investigator's salary, fellowship money, or funds for capital equipment (there are some exceptions to the last). Grants are awarded for one year or less, but may be extended if successful. Obtain official application forms from the following address: Edwin W. Snider, Secretary, Committee for Research and Exploration, National Geographic Society, 17th and M Streets, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. Applications are accepted at any time, and three to four months are usually taken to make a final decision.

Kennedy Center Awards for Student Playwrights and College Theatres

With the David Library of the American Revolution. To be eligible for awards, plays must be written by college students and produced at college theatres as part of the national American College Theatre Festival. Both the playwrights and the college theatres will share in the awards. Plays may be fictional, documentary, biographical or musical, but must be based on authentic history. The competition will run for three years and prizes for playwrights and theatres will range from $500-$2000. Further information can be obtained from the Kennedy Center Department of Publicity and Promotion, Washington, D.C.

Ford Foundation Advanced Industrial Societies Research

The Ford Foundation's Office of European and International Affairs has established a receipt deadline of February 1, 1974 for research proposals on the theme of common problems of advanced industrial societies. The program's main purpose is to widen the scope of research in the United States and Canada on such common problems by incorporating data and experience from Europe, Canada, and other industrial societies. Proposals may be offered in such fields as: urban affairs, social welfare and securities policies, ethnic conflict, environmental affairs, natural resource policy, labor relations, regional issues within nations and the administration of justice. Additionally, comparative research on governmental performance and decision making processes is also relevant. The competition is designed to encourage groups of university social science and humanities scholars to undertake coordinated investigations on research problems with cross-national dimensions. The Ford Foundation has set aside approximately $1,500,000 for this competition, from which between ten and twenty grants will be awarded. No grant will be made to cover a period longer than three years, although applications can be made for shorter periods. Only one application will be considered from any one institution of higher education.

Any faculty member interested in becoming part of such a group is requested to contact Mrs. Neiman, Ext. 519.

American Antiquarian Society Research Fellowships

Short-term Visiting Research Fellowships during 1974-75. Fellowships will be awarded to qualified scholars for research in American history and culture at the Society's library. The fellowships may range from one to three months in length, with a maximum stipend of $2,500. Criteria for awards include the applicant's scholarly qualifications, the general interest of his project, and the appropriateness of the inquiry to the Society's holdings. Eligible applicants include persons engaged in scholarly research or writing, including those at work on doctoral dissertations. Deadline: March 1, 1974. Contact: American Antiquarian Society, 185 Salisbury Street, Worcester, Massachusetts 01609; (617) 755-5221.
