Law School Grads Join New Program

Two recent graduates of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law are among five new staff members of the Norfolk Commonwealth Attorney's Office, added to help implement a unique division devoted solely to the prosecution of juvenile court cases. They began work March 1.

Norfolk's Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court will for the first time begin having full-time state prosecutors staffing the three-judge court, as a result of a $209,000 two-year project approved for funding earlier this month by the State Division of Justice and Crime Prevention and the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA). Three new prosecutors, an office manager, and paralegal professional have been hired to work on the program.

New staff members include Terry Dean Huffman, a 1973 graduate of the William and Mary Law School, formerly in private practice in Norfolk; and Thomas Eugene Miller, also a 1973 graduate of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, who previously worked as legal advisor to the Norfolk Police Department's High Incident Target (HIT) program.

According to LEAA officials, the project is the first specialized juvenile program in the country and should serve as a model for other cities. The new prosecutors will work with the Youth Bureau and Juvenile Probation office in determining which cases should be set for trial and which should be handled out of court. They will also work closely with Norfolk city school officials on court cases developing out of tardiness and absenteeism.

The new program is also designed to include a vast educational program for public schools. Lectures by the prosecutors are planned in all city junior and senior high schools. A booklet on laws which apply to juveniles is also to be published by the staff.

The program was designed by the College's Metropolitan Criminal Justice Center in Norfolk.

Campus Exhibits

"Expansions," a series of photographs by Lyle Rosbotham, Phi Beta Kappa Hall, ending March 15.

Exhibit of Publications by members of the faculty, Botetourt Museum, Swem Library, Mon.-Fri., 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Sat. 9 a.m.-1 p.m., ending April 15.

"Raku Forms and Paintings" by Robert D. Crane. Exhibit March 8 through March 25, Andrews Gallery. Open for viewing Wednesdays through Sundays, 1-5 p.m.

Mr. Crane is a member of the Fine Arts Department who teaches ceramics and three dimensional design.

New Bus Stop Shelter Across From Commons

During a recent downpour, students took advantage of the new bus stop shelter across from the Commons. According to Ansel D. Rorer of the Buildings and Grounds Office, who supervised assembly of the shelter, the new structure of extruded aluminum and plexiglass should provide students protection from the weather for the next 20 years without any maintenance. The shelter has been wired and will be lighted at night. The new shelter replaces an abandoned bus that was pressed into service earlier but withdrawn because it was plagued by vandalism.

USE

E*S*C*O*R*T

'It May Save You The Hassle Of Your Life'

Phone

Ext. 596 and 597

The services of E*S*C*O*R*T are expanding and are in greater demand as the academic year progresses.

The student-initiated program, inaugurated last fall as a part of the College's move to strengthen its campus security, receives an average of 150-175 calls weekly in comparison with an average of 35-50 calls last fall. It is available to students traveling alone across campus from 7 p.m. to 4 a.m. daily.

Additional equipment, on loan from the local chapter of REACT (Radio Emergency Associated Citizens Teams) enables the service to provide quicker and more efficient services, according to Glenn Evans, general manager.

Through the cooperation of the Williamsburg Chapter of REACT, the E*S*C*O*R*T service now has three walkie-talkies and a home base station.

Sales of the "supersound" warning devices have been disappointing. A total of 98 have been sold so far. These units emit a loud noise for some 4 minutes. The total cost is $1.55 but with a subsidy from the Society of the Alumni the alarms are available to students at a price of $1 each.

Supersounds are available at Dean Carolyn Moseley's office, 208 James Blair Hall, and are on sale from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Biology

Joseph L. Scott, assistant professor, presented a lecture, "Ultrastructure of Reproductive Differentiation in Red Algae," at the University of South Carolina in Columbia on February 18.

Business Administration

Gilbert C. Jones, assistant professor, took part in the Steel Industry Economics Seminar at the University of Maryland, Feb. 19-21, under a grant by the program's sponsor, the American Iron and Steel Institute. Officials and economists representing all steel companies participated in discussions on the economic situation of the steel industry.

Leland E. Traywick, editor of the monthly Virginia Business Report, published by the Bureau of Business Research at the School of Business Administration, was interviewed on WVEC-TV evening news Wednesday night on the current gas shortage and its effect on tourism in the area.

Economics

Assistant professor Carl Moody's paper, "The Measurement of Capital Services by Electrical Energy," will be published in the February issue of the Bulletin of the Oxford University Institute of Economics and Statistics.

IEAHC

Thad Tate, director, was the principal speaker and discussion leader for the first session of a bicentennial symposium sponsored by Midwestern University in Wichita Falls, Tex., February 15-16.

Law School

Scott C. Whitney, professor, has been retained by the government of Thailand as counsel on environmental efforts to diversify the Thai economy and, with special reference to sugar exports, to achieve a more balanced agricultural system. On March 6, Mr. Whitney will testify before the House of Representatives Agriculture Committee and subsequently before the Senate Agriculture Committee on these subjects.

Mr. Whitney also attended meetings of the United States Coastal Zone Management Advisory Committee in Santa Barbara, Calif., to draft guidelines for states seeking to qualify for federal grants under the Coastal Zone Land Management Act of 1972. The subject of conservation of resources in estuarine sanctuaries was also discussed.

Three articles by William F. Swindler, professor, have recently been accepted for publication. "Court and Constitution and Chief Justice Burger" is to appear in the April issue of the Vanderbilt Law Review, as an analysis of the constitutional cases during the first five terms of the Burger Court. "The Executive Function in State and Federal Constitutional Law" will appear in the initial number of a new journal, the Constitutional Law Quarterly, being started by Hastings College of Law in California. The April issue of the American Bar Association Journal will publish the third article, "The High Court of Congress," a study of Senate impeachment trials from 1797 to 1936.

Mathematics Colloquia

Two colloquia will be held this week in Room 103, Jones Hall.

Richard Varga of Kent State University will speak on "Quadratic Splines and Applications," Tuesday, March 5 at 2:30 p.m. and William A. Wulf of Carnegie-Mellon University will lecture on "An Alternative Approach to High Speed Computation," Friday, March 8, at 3 p.m.

Coffee will be served in Room 112 preceding each lecture.

Modern Languages

Joanne Basso, instructor, and Paul Cloutier, assistant professor, represented the College at a statewide meeting held at the University of Richmond on Feb. 15 to discuss revisions in the Virginia Foreign Language Certification Regulations.

Mr. Cloutier was named to a 15-member committee whose function will be to pursue and finalize the proposals set forth at the Feb. 15 meeting.

Philosophy

Lewis Foster, associate professor, represented the College and was recorder at a recent conference held at Meredith College, Raleigh, N.C., on internationalization of the undergraduate curriculum. The conference was sponsored jointly by the Council for Intercultural Studies and Programs and the South Atlantic Association for Asian Studies to explore problems of implementation of college foreign studies programs.

Physics

Bandel Bezzerrides of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Boulder, Colorado, will speak at the March 6 Physics Colloquium at 4 p.m. in Small, Room 109. Mr. Bezzerrides' topic will be "Plasma Laboratory in the Sky."

The regular Physics Colloquium will be held Friday, March 8, at 4:30 p.m. in Small, Room 109. Winthrop Smith of the University of Connecticut will speak on "Coincidence Measurements of Differential Inelastic Cross Sections."

The following paper has been published:

"Stellar Stability for Distribution Function 'Holes' in Phase Space." H. W. Bloomberg. Astron. and Astrophys. 30, 59 (1974).

Sociology

Larry S. Beckhouse, associate professor, has recently had the following article accepted for publication in the Journal of Personality and Psychology, "...and some men have leadership thrust upon them," coauthored with Judith Tanur and Eugene A. Weinstein, SUNY at Stony Brook, and John Weiler, University of California at Santa Barbara.

Marion G. Vanfossen, professor, has reviewed Bruce Brown's Marx, Freud, and the Critique of Everyday Life: Toward a Permanent Cultural Revolution, for Sociology: Reviews of New Books, Vol. 1, No. 2, Nov./Dec. 1973.

Policeman to Speak

Patrick Murphy

Patrick Murphy, president of the Police Foundation, will speak on "The Police and Conflict" at the Project PLUS Forum, Wednesday, March 20, at 7:30 p.m. in Millington Hall Auditorium.

Prior to assuming the presidency of the Foundation in May 1973, Mr. Murphy was police commissioner of New York City. A career policeman, he joined the New York City Police Department as a patrolman in 1945 and moved quickly up through the ranks. As a deputy inspector, in January 1963 Mr. Murphy took a leave of absence to accept the position of chief of police of Syracuse, New York, returning to New York City as commanding officer of the Police Academy in June 1964 with the rank of deputy chief inspector.

In November 1965 he left New York for Washington, D.C., where he remained until January 1970, leaving then to accept the position of commissioner of the Detroit Police Department. During his stay in Washington, he served as the District of Columbia's first public safety director and was appointed by President Johnson as the first administrator of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, United States Department of Justice.

Mr. Murphy holds a B.A. and an M.P.A. degree, is a graduate of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's National Law Enforcement Academy and a former Dean of Administration and Police Science, College of Police Science, City University of New York.

Lumiansky to Speak

Robert M. Lumiansky, chairman and professor, Department of English, University of Pennsylvania, will speak in the Campus Center Theatre, Thursday, March 14, at 8 p.m.

Mr. Lumiansky will speak on "The Problem of Auctorial Conception: Chaucer and Malory." His lecture is part of the current Visiting Scholar series on campus arranged in cooperation with the University Center in Virginia, Inc.

Mr. Lumiansky has served on the faculties of the University of North Carolina and Tulane and Duke Universities. He has contributed articles and reviews to many professional journals and served as editor of Critical Approaches to Six Major English Works: Beowulf through Paradise Lost.

He is author of three books: Chaucer's Canterbury Tales in Modern English, Chaucer's Troilus and Criseyde in Modern English, and Of Sundry Folk: The Dramatic Principle in the Canterbury Tales.

CAMPUS PROFILE / Alva Stewart

Alva Stewart, associate librarian of Swem Library, is a government watcher. As a researcher on urban affairs, he keeps up with state and local government happenings. His articles on municipal government have appeared in newspapers and journals including American City, Virginia Town and City and Christian Century. He has served as the Virginia correspondent for the National Civic Review since 1971.

"During the fall of 1972, I had an opportunity to combine my interests in urban government and librarianship," he said. He held a three-month fellowship from the Council on Library Resources in Washington, D.C., which enabled him to visit 16 urban research centers across the country and to study the support given by libraries to the centers' research.

Mr. Stewart served as assistant information services officer at Chanute Air Force Base in Rantoul, Ill., and later worked as a reporter for the Asheboro, N.C., Courier-Tribune.

He received his A.B. in political science and his M.S. in library science from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1953 and 1960. He also holds an M.A. in political science from Duke and studied for a year at Vanderbilt University, where he had an internship with the Tennessee State Planning Commission.

College Women's Club

All available places for the College Women's Club bus trip to Washington, D.C., have been reserved.

On Wednesday, April 10, participants will visit the Phillipine Embassy, tour the official residence of the Ambassador, and attend a 2 p.m. matinee of the Tony Award-winning musical, "A Little Night Music," starring Jean Simmons, at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

Journal Describes Kossler's Research

In reporting the recent meeting of the American Physical Society in Chicago, Science News, a weekly journal which carries scientific news from all over the world, picked three out of 514 papers to report on, including one by a William and Mary physicist.

One of the three papers chosen described work being done by W. J. Kossler, associate professor of physics, who has undertaken research in collaboration with three scientists from Bell Telephone Laboratories, D. E. Murnick, M. Leventhal and A. T. Fiory.

The research employs a new technique for probing the interior of materials. The measurement of magnetic fields inside metals is important for science and technology but difficult to carry out by conventional means.

Mr. Kossler's team uses a beam of elementary particles, muons, produced at the SREL cyclotron, to penetrate the metal. The muons act as tiny magnets themselves. They are therefore influenced by the magnetic fields. When they emerge their behavior reflects the strength and location of microscopic magnetic fields inside the metals.

The technique is new and has elicited considerable interest both here and abroad. Many more experiments are planned at SREL to perfect and exploit it.

He served as a reference librarian at the Charlotte, N.C., public library in the summer of 1959 and at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte from 1965-68. He was head librarian from 1960-64 at Methodist College in Fayetteville, N.C., and from 1968-71 at North Carolina Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount. He joined the staff of Swem Library in June, 1971.

Both Mr. Stewart and his wife, Barbara, are natives of North Carolina. His wife has worked as a librarian and is currently a member of the program committee of the Friends of the Williamsburg Public Library. She has made a number of tapes of books and journal articles for use by blind students at the College. They are part of the recently expanded offerings of the Audio-Visual Department.

Mr. Stewart is a member of the Board of Christian Education at the Williamsburg Baptist Church and chairman of the Vacation Bible School Committee. They have one daughter, Susan, who attends Rawls Byrd Elementary School.

Changes & Cancellations

Cantor Lecture Moved

Norman F. Cantor of the State University of New York at Binghamton will speak Wed., March 6, at 7:30 p.m. in Millington Aud. Mr. Cantor will speak on "How a Set of Historical Conflicts and the Efforts to Resolve Them Have Contemporary Significance." His lecture is part of the current Visiting Scholars series.

His talk was previously scheduled for the Campus Center Theatre.

Teacher Interviews Cancelled

The Placement Office wishes to advise prospective elementary and secondary school teachers that the Teacher Placement Interviews scheduled for Thursday, March 7, with the Roanoke City public school system, and Thursday, March 21, with the Fauquier County school system, have been cancelled, as a result of the energy crisis.

Truesdell Recital Date Changed

Unexpected circumstances prevent F. Donald Truesdell from performing in a piano recital previously announced for Sunday, March 10, 8:15 p.m., Phi Beta Kappa Auditorium. Mr. Truesdell is rescheduled to appear in the Campus Center Ballroom, Sunday, April 21, at 4 p.m.

Official Memoranda

Solicitation of Private and Governmental Support

February 28, 1974

To: All Members of the College Community

The Vice President for College Development is charged by the Board of Visitors with coordinating the efforts of groups engaged in fund-raising for the College and "resolving any differences which may arise regarding the scheduling of campaigns and types of potential contributors upon which each will concentrate."

A number of complaints by individuals and area merchants regarding the many and varied solicitations from William and Mary organizations prompts this reminder and request that members of the William and Mary community comply with the coordinating procedures.

Individuals and organizations affiliated in any manner with William and Mary are asked to confer with Warren Heemann, Vice President for College Development, prior to soliciting funds for any College-related program or project.

This procedure applies to all requests for contributions directed to alumni, parents, other individuals, and corporations (including area merchants), and for grants from foundations and governmental agencies.

Advance clearance is not expected on the sale of program advertising for or tickets to College-related events--provided such sales are not promoted as charitable support of the institution or one of its organizations.

It may be opportune to reiterate earlier requests that those who may receive gifts or grants directed to the College forward them to Mr. Heemann, whose office serves as a clearinghouse for such support. He will see to it that the contribution is recorded by donor, date received, and purpose, and that it is deposited with the Treasurer-Auditor in the appropriate account.

Your cooperation will be helpful and very much appreciated.

Carter O. Lowance
Executive Vice President

Use of Commercial Credit Card—Pool Vehicles

February 27, 1974

To: Drivers of Pool Vehicles

Recently we received the following letter from W. R. Davidson, Fleet Manager of the Central Garage Motor Pool:

"Recent reviews by this office indicate that a good many credit card invoices are being received from the various oil companies with insufficient information shown to identify the party that used the card. First of all the card is to be used only as a last resort when no highway facilities are available for service. If it becomes necessary to use the credit card, the party making use should make certain that the Pool Number and License Number of the vehicle are shown on the ticket.

"Also, the Pool credit card is being used for purchases for vehicles that are not pool vehicles. Please see that this practice is discontinued.

"Your cooperation will be helpful in assisting this office to process the bills for payment to the oil companies. It will be appreciated if you will so inform those persons within your organization of this matter."

We support Mr. Davidson's request to the fullest and request your full cooperation in complying with it.

'74-75 Financial Aid

Financial assistance is renewable annually, subject to reapplication and continued certifiable financial need, according to E. Leon Looney, director of student aid.

Undergraduates who wish to reapply should complete the WILLIAM AND MARY APPLICATION FOR FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE and secure the PARENTS' CONFIDENTIAL STATEMENT FOR 1974-75 from the Student Aid Office, 310 James Blair Hall, during March and no later than May 1.

Undergraduates who are not currently receiving assistance but wish to be considered for aid should follow the same procedure.

Self-supporting undergraduates and all graduate students should apply or reapply during April and no later than June 1 for consideration for the National Direct Student Loan, subject to available funds.

Tennis Schedule Change

The varsity tennis team will practice on the Adair Courts until 6:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

Interviews Today

Peter Huiner, assistant dean of Seabury-Western Theological Seminary, Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, will be in the Placement Office Tues., March 5, from 1-4 p.m. to interview students interested in graduate study in theology or the professional ministry.

Appointments to interview with Mr. Huiner may be made by calling Ext. 605.

Minister to Speak

The College-Wide Reading Program will sponsor a talk by Will D. Campbell entitled "Change and Southern Folk Religion" at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 7, in the Campus Center Ballroom.

Mr. Campbell, a Baptist minister from Nashville, Tenn., earned a divinity degree from Yale University at the age of 17. He is currently director of the Committee of Southern Churchmen, which has as its primary purpose improving the economic plight of the poor.

Debate Set March 11

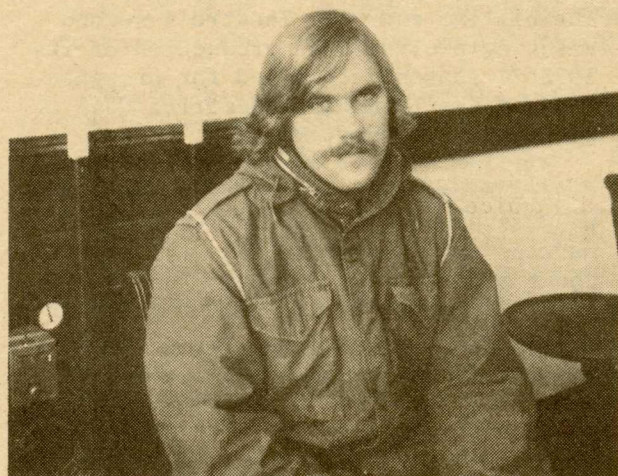

Kilpatrick and von Hoffman

The Student Bar Association, through its office of professional affairs, has arranged "A Dialogue: Nicholas von Hoffman v. James J. Kilpatrick," in William and Mary Hall, Monday, March 11 at 8 p.m.

General admission is $1 with profits from the event going to the Woodbridge Memorial Scholarship Loan Fund.

Mitchell Scholarship Recipient Announced

Thomas M. Dobson

Thomas M. Dobson of Vienna has been awarded the first William P. Mitchell Memorial Scholarship at the College.

The scholarship has been established by the Mitchell family, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Mitchell of Charlotte, N.C., family friends, and members of Sigma Pi social fraternity.

William P. Mitchell, '65, was killed while a student at William and Mary as a result of a motorcycle accident.

The scholarship will be awarded annually at the discretion of the Scholarship Committee to an active member of Alpha Eta Chapter of Sigma Pi social fraternity. The scholarship will be awarded on the basis of service to the College and fraternity chapter, academic achievement and financial need.

Mr. Dobson, who currently serves Sigma Pi as chapter president, is a junior physical education major. He served as vice-president and rush chairman of the fraternity last year and has been a member of the rugby team for the last three years.

Junior Has Scouting Interest

Betty Jean France, a junior geology major from Arlington, has found a rekindled interest in a favorite childhood pastime - scouting.

She meets with local junior Girl Scout troop #141 Tuesday afternoons in Bruton Parish House where she helps as the troop program aide. An eight year veteran of the Girl Scouts, she decided to get involved in scouting again this year, she says, "because it meant so much to me when I was growing up."

She feels that other William and Mary women students would also enjoy working with local girl scout troops and pointed out that they have a great need for assistance from older girls to work as program aides or with individual events.

She is currently compiling a list of people who are interested in working with local troops. "We especially need girls with experience in girl scouting to help with badge work, to teach camping skills and swimming," she said. "We could also use foreign students to help local girl scouts learn about other cultures."

Anyone who would like to work with a troop or who has a special interest she might like to share with a troop should contact Miss France at the Phi Mu sorority house, Ext. 507.

Teachers Sought for Australian Schools

Ian Middleton of New South Wales, Australia, visited the College campus this week hoping to woo some graduating seniors in the School of Education to teaching positions "down under."

Mr. Middleton explained that the far reaching recruitment program is needed, both because Australia is not filling its teaching needs at home and on account of a recent emphasis on the special needs of children in school.

Due to the rapid growth in Australia, particularly following World War II, young people have had a wide selection of job opportunities open up to them, and many have opted for industry. As a consequence, he said, not as many of them are going into teaching.

Mr. Middleton also pointed to the Australian government's increasing awareness of the needs of handicapped students as another reason the country is looking beyond its own borders for teachers.

"You just don't create special education teachers overnight," he observed. "Accordingly, to help us with this short-term problem, we are seeking young people from the United States to teach in our elementary schools and in special education, so that we can free our own elementary school teachers and train them in special education programs."

The School of Education at William and Mary has been working for several years with special education programs. A diagnostic-prescriptive teacher program, equipped to handle problems as they arise and keep the child in the mainstream of school life rather than isolated in special education classes, has been one of the innovative programs which has been developed in the department. Other similar programs include a summer camp for children and teacher training programs for the mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed child.

While Mr. Middleton initiates his interview with the needs of Australian schools, he also tells young teachers that they will benefit greatly from the experience.

Although he believes that the Australian culture is not very different from the American, he adds, "people who have learned to accept other ways of life are more likely to be able to understand the differences among people of their own country when they return."

Putting It Together

Flu Season is Here

By Franklin Munsey, M.D.

Yes, we have the "flu bug" again with sore throat, hoarseness, anterior chest pain, a tight dry cough and maybe some fever with the aches and pains and tiredness that usually accompany it. It's a virus infection and the antibiotics don't help. It's a 2-5 day affair. As much rest as possible, getting the moisture up in your room, aspirin for the aches and gargles for the sore throat are helpful.

If progress is not satisfactory or you have doubt about the situation, see your physician.

Question for the day: "Is a good scare worth more to a person than good advice?"

Ian Middleton

There are some differences in the educational systems of the two countries, he points out. In Australia there is centralized control of public education rather than the American system of localized control. "In other words," he explained, "a school principal in Australia has to exercise the type of control shared by the principal and the Board of Education in the United States. Our accountability is not to the public or the parents directly and there is no hiring or firing done on the local level."

Presently there are 2,000 Americans teaching in New South Wales, an area covering 310,000 square miles in the southeastern section of the country. Of the 2,000, said Mr. Middleton, most have found the experience to be both interesting and satisfying, but he cautions teachers considering positions abroad that they must be willing to accept the differences in cultural and educational approaches that they will find.

Harrison Chair Lecture

Don E. Fehrenbacher, James Pinckney Harrison Visiting Professor of History, will speak on "Roger B. Taney and the Sectional Crisis" at the second public lecture of the Harrison Chair, Tuesday, March 12, at 8 p.m. in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library.

Faculty Club Party

The Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni will be guests of the Faculty Club at a cocktail party on March 15. The event will be held in the Alumni House, 5:30-7:30 p.m.

Tickets may be purchased from Richard Prosl at the usual rates: Members $1.50 per person; members-non-drinkers $.50 per person; and non-members $3 per person.

Bicentennial Gift

Richard Bland College has received a special Bicentennial gift from the Frances Bland Randolph Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Forming Thunderclouds and the First Convention, 1763-1774 has been presented to the College by the chapter both in honor of the Bicentennial and the patriot for whom the college is named.

The book is the first volume of an eight-volume work entitled Revolutionary Virginia, The Road to Independence, being published for the Virginia Independence Bicentennial Commission by the University Press of Virginia.

Compiled by the late William J. Van Schreeven and edited by Robert L. Scribner, the volume deals with the role of Richard Bland as a pamphleteer prior to the Revolutionary War.

Goldovsky Grand Opera Presentation Tonight

As part of the current Concert Series, the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theatre will present two one-act comic operas, Mozart's "The Impresario" and Menotti's "The Old Maid and The Thief," March 5, at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

General admission tickets are $3 and are on sale at the desk of the Campus Center.

Television and Movie Actor Studies at W&M

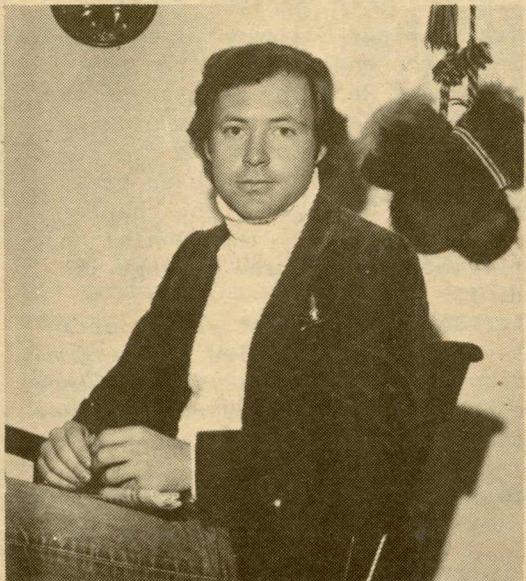

The College of William and Mary has something of a celebrity in its midst this year - a 26-year-old actor who is a veteran of 15 years in television and the movies.

Presently a sophomore at the College, Michael Burns, who has starred in such shows as "Barnaby Jones" and the "Streets of San Francisco," comments on his transition from actor to student, saying, "I am at a point where I am more stimulated by participation in a debate about recent American political history than by playing a role on television."

Mr. Burns has not completely shaken off the ties of Hollywood, however. Since he entered William and Mary last fall, he has been called back to Los Angeles for two TV roles.

At the College, Mr. Burns, a history major, is an active participant in debate and fencing and an interested observer of The William and Mary Theatre.

He got into the acting business at the age of 11 through a chance meeting with a casting director who was attending a party at the home of a schoolmate whose father was active in television. The director "needed a kid" for a segment of the old "Doby Gillis" series and asked Mr. Burns if he thought he could act. The next day he went to the director's office and successfully auditioned for the role. A production company, MCA, then kept him busy in some 40 TV shows ranging from "Loretta Young" to "Wagon Train."

Michael Burns

"Wagon Train" ended about the time Mr. Burns graduated from high school--after a "superb education" under a private tutor--and although he considered college on a full-time basis, his acting was going so well that he decided not to "walk away from something that was working for me." For the next eight years, he kept busy free-lancing on a number of shows, including "Bonanza," "Hawaii Five-O," "Love American Style," "Streets of San Francisco" and "Barnaby Jones."

Then Mr. Burns, who had completed two years of part-time work at UCLA, decided to resume his studies on a full-time basis. Eventually he may combine his knowledge of the media with his history background into a proficiency in historical broadcasting.

Mr. Burns says he decided to enroll at William and Mary because of its fine History Department, its historical and academic reputation, and because he wanted to go to an eastern university. After a semester at the College he finds himself totally satisfied with his experience and firmly entrenched in the area. Since television shoots most of its shows between June and January, he probably will not return to Los Angeles again before summer when he will use the vacation months to resume his work in television.

Art Show Deadline

Entries for the annual Student Art Show, which will be sponsored by the Fine Arts Department next month, will be accepted through Thursday, March 21.

Entry blanks, available in the Fine Arts Department or at the Campus Center desk, must be turned in to the secretary's office in Andrews Hall.

The display will be up April 6-28 and may be viewed in the Andrews Hall gallery from 1-5 p.m., Wed.-Sun.

Categories of art include sculpture, ceramics, graphics, drawing, painting, photography, watercolor and architecture. Entries themselves will be accepted in the gallery on April 3. A student may submit up to six pieces of work for an entry fee of $1.

Additional space will be provided in the gallery on three successive Saturdays - April 13, 20 and 27 - for students who wish to display crafts for sale.

Theatre to Present Vonnegut Play

"Happy Birthday, Wanda June," a comic play by Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., is The William and Mary Theatre's second visiting professional production of its 1973-74 season, scheduled for presentation in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall at 8:15 p.m. Saturday, March 9.

William Glover, critic for the Associated Press, says that "Vonnegut's play is a madcap of wild wit, droll madness and hilarious gusto...a satire about a ridiculous world."

Mr. Vonnegut is known as the author of Slaughter-House Five, God Bless You, Mr. Rosewater, Cat's Cradle, and most recently, Breakfast of Champions. He is an undisputed hero of the younger generation, many of whom know of his science-fiction novels before the critics paid him much attention.

His "Happy Birthday, Wanda June" received excellent notices in New York. Clive Barnes, of the New York Times, said the play was "richly and pertinently funny." Judith Christ wrote, "Vonnegut's play has so many funny things to say and so many pertinent things to say that it is a worthwhile experience. There's just pleasure in 'Happy Birthday, Wanda June.'"

The production is the fifth of The William and Mary Theatre's six-play season which will be climaxed by the Ben Jonson comedy, "The Alchemist," on April 17-20, directed by Jerry Bledsoe.

The William and Mary Theatre's box office will open for "Happy Birthday, Wanda June" for season ticket patrons only between 3 and 5:30 p.m., Thursday, March 7. Tickets for the public will be available the same hours on Fri.-Sat., March 8-9. The box office also is open between 7 and 8:15 p.m. the night of production, March 9. During those hours, telephone reservations are accepted at 229-3000, Ext. 272 or 469.

"Happy Birthday, Wanda June" comes to The William and Mary Theatre on a national tour under the Empire Theatrical Corporation.

The Harkness Ballet

A performance by the Harkness Ballet of New York City, Wednesday, March 13, at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall will be the final offering of the current 1973-74 Concert Series.

General admission tickets are $3 and are on sale at the desk of the Campus Center.

The program will include four selections: "Night Song," with music by Alan Hovhaness; "Sebastian," composed by Gian-Carlo Menotti; "Gemini," by Gustav Mahler; and "Time Out of Mind," with music by Paul Creston.

The Harkness Ballet was founded in 1964 by Rebekah Harkness, philanthropist, patron of the arts, composer and choreographer, now artistic director of the company. Born in 1915, Mrs. Harkness studied music and composition at the Boulanger School in Fontainebleau, France, and at the Dalcroze School in New York.

The company consists of 40 dancers, many of whom were trained at the Harkness School of Ballet. The Ballet has received wide acclaim in the United States and abroad as well. Both the school and the company are located in the Harkness House for Ballet Arts. In April of this year the new Harkness Theatre, the first theatre in America designed specifically for the presentation of dance, is expected to open.

OFFICE OF DEVELOPMENT

Energy Research Symposium Scheduled for March

An Environmental Energy Research Symposium will be held on March 13-14 at Bolling Air Force Base, Washington, D.C., to address the subject of energy research and development.

The objective of the meeting will be to serve as a forum for government agencies, industry, and universities to exchange information on selected facets of energy research and development. Government agencies will discuss their principal energy research and development problems, requirements, and funded programs, while industry and universities will make technical presentations on solar energy, hydrogen, wind, and thermonuclear energy.

For more information contact the American Defense Preparedness Association, 740 15th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005.

Program Solicitation: Decision-Related Research on Technology Utilized Local Government

Up to $2 million will be available to support research in selected categories of equipment technology and computer programs used by local governments. These are defined as jurisdictions having populations between 25,000 and 1,500,000, and local governments having various forms, such as cities, counties, townships, and special districts.

- (a) Research on equipment technology hopes to improve information available to local government officials for use in specifying and selecting equipment technologies in order to reduce costs, increase available options, reduce unnecessary equipment variations, and improve technology design. Five categories given priority in this area are: refuse collection, street cleaning, fire suppression, rescue operations, and snow removal.
- (b) Research on computer programs intends to improve information available to local government officials regarding the characteristics of existing computer programs used in local government operations so that these officials may decide which computer programs they should develop or use. Five priority categories in this area are: automated real estate assessment and land records, court scheduling, personnel management, payroll, and offender tracking.

Funds are intended to support the first phase of a two-phase research program. Under phase 1, awards will be made of up to 15 months duration. Equipment technology projects will not involve more than six or less than three equivalent professional person-years of effort, while computer programs projects will involve not more than four or less than one person-years. Each proposal must be limited to research in one category of equipment technology or computer programs. An organization may, however, submit separate proposals on separate categories.

Proposal guidelines are available in the offices of Clyde Haulman and Stella Neiman.

National Geographic Society

The National Geographic Society will provide support for basic research in sciences pertaining to geography -- anthropology, archeology, astronomy, botany, ethnology, marine biology, paleontology, zoology, etc. There are no specific deadlines for receipt of proposals, but applicants should allow at least 4 months between time of application and proposed project starting date. The Geographic Society review panel meets 10 times each year. Eligible are individuals with a Ph.D. degree or its equivalent who are associated with a college, university, or other scientific educational non-profit organization. Approximately $1 million is available for new starts during 1974, with grants ranging from $300 to $10,000. Fellowship support is not provided, nor are salary payments for the principal investigator or research associates. Interested individuals should write a one - two page letter to the Society briefly outlining the proposed project and requesting standard application forms. Write: Mr. Edwin Snider, Center for Research and Exploration, National Geographic Society, 17th and M Streets, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

U.S. Department of Labor - Manpower Institutional Grants

Ten awards will be made to colleges or universities, one in each DOL region. Each award will be for four years duration with a grantee receiving $100,000 per year for four years. Top priority for this year's competition is the development of Manpower education programs curricula.

Deadline: April 1, 1974

Interested faculty should contact Clyde Haulman, Marshall-Wythe Institute for the Social Sciences.

ATTENTION - STUDENTS - EXPLORATION SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

The third annual program will be held this summer for young scientists aged 15 to 21. Winners in the competition will accompany scientists on field research expeditions in archaeology, astronomy, ecology, geology, and marine sciences. Two-thirds of this year's expeditions will be in North America and the rest abroad, between June 1 and Sept. 15, lasting from one to eight weeks. Scholarship assistance covers all expenses except transportation.

Deadline: March 15, 1974 announced; may be extended.

Application forms available from: Isabell P. Rucker, State Department of Education, Richmond, Va., 23216; Tel: (804) 770-3317
