Four Receive Honorary Degrees At Commencement Sunday

Commencement exercises Sunday drew an estimated audience of 8,000 to William and Mary Hall.

Heavy rain forced abandonment of the usual outdoor ceremony in the Wren Yard.

Over 1,000 undergraduate and graduate degrees were conferred. Walter Muir Whitehill, president of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation, North Andover, Mass., gave brief remarks (excerpts on page 4). There was no formal commencement address. Mr. Whitehill received an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree.

Three alumni of the College also received honorary degrees. Doctor of Laws degrees were awarded to Arthur B. Hanson, '39, Potomac, Md., general counsel to the American Newspaper Publishers Association and A. Addison Roberts, '35, Philadelphia, Pa., president and chief executive officer of the Reliance Insurance Company and president of the Pilot Insurance Company of Canada. A Doctor of Humane Letters degree was awarded to T. Granville Pullen, Jr., '17, former president of the University of Baltimore. The presentation of honorary degrees was made by R. Harvey Chappell, Jr., rector of the Board of Visitors.

Valedictory remarks were made by Craig Cornwell, Leesburg, president of the senior class, who dedicated his remarks to a fellow class member, Craig Richardson, who died earlier this year.

The Botetourt prize for scholastic achievement went to Ted Robert Dinterman, Vienna.

The James Frederick Carr Memorial Cup for the graduating senior man who best combines the qualities of character, scholarship and leadership, was awarded to Alan Eliot Finder, Washington, Pa.

The Algernon Sydney Sullivan Awards sponsored by the New York Southern Society to honor a man and a woman from the graduating class and one other person who has had a close relationship with the College who "possess such characteristics of heart, mind and conduct as evince a spirit of love for and helpfulness to other men and women" went to Douglas Frederick Pinter, Ridgefield, Conn., and Laurelle Ann Baxter, Lockport, N.Y., and Blake T. Newton Jr. Mr. Newton, president of the Institute of Life Insurance, New York, is an alumnus and a former vice rector of the Board of Visitors.

During the program Sunday, President Graves made note of the retirements of Harold L. Fowler, Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences; Richard B. Brooks, Dean of the School of Education; and Carl A. "Pappy" Fehr, Chancellor Professor of Music and director of the William and Mary choir for the past 29 years.

At the close of the formal portion of the program, Dr. Graves asked for rounds of applause for the faculty, "as dedicated and skillful a group of teachers as I have been privileged to know - men and women who truly care about your learning, who make William and Mary the Quality Institution it is today."

The President led a spirited round of applause for parents and members of the immediate families of the graduates "who have offered the encouragement, made the sacrifices, pointed the way that has brought you today to this point in your lives."

The President also introduced Colin R. Davis, president of the Society of the Alumni - "that society of former students who by their labors and by their witness serve so well the cause of education and their alma mater."

Military Science Honors Fowler

Harold L. Fowler, retiring Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, was presented the Outstanding Civilian Service Award by the Department of Military Science at a luncheon following the ROTC commissioning ceremony last Saturday.

Dean Fowler was commended for "outstanding service rendered to the Department during the period 1964-74." The award, established by the Secretary of the Army in 1960, consists of a bronze medal, rosette, and citation certificate.

The citation notes Dean Fowler's "vigorous support of the goals and objectives of the United States Army ROTC Program. He has given not only his valued advice and assistance to the ROTC staff, cadet corps, and the Queen's Guard, but has also actively participated in official ROTC functions and has brought about a most favorable image of the Army on campus. Dean Fowler's contributions have truly enhanced the ROTC Program as a whole, fostering a sense of great pride by the Department of Military Science, the College, and the Community."

Together with Davis Y. Paschall, President Emeritus, Dean Fowler helped to establish the Queen's Guard unit of the ROTC Program on campus. Named for the Queens of England who bestowed honor on the College, this especially equipped and uniformed unit represents the College and ROTC battalion at various ceremonies, both in Williamsburg and throughout the state.

Campus Exhibits

Exhibit of King William, Queen Mary and Sir Christopher Wren manuscripts, given by Dr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Pullen to the Swem Library Collection, Botetourt Museum, Swem Library, ending Sunday, June 30; Mon.-Fri., 8 a.m.-5 p.m.; Sat., 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

Summer Sessions

Paul N. Clem, director of summer sessions, has announced that preparations for the 1974 Summer Sessions (June 17-August 23) are running on schedule. "Judging by the returns on the applications for admission indications point toward a strong summer enrollment," he said.

The deadline for receiving applications for admissions was June 1, but Mr. Clem stresses the fact that such an application for admission is not a requirement for registering in any or all of the '74 Summer Sessions. Anyone who has not filed an application in the Summer Sessions Office can do so at the time of registration on Monday, June 17, in William and Mary Hall.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. All students enrolling in the first session or in both sessions must present themselves for registration on June 17 according to the first letter of their last name: G-L - 9-10 a.m.; M-R - 10-11 a.m.; S-Z - 1-2 p.m.; A-F - 2-3:30 p.m. All classes will meet on Saturday, June 22, and Thursday, July 4.

Any questions relative to the 1974 Summer Sessions will be welcomed by the staff of the Summer Sessions Office, Ext. 238/338 or office 111 in James Blair Hall.

Credit Card Change

The Purchasing Office has received notice from the State Department of Highways that BP stations will no longer honor the Universal credit card issued by the Commonwealth of Virginia.

This applies to all cars owned by the State, according to William T. Allen in Purchasing, as well as cars in the motor pool. Drivers are asked not to ask BP stations for supplies or services to be charged to the State credit card.

In Short Supply

A recent letter from the State Department of Purchases and Supply to all its constituents listed items which are currently in short supply due to severe reductions in allocations by suppliers: "It is now almost impossible to locate any sizeable quantity of paper clips, file folders, or frames for hanging folders. We strongly suggest that you make every effort to conserve your present supply of these items by reusing them whenever possible."

Summer Hours:

The Auxiliary Gym hours for William and Mary Hall will be 7 a.m.-7 p.m. Monday-Friday. The building will be closed on Saturday and Sunday.

The second and third levels will maintain their regular office hours, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. daily.

Swem Library will observe the following hours during the period June 17-August 23:

Mon.-Thurs. 8 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri.-Sat. 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
Sunday 1-10 p.m.

Security Relocated

The Security Office is now located in offices formerly occupied by the Laundry.

The following resolution was adopted by the faculty of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law on May 28:

"RESOLVED, that the faculty of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law reaffirms its intention to develop a faculty composed of the best qualified individuals without improper intervention from any source outside the College.

"RESOLVED FURTHER, that this faculty, appreciative of Dean Whyte's dedicated efforts on its behalf during a trying period involving delicate and sensitive personnel matters and institutional relationships, affirm its support of his leadership, commend him for his effective discharge of his duties, and assure him of its continuing confidence and high esteem.

"RESOLVED, that this faculty, adhering to the principle of Thomas Jefferson, its founder, in opposing every tyranny over the mind of man, emphatically condemns any act or statement by any person or agency, public or private, that threatens or attempts to effect any reprisal or duress against this Law School, its faculty or its Dean, in the pursuance of the above stated policy, as unworthy of the spirit of Jefferson.

"Adopted by the faculty of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law this twenty-eighth day of May, 1974, and ordered by the faculty to be made public forthwith."

Alumni Board

The following resolution was passed by the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni at its meeting on May 31:

"Now therefore be it resolved that the Board of Directors of the Society of the Alumni unanimously supports the action of the President of the College and the Board of Visitors in this matter."

Presidential Statement

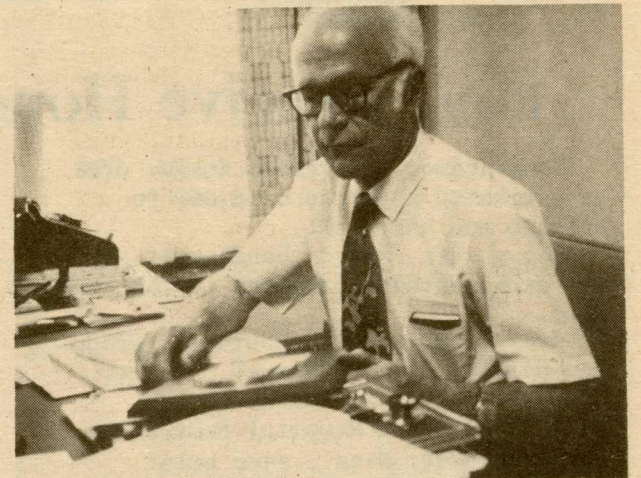

JeRoyd X Greene last week voluntarily withdrew his name from the prospective Council on Legal Education Opportunity (CLEO) summer staff at the College.

The following is a statement released by President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., on May 28:

"Mr. Michael J. Moorhead, executive director of the national office of the Council on Legal Education Opportunity, advised the College today that Mr. JeRoyd X Greene has voluntarily withdrawn his name from the prospective CLEO staff at William and Mary and will serve as a consultant to the CLEO Washington office. The Director of the William and Mary Institute, with the assistance of Mr. Moorhead, expects to obtain a replacement before the opening of the 6-weeks program on June 17.

"The Institute will serve an enrollment of approximately thirty economically disadvantaged students who seek to better prepare themselves for entering law schools next September. The project has the full support of the College and we appreciate the cooperation of all concerned in seeking to assure its success."

Dr. Munsey Honored

Dr. Franklin A. Munsey, assistant director of student health services, was honored recently by the Rockwood Memorial Hospital staff in his hometown of Rockwood, Ill.

A member of the Rockwood pediatrics staff from 1949 until he came to William and Mary in August, 1973, Dr. Munsey was awarded a plaque "in recognition of his dedicated service" to the hospital. The presentation was made May 30 on the occasion of the medical staff's first annual recognition and awards dinner.

Faculty Affairs Correspondence

The Faculty of Arts and Sciences at a called meeting, May 31, endorsed the following letter written by the Faculty Affairs Committee to President Graves by a vote of 123-14. A second resolution to ask President Graves to reconsider the appointment of Mr. Greene was defeated by a vote of 61-63.

May 30, 1974

President Thomas A. Graves, Jr.
College of William and Mary
Williamsburg, Virginia 23185

Dear President Graves:

We wish in this open letter to express our views to you and through you to the Board of Visitors on the disapproval of the appointment of Mr. JeRoyd X Greene as Visiting Associate Professor of Law. We deplore the decision and the basis on which it was made; we believe that serious damage has been done to the essential aims of the College; and we believe that those involved bear a heavy responsibility for that damage.

It has been claimed that the disapproval was based on doubts, raised by a contempt of court record, regarding Mr. Greene's conduct in the practice of his profession. Evaluation of this record is a professional matter, and the School of Law supplied a professional evaluation. If a serious evaluation by experts who are not members of our School of Law had been desired, representative and authoritative sources in addition to selected Richmond lawyers would have been consulted. We therefore turn to other considerations.

Questions of due process and proper appointment procedures are being explored, and we shall not discuss them now. We do want to express the following concerns:

1) It appears that the decision was determined by inappropriate political influence. No institution vulnerable to such influence can seriously be regarded as devoted to the pursuit of excellence. Accordingly, we support the May 28 resolution of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

2) The success of an institution depends on its reputation among professional, educational, and other organizations, and among the public. The integrity of our procedures has now been called into question.

3) Efforts of the College to recruit minority students and faculty may henceforth be seen as directed only to those who are safely uncontroversial.

Everything we do is a kind of teaching. We wonder whether, in this case, we have taught our students that William and Mary is one of those institutions devoted only to perpetuating itself in a manner convenient for those who manage it. Are we providing a lesson in the thwarting and obscuring of ultimate aims by short-term expediency?

Faculty of Arts and Sciences
College of William and Mary
Williamsburg, Virginia 23185

Ladies and Gentlemen:

We have read today your letter concerning the action of the President and the Board of Visitors in the matter of JeRoyd X Greene. Your conclusion that the President and Board of Visitors did not have the courage to make a decision without regard to improper outside influences gives us great concern.

Threats of economic retaliation if the College appointed Mr. Greene have been condemned from every quarter as an abuse of legislative position, and we concur in abhorring such pressures, but it is unsettling in the extreme to see evidence that the faculty of this College has so little confidence in the integrity of its President and Board of Visitors that you could believe that their action was taken on the basis of threats rather than on the merits of the matter before them.

After careful consideration this Board has concluded that the appointment of Mr. Greene would have been a grave error in judgment, not because of economic threats, not because of Mr. Greene's race or religion, but because of his obvious and often evidenced lack of respect for the system of justice about which he would be expected to responsibly teach.

Academic freedom is a concept cherished with a conviction equal to yours by those of us outside the immediate academic community. With that freedom goes an enormous responsibility. One cannot help but wonder if your colleagues in the School of Law exercised that responsibility with care in this instance. Did they explore fully the candidate's record before they recommended him? Did they recommend his appointment in spite of his record, or in ignorance of it? In our opinion either case does not reflect well on their judgment.

You have accomplished much good here in the past; this we appreciate. We hope that in the future you will provide for the College the clarity of purpose and the acts of unusual courage needed to counteract the harm that has been done.

Sincerely,

The Faculty Affairs Committee of the Faculty of Arts and

Professor Rolf G. Winter, Chairman
Faculty Affairs Committee of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences
College of William and Mary

Dear Professor Winter:

Thank you for your letter of May 30 on behalf of the Faculty Affairs Committee of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences. I have transmitted it, as you have requested, to the Board of Visitors.

Inasmuch as your letter represents an official act of an official committee, regarding a matter of general concern to the entire College community, and since you have sent it to the Vice Presidents, Academic Deans and the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, I am arranging for it to be published in the next issue of the William and Mary News for full distribution to the College community.

Without repeating here the statements made at the meeting of the faculties on Tuesday, May 28, I do wish to emphasize that I accept full responsibility as President for the decision which I made in this case. I also understand and appreciate the concerns which your Committee has expressed.

Let me assure you that I shall continue to do all in my power to provide for the College the clarity of purpose and the courage for which you hope.

With kind personal regards,

Sincerely,

Thomas A. Graves, Jr.
President

The selection of professors, who will be molding young minds and setting standards of professional conduct, can scarcely be over-estimated in importance and ought to be undertaken in the most thorough and thoughtful manner.

Your devotion and loyalty to the College is certainly not questioned. Your professional and personal lives are inextricably bound up with it. No alumnus can doubt that you want only the best for the College.

We do question the degree to which you gathered and considered salient information on this issue before drafting your letter of May 30, 1974, to the President.

We respectfully suggest that you consider dispassionately whether the College has been better served by the action of its President and Board of Visitors who had the courage to do what they thought to be the right thing in the full knowledge that there would be those who would misunderstand it, or the faculty of the Law School who appear to have failed to properly exercise a solemn responsibility entrusted to them.

Sincerely,

Board of Directors
Society of the Alumni

Commencement Remarks

-Excerpts from remarks delivered by Walter M. Whitehill, June 3, 1974

... As a New Englander, I have always felt very much at home in Virginia. There is historic precedent for this. When Daniel Webster visited Monticello in December 1824, Thomas Jefferson, looking back over the previous half century, remarked:

Throughout the whole Revolution, Virginia and the four New England States acted together; indeed, they made the Revolution....

... Similarly Massachusetts and Virginia stood together on the question of higher learning, for Harvard, my first alma mater, and William and Mary, my latest, were the only colleges founded in British North America during the seventeenth century.

The earliest surviving letter of Thomas Jefferson published in Julian P. Boyd's great edition concerns the College of William and Mary. Jefferson's father having died when Thomas was fourteen, it was to John Harvie, his father's executor, that the boy wrote when he was sixteen, from Shadwell in Albemarle County, on the western frontier of Virginia, on 14 January 1760:

"I was at Colonel Peter Randolph's about a Fortnight ago, and my Schooling falling into Discourse, he said he thought it would be to my advantage to go to the College, and he was desirous I should go, as indeed I am myself for several Reasons....

... When Thomas Jefferson arrived at William and Mary, the college consisted of a president, six masters (or professors), and about a hundred students. There was a preparatory grammar school and an Indian school, each with a single master, a philosophy school (in which Jefferson enrolled) and a divinity school, with two masters each. It was not a harmonious scene, for the Tory faculty -- mostly Anglican clergymen sent from England by the Bishop of London, who was Chancellor of the college -- were constantly at odds with the local Board of Visitors, whose political views were of a different stripe. Charges and counter-charges flew through the air; more than once the Board of Visitors dismissed members of the faculty....

One professor, the only layman in the faculty, had an extraordinary effect upon the young Jefferson, who in 1821 wrote in his autobiography:

"It was my great good fortune, and what probably fixed the destinies of my life that Dr. William Small of Scotland, was then professor of mathematics, a man profound in most of the useful branches of science with a happy talent of communication, correct and gentlemanly manners, and an enlarged and liberal mind. He, most happily for me, became soon attached to me, and made me his daily companion when not engaged in the school; and from his conversation I got my first views of the expansion of science, and of the system of things in which we are placed....

In April 1762 Thomas Jefferson left the college to read law with George Wythe, whom he had come to know through Dr. Small. For the five years that passed before his admission to the bar in 1767, he spent much of his time in Williamsburg. Although incorporated as a city, the capital never had more than two thousand permanent residents (white and black), nor more than two hundred houses. Nevertheless, it offered far greater opportunities for self-cultivation in the arts than the mountains of Albemarle County. These Thomas Jefferson cheerfully embraced.

Jefferson's Williamsburg years included study, conversation with his elders, and sociability with his contemporaries. He paid visits to plantation houses, danced at the Raleigh Tavern, and sighed unsuccessfully in his suit of Rebecca Burwell, whom he referred to as Belinda. During these years, he acquired principles of conduct in society that stayed with him throughout life. As President of the United States, writing from the White House on 24 November 1808 to his sixteen year old grandson, Thomas Jefferson Randolph, who had been sent to the University of Pennsylvania, he observed how "under temptations and difficulties, I could ask myself what would Dr. Small, Mr. Wythe, Peyton Randolph do in this situation?" He continued:

I have mentioned good humor as one of the preservatives of our peace and tranquility. It is among the most effectual, and it's effect is so well imitated and aided artificially by politeness, that this also becomes an acquisition of first rate value. In truth, politeness is artificial good humor, it covers the natural want of it, and ends by rendering habitual a substitute nearly equivalent to the real virtue. It is the practice of sacrificing to those whom we meet in society all the little conveniences and preferences which will gratify them, and deprive us of nothing worth a moment's consideration: it is the giving a pleasing and flattering turn to our expressions which will conciliate others, and make them pleased with us as well as with themselves. How cheap a price for the good will of another!

In later years, Thomas Jefferson Randolph asked his grandfather for an explanation of the common quality of politeness among older Virginians, who differed in so many other respects. Jefferson's answer was that they had all been trained in Williamsburg, which he described as "the finest school of manners and morals that ever existed in America." The tradition has continued unabated. This is one reason why New Englanders find it so pleasant to come to Virginia.

Swem Library

Earl Gregg Swem Library recently acquired a group of 56 18th Century British pamphlets relating to America. Most are related parts of the "pamphlet wars" of propaganda and argument that raged around various governmental policies toward Britain's colonies in North America, such as the six Letters to the People of England, written anonymously by John Shebbeare, and the various refutations they inspired, or the numerous retorts to Richard Price's Observations on the Nature of Civil Liberty. Others are more independently important, such as Elizabeth O'Neill's Oppositions Morning, which, among other things, suggests that an 18th Century woman could wield a fierce satirical pen as well as a distaff.

The group complements collections at Swem Library already strong in the field of 18th Century American history. Its acquisition was made possible by a fund established in 1970 by Jay W. Johns, of Charlottesville, in memory of John Garland Pollard, a one-time Williamsburg resident, dean of the College's Marshall-Wythe School of Government and Citizenship, and Governor of Virginia, 1930-1934. The fund is to be used for library acquisitions to support the program in Early American History at the College.

Physics Grant

The Physics Department has received a small equipment grant in the amount of $1,110 from the Western Electric Fund, managed by the Western Electric Company in Winston Salem, N.C.

The purpose of such grants is to improve undergraduate instruction by the purchase of teaching equipment. The Physics Department plans to use the funds to buy three logic trainers, electronic devices for teaching the fundamentals of logical circuitry used in computers. The devices also provide practical applications of Boolean Algebra. The three trainers will be used mainly in connection with Physics 260, a course in elementary electronics for those who do not specialize in physics.
