Architectural Firm Releases Designs For New Law School, Court Center

Artists drawings of proposed new law school (above)
and National Center for State Courts (below)

Architects Thursday released designs for the multi-million dollar center for judicial research and learning to be built in Williamsburg. The complex will contain the headquarters for the National Center for State Courts and the nation's oldest law school, the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Designs for both buildings were made by the architectural firm of Wright, Jones and Wilkerson, Inc., of Richmond.

The site for the court center, being leased from the College, is a seven-acre tract fronting on the Colonial National Parkway. Adjacent to it is the area being developed for the law school.

Anticipated overall cost of the new headquarters, including site development and landscaping, architectural and other fees, furnishing and equipment is approximately $2.75 million.

At its January meeting the College's Board of Visitors gave final approval to the design for the new law school building, which will be located adjacent to the National Center for State Courts building.

The headquarters building will be a two-story structure with 32,000 square feet of floor area to accommodate a staff of 60. Dual arches two stories high will form the main entrance to the building, providing access to the lobby from the main circular drive and adjacent law school mall.

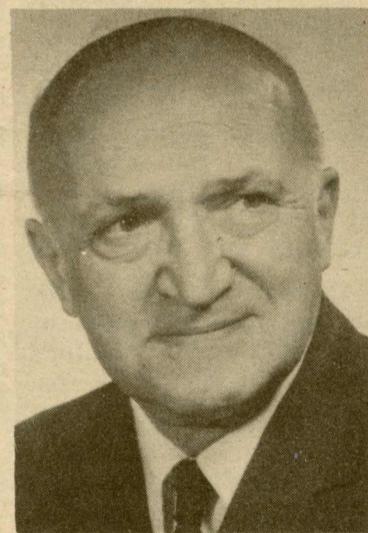

The anticipated overall cost of the new law school, including site development and equipment, is approximately 4.8 million, which the College has said is its top priority for 1976 funds.

The law school will be a two story building with 80,000 square feet of space in units of various functions located to take maximum advantage of the natural terrain.

According to Dean James P. Whyte, the proposed facilities will serve a student body expected to reach 600; however, the unit concept will allow any or all areas to be expanded. The new library will house over 140,000 volumes. At present the law library is borrowing additional space in the basement of three residence halls on campus to house its volumes.

One of the special features of the building is an experimental moot court, designed to develop new ideas and determine what future trends might be in courtroom technique. The result will be a courtroom allowing for flexible bench arrangement, including a court in the round, with video and voice recording support facilities. Cont., P.8.

Mobil Oil Corp. Geologist Talks Tonight On Oil Search

Mr. Spivak

The chief geologist of the North American division of Mobil Oil Corporation will present a public lecture at 8 p.m. tonight in Room 238 of William Small Physical Laboratory.

Mr. Joseph Spivak will speak on "Atlantic Continental Shelf Hydrocarbon Exploration." His visit to the College is being sponsored jointly by the geology department and Virginia Petroleum Industries.

Mr. Spivak's talk will consider the prospect of oil and gas development on the continental shelf, including the area off the Virginia coast. He will also review the geologic setting of the continental shelf, the types of structure in which oil may be trapped, and the methods and drilling equipment used to find oil. The latter part of his illustrated talk will be concerned with energy issues facing the nation—the problems of the nation's energy requirements, development time for new oil fields, and environmental problems.

A Canadian by birth, Mr. Spivak has spent more than 30 years as a geologist in the field of petroleum exploration and development. He has also worked on the evaluation of coal reserves and has published two recent major reports, "Giant Oil Fields of North America" and "Future Hydrocarbon Potential of the Atlantic Coastal Province."

Dabney Takes On Gore Vidal, Fawn Brodie

An attack on two recent authors who have written about America's founding fathers will be the focus of the 1975 Charter Day address.

Virginius Dabney, retired editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch and author of the history "Virginia, the New Dominion," will speak Saturday, Feb. 8, at an 11 a.m. convocation in Phi Beta Kappa Hall. The program is open to the public.

Dabney's address will focus on authors Fawn Brodie and Gore Vidal for what he regards as "flagrant misrepresentations of Jefferson, Washington and other founding fathers," in their recent books. Brodie is the author of "Thomas Jefferson, an Intimate History," while Vidal is the author of "Burr."

"This is a poor way to celebrate the Bicentennial," Dabney asserts in referring to the two books, "by traducing the very people who made the Bicentennial possible."

Following his retirement from the editorship of the Richmond Times Dispatch in 1969, Dabney published

"Virginia: The New Dominion," now in its sixth printing, one of the leading histories of Virginia to modern times. He is the author of three other books on the contemporary history of Virginia and the South. During his newspaper career, he won the Pulitzer Prize for editorial writing.

A graduate of the University of Virginia, he holds an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from the College, conferred in 1944. He also holds honorary degrees from the University of Richmond and Lynchburg College.

W&M: A Bicentennial Campus

This year William and Mary will mark its first Charter Day as a Bicentennial Campus, a title bestowed by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. A certificate will be presented to the College at the convocation. Other activities in connection with Charter Day will include a meeting of the President's Council, and presentation of the Thomas Jefferson Awards to outstanding members of the college community.

Governor Authorizes W&M To Accept Ash Lawn Bequest

Governor Mills E. Godwin, Jr., has authorized the College to accept the bequest of Ash Lawn, the home of W&M alumnus and U. S. President James Monroe.

Ash Lawn was a gift of the late Jay Winston Johns of Charlottesville, a retired industrialist who was interested in historic preservation.

In addition to the historic home, Mr. Johns' also left William and Mary his collection of the papers of Monroe, his own Charlottesville residence, and the bulk of his estate.

In a letter to the College granting approval for acceptance of the Johns bequest, Governor Godwin said he had discussed the matter with Acting Secretary of Education Carter O. Lowance.

The Governor noted that the College had sought his permission to accept the gift with the explicit understanding that approval would "not obligate the Commonwealth to provide any public funds to support the property received."

State law requires that the Governor approve all donations, gifts or grants to state agencies before they can be formally accepted.

Campus Wrap-Up

Special Performance Scheduled Thursday Of Beggar's Opera

The William and Mary Theatre will present a special performance of John Gay's musical satire, The Beggar's Opera, on Thursday, Feb. 6, in Phi Beta Kappa Hall. Curtain time is 3 p.m.

Tickets will be sold in the PBK box office beginning at 1 p.m. on the day of the performance. Tickets may also be reserved in advance by calling the Theatre's general office at Ext. 395. Price per person is $3.

MBAA Stock Contest Begins February 12, Will Give $100 Prize

The MBA Association is again sponsoring a stock market contest this semester beginning Feb. 12.

The contest is open to all W&M students and employees. Each participant submits a portfolio with a hypothetical investment of $10,000 in from three to 10 stocks. The portfolio showing the greatest return on that original investment when the contest period ends May 7 wins the $100 first prize. Additional prizes will be awarded according to the number of entries.

MBA students will run all calculations necessary on the computer and will post weekly results in the MBA Association office.

Entry forms and further information are available in the MBA Association office, 203 Jones Hall, Ext. 543. Portfolios must be submitted by Feb. 12 along with an entry fee of $1 per portfolio.

Of the 80 persons entering the contest last semester, the following received prizes: John Ackerman, $50; Phil Crow, $10; Bruce Mullen, $5; and Allen Tanner, $2.

German House Coffee Hours Set Thursdays

Weekly coffeeshours will be held in the German House (Unit 5 of the New Complex) this semester on Thursdays at 3:30 p.m.

German films will also be shown Thursdays at 8 p.m. in the House.

Members of the College community are invited to both regular events.

Childress to Talk on Ethics

The first in a series of lectures concerning issues in contemporary religious ethics will be given Monday at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Little Theatre.

James Childress will speak on "Ethics and the Rights to Life and Health." He is associate professor and chairman of the department of religious studies at the University of Virginia.

The lecture series is sponsored by the religion department.

Freeman To Lecture On Japanese Swords At Asia House

A.Z. Freeman, professor of history, will present a lecture entitled "Japanese Swords and Bushido, the Way of the Samurai" at Asia House, Feb. 6, at 7:30 p.m.

Mr. Freeman, who has taught medieval history at William and Mary since 1967, possesses a private collection of Japanese swords and will exhibit some of these at the lecture. Mr. Freeman is presently planning to undertake research comparing Japanese and European feudalism.

The lecture is open to the public.

Valentine Dance Tickets on Sale Now

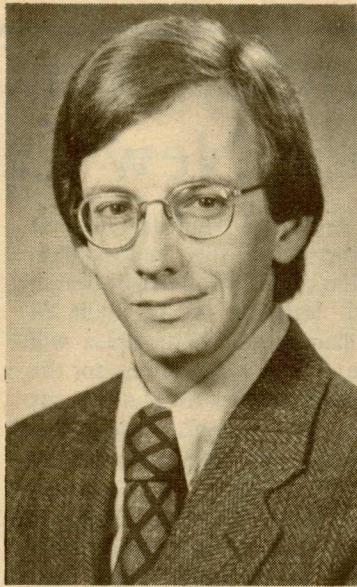

All members of the College community and their guests are invited to a Valentine Dance/Gourmet Party on Friday, Feb. 14, in the Campus Center Ballroom.

The dance, which is sponsored by the College Women's Club, begins at 9 p.m. Music will be provided by the Gabrielle Combo.

Tickets are available at $3.75 per person until this Saturday from Mrs. Kevin Geoffroy. Checks should be made payable to the College Women's Club and mailed to Mrs. Geoffroy, 106 Little John Road, Williamsburg. Tickets will also be sold at $4.75 per person at the door the evening of the dance.

Tables may be reserved for groups of 8-12 or 14 by calling Mrs. Geoffroy at 229-7790.

Members of the dance committee are Mrs. Geoffroy, chairman; Mrs. Donald Messmer, decorations; Mrs. Stuart Flanagan; and Mrs. Charles Mathews, special arrangements.

Mr. Childress

Panel Will Discuss Professional Writing In Various Fields

A panel discussion on problems of academic and professional writing is scheduled for 7:45 p.m. tomorrow in Small 113.

Although the meeting was organized primarily for students and instructors of the Freshman Writing course, all others interested in the topic are welcome to attend.

Panelists will be Bradner Coursen, biology; Charles Cullen, Marshall Papers; A.Z. Freeman, history; James Livingston, religion; and Hans von Baeyer, physics. They will discuss what they consider desirable in academic writing in their own fields, both for students and for professionals. A question and answer period will follow.

Greene vs. W&M Is Lecture Subject

JeRoyd X Greene will offer his remarks on "JeRoyd X Greene v. College of William and Mary" in a program scheduled for 8 p.m. Feb. 10 in Phi Beta Kappa Hall. After his remarks, Mr. Greene will open the floor for discussion, and would like to offer the podium to anyone who wants to comment on or take issue with what he has said.

Mr. Greene's remarks will center on a critique of the report that the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors submitted to the national chapter early last fall.

This program will be the last in a series of six lectures given by Mr. Greene and financed by the contributions of an ad hoc group of 55 administrators, staff and faculty members at the College.

Women's Center Is Conference Topic

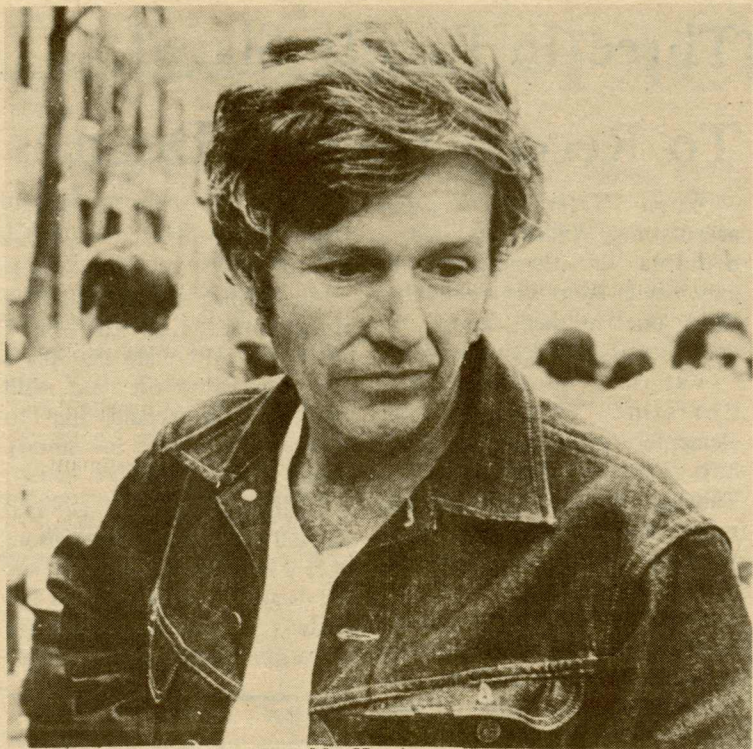

A conference on organizing a Women's Center in Williamsburg, sponsored by the Women's Equality Group of Williamsburg, will be held Feb. 15 in the Campus Center from 9 a.m. - 12 noon.

Saturday's conference will begin with a general discussion about creating a Women's Center in this area. It will be followed by several informal workshops on various services such a center might offer. Possibilities for discussion include, among others, health and legal referral services, rape counseling, job counseling, child care information, continuing education for women, a crisis hotline, and political activities.

All activities are open to the public. Child care services are available for the conference by calling Sue Choppy at 229-2429 before Feb. 12.

VOLUME III, No. 19 Tuesday, Feb. 4, 1975

Published weekly through the Office of Information Services by the College of William and Mary for faculty, staff and students. Produced by the College News Office, 125 Richmond Road. Inquiries should be directed to Marjorie N. Healy, Information Officer. Mailed to addresses of employees as on record at the Personnel Office, James Blair Hall, to which office address changes should be directed.

Mr. Harrington

Michael Harrington To Speak Here Thursday

"American Dreams, American Realities" is the topic of a lecture to be given by author Michael Harrington in Millington Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 6.

Mr. Harrington is the third visitor in the College's Project PLUS Forum, which this year is based on the theme "The State of the American Dream." Earlier historian Henry Steele Commager and author John Seelye spoke on campus as part of the program. Mr. Harrington's visit is sponsored jointly by Project PLUS and the College Wide Reading Program.

Since his education at Holy Cross College, Yale University Law School, and the University of Chicago where he took an M.A. in English literature, Michael Harrington has lived and worked with the poor all over the United States. His active participation in democratic socialist movements includes service as national chairman of the American Socialist Party.

His book "The Other America: Poverty in the United States," written in 1962, was instrumental in leading then President John F. Kennedy to launch a federal poverty

Graves Approves Housing Plan To Increase Diversity for Students

Increased options in student housing at William and Mary have been approved by President Thomas A. Graves, Jr.

The housing plan, recommended by James Livingston, dean of the undergraduate program, will increase the diversity of residential student housing to a total of eight different options. New in the plan are opportunities for upper class students to live in "high privacy" areas offering limited visitation; "quiet housing" areas offering an environment insuring quiet; and coeducational housing not limited to traditional academic programming.

These are in addition to the choices presently offered at the College: single-sex residence halls, special interest residence halls, apartment-style living, graduate student housing and freshman "block" housing.

The changes were made in response to student requests for additional housing options and within the limits imposed by current budgetary restraints.

Residence halls for each of the housing options will be identified prior to the annual lottery this spring that will determine next year's housing occupancy.

Under the new policy 13 percent of the residential students will have the opportunity to live in coeducational units. Bryan Complex will be coeducational, alternating men and women by floors, and the nine lodges will be coresidential, alternating men and women in each housing unit.

In announcing his approval of the plan, President Graves noted that "our present experience with coeducational residences in Project Plus, the Language Houses, and the Madison Community has been positive; that students in these programs have exhibited very responsible behavior, have become more involved in cultural and educational programs than otherwise, have expressed a sense of responsibility for their residential environment and have an increased feeling of residential security."

Graves said that he was "impressed" with the studies done by the Board of Student Affairs and the Office of Residential Hall Life upon which Dean Livingston based his proposal.

Campus Exhibits

Selections from the Alice Aberdein Collection of Oriental Craftwork and Art - Botetourt Museum, Swem Library; Monday-Friday, 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. - 1 p.m.; ends February 28.

Student Showing of Ceramics, Drawings and Paintings - Andrews Gallery and Foyer; gallery open Monday-Friday, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.; ends February 9.

Summer Research Grants Awarded To 25 Professors

Twenty-five professors have received summer research grants totaling $39,927.

The grants were distributed among 12 departments in the schools of arts and sciences, education and business administration. Five of the grants were sponsored by the Society of the Alumni.

The following professors received grants for summer 1975: Associate Professor of Government Donald J. Baxter, "Social Mobilization, Politics and Stability;" Assistant Professor of Biology Eric L. Bradley, "Investigations into Mechanisms of Fertility Control;" Assistant Professor of Chemistry Randolph A. Coleman, "Preparation of Deuterated Aldehydes;" Assistant Professor of Biology Norman Fashing, "A Behavioral Analysis of the Function of Simple Eyes in Insects;" Assistant Professor of Economics David H. Finifter, "An Analysis of Disadvantaged Workers in Inner City Areas: A Research Proposal."

Professor of Government Margaret Hamilton, "Opposition to the Campaign for Repeal of the Contagious Diseases Acts;" Assistant Professor of English Trudier Harris, "Black Folklore in Williamsburg: Uniqueness of Content;" Assistant Professor of Chemistry Eric Herbst, "Chemistry of Interstellar Space;" Assistant Professor of Business Administration William J. Maddocks, "Optimization of Operations Planning, Scheduling and Control through Computer Simulation Techniques."

Also, Assistant Professor of English Terry L. Meyers, "Unpublished Works by Swinburne: A Scholarly Edition;" Assistant Professor of Economics Carlisle E. Moody, "Cost-Benefit Study of the

Phys. Ed. Program Needs 600 Patrons

At least 600 advance patrons from the College are needed before February 8 to make the proposed Physical Education Night a reality.

The program, which is proposed for Wednesday, Feb. 26, would feature the internationally famous Philadelphia Atoms Indoor Soccer Team, led by World Cup goalkeeper Bobby Rigby and national team coach Al Miller. The team will play against a select amateur team in a five a side regulation indoor match at 8:30 p.m.

An exhibition by the 15 member gymnastic troupe, the Mar-Va-Teens, is scheduled to precede the soccer match at 7:30. These Olympic hopeful teens are coached by Mrs. Ruth Anne McBride, who was on the national coaching staff for the Pan American Games of 1971 and the Olympic Games in Munich in 1972.

Advance sponsor tickets are now available for $1 at the Campus Center and from all students majoring in physical education. Proceeds above expenses will be used to sponsor scholarships to the annual summer high school athletic trainer's clinic.

program. In the book Harrington maintained that "the invisible poor" made up a significant proportion of United States citizens, and that nothing was being done to alleviate their poverty. The book won the Riordan Prize of the American Newspaper Guild.

Mr. Harrington's 1968 book, "Toward a Democratic Left," maps out a 21-year program aimed toward solution of the crises of war, poverty in the cities, inequality, and the underdeveloped world. Despite the ambitiousness of his proposals, he is not regarded as a visionary but as a man sophisticated in economics and political realities.

Project PLUS is directed by R. Carlyle Beyer, professor of history, while the Forum is directed by Robert J. Fehrenbach, associate professor of English.

Nobel Laureate Physicist Is Next Visiting Scholar

Eugene P. Wigner, 1963 winner of the Nobel Prize in physics, will deliver a Visiting Scholars lecture on Thursday, Feb. 13.

Jones Professor Emeritus of Theoretical Physics at Princeton University, Mr. Wigner will speak on "The Spirit of Poincare's Science and Method. Science and Hypothesis" at 4 p.m. in Small 109. The program, which is intended for a general audience, is open to the public, and there is no admission charge.

Henri Poincare (1854-1912) was a mathematical physicist and philosopher who made important contributions to celestial mechanics, developed (independently of Einstein) many results of the special theory of relativity, and analyzed the psychology of mathematical discovery and invention. Professor Wigner's talk will be followed by a question period.

Mr. Wigner's scientific work has included, in a long and distinguished career, the application of group theory to quantum mechanics, studies of the rates of chemical reactions, the theory of metallic cohesion, and the theory of nuclear structure and reactions. He has also had an active interest in the influence of science on society.

Club Sponsors Trip to D.C. China Exhibition on Agenda

The College Women's Club is sponsoring a museum trip to Washington, D. C., on Monday, Feb. 24, to give College women and their families an opportunity to see the exhibition of archaeological finds of the People's Republic of China, currently on display at the National Gallery of Art.

The cost of transportation per person is $5.95. A chartered bus will leave from the Phi Beta Kappa parking lot at 7 a.m. and will leave from the Hirshhorn Museum in Washington at 3:30 p.m., with arrival back in Williamsburg expected at about 6:30 p.m.

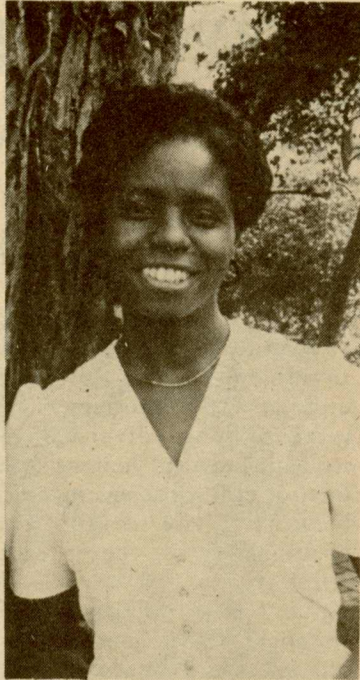

Reservations must be made by Monday, Feb. 17. Checks made payable to the College Women's Club should be mailed to Mrs. Dee Brown, 106 Spring Road, Williamsburg, by Feb. 17. Please include your own address and telephone number.

The bus holds 38 passengers, and reservations will be accepted on a first come, first served basis.

The China exhibit affords a rare cultural opportunity. Perhaps the most talked about item on display is the Han funerary suit, which is made of squares of jade sewed together with gold thread.

Immediately across the Mall from the National Gallery is the New Hirshhorn Museum. Operated by the Smithsonian Institution, the Hirshhorn houses one of the most comprehensive collections of modern art.

For those with different interests, there are about eight other museums on the Mall.

Valerie Thompson

Three In Family Slated To Receive College Degrees

When Valerie Thompson accepts her William and Mary diploma at Commencement exercises in June, she will be the third one in her family to graduate from college this year.

Valerie's mother, Mrs. Christine Thompson, an elementary school major, and her brother, Wendell O. Thompson, an urban studies major, will both graduate from Virginia Union University in May.

Valerie also has two other brothers in college. Dennis, a junior, and Clifton, a sophomore, are both urban studies majors at VUU.

Mr. Thompson died several years ago. So, with five in college at the same time, Valerie said, all have had to work. During the academic year, Valerie has worked part-time in the Campus Post Office.

In addition to her studies and her working schedule, the Richmond native has been active in the Williamsburg Area Tutorial Service (WATS) and also in the Black Student Organization. This year she is BSO treasurer.

An English major, Valerie is most interested in Black literature. Although her plans after graduation are still tentative, she would like to pursue a career in library science.

Graduate study is also planned by Mrs. Thompson. Once a high school drop out, she will begin working towards her Master's degree in elementary education this fall.

PERSONNEL BULLETIN

The following positions at the College are or will be vacant. Qualified employees who wish to be transferred to these positions may receive additional information at the Personnel Office. The College is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Accordingly, women and minority employees are encouraged to apply for those positions for which they feel they are qualified.

Accountant B - College degree with accounting, bookkeeping or business administration major, plus 2 yrs. accounting or auditing experience.

Internal Auditor - B.S. degree in business administration with accounting major or certificate of higher accounting, plus 3 years experience in commercial or government accounting or auditing.

History Department Dissertation Defense

The final examination for Lillian A. Poe in defense of her doctoral dissertation in History entitled "Elder Lightfoot Solomon Michaux: His Social and Political Interests and Influence" will be held on Friday, Feb. 14, at 2:30 p.m. in the history department library, Morton Hall 340. The examination is open to members of the William and Mary faculty.

Pharmacist To Join Health Services

The Student Health Center will increase its services to students when Philip Spiggle joins its staff on Feb. 17.

Mr. Spiggle, who is now employed by the Williamsburg Drug Store, will become the College's first pharmacist. He will work on a full-time basis during the regular academic session and on a part-time basis during the rest of the year.

The need for a pharmacist at the Health Center became apparent as federal laws regarding the dispensing of pharmaceuticals were made more stringent. Since nurses are barred from dispensing drugs and since the two doctors at the Center do not have time to dispense them, the State Board of Pharmacy urged that a pharmacist be hired.

Mr. Spiggle has a B.S. degree in pharmacy from the School of Pharmacy of the Medical College of Virginia. He is a member of the American Pharmaceutical Association as well as the Virginia and Chesapeake Pharmaceutical Associations.

His addition brings the complement of Health Services staff to 17, including Dr. Richard D. Cilley, director, Dr. Juliette S. Karow and head nurse Bettye Bracey.

Cynthia Fuchs Epstein

Epstein and Lepper To Highlight Affirmative Action Meeting Here

Rights advocates Cynthia Fuchs Epstein and Mary M. Lepper will address the opening session of the Affirmative Action Conference at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the Campus Center Little Theatre.

Ms. Epstein, a sociologist at Columbia University and the City University of New York, is the author of The Other Half: Roads to Women's Equality and Woman's Place. The latter is one of seven critical works included in a course former Senator Eugene McCarthy is teaching in the New School for Social Research in New York as books which "could or should change the world."

Ms. Lepper is director of the higher education division of the Office for Civil Rights, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington.

Following these opening remarks, a series of eight workshops will be held concerning various aspects of Affirmative Action, the College and community. Participants will include Flora Crater, founder of the Virginia Women's Political Caucus and candidate from northern Virginia for Lieutenant Governor in 1973; Pat Dyson, Blacksburg attorney and activist for the rights of women and minority faculty;

Vernon M. Geddy, attorney and Mayor of Williamsburg, as well as other civic leaders and a number of members of the College community.

Sponsored by the Danforth Associates Program at the College, the entire conference is open free of charge to all members of the faculty and staff. Staff employees who wish to attend should advise their supervisors of their interest. Permission should be granted, provided minimum essential services will not be curtailed. It is not necessary to submit a written request for leave of absence in order to attend.

The committee is charged with the examination and development of composition tests in its many programs, particularly those in the Admissions Testing Program and the College Level Examination Programs.

FINE ARTS

Professor Carl A. Roseberg served as a one-man jury in the presentation of awards for the state-wide invitational Sculpture Competition held at the new Executive Towers building in Hampton. Approximately 70 artists had submitted some 100 works of sculpture to the award competition.

GOVERNMENT

Associate Professor Donald J. Baxter reviewed Oey Hong Lee's Indonesia After the 1971 Elections in the Nov. issue of Perspective.

MODERN LANGUAGES

Vickie Babenko, assistant professor, has had her article "Ekaterina Andreevna Karamzina: Her Contribution to Russian Literature and Her Reflections in Pushkin's Works," accepted for publication in Russian Language Journal.

PHYSICS

The following papers have been published: "Nuclear-magnetic-resonance detection of charged defects in gallium arsenide," R. K. Hester, A. Sher, J. F. Soest, and G. Weisz Phys. Rev. B 10, 4262 (1974). "Muonium-formation measurement in low-pressure argon gas," B. A. Barnett, C. Y. Chang, G. B. Yodh, J. B. Carroll, M. Eckhause, C. S. Hsieh, J. R.

Kane, and C. B. Spence, Phys. Rev. A 11, 39 (1975). (The results presented in this paper constituted part of a thesis submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the Ph.D. degree of the College for C. S. Hsieh).

The book Particles and Fields - 1974 has been published by the American Institute of Physics. Edited by Carl E. Carlson, assistant professor, it contains the proceedings of a conference held at William and Mary last fall. The meeting of the Division of Particles and Fields of the American Physical Society took place on campus September 5-7, 1974. It brought to the College about 200 physicists from the U.S., Canada and Europe, to talk about the latest developments in theoretical and experimental physics of elementary particles and forces.

The proceedings comprise about 35 papers in 700 pages. The book is part of an ongoing series of conference reports published by the American Institute of Physics.

John C. Light of the University of Chicago spoke on "Quantum Theory of Reactive Scattering" at a physics colloquium Feb. 3.

PSYCHOLOGY

Wiley-Interscience is publishing a book, Serial Learning and Paralearning, by E. Rae Harcum, professor. The book is the first in the new Wiley Series on Behavior, edited by Kenneth MacCorquodale of the University of Minnesota. It presents a theoretical interpretation of the total acquisition of information that occurs when a person learns a task consisting of sequential parts. The term paralearning, coined by the author, refers to factors such as strategies which direct the learning process but are not themselves mechanisms of learning in the strictest sense. The book was begun when Harcum was a Visiting Scholar at the University of California, Berkeley, during the 1967-68 academic year.

Peter L. Derks, professor, has been asked to chair a paper session on "Memory" at the Eastern Psychological Association meeting, in New York City, April 3-5. Mr. Derks has published the articles, "Effect of Translation and Transformation on Recognition of Sentences" (with Becky Johnston) in Psychological Reports, 1974, 35, 1269-1270; and "Study and Response Time for the Visual Recognition of 'Similarity' and 'Identity'" (with T. Michael Bauer) in Journal of Experimental Psychology, 1974, 103, 978-984. Ms. Johnston is an undergraduate psychology major, and Mr. Bauer, a former graduate student in psychology, is now enrolled in the doctoral program at Carnegie-Mellon University.

Virgil V. McKenna, professor, has been appointed to a panel to review proposals concerning "Research on the Consequences of Childbearing and Childspacing Patterns" sponsored by the Center for Population Research, National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

RELIGION

Three members of the department will read papers at the southeastern regional meeting of the American Academy of Religion on March 21-22 in Atlanta. Thomas Finn, associate professor and chairman of the department, will read "History and Meta-History: An Augustinian View." Assistant Professor Jack D. Van Horn will read "The Neo-Buddhists of Maharashtra," and Associate Professor David Holmes will read a paper on "Bishop James Madison and Anglicanism in Post-Revolutionary Virginia."

Mr. Holmes also gave a paper on "Religion in Colonial Virginia" in Alexandria recently to the Conference of Episcopal Historians on the Bicentennial.

Lecturer Marc Kellner's essay, "Gersonides, Providence, and the Rabbinic Tradition" has just appeared in the December issue of the Journal of the American Academy of Religion.

SOCIOLOGY

Professor Marion G. Vanfossen's review of The Future of Technological Civilization by Victor Ferkis was published in the Nov.-Dec. issue of Sociology: Reviews of New Books.

Winthrop Publishers of Cambridge, Mass., has just published a book by Associate Professor Kelly Shaver entitled An Introduction to Attribution Processes. People engage in attribution whenever they try to understand the causes of the behavior of others, and Shaver's book presents and compares the theories social psychologists have developed to account for the attribution process. Mr. Shaver is currently working on a social psychology textbook also to be published by Winthrop in 1977.

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

The review of George Fisk's Marketing and the Ecological Crisis by Donald J. Messmer, assistant professor, will be published by the Journal of Marketing.

Charles L. Quittmeyer, dean, and Professor Leland E. Traywick attended the Richmond-West End Rotary Club meeting Jan. 15, where Mr. Traywick was the featured speaker.

Dean Quittmeyer also attended a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Southern Business Administration Association in Atlanta on Jan. 8. On Feb. 13, he will address the Gloucester Rotary Club.

Mr. Traywick appeared before legislative committees in Richmond on Jan. 14, forecasting Virginia's economic picture.

Pieter T. Elgers, assistant professor, has co-authored Financial Management, which has been accepted for publication by Holbrook Press, a subsidiary of Allyn-Bacon. Holbrook Press is contracting with Mr. Elgers to co-author an introductory textbook covering the same topics. Both texts should be available for adoption in the Fall 1975 semester.

Mr. Elgers' paper, "Positivism in Accounting: The Use of Association Tests for Accounting Policy Decisions" has been selected for presentation at the 1975 Mid-Atlantic Regional Meeting of the American Accounting Association, and it will be published in this year's Proceedings.

Also scheduled for presentation at that meeting is a paper entitled "Financial Forecasting: Content and Format" written by Rodney Armstrong and Peter Pohorence both 1974 graduates of the MBA program. The paper was prepared in partial fulfillment of MBA coursework requirements while both were students at the College.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

Associate Professor Douglas Prillaman has been invited to make a presentation at the annual conference of the Massachusetts Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, Feb. 7-8. He will speak on "Non-Categorical Teacher Training Effecting Change in Special Education."

Mr. Prillaman is the coordinator of the College's learning disabilities program, which recently became the first program of its type in Virginia to receive official approval from the State Board of Education. Learning disabilities is "one of the few remaining areas in education where there is still a shortage of teachers," said Prillaman. "It's the newest field in special education."

Ronald C. Wheeler assistant professor, has been asked to serve on a school visitation committee for April 13-16. The committee will investigate several elementary schools in Virginia Beach that are seeking accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

MARSHALL-WYTHE SCHOOL OF LAW

Two members of the law school faculty will participate in the 50th anniversary meeting of the National Association of Honor Societies, which is meeting in Williamsburg this weekend.

Irma Lang, associate professor, will discuss tort liabilities, and Professor Richard A. White will take as his topic, "Tax Liabilities of Unincorporated Societies." Both are speakers in the conference schedule devoted to honor societies and the law.

Associate Professor Ronald C. Brown addressed a conference sponsored by the Center for Public Personnel Management of the National Civil Service League on Jan. 10 in Washington, D. C. He spoke on legal developments in labor relations in government service.

Mr. Brown has also recently published an article entitled "Federal Legislation for Public Sector Collective Bargaining: A Minimum Standards Approach" in the University of Toledo Law Review, Vol. 5.

Faculty Club Party Friday

The Faculty Club's third cocktail party of the year is Friday at the Alumni House from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Faculty members and administrators may obtain tickets in advance from Richard Prosl at the usual rates: Members--$2 per person, or $1 for non-drinkers; Non-Members--$3.50 per person, or $2 for non-drinkers. The fee may also be paid at the door.

NSF Awards Grant To Education School

The National Science Foundation has awarded the School of Education a grant for $22,614 to train teachers in four Virginia counties in methods of incorporating the computer in high school mathematics.

Thirty-five teachers from Chesterfield, Fairfax, Richmond and Henrico school divisions will participate in local and state-wide sessions designed to improve second-year algebra and trigonometry courses. The William and Mary team will utilize the methods, materials and instructional philosophy of the Colorado Schools Computing Science Curriculum Development Program (CSCS).

Under the direction of Associate Professor of Education Stuart Flanagan, the program will attempt to introduce computer concepts and techniques to strengthen the student's understanding of mathematics. The training program which was developed cooperatively by Mr. Flanagan and the supervisory personnel of the four school districts, will be supported by NSF for 20 months.

The high school teachers will attend a two-week session in June at the College in addition to three state-wide conferences during the 1975-76 school year. The fall and spring state conferences will be held in Fairfax County, while the winter session will be held in the Richmond area.

The program is expected to have a state-wide impact as teachers in two of the three population centers in the Commonwealth are trained to use the CSCS method.

Evaluations of the effects of integrating computer concepts with algebra and trigonometry courses are being conducted by Fairfax and Chesterfield pilot studies projects supported by the State Department of Education.

Mr. Flanagan, who also will conduct his own research to evaluate the effectiveness of the CSCS program, feels that computer concepts can "reinforce and clarify" the study of algebra and trigonometry.

"Computers now affect the lives of practically every citizen of this country," he said. "It is essential that our educational system reflect this aspect of everyday life, and that students become acquainted with the nature of computers and the current and potential roles which they play in our society."

Mr. Flanagan insists that "the program does not attempt to train students to be computer scientists." He feels, however, that computer science can provide students with a powerful tool for problem solving and for gaining mathematical insight.

Twenty-two high schools and over 1000 students will participate in the implementation of the experimental program. The four public school systems have committed nearly $100,000 to the program through 1975-76 for textbooks, computer facilities and teachers' salaries.

Mr. Flanagan also hopes to receive National Science Foundation approval to invite the Williamsburg-James City County school divisions to send a participant to the summer sessions.

The staff of the project was recently trained in the Leadership Specialist Workshop held in Boulder, Colorado. Mr. Flanagan will be joined by associate director of the project David F. Magnuson, a specialist in mathematics for Fairfax County public schools; Helen S. Edens, supervisor of mathematics for Chesterfield County public schools; and Stuart N. Katzke, assistant professor of mathematics at William and Mary.

In addition, the College will provide the use of computer center facilities and the mathematics education library. The School of Education will further support the project by utilizing CSCS materials in appropriate courses for teacher candidates to visit the participating school divisions for on-site experience.

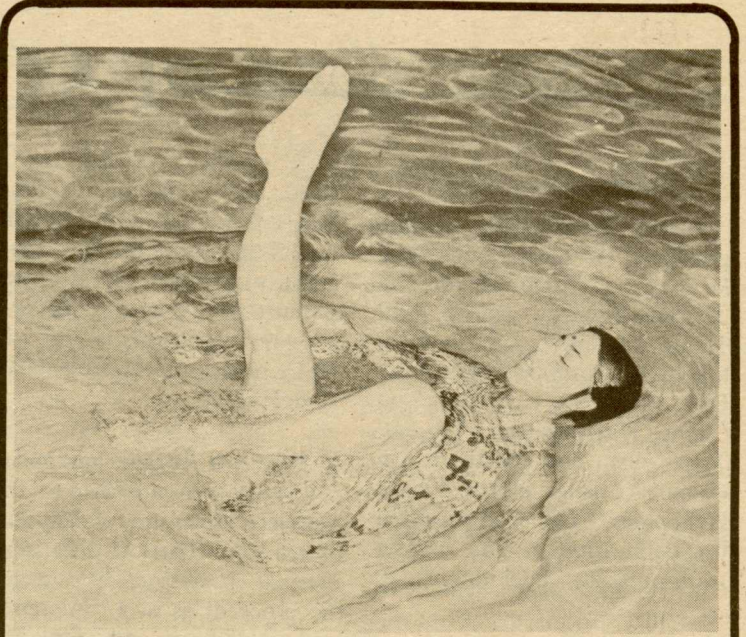

William and Mary has long participated in the training of school mathematics teachers and in the development of school mathematics curriculum, sponsoring National Science Foundation Summer Institutes on campus for the past 12 years.

Mermettes Prepare Spring Performance

by Jeanne Nicholson '77

Three nights of These numbers and acts standing-room-only at Adair aren't restricted only to pool each April during the performances in Adair pool but Mermettes' traditional spring are often performed at show leave little doubt about workshops and clinics held at their popularity among the local other colleges up and down the community and students; east coast. These numbers are however, few people realize how performed to acquaint others much these swimmers are doing with aspects of creative during the other months of the swimming or to exchange ideas with other aquatic groups, rather than solely to compete.

What type of club is Mermettes exactly? Some of the twenty-eight women and five men who are swimming with the Mermettes this year might refer to the club as an extracurricular activity. Others will call it creative aquatics. Freshmen and sophomores may consider it an extra special way of picking up physical education credits, while John Weimar, another swimmer in the group, may tell you that he thinks it's "sort of an art-sy kind of thing."

Ten year advisor to the club, Jan Thomlinson, will back John up on that point, pointing out that it is the creative aspects and high degree of art-orientation that distinguish the Mermettes from the synchronized swimming groups found at many colleges.

Learning Sessions

The swimmers spend an hour each week at the pool learning basic techniques, figures, and water formations, as well as putting in additional hours of practice. Groups and individuals will soon begin to work out numbers and solos that often involve extensive costume, choreography, and backdrop design. Creative aspects really come to the surface during these stages as the students themselves

Ms. Thomlinson, who enjoys explore potential ways to working with the group and develop a theme and carry it out effectively, both on the deck towards the club, indicated that and in the water. This may what she would "really like to involve their creating a be able to do" would be to melodrama, or really just letting arrange a company that could themselves go...as was the case in travel and perform different last spring's show when weekends out of the year similar "Batman" entered the pool by to the exhibition sport groups or dropping from the rafters! The Choir tours.

Performers Travel

This September, Karen Larsen and Sue Hanna both took their numbers to a statewide clinic held at Meredith College in Raleigh, N. C. Later, in November, four more girls traveled to the University of Delaware for the Eastern Regional Symposium of the National Institute of Creative Aquatics (NICA), where they received highly complimentary critiques. In March a group of swimmers will perform at the NICA National Conference at the University of New York. The Mermettes also have been invited to Old Dominion University later in the spring to do portions of their show in an attempt to stimulate an interest on the ODU campus.

Past travels for the mermettes have included a "swim-a-long" in Canada two years ago, as well as trips to Iowa and Florida, giving the group a wide range of exposure and ideas from other parts of the nation. It is hoped that each swimmer will have an opportunity to travel to these workshops and clinics during the year, although money, of course, is always a conditioning factor.

Company President To Discuss Fair Trade

Sydney Lewis, president of Best Products Co., will lead a discussion on the pros and cons of fair trade laws in Thursday's business policy class at the School of Business Administration.

Yet the appearance will take only a half-hour of Lewis' busy schedule and he'll never have to leave his comfortable desk chair. Lewis will be the guest of Associate Professor William Warren by telephone, leading off a list of 18 top executives who will lend their experience in the "real business world to William and Mary students during the spring semester.

Following Lewis' discussion in the morning session of the business policy class, W. H. Krome George, president of the Aluminum Company of America, will be the guest telephone speaker for the afternoon class. George will explain "how to get to the top" of the business pyramid and answer student questions about executive career paths.

Mr. Warren began working with telephone interviews in spring 1973, and since then has expanded the program to include business executives on an international level.

Students in the class are assigned the task of selecting executives to be interviewed, researching the backgrounds of the firms to prepare questions for executives, and leading the discussion session following the interview.

The expansion of the telephone interviews is a reversal of special speaker cutbacks at universities across the nation. High travel costs and tight college budgets have made classroom appearances by national experts a rare occurrence.

Mini Course Is ACM Project

Three seniors majoring in mathematics last week taught a mini course in computer science to a class of senior high school students at Walsingham Academy.

The project was initiated when Walsingham mathematics instructor Mrs. Patty Fairbanks, contacted Mr. Norman E. Gibbs, associate professor of mathematics and advisor of the Association for Computing Machinery (ACM), a campus organization for students in computer science.

In future weeks, speakers calling the College will include Edgar B. Speer, chairman of United States Steel; Robert D. Lilley, president of American Telephone and Telegraph; Charles J. Pilliod, Jr., chairman of Goodyear Tire and Rubber; A. A. Busch III, president of Anheuser-Busch; J. Paul Sticht, president of R. J. Reynolds Industries; George H. Weyerhaeuser, president of Weyerhaeuser Co.; Leonard H. Goldenson, chairman of American Broadcasting Co.; and George A. Stinson, chairman of National Steel Co.

Karen Barlow of Smithfield, Charles Doyal of Newport News, and Teresa Warren, Richmond, all members of the ACM, volunteered to teach the three day course as an ACM-sponsored project.

During the course the high school students, who had had no previous training in computer work, were introduced to FORTRAN, a basic computer language. They also learned how to keypunch computer cards and began working with A Programming Language (APL) on William and Mary's computer.

The students sharpened their skills by playing such games as three dimensional tic-tac-toe, chess and football with the computer. The game program was designed especially for those who have had no previous experience in computer use.

Mrs. R. Keith Kane Gives Rare Books

A two-volume set of the Marquis de Chastellux' "Travels in North America," published in London in 1787, has been given to the College of William and Mary by Mrs. R. Keith Kane of Charlottesville.

The volumes, which were presented as a 1975 Charter Day gift, will be on display in Swem Library for the College's celebration of its 282nd anniversary. After Charter Day the books will become part of the College's rare book collection.

The Marquis de Chastellux, a major general under Comte de Rochambeau in the American Revolution, received the first honorary Doctor of Laws degree awarded by the College in 1782.

The Marquis traveled extensively in the area that now stretches from Virginia to New Hampshire. He kept a journal of his experiences and impressions during his travels in 1780-82, and it is that record which comprises his "Travels in North America."

The volumes at one time belonged to Mrs. Kane's father, John Stewart Bryan, who was President of William and Mary from 1934-1942.

Memo from the Assistant to the Vice President for Business Affairs

Campus Mail Service Study Yields Recommendations

Recently we completed two separate studies of the College mail service, one by Mr. W.G. Held, who is a senior member of the supervisory staff in the local U.S. Post Office, and the other by representatives of Pitney-Bowes, a postal equipment supplier. We appreciate very much the cooperation extended by each of you who was interviewed during the course of these studies.

The latter study produced predictable results, in that the recommendations centered primarily around a physical rearrangement of the Campus Post Office and the installation of several additional pieces of expensive equipment for addressing, stuffing, and collating bulk mailings. In the light of current budgetary restrictions, however, we are in the position of agreeing that "it would be nice," but the lack of funds prohibits any such purchases just now.

The study by Mr. Held was conducted from an operational standpoint, since this is his area of expertise. His report covers such points as the separation of mail in the post office, the delivery and pick-up of mail throughout the campus area, adherence to established schedules, and similar items.

Mr. Held contends that there are no major problems present in the current mail system, and that several minor inefficiencies which he observed have been corrected.

One of Mr. Held's primary recommendations has to do with inter-campus mail. It is his feeling that much of the reason for inter-campus mail going to the wrong destinations is due not so much to the mail clerks' mishandling, as to mishandling by others (secretaries, student assistants, etc.) who do not know the proper procedures for "pigeon-holing" the mail. Accordingly he suggests:

1. All inter-campus mail should be addressed not only by name, but by department, also.
2. All such mail should be in an envelope which is plainly marked for campus delivery. The preferable envelope is the big brown tie envelope (approximately 10" x 13") which has the name spaces and which is difficult to be confused with ordinary mail. This envelope, DPS-M115, is furnished without cost through our Stores Warehouse upon submission of a requisition.
3. All such addressed mail should be put up only by mail room personnel.

In connection with Item No.3, we suggest the following:

However, when there is a "blanket mailing" (or the same piece to every mail box) the office which issues such a mailing is responsible for "pigeon-holing" the mail. It should be emphasized that this procedure applies only to mail which carries no specific name and/or department, and which is designated for blanket distribution.

Many of Mr. Held's suggestions have been offered before, but the repetition might be of value:

1. Outgoing mail should be divided into separate bundles, clearly designated for on-campus or off-campus delivery.
2. All complaints regarding mail service should be directed first to Robert Canaday, the mail room supervisor; the extension is 491. If further action appears necessary, please call me on Extension 203.

We realize all too well that we will not achieve perfect mail service on the campus, but we constantly are striving to improve our position, and we believe that studies of the type mentioned will do much toward helping us achieve our goal.

SECURITY LOG

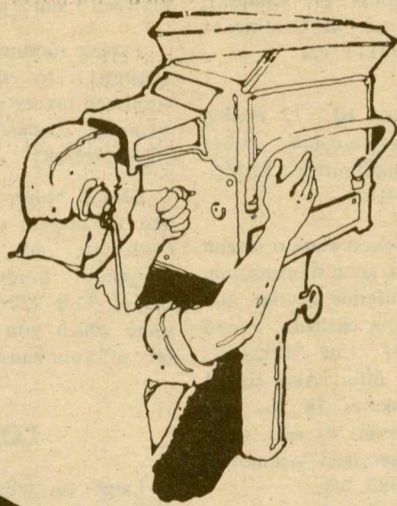

SAFETY SLOGAN: Safe means never having to say you're sorry. (Submitted by James F. Harris, Jr., Philosophy Department.)

- Jan. 23/8 p.m. Dispute in Pub by several individuals. Investigation of this incident to continue.
- Jan. 25/3:58 a.m. Female student received annoying phone calls. Investigation to continue.
- Jan. 26/2:20 p.m. Subject wanted by the Campus Police since November for harassing female students was arrested in the Campus Center. Court action to follow.

The following items were reported stolen:

- Jan. 28/3:15 p.m. Small change taken from wallet in unlocked locker in basement of Blow Gym.

ON CAMERA '75

Appearances by William and Mary personalities on area television stations have been arranged by the College's Information Office. Suggestions for future appearances are always welcome. Call Ext. 331 or 371 if you are interested, or if you know of someone who might be.

Upcoming broadcasts will include an interview with President Graves on Feb. 5 at 7 p.m. and again on Feb. 7 at 10:30 p.m., both on Channel 15, WHRO. He discusses with host Harry Covert the present conditions and future directions of the College.

Associate Professor of Government and witty master of ceremonies for the annual Raft Debate, Alan Ward is scheduled to appear on the AM Tidewater show on Feb. 10 at 8 a.m., Channel 13. Mr. Ward will discuss with host Jackie Miller the political situation in the United Kingdom.

Recently English professor David Jenkins also appeared on AM Tidewater, explaining how he uses his spare time to edit the "Consumer News," a community newsletter that surveys market basket prices at Williamsburg groceries.

Last month's television guests included Peggy Lawlor, captain of William and Mary's state champion swimming team and a state record-holder; security chief Harvey Gunson; singer-musician Greg Greenway; the Wildroots fifties band; and Associate Professor of Education Robert Maidment, who also teaches a Special Programs course on "Womangement" at VARC.

NEW LAW SCHOOL DESIGN

The building advisory committee for the new law school building included Justice Tom A. Clark (Ret.); Sam T. Beale, Richmond; Arthur B. Hanson, Washington; and James A. Howard and William T. Prince, both of Norfolk. Some 35 law school buildings were studied for ideas. Justice Clark has called the design the most beautiful law school in America.

The National Center for State Courts, organized in 1971 to advance and modernize the workings of justice at the state and local levels, is a "not-for-profit" organization.
