

Scholarships Are Offered For Study of MacArthur

The $1,000 Inchon Scholarship will be awarded to a W&M rising senior. The recipient will receive half of the award immediately and the remainder upon completion of an essay dealing with any facet of MacArthur's military activities.

The $1,500 MacArthur Statesman Scholarship is available to graduate students and is for the study of MacArthur's "contribution to the determination of U.S. policy with respect to a significant international problem."

R. Bruce Mullin, a senior history major from Mountainside, N.J., was awarded the undergraduate scholarship last year. His paper concerns the perception of MacArthur as a leader by his troops in the Philippines. A graduate student in history who also holds an M.Ed. degree from the College, Martha J. McArthur received the Statesman scholarship. Her paper concerns MacArthur's role in making the Japanese educational system more democratic.

A. Z. Freeman, professor of history and College liaison with the MacArthur Foundation emphasizes that applicants are not restricted to government or history concentrators and that any student who wishes to write on MacArthur may apply.

Students interested in receiving the scholarship should see Mr. Freeman by March 15. His office is located in Morton 331, Ext. 440, and he may be contacted there between 3 and 4 p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The applications are due at the Foundation on April 1.

Applications are now being accepted for two scholarships totaling $2,500. The scholarships are being offered to William and Mary students for the third consecutive year by the MacArthur Memorial Foundation in Norfolk for the study of some facet of General Douglas MacArthur's career.

ChLA Plans National Conference at W&M

Are the books that we read to our children good or bad? Has there been any improvement in children's books over the years?

Topics such as these will be discussed when the members of the Children's Literature Association meet in Williamsburg, March 7-9, at the second annual conference of the ChLA, being hosted by the

Virginia Trio Plans March 9 Recital Here

The music department is sponsoring a recital by the Virginia Trio on Sunday, March 9 at 8:15 p.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom. The Virginia Trio is composed of Ira Lieberman, violin; Frantisek Smetana, cello; and Landon Bilyeu, piano.

Works to be performed on the program will be Trio in B Flat Major by Mozart, Trio in C Minor by Beethoven, and Trio No. 1 in D Minor by Mendelssohn.

The Virginia Trio is a newly formed chamber group composed of three Richmond musicians, all of whom teach at Virginia Commonwealth University. Mr. Smetana also teaches cello at William and Mary.

There is no admission charge for the concert.

School of Education.

A critical examination of children's books, past and present, will focus around the general topic "Great Writers, Illustrators and Ages in Children's Literature" through a series of workshops, seminars, book exhibits, and speeches by people distinguished in the field of children's literature. The keynote speech will be given at a banquet to be held Friday evening, March 7. Pamela L. Travers, noted author of the Mary Poppins books, will discuss "On Not Writing for Children."

Other speakers at the conference will include Deborah Ray, illustrator and artist; George A. Woods, children's book review editor of the New York Times; and James Haskins, writer of nonfiction books for children.

A special feature of the conference will be an exhibit of art work from children's books, on loan from the DeGrummond Collection of the University of Southern Mississippi. Publisher's exhibits and an autograph coffee are among the informal activities of the conference.

At the seminars, papers will be read critically examining such topics as: "1850 to 1900: The Great Age of Authors and Illustrators," "Frances Hodgson Burnett," and "E. B. White." There will be a total of 14 seminars dealing with various eras, writers, and illustrators of children's literature.

This conference will be the second held by the Children's Literature Association since its formation in 1972. The ChLA was formed to encourage scholarship and research in the field of children's literature. Its other activities include the distribution of the journal, "Children's Literature: The Great Excluded," and the publication of a quarterly newsletter.

Concert Series Features Dance Company In Residence

A dance theatre company directed by an artist whom critics describe as "a master magician of the multi-media theatre" and a "philosopher of the visual arts" will be in residence at the College, March 9-12.

Alwin Nikolais' dance theatre company will give a public lecture-demonstration in Phi Beta Kappa Hall on Monday, March 10, at 8:15 p.m. The session, which is open free to the public, offers an opportunity to hear an artist discuss his work and to see the imaginative and unconventional approach Nikolais takes toward dance.

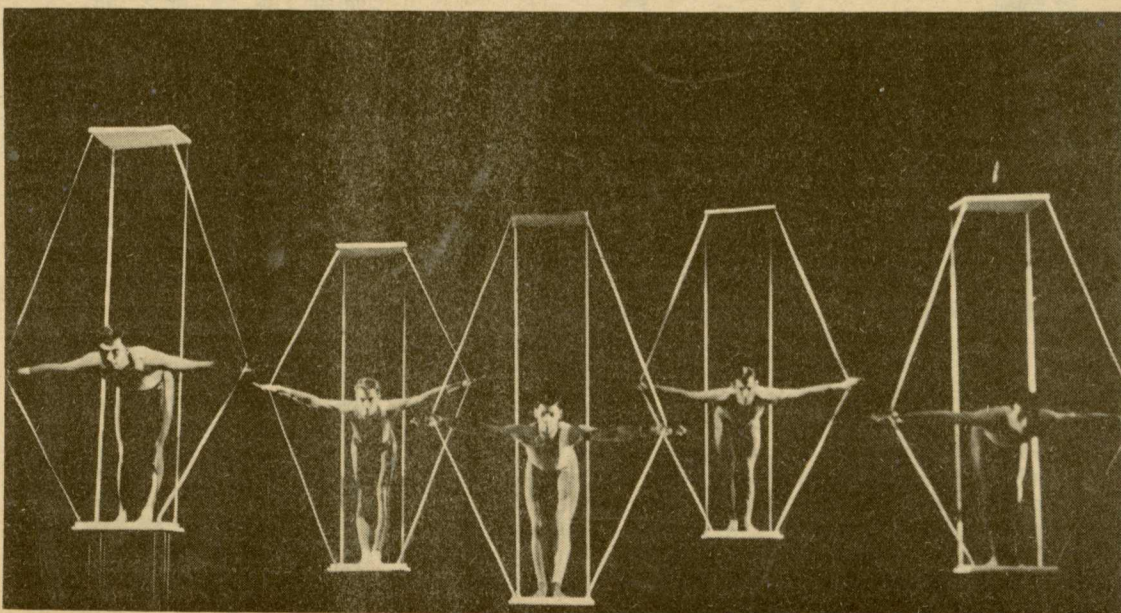

On Tuesday, March 11, the company will perform as part of the College's Concert Series. Although the performance has been sold out, cancellation tickets will be sold on a first come, first served basis at the PBK box office, beginning at 7:30 p.m. on the evening of the performance.

A pioneer in the field of dance, Nikolais "combines the motion of dancers with a collage of light, color and sound to create a 'total theatre,'" says

Associate Professor Carol Sherman, dance instructor at the College. "One art is not enough," she adds. "He likes to mix magic."

Nikolais' form of dance moves away from the conventional narrative usually found in ballet. He favors groups, rather than single dancers, and frequently has his dancers use props and abstract costumes to extend the range of movement of the human body, says Mrs. Sherman. Rather than telling a story, Nikolais creates an impression--a "magical panorama" of movement, color and form.

While in residence at the College, the company will work with students in advanced dance classes and with members of Orchesis, a modern dance group, in a special techniques master class.

Council Seeks Student Editors

The Publications Council will begin its process to select 1975-76 editors of the student publications—The Flat Hat, Colonial Echo, William and Mary Review, Colonial Lawyer, Amicus Curiae, and station WCWM-FM next month.

Chairman Wilford Kale said the Council deadline for submission of recommendations for new editors is Friday, March 7. Nominations can either be sent to Mr. Kale at P.O. Box 439, Williamsburg, or left with Ken Smith, director of student activities, at the Campus Center.

Theatre Auditions

The Premiere Theatre will hold auditions at Phi Beta Kappa Hall this Thursday and Friday, March 6 and 7, from 4 to 6 p.m. All interested students are encouraged to audition. Production dates will be announced later.

Women's Club

Meets March 13

Norman Barka, associate professor of anthropology, will address the College Women's Club at 8 p.m. on Thursday, March 13. The meeting will be held in Washington Hall in the anthropology area located on the ground floor.

Mr. Barka will discuss the archaeological work being carried on at Flowerdew Hundred and plans to show slides of the excavations. He will also exhibit artifacts and give a tour of the laboratories where the finds are studied and preserved.

Applications Due For Orientation Jobs

Applications for Assistant Director of Orientation and Orientation Administrative Assistants are available now in Dean Albert's Office, James Blair Hall, Room 210, as well as applications for Orientation Aide. The deadline for Assistant Director and Administrative Assistant is March 7, and the deadline for Orientation Aide is March 20.

All interested students are urged to apply. Previous experience in the orientation program is not required. Questions should be directed to Jane Barrett, Landrum 9, Ext. 418.

Volleyball Tourney

The Morton Hall Volleyball Tournament, sponsored by the Economics Club, will be held in Adair Gymnasium at 3 and at 4:30 p.m. on Friday, March 7. People interested in joining the volleyball team are invited to contact Erik Rasmussen at 229-7087.

Persons interested in the editorships are requested to submit biographical information, especially outlining their prior journalism or radio station experience. The Council will also accept up to three letters of recommendation in support of the candidates.

Computer Dance Set March 14

The Student Association and ACM (Computer Club) are co-sponsoring a Computer Dance on Friday March 14, beginning at 9 p.m. in the Hoi Polloi. The band "Passage" will furnish music.

Those purchasing tickets for the dance fill out a questionnaire. That information is later punched onto a card and run through the computer. The names of those who have been paired will be available between 1 and 5 p.m. March 14 in the Computer Center (located in the basement of Jones Hall.)

Tickets may be purchased at the Campus Center desk; at the Computer Center between 7-11 p.m. on Monday through Thursday; and Friday before the SA movies.

Review Seeks Articles For Spring Issue

The William and Mary Review is currently accepting contributions in the fields of poetry, fiction, drama, non-fiction and art for the Spring, 1975, issue. A $100 prize will be awarded for the best work in any category. Any member of the College or Williamsburg communities may submit works. Entries must be turned in to the Review Office on the second floor of the Campus Center by March 20.

W&M Faculty Club Schedules Party

The Faculty Club will hold its fourth cocktail party of the year on Friday, March 7. The event will take place from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Alumni House, and officers of the United Virginia Bank of Williamsburg will be guests. The Villa Roma on Jamestown Road is the club's restaurant of the month. The restaurant is offering a 15% discount to members who have attended the cocktail party.

All members of the faculty and administration are invited to attend and may pay at the door or obtain tickets from Richard Prosl at the usual rates: members - $2 per person ($1 non-drinkers); non-members - $3.50 per person ($2 non-drinkers).

Mrs. Moorhead Donates Gift

Mrs. Winifred Moorhead, wife of the late Dwight Moorhead, a Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock vice president and an artist, has donated a selection of her husband's etchings to the College.

Mr. Moorhead's own etchings and others in his collection are currently on exhibit in the Andrews Hall Gallery. The closing date for the exhibit has been extended from March 3 to March 10.

The Gallery is open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Theatre Slates Brecht Play and Premiere Performance This Weekend

Excerpts from the works of epic playwright Bertolt Brecht and a workshop staging of an original play will be presented here this weekend by John Shearin, '70, and his visiting professional theatre company.

Sponsored by the W&M

Theatre, A New American Theatre will present George Tabori's "Brecht on Brecht" on Saturday, March 8, at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall. Saturday's performance will include excerpts from Brecht's The Good Woman of Setzuan, St. Joan of the Stockyards, and Fear and Misery of the Third Reich.

Tickets for the performance, which will be given Saturday night only, will be available for $3 at the PBK box office, from 3-5:30 p.m. and from 7-8:15 p.m. on the day of the performance.

On Sunday a new play with music, written and composed by Dick Hobson, will premiere in Phi Beta Kappa at 2 p.m. Performed by the New American Theatre company, "Memphis Is Gone" is open to the public without charge. Since the work is new, the playwright and actors are especially interested in getting audience reaction to the production after its performance.

Directed by John Shearin, the New American Theatre company includes two actors who have also had close associations with the College and Williamsburg. David Aston-Reese, like Mr. Shearin, played the role of Thomas Jefferson in productions of the "Common Glory," while actor Jonathan Frakes played Hugh Taylor in the "Glory."

Women's Rights Advocate To Give Forum Lecture

"Sex Discrimination: It Hurts to be a Woman in Labor" is the subject women's rights advocate Bernice Sandler will address in the next Project PLUS Forum lecture. She will speak at 8:30 p.m. in Millington Auditorium on Wednesday, March 5.

The public is welcome to attend.

Currently an executive associate with the Association of American Colleges, Ms. Sandler directs the Project on the Status and Education of Women. She has been actively involved in seeking women's rights for several years.

She served as deputy director of the Women's Action program at HEW, a program to evaluate the impact on women of various HEW programs. Ms. Sandler also worked as an education specialist for the U. S. House of Representatives' Special Subcommittee on Education, where she was the first person ever appointed to the staff of a Congressional committee to work specifically in the area of women's rights.

As head of the Action Committee for Federal Contract Compliance of the Women's Equity Action League (WEAL), she filed formal charges of sex discrimination against more than 250 universities and colleges.

The author of many articles on sex discrimination, Ms. Sandler serves on the boards of WEAL, the Women's Rights Law Reporter, the Women's History Research Center, and others.

She holds a degree in counseling and personnel services from the University of Maryland.

Meeting Scheduled On Staff Association

A meeting to discuss organizing a staff association for non-faculty employees of the College will be held in James Blair room 301 on Thursday, March 6. There will be two sessions, beginning at 12 noon and again at 1 p.m., to allow as many employees as possible to attend during their lunch hour.

Possible aims, functions and membership of such an association will be discussed. A tentative list of aims and functions has been drawn up and a copy sent to each office on campus for review by staff members. Additional copies may be obtained from Kathy Micken, or Sandy Gleeson, Ext. 408.

Wilson Discusses Affirmative Action at W&M

If you are black, female, an American Indian, an Asian-Oriental American, or if you are a Spanish surnamed American, you are in a "protected class," says Wesley Wilson, the College's Affirmative Action officer.

That is the group, protected by special laws, that Mr. Wilson is immediately concerned with as Affirmative Action coordinator. Mr. Wilson who joined the College last October, also serves as director of grants and research contracts.

He explained that the need for an Affirmative Action program became apparent in the late 60s, when people began talking about equal employment opportunities for those with equal skills. The problem was, Mr. Wilson pointed out, that everyone had not been afforded equal job opportunities or equal opportunities to develop his or her skills. Affirmative Action was instituted to help those who had not been given those opportunities.

"My first responsibility at the College is to be aware of all the federal and state guidelines concerning Affirmative Action and Equal Employment and to see that the College complies with them," said Wilson. In order to apply those guidelines to the College, he must have a very clear picture of its ethnic and sexual profile. The profile consists of statistical information concerning ethnic background and sex, and it covers the entire College community--students as well as employees.

Working from this profile, Mr. Wilson can pinpoint areas of "under-utilization"--areas where the personnel on campus are not representative of the available appropriate labor pool. "For example," said Wilson, "the College employs only two full-time black faculty members. Since that does not reflect the available labor pool, it constitutes underutilization."

To change such underutilized areas, Mr. Wilson works to broaden the recruiting base. In addition to advertising faculty openings in the traditional publications, Mr. Wilson sees to it that ethnically oriented publications are notified and lets them know that the College is actively seeking qualified minority candidates to apply for available positions.

According to Mr. Wilson, though, a positive recruitment program is still not enough. Under the Affirmative Action philosophy, in a situation where there is no qualified minority candidate, a workable alternative must be found.

If a department could not find a qualified minority candidate to fill a faculty opening, then "the affirmative approach would be to establish a part-time position and hire a minority candidate so that he or she can gain the necessary experience and eventually move into a full-time position," said

Wilson. "We need to take a second look at the validity of job requirements to insure that they are truly representative of the task."

The philosophy of helping those in the "protected classes" also includes non-faculty College employees. Mr. Wilson sees as very positive the recent development of the Adult Skills Program, brought about through the joint efforts of his office, the School of Education and the local Community Action Agency. The upward mobility program offers those who may not have had the opportunity, a chance to learn new skills and to qualify for jobs for which they previously lacked skills or experience.

Mr. Wilson is an ex officio member of the Affirmative Action Advisory Committee. He advises them on technical aspects of Affirmative Action laws, and in turn relies heavily on committee members for their advising him of the needs and concerns of College personnel.

He also works closely with Mr. Robitshek and the personnel office, coordinating Equal Employment and Affirmative Action activities and responding to requests made by College employees.

Mr. Wilson intends to work to "make minorities more visible on campus by expanding their utilization on staff and faculty." In the area of lecturers and speakers, he advocates bringing more minorities to campus. He feels the opportunity will benefit the College and also give the individuals additional experience.
