Bike Marathon Benefits Charity

The second annual Pike Bike Marathon to aid the Muscular Dystrophy Association will be held Saturday, April 26.

Sponsored by the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity in conjunction with the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, the marathon will raise funds to finance research, new equipment and medical care for victims of muscular dystrophy. Through the efforts of over 250 participants, last year's event brought in nearly $9,000 in pledges for muscular dystrophy.

All members of the campus community interested in entering the marathon should pick up entry forms at the Pi Kappa Alpha house in the fraternity complex across from W&M Hall, or call Ext. 460 for further information.

Riders are responsible for persuading students, faculty and staff, as well as area residents, to sponsor them by pledging a specific amount of money for each mile covered by the cyclist.

The Colonial Parkway is the site of the marathon course, with Jamestown as the morning's destination and Yorktown the afternoon's goal for energetic cyclists. Participants will be welcomed back to Williamsburg between legs of the race by complimentary lunches and linament furnished by the fraternity. Prizes and trophies will be awarded to individual and group winners at a post-race band party at Lake Matoaka in the evening.

Bryan Presents W&M History

Mr. David Tennant Bryan recently presented an 1874 William and Mary History and Catalogue to the College. Mr. Bryan, chairman and publisher of Richmond Newspapers, Inc. has long been a friend of the College. He noted that the book was given to his father, John Stewart Bryan, by his cousins in 1925, about the time that the senior Mr. Bryan was first appointed to the College's Board of Visitors. J. S. Bryan later served as President of the College, 1934-42.

In accepting the gift, President Graves said he was "delighted" with the volume and noted that it would "have a place of honor and security in the Rare Book Room of Swem Library."

W&M Athletes Reap Honors

Six William and Mary track and field stars left the NCAA Indoor Championships this weekend with All-American honors, while wrestler Mark Belknap took third place in the 134 pound division in the NCAA wrestling championship at Princeton.

Although Reggie Clark captured fourth place in the 880 and Al Irving set a state record with a spectacular seven-foot one leap in the high jump, the chances for a team championship were shattered when speedster Ron Martin injured a foot in Friday's opening segment of the meet. With Clark subbing for the frustrated Martin, the medley relay squad still managed fourth place, with Frank Courtney, Bill Becker and Mac Collins leading the way.

The NCAA meet follows the Tribe's stunning third place finish in the IC4A Championships at Princeton, as well as their sixth straight state championships and tenth straight conference title. Coach John Randolph was also named Southern Conference Coach-of-the-Year.

Belknap, rated as one of the College's all-time best wrestlers, was narrowly defeated in the semi-finals but came back to capture third place with a 2-0 decision in the consolation match. The senior finished the season with an astounding 46-1 record.

L. Poe Studies Black Minister

Lillian A. Poe, a native of Newport News now at the University of California, has completed the first major study on the life and career of the controversial black minister Elder Michaux, founder of the Church of God movement in the early 1900's in Newport News.

The study is Mrs. Poe's dissertation for her doctorate in history, which she will receive from the College in June.

The Hampton Institute graduate said she knew the complex and multi-talented Michaux "as well as anybody could." But she added that "he was a very protective man who probably wouldn't let me do the study" if he were alive today.

Michaux began the Church of God movement in 1919 in the Newport News area and it quickly became a popular and influential religious movement along most of the east coast. He died in 1968 at the age of 84.

Because she thought Michaux "deserved a definitive study," Mrs. Poe, a specialist in Black History, spent several years reviewing the minister's sermons and recordings, investigating newspaper reports and conducting interviews with Michaux's co-workers.

After receiving a master's degree in history from the University of Virginia, Mrs. Poe entered the doctoral program at the College in 1969. She became the first William and Mary student to receive an Advanced Study Fellowship for Black Americans from the Ford Foundation in 1971.

Mrs. Poe spent one summer at the University of Singapore

School Will Offer New Degree Program In School Psychology

The School of Education will offer in September a master's degree in school psychology, becoming the first university in eastern Virginia to prepare certified school psychologists for work in public and private schools.

Although three other universities in Virginia currently offer similar programs, William and Mary's program will provide educators their first opportunity to enter a certified master's program in eastern Virginia. According to Associate Professor John Lavach, who is coordinating the organization of the new program, "the market in this area is excellent. We've had schools interested in the program contact us from areas as far as the eastern shore and south to the North Carolina border."

Despite budget cutbacks and restrictions on hiring new personnel in many school districts throughout the State, Lavach reports that "schools are finally realizing the need for a school psychologist and are giving school psychology programs top priority attention."

According to Lavach, school psychologists evaluate the intellectual, social and emotional development of students. He uses interviews with the student, teachers and parents to help him make diagnostic and prognostic decisions regarding exceptional students.

Even more important, says Lavach, the psychologist contributes substantially to a school's attempts to provide a child with optimum adjustment to his educational and social environment.

The College's school psychology program will require a minimum of 48 semester hours of course work and one year of full-time internship in the state school system. College officials estimate that enrollment should increase from six full-time and 18 part-time students in 1975-76 to 15 full-time and 40 part-time students in 1977-78.

The College will appoint a full-time faculty member to teach required school psychology courses and direct the intern program and has already formed a search committee to find a qualified individual to join the staff. Lavach will chair the search committee.

Circle K Serves 'Young at Heart'

Circle K has established a reputation for service to community young people. But what most people don't know is that Circle K also serves "the young at heart"—citizens in their seventies and eighties.

Through their work with underprivileged youngsters in the Chickahominy area, Circle K volunteers meet another segment of the population in need of help. They find that many elderly people struggle to care for themselves and their homes in virtual isolation. Others are simply lonely and need companionship on a regular basis.

To satisfy the growing needs of senior citizens, volunteers from Circle K have formed a transportation service for elderly people who need to go into town for medical appointments, bank payments or grocery shopping. With the help of the Community Action Agency and their van, Circle K makes trips to and from town nearly every weekday afternoon.

Recreation hour

Senior citizens in the Chickahominy area particularly look forward to Thursday afternoons when Circle K sponsors a recreation hour at the Chickahominy Church. Although a wide variety of crafts and competitive sessions of bingo are typical activities at Thursday afternoon get-togethers, the real enjoyment comes in the form of interesting and lively conversation. Not surprisingly, the senior citizens spend most of their time talking about "the good ole days."

On afternoons when there are no requests for transportation service, Circle K members stop by the homes of senior citizens just to talk, help with the heavy household chores or track down the names of other senior citizens who might benefit from the service.

The majority of the elderly people in the area either don't own cars or no longer feel safe driving them, and some don't have a telephone to call a taxi or friend to drive them into town.

N.Y. Times Cites W&M Athletic Policy

The College's new athletic policy continues to draw national attention.

It was cited earlier this year in the Washington Post and on Sunday, March 16, the New York Times, in a comprehensive article on current problems in financing and excesses in recruiting in collegiate athletics. The Times again quotes Bob

James, the commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, that the William and Mary approach "may be the prototype of future athletic programs."

"... At William and Mary, one of the oldest and most prestigious colleges in the country, a compromise has been reached that will continue but restrict sports on the campus," notes The Times article.

Recapping the Self Study Report and concerns from the Board of Student Affairs, the article quotes President Graves on his choice of a middle course, "I believe strongly that it would be wrong for William and Mary to take steps at this time which would deemphasize the major intercollegiate athletic programs. By the same token, it would be wrong to move into the direction of a "win-at-all costs" strategy. What I see evolving is a program which offers maximum support, within our means, for non revenue men's and women's intercollegiate athletics and maximum support for intramural programs."

Under the plan proposed by Graves, football and basketball will be on their own after four years.

Program Deals with the Young at Heart

Many of the homes lack the conveniences of the electronic age and are in almost constant need of repair.

Program broadens activities

Circle K Vice President Ellen Burkhardt, a sophomore from Springfield who was instrumental in laying the foundation for the program during the past year, feels confident the program succeeds in broadening the activities of older citizens. As one member of the senior citizen group put it, the Circle K program "is a lot better than sitting around the house—I've been doing that for four years."

Now that Circle K has gained the trust and the respect of the senior citizens, the goal is to expand the program to meet the needs of more lonely senior citizens in the Chickahominy area.

All participants benefit

The benefits derived from the program are not experienced exclusively by the senior citizens. Circle K members who participate say that many College students don't have the patience to work with children and much prefer working with older people.

"I see enough of kids—I've got five brothers and sisters at home," says Ellen. "With older people you really feel like you're their companion. You really feel close to them."

Just as senior citizens are often anxious to take a break from the all-too-familiar surroundings of their homes, Circle K members don't mind traveling 20 or 30 miles one afternoon each week picking up and transporting senior citizens.

"You feel like you're really coming in contact with the outside world," explains Ellen.

"Sometimes I feel very isolated and this makes me feel like I'm more a part of what's going on. And it really makes me feel good when I know I'm helping someone."
