

W&M To Become D&D?

By Loof Lirpa
(See Page 4, Col. 5)

An archaeological survey team, taking advantage of the extensive digging necessary for installation of the storm drain system has come up with some startling revelations which may indeed change the whole complexion of life on campus.

A rusted strongbox when forced open by a member of the team contained an illuminated deed in ancient script willing a "certain parcel of land bordered by Richmond and Jamestown Roads and the traffic circle" from Vikings Hagar and Helga to the Duke and Duchess of Dellcrim.

There was no statement from the president's office but, according to a reliable source, the Board of Visitors may be called into special session to discuss the situation.

The clandestine removal of the Indian sign outside Cary stadium and of the statues of Queen Mary and King William from atop the gates on Richmond Road have given rise to speculation that there is some foundation to the rumor that W&M may soon become D&D.

It is known that the Law School is fighting the new move, since it has already established itself as the oldest school in the country; stationery letterhead changes in other schools at the College are also being viewed with concern, due to the current economic squeeze.

One presidential aide, however, pointed out that it might give the school a front seat at the Bicentennial, since it could prove even earlier antecedents than Harvard.

No official statement on the situation is expected after midnight tonight.

College To Mark Schweitzer Anniversary With Week Of Public Service, Apr. 6-14

It seems natural that any commemoration of the life of Albert Schweitzer, the world-famous physician, musician and missionary, should include the hallmark of his life--public service.

So faculty and students at William and Mary had little difficulty coming up with a program to commemorate the centennial of Schweitzer's birth. More than 200 volunteers from the College will collectively donate their time and effort during a week of public service to the Williamsburg community, April 6-14.

Although various groups across the nation are planning to commemorate Schweitzer's birth during the centenary year of 1975, William and Mary's approach to the commemoration may be the first to concentrate entirely on serving the community.

"Ours is unique," said Carolyn Moseley, associate dean of students for special programs. "Most schools are having lectures or concerts, but as far as I know, we're the only college to involve itself completely in a project within the community. Some of the national projects involve fund-raising, but there's no money involved with ours at all--it's completely service oriented."

The services the students and faculty will perform vary from fixing screen doors to writing letters for the elderly. Local service agencies, including the Social Service Departments of Williamsburg and James City County, have gathered in both small and large repair jobs for the William and Mary crew of volunteers that will keep them busy throughout humanity week.

The Community Action Agency, Meals-on Wheels, and Bacon Street (Drug Action Center) have also supplied Dean Moseley with lists of individuals in the community whose homes are in need of minor repairs. Many of the 200 volunteers will be spending the one or two hours they're donating to humanity week fixing broken window panes, rotten floorboards, leaky roofs, broken shingles and holes in kitchen floors.

Other students, particularly those accustomed to working with children through full-time campus service organizations such as Circle K and WATS, will assist in tutoring programs at the Williamsburg Pre-School and Day Care Center.

Painting the SPCA building

In one of the group's major efforts, an entire crew of student painters will spruce-up the recently built SPCA building.

Humanity week volunteers will also visit the elderly at Eastern State Hospital and the Pines Convalescent Center. "A lot of the senior citizens just need more exposure to young people," explained humanity week committee chairman Terry Regan, a senior from Denville, New Jersey. Although students will be primarily engaged in

Nelsova, Johannesen To Perform In Recital For Cello and Piano

Cellist Zara Nelsova and her husband, pianist Grant Johannesen, will perform a recital of sonatas for cello and piano in a Concert Series program at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, April 8, in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Beethoven's Sonata in G minor, Opus 5, No. 2, will open the evening's program and will be followed by Debussy's Sonata and Robert Casadesus' Sonata, Opus 22. The final work to be performed is Sonata in G minor, Opus 19, by Rachmaninoff.

Although the Concert Series has been fully subscribed, cancellation tickets will be available at the Phi Beta Kappa box office on the evening of the performance.

Canadian-born Zara Nelsova is now a citizen of the United States. She made her debut with the London Symphony at the age of 12 and since that time has regularly toured Europe, the United States and South America, both as a cello soloist and in recitals with her husband.

Grant Johannesen's career to date spans more than a quarter of a century. He has been featured in numerous engagements with American orchestras--including Boston,

New York, Chicago, Cleveland and Pittsburgh--as well as in annual concert appearances with European symphonic organizations.

Sunday Series Program Features Reger Quartet

A performance by the Reger Quartet of Berlin will be featured in a Sunday Series performance in the Campus Center Ballroom at 4 p.m. on April 6.

German artists Raimund Fleischer and Volker Sprang will play the violin and Eberhard Klemmstein the viola, while American-born artist Janice Palken will play the cello.

Three works by Beethoven comprise Sunday's program--Quartet in B flat major, Opus 18; Quartet in F major, Opus 135; and Quartet in E Minor, Opus 59.

Acclaimed by critics for their ability to project a 'today' feeling within the framework of classical style and through traditional and classical music, the ensemble plays a repertoire that includes the music of Haydn, Beethoven and Brahms, as well as a selection of works by Max Reger.

Between tours the members of the quartet make their homes in Berlin, where Fleischer, Sprang and Klemmstein are artists-in-residence at Schiller College and where all devote their time to chamber music. Fleischer, Sprang and Klemmstein graduated with honors from Berlin's Musikhochschule, while Palken received her undergraduate degree from Harvard and her graduate degree from Yale.

American Musk Ox Dies in Peking

PEKING, March 17--Milton the musk ox is dead.

Chinese officials disclosed today that the animal, one of a pair given to China by former President Nixon in return for two pandas on exhibition at the Washington National Zoo died Feb. 20.

The cause of death was given as reticulitis traumatica, also known as hardware disease and defined in veterinary texts as a disorder in cattle and related species that results from swallowing sharp objects, usually metallic, that perforate the stomach wall.

Milton's mate, Matilda, is alive and apparently well in her enclosure at the Peking zoo.

Campus Wrap-Up

Forum Topic Is Migrant Workers

Members of a work-study group from Christopher Newport College who spent last summer on the Eastern Shore studying the needs of the migrant worker will discuss some of their findings at a Project Plus Forum at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 2, in Millington Auditorium.

The program is open to the public free of charge.

Asian Music Demonstration Set

"Zen and the Japanese Bamboo Flute" will be the topic of a lecture-demonstration presented by Karl Signell at Asia House at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 3. Mr. Signell is currently professor of musicology at the University of Maryland. He has traveled extensively throughout Asia and studied and conducted research in Japan for three years. In addition to playing the bamboo flute, Mr. Signell will demonstrate other East Asian musical instruments.

The lecture is open to the public.

BSO Sponsors Basketball Games

The Black Student Organization will sponsor a youth basketball double header to benefit the Martin Luther King Scholarship Fund Friday, April 4, at 7 p.m. in Blow Gymnasium.

Tickets are 25 cents for children and $1 for adults. They are available in advance from BSO members and will be sold at the door the evening of the games.

Basketball stars Ron Satterthwaite, Mat Courage and Dennis Vail will referee the games, while freshman John Kratzer will be time-and score-keeper.

Conoco President To Talk Here

John E. Kircher, president and chief operating officer of Continental Oil Company (Conoco), will speak here April 7 and 8 as part of the College's Seminar in Applied Chemistry series.

Monday's lecture concerns "Stewardship of Our Energy Resources," while Tuesday's deals with "Multinational Companies, Boon or Blight?" Both lectures will be held in the William Small Physical Laboratory, Room 113, beginning at 8 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

Women's Club To Tour CW

A walking tour of the restored area that will focus on the colonial gardens and architectural features of interest is planned for members of the College Women's Club on Tuesday, April 8, from 10 a.m. until noon.

The tour will originate at the Craft House and will be guided by Mrs. William Warren, a Colonial Williamsburg escort. Members participating should bring their CW resident passes along.

Reservations for babysitting services may be made by calling Mrs. Charles Mathews at 229-0447. In case of rain, the walk will be cancelled. If in doubt, call Mrs. Gary Smith at 229-8005 by 9:30 a.m. on the day of the tour.

Civil Service Exam To Be Given

The Civil Service will conduct an examination for students interested in fulltime employment with the federal government as office assistants (clerical work) at 1 p.m. Thursday, April 24.

Interested students must register with the Office of Corporate Relations and Placement in order for test material to be available. The deadline for registration is Wednesday, April 16. There is a limit of 35 who can be accommodated by the Civil Service Examiners. Therefore, registration will be closed when 35 have registered. The examiners will come to test only if we have at least 20 persons registered.

These positions will be GS-2,3, and 4 entry level.

For additional information, contact the Office of Corporate Relations and Placement, Ext. 605.

Club Plans International Dinner

The International Circle organization at the College will hold an "Around the World Spring Dinner" on Sunday, May 4, at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom. All members of the College community are invited to attend. Tickets are available from members of International Circle and at the Campus Center desk. The cost per person is $4.

Bird Migration Subject of Audubon Film

The drama and mystery of bird migration will be explored in an Audubon wildlife film Wednesday, April 2, at 7:45 p.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom. Entitled "Migration Mysteries," the film will be narrated personally by Walter J. Breckenridge of the National Audubon Society staff.

Tickets will be available at the door. The cost is $1.50 for general admission, $1 for students and 50 cents for children under 12.

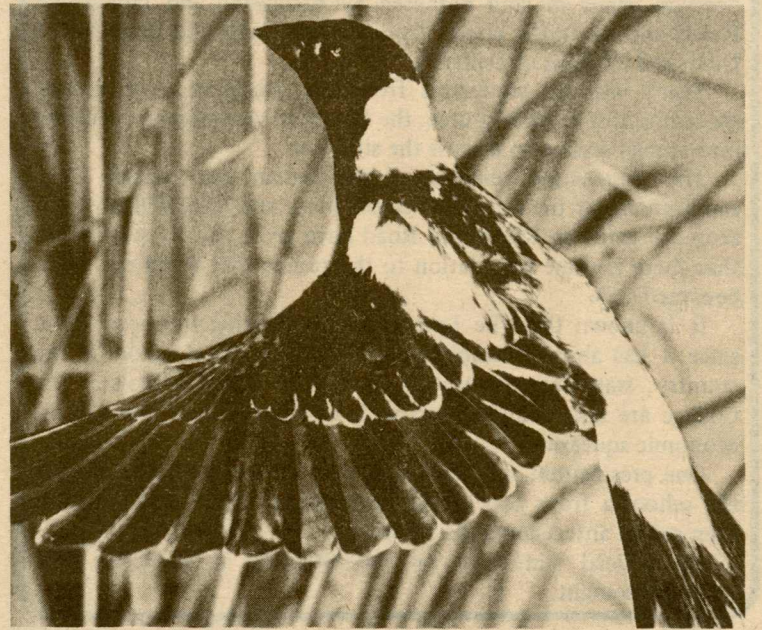

Director emeritus of the Bell Museum of Natural History at the University of Minnesota, Mr. Breckenridge is nationally known as a herpetologist and ornithologist. He has served as president of the Minnesota Academy of Science, the Minnesota Ornithologists' Union and the Wilson Ornithological Society and has participated in four expeditions into the Arctic.

Mr. Breckenridge's film examines several characteristic migration patterns including the direct flight and return of whooping cranes, the loop route of the Wilson's petrel over vast expanses of ocean, the east to west route of the redhead duck and the leap-frog pattern of the fox sparrow. He also explores questions about bird migration that still defy scientific explanation and covers the partial answers that research has produced—how daylength triggers the migration response and how some birds are able to navigate using the sun or certain star patterns, for example.

The film is sponsored by the Biology Club at the College.

The bobolink migrates annually from well below the Equator into the northern U. S. and southern Canada.

Student Awarded Grant for Study Abroad

Trevor Smith of Alexandria, a junior English concentrator, was recently awarded a scholarship by the Richmond chapter of the English-Speaking Union for summer study in the United Kingdom.

The $1,000 award, which is given annually to a junior attending a college in Virginia, will enable Smith to spend this summer at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland.

The award is given on the basis of literary and scholastic achievement, character and social responsibility, leadership potential, physical energy and personality. In applying for the scholarship, Smith said he was particularly interested in the attitudes and accomplishments during the period of the romantic poets.

Smith also noted that he hopes to have "the opportunity to view some first-class soccer—which the British definitely play."

Smith is the second William and Mary student to receive the award in three years. In 1973, David Shields of Gaithersburg, Md., spent the summer in England under an identical award.

Personnel Bulletin

The following positions at the College are or will be vacant. Qualified employees who wish to be transferred to these positions may receive additional information at the Personnel Office. The College is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Accordingly, women and minority employees are encouraged to apply for those positions for which they feel they are qualified.

Inquiries about vacancies should be directed to the Personnel Office and not to the department where the opening exists.

Call 229-JOBS (5627) for an updated listing of job vacancies on campus and 24-hour service.

Applicants Sought For Study Abroad

Applications are now being accepted for a William and Mary student to participate in the William and Mary—University of Muenster (West Germany) student exchange. The William and Mary student participating in the exchange will receive a grant from the University of Muenster covering tuition, room and board, and a monthly stipend for expenses.

Students considered must be rising juniors and must be proficient in the German language. Students who have not yet lived or studied in Germany will be given preference. Interested students should contact Professor Elsa Diduk, modern languages department, Ext. 362.

State Slates Sale Of Surplus Property

Nearly 200 motor vehicles are listed on the latest surplus property sale notice from the State Department of Purchases and Supply. The sale is "as is and where is" without warranty. Bids will be opened April 11 at 2 p.m. Successful bidders will be required to remit within 10 calendar days and remove property within 20 calendar days from the day of notice of award.

The 1970 Virginia Conflict of Interest Act prohibits any employee, spouse or relatives residing in the employee's household, to purchase property belonging to the agency by which that person is employed.

A schedule of items on sale is available in the Purchasing

Office and in the College News Office.

Scientist Advocates Technology Use To Solve Current Global Problems

Gerard Piel, president and publisher of Scientific American, will speak Monday, April 14 at Hampton High School, concluding the current lecture series, "Our Future in the Cosmos," which has been sponsored jointly by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the College.

Mr. Piel's talk will be given at 8 p.m. and will be open to the public without charge. Admission will be by tickets only, which may be obtained by calling William and Mary's Office of Special Programs in Newport News, 877-9231, Ext. 200, 201.

Mr. Piel's topic, "A Round Trip to 2,000 A.D." will close the nine-month long series on an optimistic note, exploring the possibilities of solutions to current global problems through man's application of advanced technology. He feels that, with the application of advanced technology, vital shortages will be averted in the areas of energy and resources. This will in turn, he asserts, lead to a lessening of international crisis and a more peaceful world. Despite doleful predictions that civilization may be grinding to a halt by 2000 A.D. because of pollution, exhausted resources and overpopulation, Dr. Piel believes that resources will increase with exploitation and substitution, population growth will decline with growth in production and pollution will lessen with advances in technology.

Mr. Piel has been associated with Scientific American since 1947, when in association with two colleagues, he launched the magazine, recognizing at that time that communication both among scientists and also between scientists and the general public would be one of the pressing needs of postwar America. Prior to that he was science editor of Life magazine and assistant to the president of Henry J. Kaiser Company and associated companies.

He is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the American Philosophical Society, the Council on Foreign Relations, the Institute of Medicine and Phi Beta Kappa. He is also an Overseer of Harvard College and a Trustee of Radcliffe College, Phillips Academy and the American Museum of Natural History.

The final lecture in the "Our Future in the Cosmos" series caps a successful nine-month joint venture by NASA and William and Mary. It has brought to Tidewater highly qualified speakers who have explored the issues involved in today's interaction of science, technology and society and the future of those issues and the influence necessary for a stable world in the future.

Planned with an "everyman's" approach in which these awesome problems would be articulated clearly for area residents, the series has drawn large audiences, sometimes overflow crowds. The Peninsula Adult Education Committee went on record as endorsing the series as an "excellent form of adult education."

According to Carson Barnes, director of the Office of Special Programs at William and Mary, and Edward R. Long of NASA's Colloquium Committee, who have been jointly coordinating the lecture series, plans are underway for continuing the lecture series in the fall under the dual sponsorship of NASA and William and Mary.

Isolated People Are April 9 Forum Topic

Maritime sociologist Victor A. Liguori will discuss the topic "Isolated People" in a Project Plus Forum at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 9, in Millington Auditorium.

The program is open to the public free of charge.

Educated at Haverford College and Princeton University, the associate professor of sociology has taught at William and Mary since 1964. Mr. Liguori has lived and worked with Atlantic coastal commercial fishermen in New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina. His essays on maritime culture have appeared in various professional journals, and he is currently at work on a book entitled Forgotten Fishermen.

Poetry Reading Slated April 3

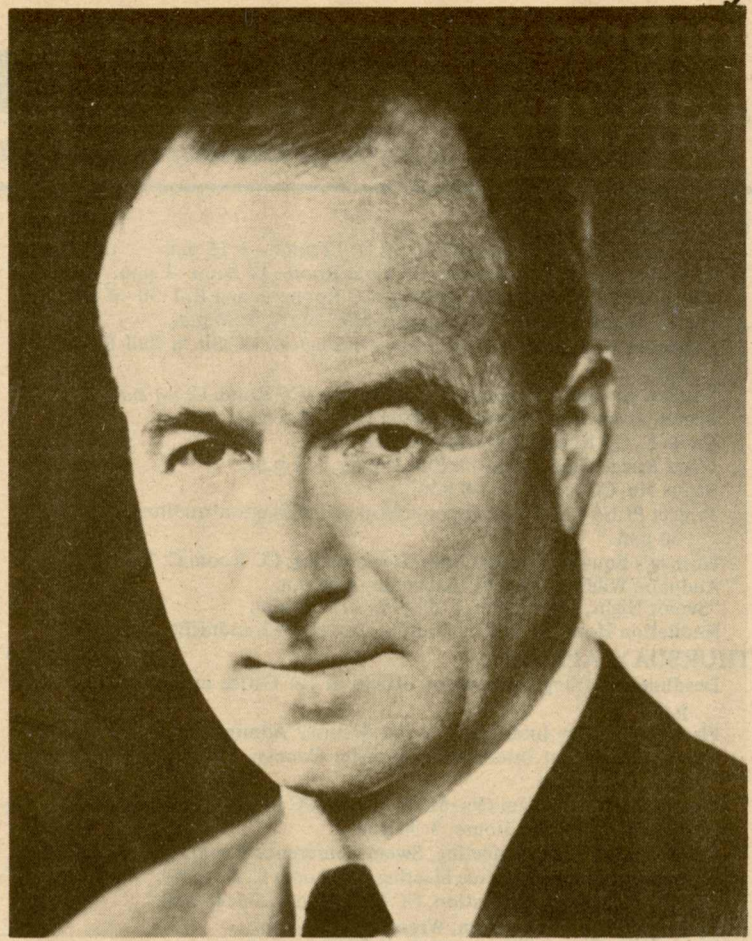

Poet Paula Rankin will read from her works in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Hall on Thursday, April 3, at 7:45 p.m.

The poetry reading is open to the public at no charge.

A native of Newport News, Ms. Rankin graduated from Christopher Newport College in 1974 and is now working towards her master's degree in English at William and Mary.

Although she has been writing poetry for a relatively short time, she has published over 100 poems in such magazines as The Nation, Sewanee Review, Shenandoah, Poetry Northwest, Southern Poetry Review and Ohio Review.

The reading is sponsored by the English Club.

COMMEMORATION

assisting the senior citizens in writing letters to friends and relatives, Regan plans to stage a "group sing" for young and old alike, in hopes of "getting the William and Mary community and the Williamsburg community together."

Regan and Moseley both say that the project is not designed merely to "serve" the community, but to bring two cultures into contact with each other for mutual benefit. Because of academic pressures at the college, Regan says "many students just don't feel they have the time to participate in a project every week. Humanity week just asks for a few hours of each student's time, and we've really been floored by the response."

He added that "some people are so excited about this program that we hope individuals will want to continue to serve the community on a regular basis."
