VCU Dean To Give Address At Summer Commencement

Degrees will be awarded to approximately 185 graduate and 100 undergraduate students at the College's summer commencement exercises in Phi Beta Kappa Hall, Saturday, Aug. 23, at 1:30 p.m.

John A. Mapp, dean of the Evening College and Summer Sessions at Virginia Commonwealth University and a

William and Mary alumnus, is the commencement speaker.

Mapp has served as dean at VCU since July 1964. Prior to his present appointment he was commissioner for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in New Orleans, and was for several years an independent arbitrator for employee relations in Bristol, Va.

From 1952-55 he was director of personnel for Bristol Steel and Iron Works.

As director of personnel for the City of Richmond from 1949-52, Mapp helped inaugurate the council-manager form of government under the new city charter and set up the civil service system.

A native of Accomac, he received a bachelor of arts degree from William and Mary in 1935. He completed his M.A. degree from New York University in 1962.

Alumni Fellows For 1975-76 Are Named

Five faculty members have been designated Alumni Fellows for 1975-76 in recognition of their contributions to the academic life of the College.

Upon the recommendation of the dean of arts and sciences, the academic vice president has appointed Ronald A. Hallett, assistant professor of modern languages; Elsa Nettels, associate professor of English; and Thomas F. Sheppard, associate professor of history, as new alumni fellows. Re-appointed alumni fellows were F. Robert Bohl, Jr., assistant professor of philosophy, and Robert H. Welch, assistant professor of modern languages.

The awards are made annually to younger members of the College's instructional staff for their outstanding teaching.

Handbook For August Grads Is Available

Summer students graduating in August may pick up their personal copy of The Graduate, a Handbook for Leaving College 1975 in the Office of Placement, Morton Hall - 104. These copies are compliments of the College's Society of the Alumni.

James Kelly To Head W&M Fund Campaign

Former Executive Secretary of the Society of the Alumni, James S. Kelly, will serve as national chairman of the 1975-76 Silver Anniversary William and Mary Fund campaign.

Kelly, a 1951 alumnus of the College, served as its alumni executive from 1954 until 1971. That post was combined with the duties of Director of Development for the College from 1966 until 1971, which Kelly also administered. Since 1971, he has been an assistant to President Thomas A. Graves, Jr.

The 25th anniversary of the William and Mary Fund, which was created to replace the earlier class dues system of support for the Alumni Society, coincides with the College's observance of the Bicentennial of the

W&M Places Second In National Value Line Stock Market Contest

William and Mary has placed second in the nation among nearly 500 colleges and universities participating in the Value Line Intercollegiate Contest in Stock Market Judgment, it was announced Thursday.

Approximately 90 undergraduate and graduate students enrolled in classes in the School of Business Administration were among the 20,000 who submitted investment portfolios to Value Line, an investment advisory service, last November.

The two institutions that sent in the three portfolios showing the best performance during the November to May contest period were chosen for awards. The University of Michigan placed first and William and Mary second. Both schools will receive $2,500 unrestricted awards.

William and Mary's winning entries were submitted by David A. Cruickshank, a freshman from Vienna, Va., and by Lloyd Young of Yorktown and John Barnard of Evansville, Ind., both graduate students in the School of Business Administration. Cruickshank placed first, Young second and Barnard third in the College's entries. All three students will receive $100 awards from Value Line.

Stuart Williams, assistant professor of business administration, coordinated the contest for William and Mary.

Staff to Evaluate Goals at Thursday Meeting

A meeting will be held July 24 for all staff employees to discuss proposed by-laws and goals for a William and Mary staff association. Two sessions have been scheduled, 12 noon-1 p.m. and 1-2 p.m., in Millington Auditorium, to allow all employees to attend during their lunch hours.

A group of about eight employees from the library, post office, bookstore and news office, has been meeting since February, trying to formally organize the association. A number of general meetings have attracted employees from all facets of the college staff.

Interest in forming the staff association evolved out of a discussion of employees' needs at an affirmative action workshop last winter. Organizers point out, however, that the idea for a staff association at William and Mary is not new. A 1973 Report on Clerical Personnel, based on a questionnaire distributed to secretaries at the College, recommended that the staff should have a representative organization on campus.

More recently, the 1974 Report of Self Study recommends recognition of the College's classified employees, and the 1974-75 Affirmative Action Report supports the idea of a staff association.

Last spring organizers completed a statement of aims, which brought a response of 198 in favor of the organization, 23 against and 28 undecided, when a survey was taken in April.

They recently drew up proposed by-laws, copies of which have been sent to each office on campus, and are now seeking additional suggestions and support from the College staff.

Membership in the organization is open to hourly employees and to classified employees who are not "administrators."

"A primary aim of the organization is to give staff members a voice in the decisions that affect them," says Kathy Micken, one of the organizers. Other aims adopted for the association include providing a forum for employees to discuss their concerns and interests, being a source of information, working for expanded opportunities and benefits for employees, and fostering a sense of community.

Proposed Goals

Five long-range goals for the association have been proposed. These include a college-wide day care center controlled by parents; infirmary privileges for staff members and their families; and increased educational opportunities, including reduced tuition and on-the-job training.

The group also wants to investigate employee benefits and to participate in budget decisions, such as lay-offs, which directly affect staff members.

Mrs. Micken, an employee in the Development Office, points out that staff members are interested in sharing their own talents and could offer workshops that reflect members' fields or special interests.

The proposed association calls for a broad base of support. Most of the work of the organization would be carried on through committees. A central steering committee, with representatives from each major interest group within the College staff—secretaries, clerks, hourly, custodians, groundskeepers, and plant maintenance—plus representatives from several standing committees, would coordinate the activities of the different committees.

Organizers feel that a strong committee structure will best accommodate the diversity of College employees and provide an opportunity for wide staff participation in the association.

Once the association is organized, it plans to solicit official college recognition; permission for membership meetings during working hours; use of College facilities for association business; and association selection of staff members to collegewide committees and the President's Advisory Council.

ON THE MOVE...

ADMISSIONS OFFICE

Mollie Mann is leaving the College July 31 after 13 years with the Admissions Office staff.

Her husband, John, is retiring this month from the Virginia Employment Commission in Richmond, and Mrs. Mann decided to follow suit.

As secretary to Dean Hunt, Mrs. Mann does most of the office typing and is responsible for numerous other duties that she has taken on over the years. "She will really be missed" is the consensus in the Admissions Office.

A native of Melbourne, Australia, Mrs. Mann has traveled extensively. She and her husband took advantage of their frequent moves during their 20 years with the U.S. military to travel in the U.S. and much of Europe.

An Australian friend will be visiting them soon, and the Manns plan to begin their retirement by traveling with her and introducing her to this area of the country.

Mrs. Mann is also looking forward to having more time to spend with her daughter and son in law, Margaret and Jack Battenfield, and their two sons.

DEVELOPMENT OFFICE

Kathy Micken, previously a bibliographer in the acquisitions department of Swem Library, recently assumed new duties in the Development Office. An administrative assistant, she will conduct research in preparation for the capital campaign to increase the College's endowment. Mrs. Micken is assisting J. Wilfred Lambert, Vice President for Student Affairs Emeritus, who is heading the research effort.

She graduated from William and Mary in 1971 with a B.A. in philosophy and shortly thereafter joined the staff of Swem Library.

SWEM LIBRARY

Berna Heyman has re-joined the library staff as an assistant cataloger.

A member of the cataloging staff from January 1972-September 1974, she served as acting head of the department during the spring of 1974.

Mrs. Heyman holds an M.S. degree in library science from Simmons College.

The Summer Sessions Office has arranged for canoe rentals on weekends at the Matoaka Boathouse.

Interested College employees and students may rent canoes from 12 noon to 6 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays at a rate of $1 per hour or $2 per afternoon. Twelve canoes are available.

Anthropology classes under Professor Mario D. Zamora cordially invite the public free of charge to see the following films. The films will be shown in Washington 107.

August 1, 8 a.m.	India; Gandhi; Farmers of India
August 8, 8 a.m.	Japan; Japanese Family; Silkmakers of Japan; Shintoism
August 15, 8 a.m.	Ishi in Two Worlds; The Hunters; Monkey, Apes, and Man; Dr. Leaky and the Dawn of Man

No admission charge.

Desert Feast, Audience with Prince Highlight Trip to Arabia

Six business students recently returned from Saudi Arabia with impressions of a culture both ancient and modern that's trying to "do in 10 or 20 years what the United States has done in a couple of hundred."

"Everywhere you look there's something being built—airports, roads, hotels, everything you can think of," said Doug Gerhart, a June graduate from Souderton, Pa.

Rapid change, said Gerhart, looked like it was putting a strain on traditional Arab culture. Arabs riding donkeys must now compete with expensive limosines and fast motorcycles, while fast-talking merchants at sidewalk bazaars must better the prices of products mass-produced by new Arab industries.

Gerhart and his traveling companions were the special guests in Saudi Arabia of Adnan Khashoggi, the wealthy and controversial entrepreneur who visited the College in April to participate in Associate Professor William Warren's business policy class. The six students, who were part of a panel that interviewed the millionaire on campus, were invited to tour Khashoggi's European and Arabian business operations during a two-week excursion that included stops in Beirut, Riyadh, Paris, London and Rome.

As Khashoggi had promised, the students did get an "inside look" at his complex business holdings, although it wasn't easy to squeeze business into a schedule that included snorkling in the Red Sea, a meeting with a royal prince and an unforgettable feast in the desert.

Despite the fact that the students never crossed paths with Khashoggi himself, the millionaire's influence was more than enough to open doors, including those of the royal palace. Pat Harkin, a senior from

Stony Brooke, N.Y., said that one of the trip's highpoints was a meeting with His Royal Highness Prince Bin Abdul Aziz Al Saud Salmen, the governor of Riyadh. "The palace was unreal," said Harkin, "And it looked onto the square where the prince who killed King Faisal was executed just a week before we arrived."

A member of the royal family later hosted a desert feast in honor of the American students. The first item on the menu was bitter Bedouin coffee, which the Arabs explained signified the "bitterness of strangers meeting for the first time." The coffee was followed by sweet tea, which signified the new friendship established between the Arab hosts and their American visitors.

After a lavish meal that featured roast lamb served whole on a bed of rice, the students again drank bitter coffee, this time to signify the bitterness of friends parting.

"Friendship is really a big thing over there," said Gerhart. "Once you've made an Arab friend, it's really no comparison to making friends over here."

The importance of establishing friendships was also visible in the styles of Arab businessmen. "The whole atmosphere is different," said Harkin. "It's much more gracious, relaxed and very personal." Harkin added that the American expression "let's get down to business" is not included in the vocabulary of an Arab businessman. It's customary in the Arab nations to have refreshments and make light conversation before drifting into the drudgery of talking business.

Bicentennial Sticker Is Gift

When College employees and students register for campus parking this fall, they will receive something more than a receipt and a parking sticker.

To celebrate the Bicentennial, the College is giving employees, students and alumni special William and Mary bumper stickers. The stickers note

William and Mary's status as an official Bicentennial College and carry the phrase "Alma Mater of a Nation." The phrase has been adopted as a theme for the College's observance of the 200th anniversary of the American Revolution, calling attention to the many early American leaders whose formal education was undertaken here.

Stickers will be mailed to alumni later this month.

Faculty Scientists Receive Grants For Research

Grants totalling more than $61,000 have been awarded to faculty scientists for research projects in chemistry and physics.

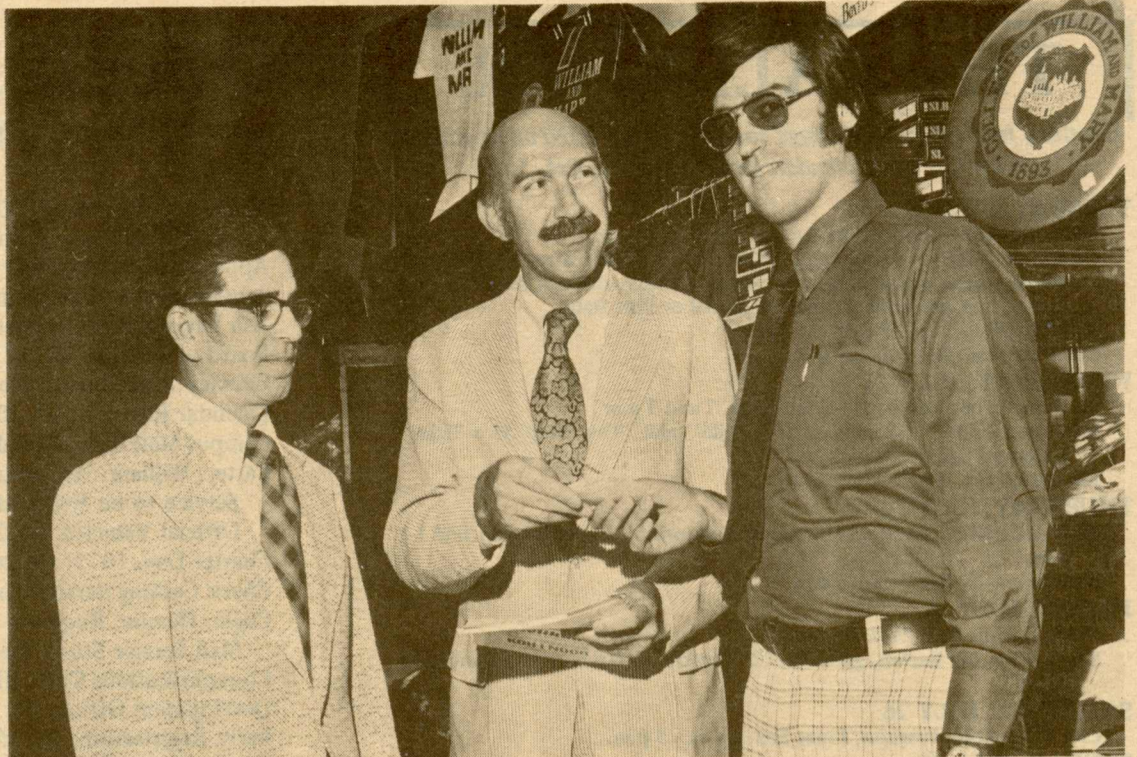

The National Science Foundation has awarded $13,300 to Franz L. Gross, associate professor of physics, and Carl E. Carlson, assistant professor of physics, for investigation of several topics in theoretical physics.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) has awarded $25,103 to J. H. Park, research assistant professor of physics for an analysis of remote sensors for pollution. S. Y. Tyree, Jr., professor of physics, was awarded $22,994 by NASA for research in chemistry.

College History Order Deadline Is Extended

The deadline for ordering copies of Their Majesties' Royall Colledge, a history of William and Mary being prepared in conjunction with the celebration of the nation's Bicentennial, has been extended to July 31.

The volume is $15 per copy and will be distributed in February 1976. Checks should be made payable to the Endowment Association and mailed to: The Endowment Association, College of William and Mary, P.O. Box 1777, Williamsburg, Va. 23185.

Croot Wins Merchandising Award

The assistant manager of the Bookstore has been recognized with an award in a national merchandising competition.

Richard W. Croot is among the winners in the Pick/Promote/Profit competition sponsored by The College Store Journal, a periodical issued by the National Association of College Stores.

Croot won one of the six awards for his development of a mail order activity for William and Mary's Bookstore. The most popular William and Mary gift items have been depicted in a small catalog which was recently tested among selected alumni.

"Early response has been excellent and a bulk mailing is being made," Croot said. The catalog includes plaques, paperweights, mugs, glass tumblers and other items with college identification, as well as a range of books of William and Mary interest.

A check and certificate for the award were presented by William J. Carter, vice president for business affairs, on behalf of the NACS.

GEOLOGY

Professor Bruce K. Goodwin participated as an invited speaker for a workshop on ground water held by the Richmond Regional Planning District Commission in Richmond on June 24. His topic was on the regional geologic setting of Planning District 15, and the workshop was attended by local and State planners from various areas in Virginia.

GOVERNMENT

Professor Chonghan Kim visited the Far East recently to participate in the joint conference of the Korean Political Science Association and the Association of Korean Political Scientists in North America of which he is the vice chairman. The conference was held in Seoul, Korea, June 9-12.

Professor Kim also took part in a joint seminar with Japanese scholars on the subject of "Korea and Japan in East Asian Politics." The seminar was held in Tokyo, Japan, June 23-25.

MARSHALL-WYTHE SCHOOL OF LAW

Kermit L. Dunahoo, assistant professor of law, will be a guest lecturer at the National College of the State Judiciary in Reno, Nevada, July 28 - Aug. 13. He will teach two courses in the basic four-week introductory curriculum: a required introductory course on Civil Rights Litigation and an elective advanced seminar on Judicial Discretion. He also will give a special lecture (on Civil Rights Litigation) in the graduate course, which is for trial judges who have completed the basic four-week course in previous years.

The National College of the State Judiciary is a formal training and educational institution aimed at providing a lifetime career education program on a nationwide basis for state trial court judges. Since its founding in 1963, some 2,500 general jurisdiction state trial judges, or about 50 percent of the nationwide total, have graduated from the basic four-week course.

Emeric Fischer, professor, has returned from a two-week study mission in Israel under the auspices of the American Professors for Peace in the Middle East (APPME). The group met with Israeli and Arab political leaders, educators, writers and laymen to discuss the basic issues in conflict and their possible solution. The group also visited military and United Nations installations on the Golan and in the Sinai.

MODERN LANGUAGES

Assistant Professor Vickie Babenko's review of the Khronika Umzhestra (Chronicle of Courage) by Ilja Ehrenburg, was published in the May issue of Books Abroad. Her review of Poemy (Poems) by Olga Berggolc, has been accepted for publication by the same journal.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION-Men

Alan F. Albert, assistant professor, recently attended a national soccer coaching school at St. Andrews School, Middletown, Del., and received his "A" license.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

Ron Wheeler, assistant professor, participated in an Education Development Center workshop in St. Louis, June 30-July 4. The workshop dealt with the integration of mathematics, science, social science and language arts in the solution of real problems appropriate for elementary school age children.

SWEM LIBRARY

Circulation Librarian Robert L. Burr's article "Library Goals and Library Behavior" has been selected for inclusion in a book of introductory readings to be used in the core curriculum of the University of North Carolina School of Library Science beginning in the fall of 1975.

The article originally appeared in the Winter 1975 issue of College and Research Libraries, official journal of the Association of College and Research Libraries.

Mary Lou Cobb, head, cataloging department, Robert L. Burr, circulation librarian, and Sandra Peterson, documents librarian, attended the 94th annual conference of the American Library Association in San Francisco, June 29 - July 5.

Ms. Cobb coordinated a two day pre-conference on collective bargaining in higher education and its implications for librarians.

She was elected chairperson of the Technical Services Administrators of Small Research Libraries discussion group.

Mr. Burr presented a paper entitled "Toward a General Theory of Circulation" at the conference.

He also attended the annual meeting of Beta Phi Mu, the national honorary library science fraternity.

THEATRE & SPEECH

Chris Boll, theatre production assistant, is master carpenter for the Heritage Repertory Company at the University of Virginia for its 1975 season. The company is producing a series of four American plays this summer, in honor of the Bicentennial.
