William and Mary News

VOLUME IV, NO. 18

TUESDAY, JANUARY 20, 1976

CBS producer Paul Waigner discusses script changes with President Graves before filming a Bicentennial Minute in the grammar school room in the Wren Building. Graves discussed the use of the College as a hospital for wounded Revolutionary War soldiers in a minute scheduled to be shown April 28. William Spong, dean-designate of the law school, and Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr. were also among nine narrators who were filmed at the Wren Building in a day-long taping session last Sunday.

'Bio-bureau' Travels To Local Schools

Faculty and students in the biology department are making an effort to share the College's scientific resources with students in the local school system.

Members of the department have offered to give illustrated lectures and demonstrations in science classrooms on a primary, junior and senior high level. Known as the "Biobureau," the lectures cover topics which range from dinosaurs to electron microscopy.

The listing of lectures offered by the "Bio-bureau" this winter is being circulated in the York County, James City County and Newport News school systems by the School of Education.

"We're attempting to share our experience with the local school system," said Martin Mathes, associate professor of biology. Mathes offers area teachers a chance to take advantage of the College's greenhouse by conducting student tours of the facility. He also gives an illustrated lecture on plant growth.

"We try to offer the students a change in routine — a new attitude and a new presentation," said Mathes. "And we hope the program will increase the overall exchange between the school system and the College."

The topics of lectures often concern animals. Assistant Professor Norman Fashing lectures on the biggest and the smallest of creatures — dinosaurs and insects. Other lectures feature lizards, spiders and birds.

Tazwell Taylor Professors Named At Marshall-Wythe

Tom Clark, retired United States Supreme Court Justice, and Glenn R. Winters, executive director of the American Judicature Society in Chicago, have been named to the first Tazwell Taylor Professorships in Law at Marshall-Wythe.

As such, they will serve as jurists-in-residence during the current semester.

The two professorships have been established from endowments which have been set aside for curriculum enrichment and matching state funds from the Eminent Scholars Fund. They honor two members of the Tazwell Taylor family of Norfolk, Va.

Supreme Court Justice

Clark, who has been a frequent visitor to the campus, will be the presiding judge this spring at the annual William and Mary moot court tournament, a role in which he has served since the program began in 1971. In 1974 Clark received the school's bronze Marshall-Wythe Medallion, offered annually to nationally and internationally recognized leaders of the bench, bar and legal education. He served as associate justice of the United States Supreme Court from 1949 to 1967. until his son, Clark, Ramsey became Attorney General, when he resigned to avoid conflict of

He became the first director of the Federal Judicial Center, the training and research agency for the federal courts which became the model for the National Center for State Courts. He was chairman of the National Conference on the Judiciary, held in Williamsburg in April since 1956. The society, which is the principal national professional organization in the field of judicial administration and modernization, was one of the chief sponsors of the 1971 Williamsburg conference.

The author of several books on courts and their procedures, Winters has served on the judicial selection committee of the American Bar Association, is a fellow of the International Academy of Law and Science, and is a member of the American Law Institute, the Institute of Judicial Administration, the National Legal Aid and Public Defender Society, the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges and the North American Judges Association.

The Tazwell Taylor bequest was made several years ago by the late Tazwell Taylor, a rpominent Norfolk attorney, to be held for the use of the William and Mary law school when the cumulated interest and principal had become sufficient to support chairs honoring the donor's father and grandfather. Mr. Taylor's father, also a prominent Norfolk attorney, graduated from William and Mary in 1892 and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. His grandfather, also named Tazwell Taylor, attended the College in 1827 and was Bursar of the College from 1850-76. He was twice elected to the Board of

Cellist To Perform In Sunday Series

Young American cellist Janes Kreger returns to Williamsburg on Jan. 25 for a Sunday Series performance in the Cámpus Center Ballroom at 4 p.m.

Mr. Kreger first appeared in recital here in April 1973 on the College's concert series.

His Sunday Series performance is open to the public. Although there is no admission charge, a silver collection is taken.

Accompanied by pianist Jonathan Feldman, Kreger will perform Bach's "Adagio from Organ Toccata in C" transcribed by Siloti, Breval's "Sonata in G Major," and Barber's "Sonata, Opus 6." "Sonata No. 2, Op. 58" by Mendelssohn, and "Requiebros" by Cassado will conclude the recital.

Kreger is the recipient of numerous awards and honors. He was a prize winner at the Fifth International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow, and as the top American laureate in the cello division he will return to tour the Soviet Union.

He won first prize in the International Competition of the Artists' Advisory Council in Chicago, 1971, and in the same year received a grant from the Martha Baird Rockefeller Foundation.

Born in Nashville in 1947, Kreger began cello studies at the age of nine. He studied with Gabor Rejto in Los Angeles and with Leonard Rose and Harvey Shapiro at the Juilliard School, as well as with Pablo Casals in a number of master classes. He has been a member of the cello faculty of Juilliard's pre-college division.

George Washington Exhibit Opens

A priceless collection of George Washington manuscripts and artifacts, currently on exhibit in Swem Library, lends insight to the private life of one of America's most public figures.

The exhibit, on loan from Dr. Joseph E. Fields of Williamsburg, is on display through March 1 in the Botetourt Museum of Swem Library. The museum is open to the public Monday through Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The exhibition is particularly appropriate during the nation's Bicentennial year and in celebration of the 283rd anniversary of the College's Charter Day.

Although Washington did not attend William and Mary, he maintained close ties with it. He was appointed surveyor by the College in 1749 and served as its Chancellor from 1788 until his death in 1799. Thus, his first and last public offices were held under the auspices of William and Mary.

Major aspects of Washington's life are included — the deeds to "Wakefield" in Westmoreland County, Washington's birthplace, and to the estate later known as Mount Vernon, letters announcing his retirement, and letters and a print depicting his deathbed scene.

Two accounts of the Revolutionary War are also part of the exhibit. A letter from Washington to Landon Carter at Sabine Hall in Richmond County, Va., dated March 27, 1776, gives a detailed description of the battle of Boston. Washington was appointed commander-in-chief of the Continental armies on June 15, 1775. His first major battle was the siege of Boston, where he seized and fortified Dorcester Heights, threatening Boston with bombardment and placing the British fleet in jeopardy. Washington states, "We are now in full possession of the Town and are fortifying the harbour to prevent a return if they should Incline to it."

A bronze medal commemorating him for the siege is also on display.

Study In Britain Scholarship Offered

William and Mary juniors interested in applying for the scholarship offered annually by the Richmond branch of the English-Speaking Union, for summer study in the United Kingdom, should see Professor Cecil McCulley in Lodge 12 as soon as possible.

Student applications and faculty recommendations are due by Monday, Jan. 26, and outside recommendations by Feb. 1. One nominee from the College will be chosen, who will be interviewed by the selection committee of the English-Speaking Union in Richmond on Feb. 7.

Forum Tries New Approach To Renaissance

Donald Weinstein, professor of history at Rutgers University, will be guest lecturer in the Project Plus Forum on Wednesday, Jan. 28.

His talk, which begins at 7:30 p.m. in Millington Auditorium, concerns "Secularism and Sanctity in the Renaissance: Towards a New Approach." The public is invited to attend.

Weinstein is the author of the article on the Renaissance in the new edition of Encyclopedia Britannica. He has published several books, his most recent one in 1971 entitled "Savanarola and Florence: Prophecy and Patriotism in the Renaissance."

'Post' Reporter To Discuss Power Lovers

"Power Lovers: American Politicians and their Marriages" is the subject of a talk by Myra MacPherson, to be given Monday, Jan. 26, at 3 p.m. in Room 20, Morton Hall.

The public is invited to attend. A reporter for the Washington Post, MacPherson is the author of the book "Power Lovers," published last year.

Her talk on campus is sponsored by the sociology department.

The $1,000 award will be made to a well-qualified junior from a Virginia college. The money is intended for use in the summer of 1976, normally at one of the four universities of the British Universities Joint Programme of Summer Schools.

Qualifications include U.S. citizenship, current junior standing, age between 18-22, literary and scholastic achievement, character and social responsibility, leadership ability, interest in physical activity and pleasant personality. The thinking and interest of the recipient should not be counter to the aims of the English-Speaking Union.

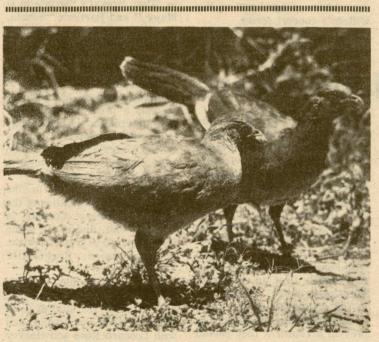

The relevant courses, which are given in July and August, are Drama and Theatre in the Age of Shakespeare (University of Birmingham at Stratford-on-Avon); English Theatre, Literature and Culture of the 20th Century (University of London); Britain, 1870-present: Literature, History and Society (Oxford); and Britain, 1840-1940: Change and Challenge: Literature and History (University of Edinburgh).

ASIA HOUSE APPLICATIONS ARE SOUGHT

Asia House is now accepting applications for 1976-77 from students interested in living together and gaining a broader understanding of Asia.

Admission is open to all undergraduates, sophomores or above, regardless of concentration. Residents plan weekly programs with the assistance of faculty members and the resident director. Applicants must demonstrate an interest in Asia by planning to enroll in courses dealing with Asia, by submitting proof of already having taken such courses, or by having lived or traveled in Asia.

Application forms are now available from Tom Creamer, Asia House, Craig Canning, Morton 336, and the main desk of the Campus Center. They must be returned to Asia House or Morton 336 by Monday, Feb. 9, at 5 nm.

Chachalacas and other Mexican bird species are among the wildlife featured in the next Audubon Wildlife film, to be shown tomorrow in the Campus Center.

College Archivist Kay Domine displays a commemorative pitcher which is part of the Washington exhibition currently being shown in Swem Library.

TEACHER EXAM APPLICATIONS DUE

The National Teacher Examinations (NTE) will be given here Feb. 21 in rooms 106 and 107 of Jones Hall.

Registration forms may be obtained from John W. Sykes, director of Educational Placement in the School of Education, or by writing the N a t i o n a l Te a c h e r Examinations, Educational Testing Service, Box 911, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

Registration forms must be received by ETS no later than Jan. 29.

Scores from the examinations are used by many states for certification of teachers and by many school systems for selection, tenure status and identification of leadership qualities.

Ty Hotchkiss To Narrate Audubon Film

Veteran naturalist Charles "Ty" Hotchkiss of Williamsburg will present an Audubon Wildlife film tomorrow at 7:45 p.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom.

Third in a series of five Audubon films, "Land of the Rio Grande" is sponsored by the Biology Club of the College.

Single admission tickets will be sold at the door for $1.75 adults, $1 students and $.75 children under 12.

Hotchkiss, who is known to Peninsula audiences for his photography in the Colonial Williamsburg film "The Colonial Naturalist," is a graduate of the Universities of Connecticut and Illinois.

His film explores the subtropical scrub-forest which survives near the mouth of the Rio Grande and provides a haven for such exotic wildlife as Green Jays, Groove-billed Anis and Chachalacas.

University of Richmond, 3-2 in the finals.

Forty-four teams, representing 19 schools, participated in the tournament. Top speaker for the tournament was Katherine Abraham of Iowa State.

William and Mary participated but, as the host school, was not eligible for a team standing. In the individual speaker tally, however, Larry Greenfield, Bellefonte, Pa., placed sixth.

PROFESSOR GIVES BOOK REVIEW

Assistant Professor of English Trudier Harris will review Toni Morrison's book "Sula" on Monday, Jan. 26, at 4 p.m. in the Williamsburg Public Library. The public is invited to attend.

WASHINGTON EXHIBIT

In an October 22, 1780, letter to George Mason, Washington describes in pessimistic detail what is needed by the Revolutionary forces: money, clothing, provisions, men and a change in the civil government, which needs to be strengthened in order to conduct the War.

Other letters displayed include Washington's response to the College's Board of Visitors offering him the position of College Chancellor and a letter revealing his views on accepting the Presidency of the United States.

BIO-BUREAU

Mathes said that the "Biobureau" also has a "borrow-abunny" service. Primary level students can borrow a live rabbit and a cage from the College's collection and study the animal for several days in their own classrooms.

Several of the lectures are directed toward high school students, including illustrated talks on leukemia, population ecology, electron microscopy and the ecology of salt marshes.

CAMU SERVICE PLANNED

Campus Ministries United will sponsor a "Celebration of Christian Unity" on Jan. 22 in observance of national week of prayer.

Thursday's program, which begins at 7:30 p.m. in Andrews 101, will feature keynote speakers John Coffey, director of campus ministers in Virginia for the United Methodist Church, and Cosmas Rubencamp, director of campus ministers for the diocese of Richmond in the Roman Catholic Church.

Small group discussions will follow the talks and an Agape service will conclude the evening program.

All members of the College community are invited to attend.

Ward, Williams To Talk In World Affairs Seminar

Associate Professors Alan Ward of the government department and Walter Williams of the law school will be the speakers for January in the Second Seminar Series on Current World Affairs, sponsored by the International Circle and four other campus organizations.

Ward will speak on "Nationalism and National Identity" on Jan. 24, while Williams will discuss "Nuclear Clubs, Environment and World

ASIA LECTURE TO BE GIVEN

On Thursday, Jan. 22, Asia House will present Mahlon Henderson speaking on "Southeast Asia After the Fall of Vietnam." Mr. Henderson, currently assigned to the Laso desk of the State Department, is a career foreign service officer who has served in various posts throughout Asia.

The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the lobby of Asia House, and a reception in Mr. Henderson's honor will follow. The public is welcomed.

Student Job Opportunities

In an attempt to help as many young Virginians as possible to find jobs, the Virginia Employment Commission will again conduct its College Profiles program.

Under College Profiles, the VEC publishes and distributes to many Virginia employers a list of recent college graduates seeking work.

To be issued in March, April and May, the list will carry the student's name, home address, college attended and major and minor courses of study. Employers interested in a particular student either contact him directly or arrange an interview through a local VEC office.

Seniors or recent graduates who want to be included on the list should contact Placement Office, Ext. 604, or visit the local VEC office. There is no charge for the service.

Merit Exam

College graduates are eligible to take the Virginia State Merit Examination for employment consideration as a Social Worker Trainee, from March 1 to July 1.

Trainees carry limited caseloads under close supervision in local departments of public welfare as well as participating in training programs.

Application forms available from the office of the Merit System Supervisor in Richmond, local offices of the Employment Virginia Commission, or Departments of Public Welfare. The forms must be received no later than Feb. 2. Tests will be administered at the local VEC office.

Commonwealth Interns

Seniors and recent graduates interested in careers in governmental administration may apply for the Virginia Commonwealth Intern Program.

The five interns chosen each select two or more assignments of several months duration in various state agencies. The year-long program, which begins July 1, qualifies interns for a mid-level administrative assignment in a variety of fields.

Information is available in the Career Counseling Office or by writing to: Intern Supervisor, Division of Personnel, P.O. Box 654, Richmond, VA 23205.

The deadline for submitting the five-part application is March 12.
