Clyde Haulman Selected For Special Economics Seminar

Associate Professor of Economics Clyde A. Haulman is one of 40 economists from colleges and universities across the country selected to participate in a three week seminar this summer on "Recent Developments in Applied Economics."

The program is supported by the General Electric Foundation and sponsored by the Graduate School of Business at the University of Chicago.

Participants will examine developments in the areas of the economics of information, monetary and cycle theory, the economics of regulation and applications of econometrics to crime, Haulman explained.

Haulman, who has been director of the Marshall-Wythe Institute for Research in the Social Sciences since 1972, has been project director for four grants from HUD and the Virginia Division of State Planning on general aspects of land use planning.

In 1974-75 he was project director for a child daycare study funded by HEW.

Haulman was awarded a post-doctoral study grant from the National Science Foundation in 1971 for study at the University of North Carolina and Duke University in demography, and he has also received research grants from William and Mary.

His studies in recent years have focused on monetary theory, questions of economics and population, and land use issues.

Drug Education Program Set For July 21-23

The School of Education will sponsor a fourth annual Drug Education Institute on campus, July 21-23.

Valley Rachal, senior economist and project director at the Center for the Study of Social Behavior, Research Triangle Institute, N.C., will keynote the three day institute, which will be held from 1-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. Wednesday through Friday in Morton Hall.

Rachal will discuss the increasing consumption of alcohol among school-age populations.

The course may be taken for credit or non-credit. Robert Maidment of the School of Education is directing the institute. To register, contact him at Ext. 562.

3 Faculty To Teach Abroad Under Exchange Programs

Edward Crapol, Frederic Crownfield and William F. Davis Jr. will teach abroad next year under exchange programs with British universities.

Edward Crapol, associate professor of history, will lecture in American foreign policy at the University of Exeter. He will also conduct a research project involving the English anti-slavery and American abolitionist movements.

Joseph Smith, a history professor from Exeter, will be a visiting professor at William and Mary as part of the exchange. He is a specialist in American foreign policy with an emphasis on Anglo-American studies.

The English departments at William and Mary and the University of Leeds are planning a similar exchange. William Davis, associate professor of English, will teach in the American Literature division at the University of Leeds. William and Mary alumnus Jack Morpurgo, who heads the division, helped to plan the exchange.

Ann Massa, professor of American literature at Leeds, will visit William and Mary as part of the program. Massa and Scott Donaldson, an English professor at William and Mary, have written a topical introduction of American literature for the general reader, currently being published by David & Charles in England. Ms. Massa has also written a book on Vachel Lindsay, American poet.

A third exchange program is planned by the physics department. J.J. Sanderson, a well-known plasma physicist from the University of St. Andrews in Scotland, will come to William and Mary as a visiting professor. He is reader in applied mathematics at St. Andrews.

Sanderson will exchange with Frederic Crownfield, professor of physics, who will teach at St. Andrews as visiting professor of applied mathematics.

Harrison Professor, Writer Named

The Visiting James Pinckney Harrison Professor of History and the Writer-in-Residence are among several professors who have accepted appointments to the William and Mary faculty this fall.

Herbert G. Gutman will be the Visiting Harrison Professor in 1976-77. He is currently on leave from the City College of New York to serve as a Fellow at the Shelby Cullom Davis Center for Historical Studies at Princeton University. He also holds a National Endowment for the Humanities Faculty Fellowship for the current academic year.

According to history department chairman Thomas Sheppard, Gutman is "one of the best labor historians in the country." In recent years, said Sheppard, he has become particularly interested in Black history and the Black family.

At William and Mary, Gutman will teach a graduate seminar in the fall on "Problems in American Social History," examining lower class belief and behavior with special emphasis on the South and Virginia between 1840-1880. In the spring he will teach an undergraduate course dealing with the "Changing Interpretation of the Afro-American Historical Experience."

His Harrison Chair public lecture series next spring will focus on "The Slave and Ex-slave Family during the Civil War and Reconstruction."

A native of New York City, Gutman holds a B.A. from Queens College, M.A. from Columbia University and Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin.

The James Pinckney Harrison Chair of History was established at William and Mary in 1969 as a memorial to the late chairman of the board of the Universal Leaf Tobacco Co., of Richmond. A native of Danville, Harrison had been known throughout the state for his civic and philanthropic activities and in 1946 was awarded the Legion of Merit.

Writer-in-Residence

A poet has been named writer in residence at the College for 1976-77. Peter Klappert follows novelists Stephen Marlowe and Herbert Burkholz as the third author to be selected for the residence program in as many years.

Since August 1975, Klappert has been in France conducting research and writing a book of poems about the fall of France in 1939-40. His poetry has been published in numerous magazines, as well as in several anthologies. He was a winner in 1970 of the Yale Series of Younger Poets competition for a collection of verse entitled "Lugging Vegetables to Nantucket" (1971).

He is also the author of "After the Rhymers' Guild: Recent Poetry in Central Florida" and of the forthcoming chapbook "Circular Stairs, Distress in the Mirrors."

In 1973 he was awarded a Creative Writing Fellowship by the National Endowment for the Arts.

Klappert, who will teach a professional seminar in writing for selected advanced students at William and Mary, is no stranger to college teaching. He was an instructor at Rollins College for several years, was a visiting lecturer at New College, Florida, and was Briggs-Copeland Lecturer on English and General Education at Harvard University for three years.

Klappert received his B.A. in English at Cornell University, M.A. with honors at the University of Iowa, and M.F.A. from the Writers' Workshop of the University of Iowa.

Other Appointments

In other new faculty appointments Kyle E. Dolbow, has been named assistant professor of chemistry. Dolbow is a teaching assistant and Ph.D. candidate in analytical chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Two visiting associate professors will join the chemistry department next year under temporary, restricted appointments. Joseph A. Dilts is currently assistant professor of chemistry at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, where he has taught since 1970.

A native of Edinburgh, Scotland, Douglas Guthrie Williamson comes to William and Mary from the University of Aberdeen, where he has taught since 1964.

Economics

In the economics department, Robert B. Archibald has been appointed assistant professor. Since 1974 he has been an economist with the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Previously he was a research fellow at the Brookings Institution and an instructor at Purdue University.

Government

Alan Ira Abramowitz, instructor of political science at Stanford University, will be assistant professor of government. Abramowitz holds graduate degrees from Stanford and was awarded his undergraduate degree with high distinction from the University of Rochester.

John Day has been named to the government department faculty as visiting assistant professor under a temporary, restricted appointment. A native of Great Britain, he has conducted research particularly in the field of African nationalism in Rhodesia.

History

Drew R. McCoy has been appointed assistant professor of history and a fellow in the Institute of Early American History and Culture. A doctoral candidate and graduate instructor at the University of Virginia, McCoy is particularly interested in the middle period of American history, 1776-1861.

Sir Norman Anderson, director of the Institute for Advanced Legal Studies at the University of London, and Lady Anderson, are pictured in the rose garden of the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Museum during their stay in Williamsburg this weekend. Sir Norman received the Marshall-Wythe Law Medallion in ceremonies marking the Virginia State Bar and the W&M Student Bar Association bicentennial observance of Law Day, May 1.

ORAU Seeks Answers To Society's Technical Problems

As chairman of the policy-making council of the Oak Ridge Associated Universities, S.Y. Tyree, professor of chemistry, is concerned that faculty and students are not taking full advantage of the remarkable resources and services offered by ORAU.

ORAU. Currently celebrating its 30th anniversary this year, ORAU is a private non-profit association of colleges and universities in the south, with headquarters at Oak Ridge, Tenn. Tyree has participated in ORAU programs since 1949 and represented William and Mary at ORAU since 1968.

ORAU conducts a variety of scientific research, education, information and human resources development programs for the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) and other public and private agencies.

New focus

It was first established after World War II, Tyree explained, to link the Oak Ridge National Laboratories with the southern academic community. ORAU became the prime mechanism for southern universities to get into the mainstream of atomic age science and technology. Today, however, that need has been met, and the focus of the association has shifted to bringing the resources of the member institutions to bear upon the technical problems facing society. Its prime concerns are in the areas of energy, health and the environment.

"Students and faculty members at William and Mary could profit individually by participating in some of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory and ORAU programs," said Tyree. While some departments have taken advantage of the ORAU speaker service, there are many other opportunities for those interested in the areas of energy, health and the environment.

Research reports published by ORAU scientists in the energy and health fields could be valuable reference sources for William and Mary students, he feels. The association also offers various workshops and courses on energy-, health- and environment-related problems and techniques.

Energy Institute

The Institute for Energy Analysis (IEA), established by ORAU two years ago in response to the energy crisis, analyzes national energy problems and evaluates possible solutions to them. "I suspect it's probably the best in the world," says Tyree. Its staff is composed of economists, scientists and engineers as well as visiting scholars. Its interdisciplinary nature, Tyree feels, has two distinct advantages. It forces the staff to come into contact with practical problems, and it insures nonpartisan credible analyses.

Recent research has focused on such topics as nuclear energy centers, wind, solar and geothermal energy, and energy and the economy.

To contribute to public understanding of energy issues, ORAU manages the newly opened American Museum of Atomic Energy in Oak Ridge, Tenn., for ERDA. It is also responsible for the ERDA traveling exhibits and workshop programs. Last fall one of ERDA's traveling exhibits on energy visited Williamsburg for a week.

ORAU's Energy Education Office conducts workshops and other educational programs related to energy technology and its environmental impact. It also operates traveling lecture-demonstration programs, such as "This Atomic World" and the new "Energy Today and Tomorrow."

Medical Research

In health-related areas, ORAU researchers have become increasingly concerned with finding solutions to pressing problems in occupational and preventive medicine related to the development of nonnuclear sources of energy, in addition to those created by nuclear technology. The nonnuclear problems concern mainly diseases induced in man by chemical intoxicants released into the environment by power production and research in its development.

ORAU is particularly noted for its role in training researchers and practicing pathologists in the use of radioisotopes and for its leading work in the development of nuclear medical techniques.

Environmental concerns

In recent years ORAU has become increasingly concerned with environmental affairs. Its Special Training Division, for example, now offers courses in environmental problems, such as techniques for assessing the quality of the environment and for measuring trace amounts of pollutants.

As a human resources development project, ORAU, in cooperation with Union Carbide Corporation, nuclear division, established an unusual industrial training program called Training and Technology (TAT). TAT's establishment followed a 1965 ORAU survey which had concluded that "... millions of Southerners are unable to make reasonable use of their potential for work mainly because of inadequate education and training."

"It's a logical place to train first class technicians," says Tyree, "because that's all they hire." The training takes place at Oak Ridge, and technical instruction is given by supervisors and craftsmen who work there and are assigned to the TAT program.

The purpose is to train the unemployed and unskilled, and to upgrade the underemployed. Five training areas are currently open for enrollment--welding, machining, industrial electricity, physical testing and mechanical operations. The program is flexible and geared to meet the demands of industry, so other training areas are added or dropped as demand dictates.

Swem Library Acquires Gift From Truman Era

The recent resurgence of interest in President Harry S Truman has prompted a faculty member to donate to Swem Library an interesting item of 20th century memorabilia—a copy of the final edition of the November 3, 1948, edition of the Chicago Daily Tribune.

The paper, which carries the now famous banner headline "G.O.P. Wins White House," was given by William H. Warren of the School of Business Administration. The Tribune was the only major American newspaper to carry a story that the Republican presidential and vice-presidential candidates Thomas E. Dewey and Earl Warren had won the election, an error it corrected in its November 4 edition.

Final election returns in 1948 showed that Truman received 24,105,812 popular votes or 49.7 percent, while Dewey received 21,970,065 or 45.1 percent. In terms of electoral votes, Truman received 303 and Dewey 189. Third party candidates J. Strom Thurmond, Norman Thomas and Henry A. Wallace together received approximately 2.5 million votes.

The copy donated by Warren, who was a graduate student at Purdue University, Indiana, at the time of the election, has been placed in Swem Library's vertical files in the Reference Department.

Official Memorandum

From: Floyd E. Whitaker, Treasurer
To: All William and Mary Students
Subject: Student Account Payment Policies of the College

Statements for tuition and rent for the first semester 1976-77 will be mailed July 1, 1976, payable on or before August 1, 1976. Bills will be mailed to the permanent home address as listed in Dean Moseley's office. (Second semester statements will be mailed to the local address.) All accounts are set up in the name of the student; therefore, the bill will be addressed that way. If the student is not paying the bill, then the student should forward the statement to the person, trustee, bank, or other person responsible for paying it. Students will not be allowed to complete registration if payment is not received by the deadline. We will try to process as many payments as possible that come in after the deadline, but we cannot guarantee how many can be accomplished. If, for some reason, the student does not receive a statement at the above mentioned time, he/she should be prepared to pay when he/she returns to school, and to present the receipt in order to validate registration.

Full-time tuition for the coming semester is $479.00 for state students and $1128.00 for out-of-state students. Rent will vary according to the room. Board is required for all freshmen students housed in College residences and is optional for upper classmen. The rates will be stated in the letter which accompanies the statement. If the student plans to buy a meal card, the amount of the chosen card should be added to the statement and paid for with the other charges. If it is not paid for at that time, it should be paid for prior to picking up the ticket, and the receipt should be shown at the time of purchase.

All part-time students will be required to pay for courses, and show receipts of payment, at the time they register. Part-time in-state students will pay $32.00 per credit hour; part-time out-of-state students will pay $75.00 per credit hour. Regular undergraduate students must have approval from Dean Sadler for underloads.

Students seeking re-classification of domiciliary status should do so within ten calendar days after registration. Such students should pay the out-of-state rate, and if re-classification is granted, a refund will be made.

Scholarship recipients (including ROTC, Resident Advisors, Assistant Resident Advisors, W&M scholarships and fellowships, National Direct Student Loans, athletic grants-in-aid, outside scholarships, etc.) should deduct the amount of the awards from the total and remit the balance, if any. The Treasurer's Office should be notified prior to July 1 of the awards given by the College: however, when submitting payments, the student should list the awards he/she has, whether they are College awards or outside awards. The student also should bring a copy of his/her awards to complete validation of registration if such awards are dated after July 1, or if they are outside awards that might require special attention by the Treasurer's Office, the Registrar's Office or the Student Aid Office.

Students should not wait until validation day to start seeking loans or aid in paying. William and Mary does not have a deferred payment plan; therefore tuition, fees, and rent are due prior to registration. A student need not be deprived, however, of securing similar arrangements through other channels. For information on available programs, see Mr. Leon Looney, Director of Student Aid, Room 310, James Blair Hall.

An information sheet will accompany the July statements. Please read the notice carefully as a reminder of this account payment policy.

NOTE: Any outstanding bills for the current (1975-76) academic year should be paid before the student leaves for the summer. Grades and transcripts will be held until such balances are paid. Two billings have been made since registration. If a bill has not been received, and there is a known balance due (such as change in rent, or board) then the student should come to the Treasurer's Office and check into the matter. A student will not be allowed to register for Summer School if there is such an account balance due.

It is our hope that we will continue to receive the understanding cooperation of all students in our responsibility to administer the collection of student accounts in an effective and equitable manner.
