Revolutionary Era Atlas Soon To Be Forthcoming

A major historical project begun in 1970 by the Institute of Early American History and Culture and the Newberry Library in Chicago as part of the nation's bicentennial, will come to fruition soon with the publication of the Atlas of Early American History.

The Atlas of American History: The Revolutionary Era, 1760-1790, will be printed and published by the Princeton University Press late this month or early in June. It is expected to be the most definitive and comprehensive historical atlas available.

Editor in chief of the project is Lester J. Cappon, director emeritus of the Institute of Early American History and Culture. He and cartographic editor Barbara Bartz Petchenik of the Newberry Library, have worked with a staff of as many as nine full-time historians and cartographers and eleven part-time assistants to produce the 286 maps and accompanying text.

Assembled in a chronological framework, the maps describe all aspects of America between 1760 and 1790, from demographic to cultural characteristics, from military history to manufacturing, and from politics to commerce.

Because of the use of modern cartographic drafting and printing techniques and a large format, Cappon said, the maps will possess greater clarity, precision and beauty and will present even complex subjects with more detail and sophistication than can be found in any other atlas today.

Innovations in presentation include some new drawings of certain old maps clarifying their content while eliminating their distracting qualities as antiquarian curiosities. A section of text -- expository, historical and bibliographical--supplements each map or series of maps.

The Atlas project is unique in recent American historical scholarship. It is expected to provide historians with a new understanding of the function of the map both as graphic communication and as a new dimension for comprehending historical events and conditions.

Funds for the project have been provided by the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Field Foundation of Illinois, the Newberry Library and the NEIGS Trust for the Institute of Early American History and Culture.

Editor of Adams Papers Awarded Jamestown Prize

David Grayson Allen, associate editor of The Adams Papers at the Massachusetts Historical Society, Boston, has been selected winner of the 1976 Jamestown Prize awarded by the Institute of Early American History and Culture.

The Jamestown Prize, which includes a $1500 cash prize as well as publication by the IEAHC, is given annually for the best book-length manuscript submitted in American history before 1815. Only scholars who are publishing their first books are eligible.

Allen's manuscript, "In English Ways," carefully examines the continuity of community life as Englishmen moved to the American colonies in the 17th century. Whereas earlier studies have concluded that the North American environment brought a startling transformation in institutional, legal and social development, Allen contends that early settlers gave up as little as possible of their former ways of living. He concentrates on five New England towns--Rowley, Hingham, Newbury, Ipswich and Watertown--each of which represented a population from distinctly different types of English regions or subregions.

The Jamestown Prize is funded by the Jamestown Foundation, the University of North Carolina Press and the Institute's two principal sponsors, the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation and William and Mary. Allen's book will be published by the Institute in association with the University of North Carolina Press.

BBC Crew Films Here

A British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) film crew was on campus recently to film a segment for a documentary film about noted Welsh poet Goronwy Owen, a member of the College faculty during the 18th century.

The crew filmed segments in the Grammar School room in the Wren Building and in the Goronwy Owen Poetry Reading Room in Swem Library, where a slate plaque honors Owen. David C. Jenkins, professor of English, served as consultant to the film crew, and will be featured in the documentary as a

At May 16 Commencement Exercises

Graduates Urged To Take Realistic Views

The largest graduating class in William and Mary's history received degrees May 16 in William and Mary Hall.

About 6,000 spectators saw the conferral of some 1,020 baccalaureate and 340 master's and doctoral degrees in ceremonies forced inside because of rain for the third year in a row.

Commencement speaker F. David Mathews, secretary of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), urged the graduates to temper their hopes with a realistic view of society's complex problems.

Assessing the mood of the American people, which he said fluctuates from perplexity, anger and anxiety to just silence, Mathews said, "We probably don't want to elect anybody president" this year. The comment drew a round of applause.

"But we can't do that," he said, noting that "easy temptations" have a way of "frustrating us."

The former history professor told his audience that Americans have had a past free from many of the problems other countries have experienced. This, he said, might explain why Americans naively believe all problems can be solved.

Americans' optimism, nourished by much of their history, has led to the "kind of unreality that allows us to set unattainable goals for ourselves and then wonder why we can't achieve those goals."

In the post-Vietnam, post-Watergate era, Mathews suggested, Americans have fallen prey to an equally simplistic cynicism. In this mood, he said, real accomplishments are overlooked in a prevailing insistence that "blank doesn't work, and you can fill in the blank."

The nation, he said, "is going through a test of its will and spirit" which presents the dangers of "cynicism on the one hand and euphoria on the other."

At the ceremonies, a faculty member and four students were singled out for special honors. Thomas E. Thorne, professor emeritus of Fine Arts, was awarded the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award for "such characteristics of heart, mind and conduct as evince a spirit of love and helpfulness to other men and women." Sullivan awards were also presented to graduating seniors Gary Wayne Charles of Woodbridge and Corby Lynne Cochran of Roanoke.

Michael Hoskins Lee of Falls Church received the Lord Boteourt Medal for scholarship.

The James Frederick Carr Memorial Cup, awarded on the basis of character, scholarship and leadership, was presented to John Francis Weiner of Cherry Hills, N.J.

Honorary degrees of doctor of humane letters went to Secretary Mathews and to Robert M. Coles, a psychiatrist and author.

Thomas R. Jones, of Gloucester, an industrialist and past president of the Sponsors Board of the School of Business Administration, and Henry Roosevelt, an alumnus and Harvard University dean, received honorary doctor of laws degrees.

President Thomas A. Graves Jr. told the graduates that the College's commitment to liberal education represents "the values of the mind and spirit that can keep you and your children free."

If the College can preserve these values, he said, "then we will have given our nation the perfect Bicentennial birthday."

Graves saluted J. Edward Zollinger, recently named chairman of the Campaign for the College, which seeks to raise $19 million by 1979.

Graves also inducted about 30 members of the Class of 1926 into the Old Guard of their Majesties' Royal College in Virginia.

More Students Seeking Counseling

In the last few years a growing awareness among college students of psychological problems has been accompanied by the realization that frequently something can be done about those problems.

This realization has brought with it increased use of psychological services, according to Jay L. Chambers, director of the Center for Psychological Services.

The number of students who visit the Center for consultation and for individual group therapy has increased steadily over the last six years. The Center was established originally as a vocational testing center, but its role has changed over the years to meet the changing needs and concerns of students.

A majority of the students seek help initially because they feel anxious or depressed, said Chambers. Academic pressures tend to compound students' problems. He noted that the number of students who seek help increases markedly as the examination period draws closer.

Underlying students' anxiety is often a feeling of insecurity, said Chambers. Students who seek help at the Center may be uncertain about themselves and lack a sense of direction. Coupled with this may be doubts about their ability to relate successfully to other people.

"Interpersonal relationships figure largely in the kinds of problems student have. A number of students visit the Center about couples problems and just generally getting along with people," Chambers said. Problems of self-direction are also of concern to students; many feel they lack a purpose in life.

Frequently students have problems with perfectionism and procrastination. Chambers feels the two go hand in hand; a student who tends to be a perfectionist may postpone assignments and papers, he explained, knowing he can't complete it as well as he wants to.

said, "the students with the greatest problems are frequently the ones most reluctant to seek help. Many are too defensive and feel there is a stigma about seeking psychological help." Chambers views the Center's services as offering a collaboration of ideas rather than a submission to treatment.

In a treatment situation, he explained, "all you do is follow the treatment prescribed. It's quite different where both the therapist and client try to understand the client's feelings, thoughts and actions. We try to get the three working harmoniously to help resolve the conflicts."

Intensive individual psychotherapy is the Center's basic service. However, Chambers noted, group sessions can also be valuable. Some sessions train students to assert themselves more. Others deal with personal growth.

The Center's approach is to try to help people discern what their significant beliefs are, to become conscious of them and verbalize them so that they can do something about it.

"Confidentiality is basic to our work here. We don't give out any information about students unless the student requests it in writing." The psychologists don't even keep records about what they discuss with students. The emphasis is on interchange, and that is difficult to do, said Chambers, if you are busy taking notes at the same time.

The Center is also a National Test Center. Along with individual psychological testing, they administer and provide information and applications for tests for graduate schools.

Six clinical psychologists, two full-time and four part-time, and a psychometrician who administers the testing program, and a secretary make up the staff at the Center.

W&M Wins Commissioner's Cup for 1975-76

William and Mary has won the Southern Conference Commissioner's Cup for the 1975-76 sports year. The Cup is awarded annually to the college compiling the most points in all sports in which the conference declares a champion.

William and Mary finished three points ahead of defending champion, East Carolina which accumulated 68 points. Appalachian State came in third with 62 points. It marks the fourth time in six years W&M's intercollegiate program has captured the Cup.

The Indians won conference titles in cross country and indoor track and finished second in soccer, basketball, wrestling and outdoor track.

Agreement Reached with CENTEX

The Board of Visitors approved a cooperative arrangement between the College and the Center of Excellence (CENTEX), a non-profit corporation organized to develop, in cooperation with the College and supported by a three year federal grant from the Bureau of Education for the Handicapped, a telecommunications plan for, and delivery of special education teacher training programs for the handicapped.

Under the proposed terms of the agreement, William and Mary and CENTEX will share facilities and personnel beginning June 1, 1976, and ending August 31, 1979. The agreement may be extended beyond that time, if both agree.

In exchange for permitting CENTEX to use the College's telecommunications equipment now located in the Phi Beta Kappa studio, maintenance and control room, William and Mary will have use of CENTEX electronic equipment and its projected mobile transmitter-receiver-studio vehicle for instructional purposes.

If William and Mary elects, CENTEX has agreed to make personnel available for appointment to teach a course each semester in the use of broadcasting equipment and technologies.

CENTEX will remain independent of the College and will not be identified as part of William and Mary. Richard Brooks, professor and dean of the School of Education, emeritus, is president of CENTEX.

Resolution Commends Emeric Fischer

Emeric Fischer assumed the office of Acting Dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law in August 1975, under conditions of unexpected and difficult urgency. He neither sought nor coveted the appointment, and it is with expressions of relief that he now contemplates an end to his temporary administrative assignments, and a return to the more personally compatible obligations of teaching and legal research.

His initial humble reluctance notwithstanding, Emeric Fischer has admirably discharged the many, large, and often vexing duties of an academic dean. He has been an articulate and effective spokesman for the School. He has been firm whenever it was necessary; conciliatory whenever it was possible; sincere, hard-working, and good-natured always. As he welcomes his successor to the office, one hopes that he does so, not only with understandable relief, but with the deserved conviction that he has done a difficult and unwanted job very well.

BE IT RESOLVED, that the Board of Visitors recognizes with deep appreciation the many and substantial contributions to the Marshall-Wythe School of Law and to the College of William and Mary made by Emeric Fischer, Professor of Law, in his faithful and effective service as Acting Dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law for the academic year 1975-76; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this resolution be spread upon the records of the Board of Visitors, and that a copy be delivered to Professor Fischer, with the Board's best wishes for his continuing service to the College in instruction and research.

Carson is RBC President Emeritus

WHEREAS, Colonel James Marsh Carson served as Director of Richard Bland College from June 1961 until July 17, 1968, and as Provost (change in By-laws) from July 27, 1968 until May, 1969, and as President until his retirement September 1, 1973, and

WHEREAS, Colonel Carson took early retirement from the Presidency of Richard Bland College on September 1, 1973, at the age of 63, and

WHEREAS, Colonel Carson has now reached the statutory retirement age of 65 and would have normally retired on September 1, 1975,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the Board of Visitors designate Colonel James Marsh Carson as President Emeritus of Richard Bland College, effective September 1, 1975.

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Board of Visitors of the College of William and Mary hereby approves these leaves of absence for the 1976-77 session.

Board Approves 1976-77 Maintenance and Operating Budget

At its April 6, 1976 meeting, the Board of Visitors approved increases in the tuition and general fee, in the board rate, in the room rate for student residences and in other fees to provide Special Fund Revenues to supplement the General Fund appropriations from the State for 1976-77.

These fees, appropriations, private funds and federal funds are projected to generate total revenues and essential expenditures of $27,196,076 to meet the requirements for the educational program and supporting services of the College for 1976-77. Revenues and expenditures are classified by the usual general categories of Educational and General, Student Aid, and Auxiliary Enterprises and are listed in the attached summarized Budget for 1976-77. Revenues are further detailed by source and the expenditures by general activity.

The total expenditures budgeted for 1976-77 show an overall increase of 7.55% over 1975-76. A pronounced effort has been made to reduce general administrative costs and to increase the resources available for instruction and libraries. Despite severe efforts to control physical plant costs, general inflationary pressures on operating costs and escalating costs of all utilities have caused an increase in the physical plant budget of more than 12%.

In addition to the usual State auxiliary enterprises, all of the College's private auxiliary enterprises are listed, including the Men's and Women's Athletic Associations, the Bookstore and Ash Lawn. The same budgets are also being presented separately for the Athletic Associations and for Ash Lawn.

This summarized budget has the approval of the President of the College. It reflects separate departmental budgets to be administered by department heads and monitored by a computerized budget control system directed by the Office of Business Affairs, in close cooperation with the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

RESOLVED, That the Board of Visitors of the College of William and Mary in Virginia hereby approves the 1976-77 Maintenance and Operating Budget as herein presented.

By Law Revisions Made Board of Visitors

Eliminating two vice presidential positions and changing certain responsibilities of the Vice Presidents for Academic Affairs, Business Affairs, and College Development were among the revisions made in the By-Laws of the Board of Visitors at the Board's May 13-14 meeting.

The positions of Executive Vice President and of Vice President for Planning and Administrative Services were eliminated. Both positions were unoccupied.

The Vice President for Academic Affairs was identified as senior administrative officer under the President and designated to serve as provost during the temporary absence or disability of the President.

Establishing priorities regarding the College's needs for new financial resources for educational purposes was reassigned from the Vice President for College Development to the Academic Vice President.

Under the new by-laws, the Vice President for College Development is to direct the activities of the Office of College Development and work with all appropriate officials to define the development plans of the College, coordinating the College's efforts to secure new resources, especially those involving non-State funds.

The Vice President for Business Affairs is identified, in the revised by-laws, as chief financial officer of the College.

Under the new by-laws, the Dean of the School of Law is responsible directly to the President for the administration and coordination of the School of Law. Previously, he was responsible to the Vice President for Academic Affairs. Whenever the responsibilities of the Dean of the Law School directly affect College-wide policies, practices and budgetary considerations as they pertain to the broad area of academic affairs, the new by-laws provide that the Dean is to consult with and coordinate his activities with the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

A new section was added to the Board by-laws, detailing the responsibilities of the president of a branch college. Under the new provisions, the president "shall have the same authority and responsibility for his branch college as the President of the College does. . . except that he shall be responsible to the Board of Visitors through the President of the College.

"He and his chief administrative officers shall consult with the president and the appropriate vice presidents of the College," the by-laws state, "on all communications with and recommendations to the Board of Visitors and its committees. The President and Vice Presidents of the College are responsible for maintaining a continuing relationship with their counterparts in the branch colleges."

The Committee on Development and Alumni Affairs was re-designated the Committee on Development and College Relations and its scope of concern expanded to include branch colleges and friends and other constituencies. The new by-laws provide that the committee "shall consult with the President of the College concerning the ways and means of implementing the general development of the College and its branch colleges and fostering the relationship between the College and its branch colleges and its alumni, friends and other constituencies."

A fifth regular session, in March, was added to the Board's meeting schedule. The Board will now meet in regular session in January, March, May, September and November.

The new by-laws state that, in accordance with the law, notice of Board meetings will be provided to all individuals who request in writing such notice.

The Preamble to the Board's by-laws was changed to describe William and Mary in greater depth. The new statement reads:

"Founded in 1693, The College of William and Mary is a highly selective, coeducational, full-time, residential university, with primary emphasis on a liberal education in depth and breadth at the undergraduate level. It is a State university and at the same time is national and international in character and contribution. The College offers the Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degrees, and the Bachelor of Business Administration degree. Furthermore, it offers graduate degrees in arts and sciences and graduate degrees in the professions of business, education, and law."

A complete copy of the revised by-laws may be consulted in the College News Office, 308 Old Rogers Hall.

Faculty of Arts and Sciences

At its meeting on April 6, the Faculty of Arts and Sciences approved the addition of the following sentence to Article III, section 5.1 of its Bylaws:

The faculty, by a two-thirds vote, may also invite persons who are not members of the faculty to attend and participate in its meetings. Such invited guests, however, shall not vote in decisions of the faculty. The faculty may, by majority vote, require any or all non-members to leave a meeting.

This amendment is recommended by the Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, the Vice President for Academic Affairs and the President.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the Board of Visitors approves this amendment to the Bylaws of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the President be directed to take appropriate action to implement these Bylaw changes, effective this date.

Faculty of Law

At its meeting on February 5, 1976, the Faculty of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law has recommended amendment of its By-Laws, effective July 1, 1976, in anticipation of the revision in the Board of Visitors By-Laws proposed for that same date.

These amendments are as follows, as revisions to Articles IV and V, to be redesignated Articles V and VI, respectively:

[Note: The items printed in italics and brackets are those which have been deleted in the new Bylaws.]

ARTICLE [IV.] V.

4. The Dean and Faculty of the Law School shall have the authority to:

(b) Advise and recommend to the [Vice-President for Academic Affairs and] President of the College of William and Mary concerning employment, retention, promotion and granting of tenure to faculty members according to the procedure set forth in these By-Laws and Faculty Policy statements.

ARTICLE [V.] VI.

4. The Faculty Appointments Committee shall consist of six members, each of whom shall serve a two year term. . . .

According to rules and procedures established by the faculty, the committee shall guide and advise in writing the faculty supporting those recommendations concerning employment of faculty members including the law librarian.

If in agreement with the written faculty recommendation the Dean shall communicate the recommendations in writing to the [Vice-President for Academic Affairs and the] President.

If in disagreement with a faculty recommendation the Dean shall, in writing, fully inform the faculty of the nature of the disagreement and shall thereafter meet with the faculty at regular or special meetings in an effort to resolve the disagreement. If the disagreement thereafter persists, both the faculty's and the Dean's recommendations shall be forwarded by the Dean to the [Vice-President for Academic Affairs and the] President.

5. The Faculty Status Committee shall consist of six members, . . .

Should any member of the committee be the subject of its actions . . .

According to rules and procedures established by the Faculty, the committee shall guide, advise and act for the faculty on recommendations concerning retention, promotion and tenure.

If in agreement with committee recommendations, all of which must be detailed in writing, the Dean shall forward them, along with his detailed written recommendation, to the [Vice-President for Academic Affairs and to the] President.

If in disagreement with a committee recommendation which is either affirmative or negative as regards granting of tenure, retention or promotion, the Dean shall meet with the Committee in an effort to resolve the disagreement. If the disagreement persists, the committee chairman shall notify the concerned faculty member and thereafter shall, in writing, fully inform the faculty of the nature of the disagreement. If, following such notification and after regular or special meetings held in an effort to resolve the disagreement, the disagreement persists, both the faculty's and the Dean's recommendations shall be forwarded by the Dean to the [Vice-President for Academic Affairs and to the] President.

Present Articles VI, VII and VIII, will become Articles VII, VIII and IX.

The following article will be inserted as new Article IV:

ARTICLE IV.

The Dean of the School of Law shall be responsible directly to the President for the administration and coordination of the School of Law, and shall make recommendations accordingly directly to the President. Whenever the recommendations and coordinating and administrative responsibilities of the Dean of the School of Law, in the judgment of the President, have a direct impact on or a relationship with or impinge upon College-wide policies, practices, and budgetary considerations as they pertain to the broad area of academic affairs, the Dean of the School of Law shall consult with and coordinate his activities with the Vice-President for Academic Affairs.

These amendments in total are recommended by the Acting Dean of the School of Law, the Vice President for Academic Affairs and the President.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the Board of Visitors approve the amendment to the By-Laws of the Faculty of Law, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the President be directed to take appropriate actions to implement these By-Law changes which become effective as of July 1, 1976.

Three From W&M Attend International Conference

James C. Livingston, dean of the undergraduate program, and English professors Carl Dolmetsch and Scott Donaldson were among 350 international scholars who participated last week in a Convocation of International Education in the nation's capital.

The Washington conference, held at the Smithsonian Institution, follows ten one-day regional conferences on international education held across the country this spring in conjunction with the 30th anniversary of the Fulbright-Hays program. William and Mary hosted a regional meeting April 23.

The theme of the three day conference was educational exchange and its relationship to arts and humanities, science and technology, social sciences, public affairs and the media. The conferees discussed global concerns and trends and considered their applications for future international educational exchange programs.

One of the significant outcomes of the convocation, reported Dean Livingston, was a proposal to establish a Fulbright-

Hays alumni association nationally and internationally. The original resolution was proposed at the regional meeting at William and Mary and was subsequently approved by a majority of the other nine regional conference participants. The proposal was approved unanimously at the international convocation in Washington. Professor Donaldson will serve on the ad hoc committee charged with setting up the association.

Conference participants included educators and political leaders from all over the world. Former United States Senator J. William Fulbright, who was responsible for the 1961 legislation which originated the international exchange program, and John Richardson Jr., Assistant Secretary of State for Educational and Cultural Affairs, were also scheduled to attend.

Dr. James H. Billington, director of the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, chaired the International Convocation, and Livingston led one of several group sessions.

The third phase included reinstallation of several existing light poles elsewhere on campus to provide poles of traditional or contemporary design in the appropriate campus areas. This project is now complete.

Installation of an aeration system will maintain the level of oxygen conducive to growth of animal and plant life.
