To accommodate the October 22 Presidential Debates being held in Phi Beta Kappa Hall, performances by the Sinfonicron Opera Company and by the Choir and Chorus have been re-scheduled.

The Choir and Chorus will perform Saturday, October 23, and Sunday, October 24, at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall. Tickets may be purchased for $1.50 at the Campus Center front desk, the James Blair switchboard, and in the Music Department office, Ewell Hall, as well as at the Phi Beta Kappa Box office preceding the performances.

The Sinfonicron Opera Company will perform "The Sorcerer" the following week, Wednesday through Saturday, Oct. 27-30, at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

When word got out recently that a freshman woman needed transfusions to treat a serious blood condition, her classmates in Yates and DuPont responded en masse. More than 50 students donated blood in her behalf.

William and Mary probably acquired a few fans last week among students at Roanoke County's North Cross School.

The school's headmaster, John H. Tucker Jr., had promised that the school would close if William and Mary beat Virginia Tech in the Oct. 2 football game.

William and Mary won, 27-15, and the 519 North Cross students had the following Monday off, as promised.

According to a report in the Roanoke newspapers, Tucker, a member of the class of '54, first got excited when the College defeated Virginia Military Institute a few weeks ago. When W&M later beat the University of Virginia, he repeated his promise to close school if the Indians defeated all three state schools — VPI, UVA and VMI — in the same season.

Tucker, who attended Saturday's game, said this is the first time he has closed school for a less-than-serious reason.

A scholarship fund at the new Bruton High School in York County has been established by William Bullock Jr., of the School of Education, his wife and their family, as a memorial to their son, David Brian Bullock, who died in an accident at Queens Lake, January 21, 1976.

Brian, 14, a student at Queens Lake Intermediate School at the time of his death, would have been a first-year student at Bruton High School this year.

The annual scholarship is for Bruton graduates who intend to pursue education in a service-oriented field.

Campus Prepares For Oct. 22 Debate

Campus preparations for the third and final presidential candidates debate began in earnest last week, following official confirmation Tuesday that Phi Beta Kappa Hall would be the site of the Oct. 22 debate between President Ford and Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter.

The announcement of the decision was made Oct. 5 in San Francisco by James Karayn, director of the presidential forum unit for the national League of Women Voters, sponsor of the debates.

President Graves said he was "very pleased" that the College had been chosen. "We are delighted to make available for this purpose Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, in the year that the Alpha chapter at William and Mary celebrates its 200th anniversary," he said.

A task force under the direction of Ross Weeks Jr., assistant to the president and director of information services, has been set up to coordinate arrangements on campus for the debates.

A temporary debate information office has been established in PBK to relieve the theatre department of requests for facilities inspections, and for information on the debates from media personnel. Lisa Offley, who manages the Visitor Information Center in the Wren Building, and student volunteers are staffing the office.

To give students, their parents, faculty and area residents the opportunity to take part in the Oct. 22 activities, the College will open William and Mary Hall for a special large-screen showing of the debate.

The special presentation, to start at 9 p.m. that night, is being sponsored by the Parents Day Committee and the Office of Student Affairs. The Sponsors plan to invite the two presidential candidates and their families to appear briefly at the Hall.

The reception planned that evening for parents attending Parents Day activities will be shifted to William and Mary Hall, in a place to be determined. It will start, as originally scheduled, at 8 p.m. Guests will then move into the auditorium for the start of a program at 9 p.m. Details of the program will be announced when completed.

Although the needs for assistance on campus will not be known until League representatives arrive in Williamsburg, students have begun volunteering to help. The Office of Student Activities and Organizations in the Campus Center, Ext. 557, is coordinating volunteers.

Faculty and students interested in organizing classroom and residence hall programs with the media, campaign and technical personnel expected on campus preceding the debate, are encouraged to contact the Student Affairs Office. A new extension, 675, has been set up in the office to handle such requests. Once the College knows when such personnel will begin arriving in Williamsburg, the Student Affairs Office will coordinate arrangements for the class and residence hall programs.

Final decisions on any improvements at Phi Beta Kappa Hall facilities are being postponed until College officials can meet with League officials to negotiate a contract.

The debate will follow a face-off in Houston between vice presidential nominees Walter F. Mondale and Robert Dole on Oct. 15. Domestic issues were the topic of the first debate, Sept. 23, while the second, on Oct. 6, focused on foreign policy and national security. The Williamsburg debate will not be restricted to any one topic, according to League statements.

Tickets for the debates are being handled by the League of Women Voters.

Association Establishes Endowments

Endowments to be used for financial assistance to needy students, several departments of the college, Swem Library, and women athletes and the establishment of an endowed professorship were reported at the annual meeting of the Endowment Association of the College, October 1.

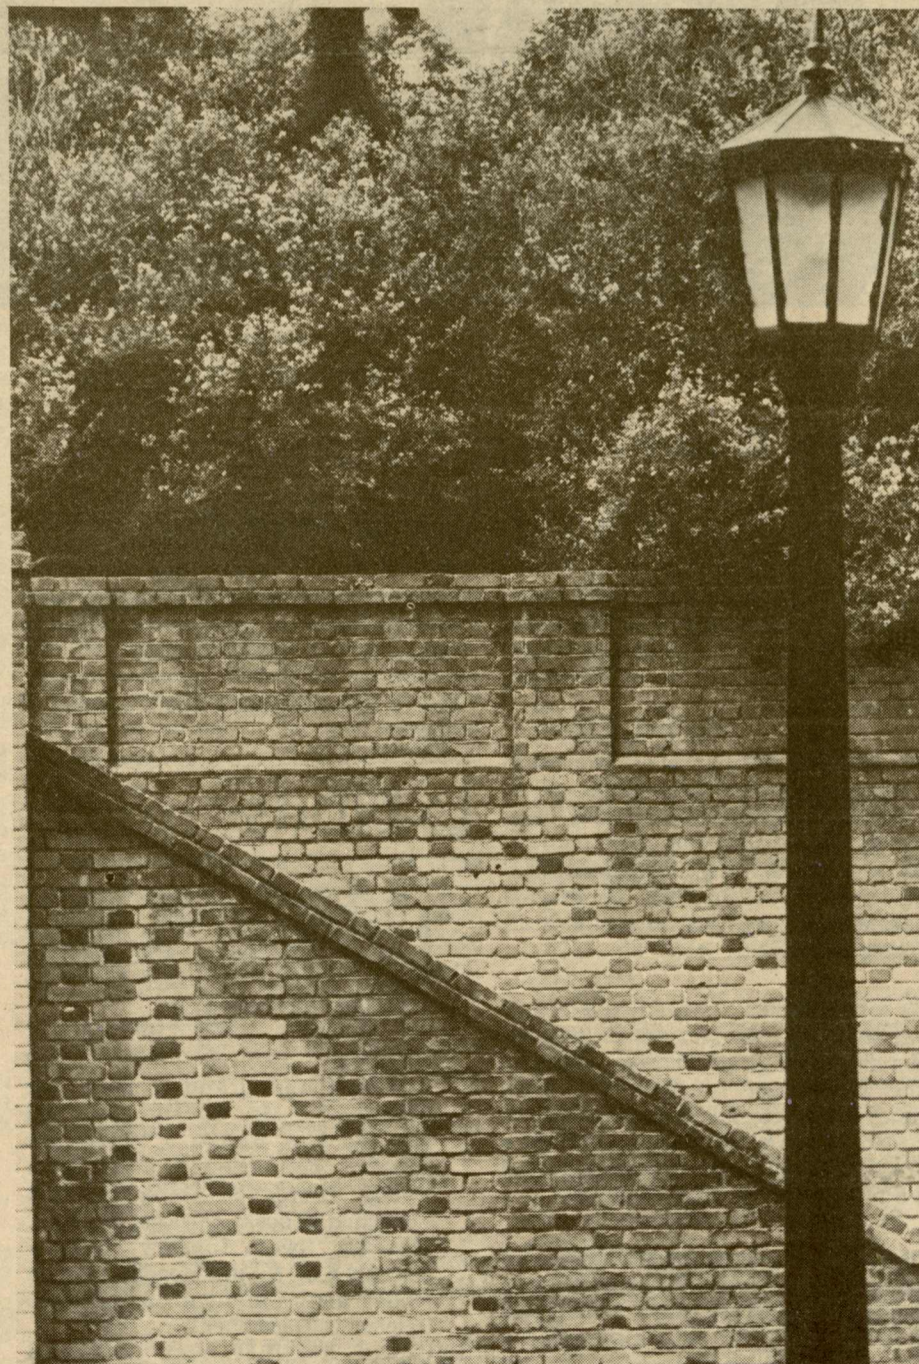

The Ferguson Brothers Fund, honoring three alumni brothers, and established from trusts to the College by Walter F.C. Ferguson, will provide financial assistance on an equal basis to the departments of mathematics, biology, chemistry, physics and psychology for the purchase of books over the next ten years.

The Walter F.C. Ferguson Professorship will be used to endow a professorship at the College and is not restricted to any particular field of study.

The Ferguson Fund will provide an annual gift for books in any field or subject matter for Earl Gregg Swem Library.

These three funds honor George Oscar Ferguson, Jr. '07; William C. Ferguson '16; and Walter F.C. Ferguson, '19.

Already established at the College is the Ferguson Seminar in Publishing, held annually as a memorial to William C. Ferguson and established by his brother, Walter F.C. Ferguson, in 1968.

Ballet Not For Gifted Few Alone

Two members of the College Women's Club are ballet teachers. Each has her own philosophy of the art, but both agree that you don't have to be Margot Fonteyn to enjoy dance.

Heidi Robitshek says there are opportunities for ballet all across the country, and "if you're good, you can find your place."

According to Paula Pence, "Age doesn't matter, as long as you are interested."

Both women teach classical ballet classes in Williamsburg. Although they have students of all ages, from kindergarteners in pre-ballet classes, through adult classes, Heidi and Paula particularly enjoy teaching adults. "So often, children are made to take dancing lessons, while adults are there because they want to be," explains Heidi.

In teaching children, their goal is to spark a real desire to do the hard work necessary to becoming a dancer. "Beginning classes, once a week, of 'barre' work, exercise and practice of basic steps take two years," says Paula. "It takes a long time to learn to 'think' ballet, to put the practiced elements together into a dance. Until a student reaches the intermediate level, barre work and stretching exercises must be done in class and ought not to be done at home without teacher supervision," she feels.

Studying with several teachers is the best course for the serious ballet student, both agree. "All companies now require jazz, character and modern dance in some phase because of today's repertoires," explains Heidi.

Neither teacher favors a yearly recital. "I would agree to a recital only if the students were willing to come to additional classes," says Heidi. "It takes too much away from technique time to prepare for a program during scheduled classes."

Heidi is teaching classical ballet in Williamsburg for her ninth year. She has studied, performed professionally and instructed in classical ballet in Europe as well as the United States. She has taught ballet regularly in several Tidewater cities and has performed with the Maryland Ballet Company; the Tidewater Dance Guild; Dance Guild of Virginia; the Richmond, Norfolk and

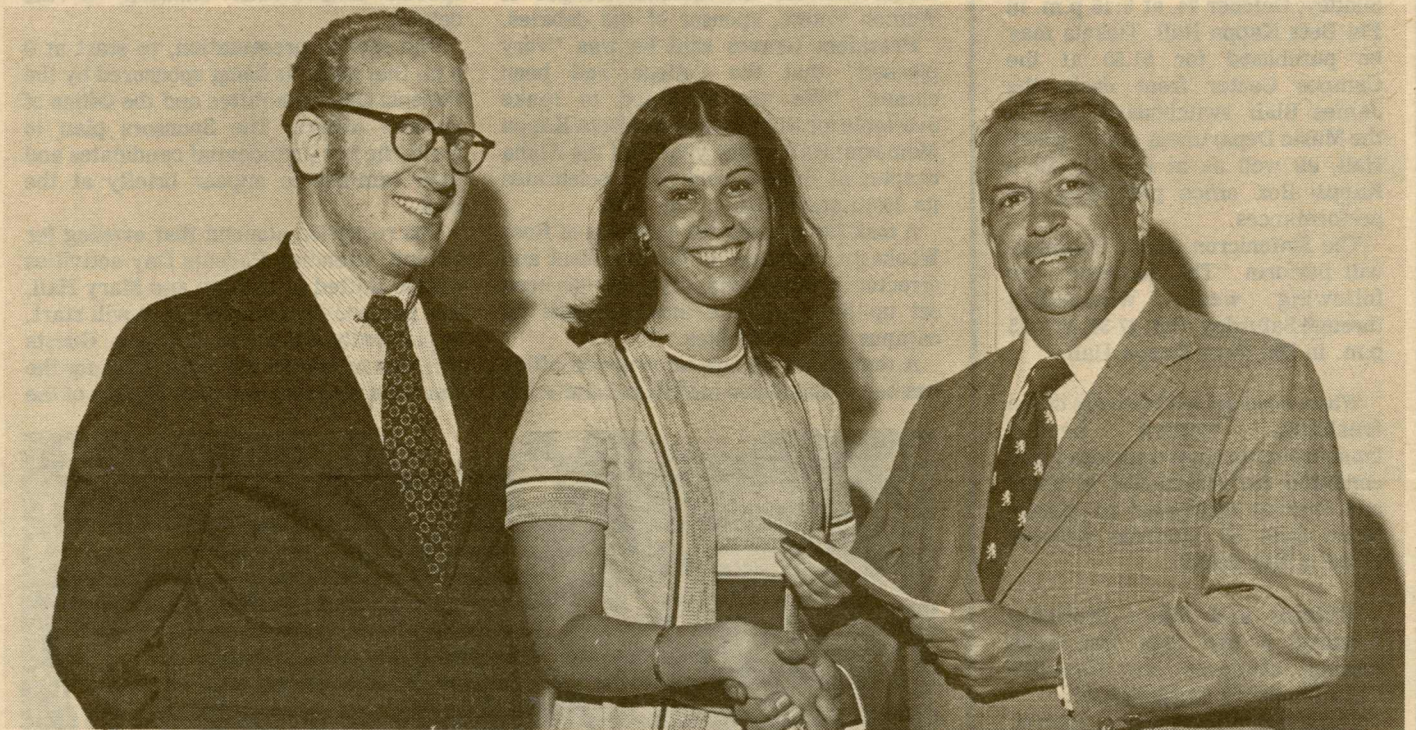

Virginia Beach Civic Ballet Companies; and as lead dancer and assistant dance director of the "Common Glory."

She currently dances professionally with the Virginia Beach Ballet Company. Her schedule is a demanding one. With practice sessions, both giving and taking classes, performing, and commuting daily to Virginia Beach, she puts in six 12-hour days each week.

Paula Pence holds a bachelor's degree in dance from Butler University. She has also studied at the Academy Washington School of Ballet and the National Ballet School, as well as with Fernand Nault, director of Le Ballet Royal Canadien, and with internationally known dancer, teacher and choreographer George Skibine.

She has performed with the Louisville Civic Ballet, the Kentucky Opera Association, the Butler Ballet and Butler Ballet Touring Company, and the "Common Glory."

This is the second in a series of articles on women associated with the College, by Julie Littlefield, president of the College Women's Club.

Linda Allen accepts scholarship award from UVB President Robert Walker as William O'Connell, associate dean in the School of Business Administration, looks on.

Linda Allen, MBA Student, Receives Annual UVB Award

Linda Irwin Allen, a graduate student in the School of Business Administration, has been awarded the third annual United Virginia Bank of Williamsburg scholarship.

The $1500 scholarship covers two years of academic work. In addition, UVB of Williamsburg will employ Allen part-time during the academic year and full-time next summer in a training capacity. The program is intended to provide recipients with practical exposure to all banking positions.

A native of Richmond, Allen is a first year student in the Masters in Business Administration program. She graduated cum laude last spring from Ohio Wesleyan University with a major in economics. She is interested in pursuing a career in banking and has been employed as a bank clerk for two summers.

Based on academic performance, the scholarship is awarded annually to a Virginia first year student in William and Mary's MBA program who is interested in pursuing a career in finance and banking in Virginia. UVB first established the scholarship in 1974.

Second year MBA student Lynn Pierce of Suffolk, last year's scholarship recipient, will continue to receive the award for the 1976-77 academic session. He is a 1975 graduate of the University of Virginia.

Presidential Race Will Be Close, Professor Finds

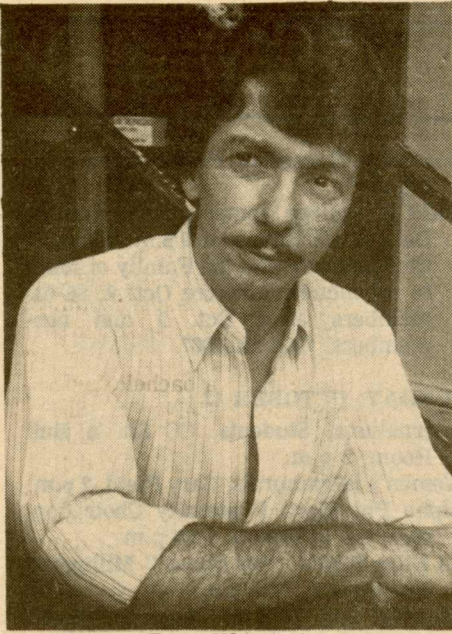

A William and Mary faculty member predicts that the outcome of the presidential election will be very close, based on his survey of voters in Williamsburg and James City County following the first debate.

Alan Abramowitz of the government department polled a random sample of 230 eligible voters here both before and after the Sept. 23 debate in Philadelphia. He found that 39 percent of those who watched the debate declared Ford the winner, while 24 percent gave it to Carter. 37 percent thought it ended in a draw, according to Abramowitz.

"The presidential election appears to be very close," he said. Among "probable voters," those who said that they were registered to vote and definitely would vote in the election, Ford led Carter 43 percent to 40 percent before the debate. After the debate, Ford led 43 percent to 38 percent.

"Which candidate will emerge the winner among Williamsburg and James City County voters will depend largely upon the 19 percent of probable voters who were undecided after the first debate," Abramowitz concluded.

Paul Gough, a graduate student in government, assisted Abramowitz in carrying out the study.

Peter Klappert

Klappert, Resident Poet, To Read From His Works

Peter Klappert, author of two books of poetry and winner of the prestigious Yale Series of Young Poets competition in 1970, is poet-in-residence at William and Mary this year and will give a reading from his work, October 13, at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Little Theatre.

Klappert will read from his prize-winning book of poems, "Lugging Vegetables to Nantucket," and a later book, "Circular Stairs, Distress in the Mirrors." Klappert hopes to complete work on a third book, which he has titled "The Idiot Princess of the Last Dynasty: The Final Monologues of Dr. Matthew O'Connor," while in Williamsburg. The central character, Dr. O'Connor, is taken from Djuna Barnes' novel "Nightwood," first published in 1936.

A graduate of Cornell University, B.A., 1964; the University of Iowa, M.A. with honors, 1967; and Writers' Workshop, University of Iowa, M.F.A., 1968, Klappert has taught at Rollins College and New College, both in Florida, and was Briggs-Copeland lecturer on English and General Education at Harvard, 1971-74.

A member of the William and Mary faculty under the Eminent Scholars Program, Klappert is teaching a course in creative writing with an emphasis on poetry. Before coming to Williamsburg he lived in France doing research and writing for his third book, which is set in Paris between 1920-34.

Stanley Kunitz, judge for the Yale competition, wrote in the introduction to "Lugging Vegetables to Nantucket" that Klappert had a "wicket eye, a nimble mind, audacity, and zest."

"Few poets of his age — or you may multiply his age — can equal him in his command of craft," said Kunitz. Peter Klappert is listed in Who's Who, International Who's Who in Poetry, and Contemporary Authors. His poetry has appeared in a variety of journals and has been anthologized in "Our Only Hope is Humor," "Best Poems of 1971," "At the Gallery," "Midlands II," and "The Young American Poets: Second Selection." He has published several

Tazewell Taylor Professors Named

Howell Thomas Heflin, Chief Justice of the Alabama Supreme Court, and Doninik Lasok, Law Dean at the University of Exeter, England, will serve as Tazewell Taylor Visiting Professors of Law at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law for the spring semester.

Chief Justice Heflin, vice president of the National Center for State Courts, which is currently building its headquarters in Williamsburg, was elected chairman of the National Conference of Chief Justices at their annual meeting in August.

The Alabama jurist was recently voted the "outstanding appellate judge in the United States," by the Association of Trial Lawyers of America. Last year he was given the highest award of the American Judges' Association and has been honored for his work in court modernization by the American Judicature Society.

Long associated with education, Chief Justice Heflin has been a lecturer at the University of Alabama, a member of the Alabama Education Commission and President of the Alabama Commission for Better Schools.

For Dominik Lasok, his appointment to the law school faculty will mean a return visit to Williamsburg. He was a visiting professor at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, 1966-67.

He is a professor of comparative and European law at the University of Exeter and is currently visiting professor at McGill University in Montreal.

Heflin will teach a new course, one of the first of its kind to be offered, in judicial administration in cooperation with the National Center for State Courts, working with Alexander Aikman, director of the Mid-Atlantic Regional office of the National Center for State Courts in Williamsburg.

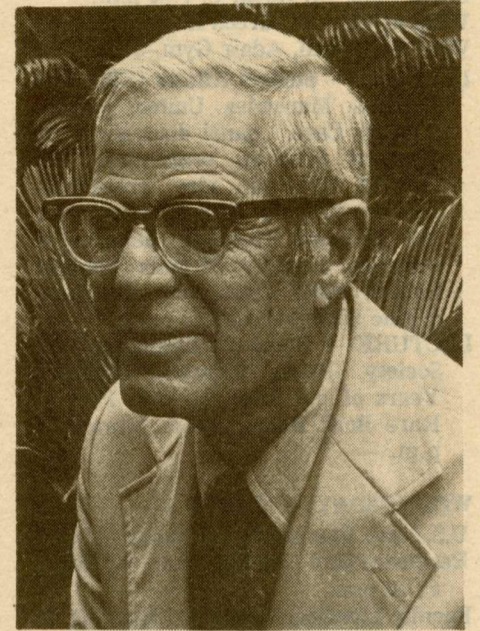

Lasok will teach courses in international and comparative law and will also be offering a course on the European Common Market, jointly with the School of Business Administration for MBA students.

John Ritchie, professor at the University of Tennessee College of Law since 1974 and Dean and John H. Wigmore Professor Emeritus of Northwestern University School of Law, is Tazewell Taylor Professor at Marshall-Wythe this semester, teaching trusts and estates. Professor Ritchie has published four editions of his casebook on trusts and estates. He worked for five years on the American Bar Association House of Delegates and, as a Fellow of the American Bar, drafted the Code of Professional Responsibility.

Tom Clark, retired United States Supreme Court Justice, and Glen R. Winter, executive director of the American Judicature Society in Chicago, were the first Tazewell Taylor professors and were on campus during the second semester of the 1975-76 academic year.

The Tazewell Taylor professorships have been established at William and Mary from endowments which have been set aside for curriculum enrichment and matching funds from the Eminent Scholars Fund. They honor two members of the Tazewell Taylor family of Norfolk, Va.

Charles Wagley

essays including "The Workshop Approach to Poetry" and "Let Them Eat Wonderbread." in the Saturday Review: Arts; and a chapbook on four Florida poets "After the Rhymers' Guild."

Klappert grew up in Rowayton, Conn., and has worked at a variety of jobs, including a radio announcer, salesman, attendant at an alcoholics hospital and a farm laborer. He has traveled in Europe, the Middle East and Central Asia and has taught at the Maine Writers' Workshop; A Gathering of Poets at LSU, Baton Rouge; the Undergraduate Cooperative Poetry Conference at Hiram College and the Ohio Poetry in the Schools program.

Anthropologist Views Latin America

Charles W. Wagley, visiting professor of anthropology, will give the first of several public lectures Thursday, October 14, at 7:30 p.m. in Millington Hall.

Wagley will speak on "Understanding Our Latin American Neighbors."

A past president of the American Anthropological Association, Wagley has been graduate research professor of anthropology and Latin American Studies at the University of Florida since 1971. His special interest is Brazil.

Wagley has said that his October 14 lecture will serve as an introduction to those he will give on November 11, February 3 and April 7. In his first lecture, he will stress the unique contribution which sociocultural anthropologists can make in the understanding of complex modern nations such as those of Latin America. Socio-cultural anthropologists, feels Wagley, stress behavior and cultural values as derived from their studies of local communities rather than political institutions, economic institutions, or historical overviews.

In dealing with Latin America, Professor Wagley will distinguish three distinct areas, Indo-America, those highland countries with large Indian populations; Afro-America, which includes Brazil and Circum-Caribbean; and Euro-America, including Argentina, Chile and Uruguay.

He is expected to outline the common institutions and behavioral traits which Latin Americans share such as familism, a strong sense of social class, tolerance in race relations, "machismo," or male dominance, and personalism.

In future lectures Wagley will discuss "Race and Social Class Relations in Latin America and the U.S.A.," "The Transamazon Highway," and "Latin America Becomes Urban."

A member of the Columbia University faculty from 1946 to 1971, Wagley served as director of the University's Institute of Latin American Studies. He has acted as a consultant to Brazilian and U.S. officials for many years. In 1965-69 he served as a consultant-lecturer in Latin American area studies for the U.S. State Department's Foreign Service Institute. He has been a consultant to the Ministry of Education in Brazil and was for four years a member of the advisory board of the Brazilian American Cultural Institute.

Wagley received his bachelor's degree and doctorate from Columbia University. He is a visiting professor at the College this year under the Eminent Scholars program.

New Endowments Established At Group's Annual Meeting

The Sheridan-Kinnamon Fund, established by Mrs. Edith C. Sheridan of Richmond, and Gilbert T. and Jeanne Sheridan Kinnamon, members of the class of '34 and '39 respectively, will provide annual scholarship assistance to needy Virginia students attending the College.

The Edna Wofford Turrentine Fund, established this year by Miss Nancy Carroll Turrentine, president of the class of 1976, in memory of her mother, provides scholarship assistance to Virginia students from rural areas.

Friends of Martha Elizabeth Barksdale, the first woman graduate of William and Mary and a long-time member of the women's athletic faculty, have established a fund in her honor to provide assistance to deserving women scholar-athletes at the College.

William H. Savage '35, has established the Emilie Cherry Taylor Savage Fund in memory of his mother. Funds from this endowment will be used to provide financial assistance to students above the freshman level who have lost one or both parents.

Roy R. Charles of Norfolk has established a fund which bears his name, to be used as unrestricted funds to meet the most pressing needs of the College.

A Swern audio-visual department fund has been established by the Endowment Association from funds collected by the Senior Class Gift Committee. The committee has recommended that the funds from this endowment be used to purchase now phonographic equipment and films to supplement present collections.

Faculty Appointments Announced

Two temporary appointments to the faculty for this semester have been announced.

Rita V. Welsh, B.A. State University of Iowa; M.Ed., College of William and Mary, 1972, has been appointed a part-time instructor in the School of Education for the fall semester. Mrs. Welsh was an adjunct professor in the School of Education last year and was co-director of the Adult Skills program on campus. She will continue in this capacity this semester.

Alvin P. Anderson, a graduate of the College and the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, is a lecturer in business administration this semester. He is a partner in the law firm of Anderson and Anderson in Williamsburg.
