In the News

LECTURE POSTPONED--The lecture by "Roots" author Alex Haley, scheduled for last night in Hampton Coliseum, has been postponed until later this month due to Haley's illness. Haley's talk was to have been the third in the "Our Future in the Cosmos" series sponsored jointly by NASA-Langley Research Center and the College. Carson Barnes, director of special programs at William and Mary who is handling arrangements for the lectures, advises ticket holders to retain their tickets. Barnes expects to announce the date of the re-scheduled lecture later this week.

HAVE A HEART--The Bryan Complex Residence Halls are sponsoring a Valentine sale to benefit the Heart Fund. The sale begins today for three days at the Commons, and will be held Wednesday in the residence halls and departmental offices.

EMERGENCY NUMBER--The Campus Police Office advises members of the College community that the 24-hour emergency number is 333, not a four-digit extension. Under Centrex, the office's regular extensions are 4596 and 4597.

PHYSICS COLLOQUIUM--Roberto Suaya of McGill University will discuss "The Discrete Charm of Broken Symmetries" in a physics colloquium, Friday, February 11, at 4:30 p.m. in 109 William Small Physical Laboratory.

FACULTY CLUB PARTY--The Faculty Club will hold its third cocktail party of the year on Friday, February 18. The event will take place from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Alumni House, and guests will be the members of the school boards and the superintendents of schools from York County, James City County and Williamsburg.

All members of the faculty and administration are invited to attend and may pay at the door or in advance to Lewis Foster at the usual rates: members - $2.50 per person ($1.50 non-drinkers); non-members $4 per person ($2.50 non-drinkers).

In Black Culture Series

Bond, Gillespie To Lecture Here

The Black Student Organization lists civil rights leader Julian Bond and magazine editor Marcia Gillespie as two of the top attractions of the two-week Black Culture Series, which opened yesterday on campus with the theme "Black Is. . . ."

Marcia Gillespie, editor in chief of Essence magazine, will speak Wednesday February 9, at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom. Prior to joining the magazine staff in 1970, Gillespie was a researcher for Time-Life books, New York, for four years. She was named editor in chief in 1971.

Bond, a member of the Georgia Senate, will speak February 11 at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Millington Hall.

Active in the civil rights movement, Bond was a founder of the Committee Appeal for Human Rights in 1960 and of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee that same year.

In 1965 he became the first black since Reconstruction days to serve in the Georgia House of Representatives. He was elected to the Georgia Senate in 1975.

These talks, and all other events of the Series, with the exception of the BSO dance, are open to the public, free of charge. Tickets are $5 for the dance and may be purchased from BSO members and at the Campus Center front desk.

The Petersburg Youth Choir opened the series last night with a gospel music program in the Campus Center.

The award-winning documentary film "From These Roots," will be shown February 17 at 7:30 p.m. in Millington Auditorium, as part of the series emphasis on black history. "From These Roots" was written, produced and directed by Emmy Award-winning filmmaker William Greaves. It focuses on the artistic, social and political renaissance of Afro-America during the "Roaring Twenties."

The traditional BSO Ball will be held February 11 from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom with music by "Trussell."

BSO Talent Night, Saturday, February 12, at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center

Ballroom, will conclude the series program. Dances choreographed and performed by students, poetry readings and a Hearts of Unity choral ensemble performance are among the scheduled events.

The series has been organized by Sam Eure, a sophomore from Kingsport, Tenn., and Cynthia Taylor, a senior from Onancock, Va., under the direction of Skip Parnell, a senior from Highland Springs, Fla.

Jean Gwaltney of the Chronicle of Higher Education captured this view of the Sunken Garden from the Great Hall of the Wren Building, during her December visit on campus to cover Phi Beta Kappa's 200th anniversary celebration.

Airline President Views Free Enterprise

Frank Borman, former Apollo astronaut and current president of Eastern Air Lines, will speak on the value of the American free enterprise system at 8:45 p.m., Wednesday, February 16, in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Borman's talk, which is open to the public, will be the second Anheuser-Busch Lecture presented by the School of Business Administration. The lectures were established in 1975 when Anheuser-Busch Inc. gave $5,000 to the School of Business Administration to attract speakers who could tell firsthand what makes the American economic system work.

When astronaut Borman traded in his spacesuit for a conservative business suit in early 1969 to become special advisor to Eastern, he admits that many observers expected the ex-fighter pilot would be an executive in name only.

Not so. Borman took over the vice presidency of the troubled airline about a year later and soon became the architect of a highly successful cost-cutting, efficiency-oriented flight plan for Eastern. In 1975 he was named president and chief executive officer, and last year added chairman of the board to his list of titles.

A cool and positive executive, Borman had his work cut out for him when he took over at Eastern. Burdened with phenomenal debts, a top-heavy management, and an inefficient route structure, the firm lost more than $50 million in 1975. Borman—a toughminded businessman with a flair for the imaginative—was given the task of turning things around.

He cut about 3,200 employees, many from Eastern's overloaded executive suites. He eliminated virtually all of the costly frills Eastern executives had grown accustomed to, including the large fleet of limosines and the status-symbol executive jet. To set a prime example, Borman drives a 1969 Camaro he re-built himself, abstains from drinking and smoking both in and out of the office, and makes a point to help the red caps unload baggage at the Miami airport at least a couple of times each year.

The results of Borman's drive to move Eastern out of the red have been remarkable—last week the firm announced that 1976 profits reached a record $46.2 million.

Borman's overall attitude toward his country and its much-maligned free enterprise system makes him a logical choice for the Anheuser-Busch Lecture. "I'm success-oriented," he says. "I have a basic belief in the system, a love for the country, basic religious instincts, and I'm square."

Before taking over the pilot's seat at Eastern, Borman served as special presidential ambassador on trips throughout the Far East and Europe, and in 1970 undertook a worldwide mission to seek support for the release of American prisoners of war. A graduate of West Point, he served in the Air Force for 20 years.

Borman became a national hero when he commanded the Apollo 8 space flight, the first to send a man around the moon. Later he served as resident manager of the Apollo program and led the team which investigated the tragic fire that killed three men in an Apollo spacecraft.

The Anheuser-Busch Lecture was delivered last year by William P. Benton, vice president of Ford Motor Company. Donald J. Messmer, associate professor of business administration, has arranged the lectures in conjunction with a committee of faculty and Anheuser-Busch executives.

Faculty Expected To Benefit From Recent Campaign Gifts

Three unrestricted gifts totalling more than $300,000 to the Campaign for the College are expected to be used to support faculty professional development programs.

Roy R. Charles '32 of Norfolk, recently named chairman of the campaign, has made a cash gift of $100,000 to the campaign, specifying only that it be used for the pressing needs of the College as recommended by the President. President Graves has indicated that income from the endowment will most likely be used for faculty support, a high priority item among the campaign goals.

J. Bruce Bredin of Greenville, Del., an alumnus of the class of 1936 and a current member of the Board of Visitors, has made an unrestricted gift of stock with a value of approximately $112,500. Bredin has made a gift of $10,000 annually since 1964 to support faculty semester research leaves, and his campaign contribution is expected to supplement his support of that program.

Blake T. Newton Jr., '35, of Greenwich, Conn., former vice rector of the Board of Visitors and a current trustee of the Endowment Association, also has made a commitment of $100,000 to the campaign. Newton said the income from the endowment could be used at the association's discretion, but that he hoped it might be used "in a way that would support the creative instincts of our faculty."

Scholarship Covers Course In Publishing

The William Cross Ferguson Graduate Scholarship each year awards to one William and Mary senior or recent graduate $1,250 to cover the full tuition for the Radcliffe College Summer Course in Publishing Procedures.

The Radcliffe Publishing Procedures Course is a six-week intensive professional program, taught almost entirely by eminent publishing executives that is generally considered to be the surest entrance to a career in book and magazine publishing as well as the most effective publishing training program now in existence. The course is held in Cambridge, Massachusetts from June 27 to August 5, 1977.

The Ferguson Scholarship Committee will be receiving applications from interested seniors and alumni until February 25. Applicants may be from any academic major, but should have a demonstrable and serious interest in a publishing career, whether it be in design, production, editorial, or sales. Announcement of the successful candidate will be made in mid-March.

Application forms may be picked up at the Office of Career Counseling, James Blair Hall 209. Information about the course is available at that office as well.

Employment

*The following positions are open to all qualified individuals; however, current faculty and classified employees will receive first considerations. Except where noted, inquiries and applications should be made at the Personnel Office, 201 James Blair Hall, and not at the department where the opening exists. ## Notices

USIA MANAGEMENT INTERNSHIPS--
The United States Information Agency is seeking young men and women for its Management Intern Program. Management Interns should desire a career in public administration and have a strong concern with international communications and mass media. Emphasis is placed on degrees and professional experience in public or business administration but is not limited to those individuals having such backgrounds. USIA Management Internships are one year in length. Contact the Career Counseling Office.

Personnel Bulletin

State Employees Credit Union Annual Meeting (2/15/77)

The State Employees Credit Union will hold its annual meeting on Tuesday, February 15, 1977 at 2 p.m. in the auditorium of the Department of Highways and Transportation. The meeting is expected to last approximately one hour.

The purpose of the meeting is to give an annual report to the members. The meeting also provides an opportunity for members to make suggestions to the Board of Directors on how the Credit Union's services might be improved so that it can serve them more effectively.

College employees who wish to attend this meeting will be required to submit a request for leave (annual or compensatory) to cover the period of absence during normal work hours.

Income Tax Information

A limited number of Federal and State Income Tax Forms are available at the College Personnel Office. Persons desiring specific information on Federal Income Tax matters may do so by calling the following toll-free number: 800-552-9500.

Information on State Income Tax matters may be obtained locally by calling 229-1626 (Williamsburg residents); 229-2911 (James-City County residents); 887-5541 (York County residents).

Statement of Benefits for Permanent Full-Time Employees

Personalized statements of employee benefits were distributed with employee paychecks last week.

Projected retirement benefits are based on the creditable service employees will have when they reach age 65. Retirement data has been omitted on all employees for whom no membership data was furnished by VSRS. This would include, in addition to any employees who rejected membership when they had the option, employees who may have been hired after September 30, 1976, and for whom Retirement System records had not been established at the time the data was prepared.

Statements are not furnished for persons employed after they had reached age 60 because they do not participate in the State retirement or life insurance programs. Also, because all computations have been made on the basis of an employee's retiring at age 65, no statements were furnished for persons 65 and older.

Employees who did not receive a Benefits Statement but who believe they are entitled to receive one, are asked to contact the College Personnel Office.

Employment Outside of the State Service

Rule 9.4 for the Administration of the Virginia Personnel Act is quoted for the information of all permanent classified employees:

9.4 EMPLOYMENT OUTSIDE OF THE SERVICE

No employee shall engage in any other employment, nor in any private business, nor in the conduct of a profession, during the hours for which he is employed to work for the State, nor outside such hours in a manner or to an extent that affects or is deemed likely to affect his usefulness as an employee of the Commonwealth.

Classified employees who wish to engage in remunerative employment in addition to their State jobs may do so, provided that it will not interfere with their State employment, and such employment is with the prior written approval of their supervisor. A brief letter explaining the nature and extent of the outside employment should be sent by the employee to the appropriate dean or department head. A copy of both the employee's request and the supervisor's written approval or disapproval must be forwarded to the College Personnel Office for review and it will be filed with the employee's personnel records.

It should be noted that any injury or illness sustained by an employee while engaged in outside employment is not compensable by the College. No sick leave shall be allowed if it is determined that such absence was a result of unauthorized non-State employment.

Project Plus To Focus On Hospitals, Schools

A film that has been called "an horrifically beautiful study of life in a metropolitan center of succor and mercy" will be shown at the next Project Plus Forum, Wednesday, February 9, at 7:30 p.m. in Millington Auditorium.

Directed by Frederick Wiseman, "Hospital" won two Emmy Awards in 1970 for Best News Documentary and Best Director.

Kenneth H. Axtell, administrator of the Williamsburg Community Hospital, will serve as commentator for the film.

Next week's forum, February 16, will focus on the topic "Improving City Schools" at 7:30 p.m. in Millington Auditorium.

Panelists will discuss issues within the public schools of a major Virginia city, Richmond. Robert Frossard, assistant superintendent of secondary schools for Richmond, will serve as moderator. Panelists, all from Richmond, are: Linwood Wooldridge of the Board of Education; George Jones, principal of Kennedy High School; Christie Turner, a senior at George Wythe High School; Kirk Jones, a senior at Armstrong High School, and parents Mary Booth, Patricia Hance and Jack Sharpe.

The public is invited to attend both forum sessions.

Mark Tokarz performs the "Iron Cross" on the rings.

Gymnastics, Soccer Scheduled For P.E. Night Program

A gymnastics exhibition and an indoor soccer match with an all-star cast of athletes will highlight the Physical Education Night program at William and Mary Hall, February 10.

The program will open with a 30-minute gymnastics exhibition, coordinated by Cliff Gauthier, William and Mary gymnastics coach and 1976 Gymnastics Coach of the Year for the South. Members of the varsity gymnastics teams, in conjunction with students in the William and Mary age-group gymnastics program, will demonstrate skills at all levels.

The women gymnasts, who are coming off their finest season, will be led by all-rounders Anne Weatherly from Virginia Beach and Sue Naeser of Blacksburg. In addition to winning the state championship, the men's team placed third in the entire South in 1976.

The second half of the program will be an exhibition of indoor soccer with conference champion varsity soccer players from William and Mary playing the Washington Diplomats. The line-up for the Diplomats will include John Kerr, currently a member of the Canadian World Cup Team.

Tickets for the February 10 event will be on sale at the door for $2. For information, call 229-3396.

Fergusson gift to be used

The gymnastics equipment which will be used by the performers was purchased last fall with a $6,500 gift from the late Donald W. Fergusson of Evanson, Ill., chairman of the board of Rust-oleum Corporation. Donald C. Fergusson, his son and a 1975 graduate of the College, participated in William and Mary's gymnastics program as a student.

"Rarely does an individual so positively effect the educational experience of so many students as did Don Fergusson through his contributions to the College," said Gymnastics Coach Cliff Gauthier.

The Fergusson gift was used to purchase a Nissen free exercise mat, new ring cables and a new cover for the side horse for the gymnasts.

This is the eleventh annual Physical Education Night. In 1975 the club received enthusiastic support for a program which featured the Philadelphia Atoms Indoor Soccer team and the 15-member Mar-Va-Teens gymnastic troupe. Club programs are presented biannually.

Art Lecture Views "Pieta" By Michelangelo

Artist and art historian Philipp Fehl will discuss fact and fiction in the restoration and reconstruction of works of art in a public lecture, Wednesday, February 9, in Andrews 101 at 8 p.m.

Fehl, who is a professor in the Department of Art and Design at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, will discuss proposed reconstructions of the Apollo Belvedere, the Laocoon and of Michelangelo's Florentine "Pieta."

The Florentine "Pieta" is one of Michelangelo's late works, intended for his own tomb but left unfinished. Scholars have debated its original appearance. Fehl will propose his view of Michelangelo's intentions for this work of art.

A native of Vienna, Austria, Fehl studied painting at the School of Art of the Art Institute of Chicago and studied art history at Stanford University and the University of Chicago.

Changing Careers More Popular Today

In the past, many people thought it impossible to change careers during middle age, a period of life when ways are set and roots deeply planted.

But today—even in the tightest of job markets—more and more individuals decide they should change careers despite the risks involved.

Disgruntled workers of every age and occupation are deciding to start over again, this time with a job they like.

According to Fred L. Adair, associate professor of education who teaches a course on changing careers, the "great job switch" often involves drastic moves, both up and down the accepted social scale.

Adair cites as an example a doctor who left his practice to become a warehouse foreman, while a successful dentist decided he'd rather manage a small New England inn. Soldiers and typists are going back to school to become ministers and nurses, said Adair.

The changes aren't always successful, he admits. "Sometimes workers find after investigating other careers that their old job wasn't so bad after all," said Adair. "Others just don't have the talent or fortitude to do well in their second career."

Adair speaks with experience on the subject of switching careers. For 13 years he was an owner-manager of a hardware store. He decided at age 39 he wanted to be a college professor.

Adair sold his store and "invested" the money in himself. He sacrificed the luxuries of the country club set, his three cars and a truck, a boat and a seaside summer home in North Carolina to prepare for a new career. With his wife and four children in tow, he moved to Duke University and began study toward a doctorate.

Fortunately Adair had the enthusiastic support of his family, a critical ingredient in any successful career change. His wife and four children accepted a simpler lifestyle while both Mom and Dad went back to school.

For nearly five years the entire Adair family spent most of their days in class and their nights studying. In order to insure everyone got to class on time, each family member was allotted a specific time to use the bathroom.

"The fascinating thing is that all of this really brought us closer together," said Adair. "And today," he says, with understandable pride, "I'm happier than I've ever been."

What's the first thing an individual should ask when embarking on the sometimes rocky course of changing careers? Adair tells his students they should ask themselves what they would most enjoy doing. Sometimes the answer will represent what Adair describes as a "childhood fantasy."

One of his students was a clerical worker who said she had always wanted to be a dancer "ever since she was a little girl." Adair quickly pointed out the impracticality of the choice—the would-be dancer lacked the specialized training, the youthful stamina and the physical attributes required to be a professional dancer.

As part of his class, Adair administers a series of personality tests designed to tell an individual what fields would best match a particular set of character traits. A salesman, for instance, needs to be a dominating type of individual. An assembly line worker must like to deal with "things," while public relations specialists must like to deal with people. Adair himself took a similar test that recommended that he should "teach and counsel."

Fred Adair teaches course on changing careers.
