In the News

BOOK GIVEAWAY--The Special Programs Committee of Student Affairs is continuing its "Great Book Giveaway" project, collecting books and paperbacks of recreational literature for adolescents at Eastern State Hospital. Donations of novels, short stories, poems, mysteries and other works are welcome. Collection points are located at the Campus Center, Swem Library and the Campus Post Office. Donations will be accepted any time from now until the end of the academic year.

DANCE PROGRAM--The South Asia Society and the International Circle cordially invite the college community to attend a North Indian Classical Dance program Friday, April 29, at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Little Theater. Admission is free.

DISASTER SURVIVAL--A special National Disaster Survival Test will be broadcast on the NBC network to teach viewers how to survive disasters, at 8 p.m., Sunday, May 1. Particular emphasis will be on the prevention of accidents that occur within disasters. The director of the State Highway Safety Division has recommended the program to State employees to help reduce suffering and economic loss that could accompany a future disaster.

NEWS SCHEDULE--The News Office is initiating a cost saving program this summer in light of budgetary constraints affecting the College. The William and Mary News will be published only once during May and June. Summer publication dates are as follows: May 24, June 14, July 5, July 19, Aug. 2, Aug. 16, and Aug. 30. The regular weekly schedule will resume with the orientation issue, August 30.

NO NEWS? The William and Mary News is distributed to faculty and staff each week through campus mail and is mailed to the homes of all employees who request it. If your office or department needs more copies, or if you would like to receive a copy at home, please call the College News Office at Ext. 4331 or 4371, or stop in 309 Old Rogers Hall.

Alumnus Makes $1 Million Gift Commitment

A testamentary gift commitment estimated to be worth in excess of $1 million has been made by an alumnus who, though he attended William and Mary for only one year in the 1920's, has never lost his love for the College or the appreciation for the study of Virginia history to which it introduced him.

The commitment is the largest so far received toward the Campaign's goal of $19 million. The pledge brought the Campaign's total to $5,895,251 as of April 21.

In documents provided Campaign officials, the alumnus, who asked to remain anonymous, has indicated that he suggests, but does not require, that the College use his bequest "to expand and perpetuate the study of old Virginia history, customs, and manners."

Roy R. Charles, national chairman of the Campaign for the College, expressed his delight with the news. "It is," he said, "the largest commitment received to date toward the $19 million goal of the campaign, and as far as I know, presently represents the largest amount ever to be devised to William and Mary through the estate plans of an alumnus."

Other testamentary gift commitments are described in the current campaign for the College Report, published as an insert to the May issue of the Alumni Gazette.

TREE SHIRTS? Students took to the trees last week to model a few of the tee shirts that are fast becoming the hallmark of student residences. Dick Eason, (from left) a junior from Norfolk, is one of JBT's "fighting artichokes." Rosemary Harold, a freshman from Rockford, Ill., models Botetourt's 1234-1980 tee shirt. Taliaferro has a new shirt, worn by Linda Rives, a freshman from Arlington, that shows the uninitiated the correct pronunciation--it's "tol-i-ver." Freshman Don Bowen, Ho-HoKus, N.J., other residents of the third floor center of DuPont are "beat," a term Bowen defines as meaning "anything less than perfect." Freshmen Jean Bradley, Powhatan, and Claire Zarrilli, (at right) New Town Square, Pa., are part of Yates first north's "Ziggy World."

Science Fiction Writer Lectures May 2

Free tickets are now available at the ticket office of the Hampton Coliseum for the May 2 public lecture by Isaac Asimov, one of the most popular writers of science and science fiction.

Asimov is the final speaker in the current "Our Future in the Cosmos" lecture series sponsored jointly by the College and the NASA Langley Research Center.

Asimov will speak May 2 at the Hampton Coliseum at 8 p.m. on "The Moon as Threshold."

There is no admission charge for the lecture, but tickets are required. The box office at the Coliseum is open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Sundays from 1-6 p.m. Tickets will be available the evening of the lecture.

Early ticket requests were handled by the College's Office of Special Programs, and according to Director Carson Barnes, over 4500 have been distributed so far. Barnes said that tickets may be picked up at his office at VARC, 12070 Jefferson Avenue, Newport News, as well as at the Coliseum.

A showman as well as an intellectual, Asimov talks as exuberantly as he writes. He is expected to concentrate on changes which will take place in human society, describe what awaits mankind in the Space Age and how much such changes will affect society.

Isaac Asimov

Described as a "science prophet of his day," the Russian born associate professor of biochemistry at Boston University School of Medicine began selling magazine stories at the age of eighteen and published his first book when he was thirty. It has been estimated that his book list will number 200 by 1980.

Anonymous Donor Contributes To Music Department

The music department has received a gift of nearly $18,000 from an anonymous donor to purchase three grand pianos for the department.

The donor has requested that the pianos be used for student practice. Currently on order and selected by the piano teachers of the department, the grand pianos will replace the uprights currently in use in the Ewell Hall practice rooms. The uprights will be moved into faculty offices.

Debaters Score Round Of Successes

William and Mary debaters had "a fine year" said Patrick Micken in assessing the team's record this year.

Micken, associate professor of theatre and speech, coaches the team with the assistance of Susan McHugh.

While the team's win-loss record was a good one, Micken prefers to measure the team's success by other standards. "To me, a year is successful if the debaters have learned effective research techniques, if they have developed skills and can use them."

He cited Tom Glancy, a senior from Towson, Md., as one debater who had a particularly good year. Glancy had no high school experience in debate when he came to William and Mary and became only minimally familiar with debate during his freshman year. In the last three years, however, he has been able to develop the skills to become one of the best debaters on the East coast, said Micken.

A look at the record indicates that Glancy has not been alone in his success. Micken said the depth of the 1976-77 team was its strongest feature. In three tournaments held in a period of four weeks this spring, three different William and Mary teams advanced to the final rounds. At the U.S. Naval Academy invitational tournament at Annapolis, Evan Johnson and George Butts brought back to campus the winner's trophy. Mark Meyers and Lora Dunlap competed in the King's College tournament and advanced successfully through the elimination rounds, claiming second place after a loss in the final round. At the University of Pennsylvania Tom Glancy and Sharon Simon compiled a winning record in preliminary rounds and were not eliminated from competition until the final round.

Micken explained that the focus of debate at each tournament centers on a topic chosen by a national selection committee. All teams debate the same topic throughout the season. This year's topic was: Resolved that the federal government should significantly strengthen the guarantee of consumer product safety required of manufacturers. Within the broad category of "consumer product safety" individual debates focus on various specific problem areas.

At the conclusion of the season William and Mary competed in the qualifying tournament for the National Debate Tournament. Twenty-eight top teams in a six-state district competed for a chance to go to the National Debate Tournament. The team of Glancy and Simon emerged with an 8-8 record. Johnson and Butts were scheduled to compete but had to withdraw due to illness. Substituting for them, the team of Meyers and Dunlap was 7-9 for the tournament.

Library Receives Works For Blind

Swem Library has received a gift of braille books, tapes, a tape recorder, and text books from the W. Julian Garnett family of Suffolk. The gift is in memory of graduate student Stanford Garnett, who died March 22.

A blind student, Garnett graduated from the College last year, and was enrolled this fall in the Graduate School of Education.

The gift includes a dictionary, bible, cookbook, and a book on math and science notations, all in braille; cassettes of books from the Bible; various textbooks; and a tape recorder. Each will be affixed with plates in memory of Garnett.

The library works closely with the College's blind students in obtaining class materials. Reference Librarian Dörtha Skelton explained that the library orders as many of their books as possible through Recordings for the Blind, Inc., but that the company often does not have recordings for college-level texts. The Audio-Visual Department employs student assistants to read texts onto cassettes, services the blind students' tape recorders, and loans them college recorders when their own are out of commission.

Requisitions Due For Purchases Over $200

Budget Director Dennis Cogle has requested that all requisitions for purchases over $200 be submitted to the Purchasing Office by the end of April.

Cogle said the requisitions were needed by that time in order for the Purchasing Office to have adequate time in which to solicit bids and award purchase orders to insure delivery of goods and submission of invoices for payment prior to July 1 and the beginning of a new fiscal year.

Urgent purchases of day-to-day supplies, he said, will be processed through June 10.

Persons with questions regarding the procedures should contact Purchasing Director William T. Allen at Ext. 4215 or 4279.

INTERNSHIP--The Career Counseling Office, 209 James Blair Hall, has information on internships with New York Congresswoman Holtzman. The program emphasizes issue-oriented work, including legislative research and correspondence. For information, contact the Career Counseling Office.

HELP FOR JOB HUNTERS is available in the book, "Jobs '77: The College Edition," that was recently added to the Career Counseling Library in 209 James Blair Hall. Interested students are invited to stop by for information.

Coat Of Arms Among Gifts To College

During the past few months several interesting art objects have been donated to the College Collection.

Mrs. Kenneth Hurst-Brown of Williamsburg has given the College a framed coat of arms of the Merchant Taylor Guild of London, one of the original 13 guilds of the city.

Owned by her late husband's father, the coat of arms is painted on glass and mounted over linen.

An engraved portrait of John Calvin is the gift of Mrs. Page Bowie Claggett of Washington, D.C.

The engraving is believed to be the work of one of two Dutch artists, either Pieter Holsteyn the elder (1580-1662), or his son, Pieter Holsteyn the younger, (1614-1687).

A Senefu mortar from Mali, West Africa, has been given to the College Art Collection by Dr. Virginia Dixon of New York City, class of 1967, and is on exhibit in the African Room of the anthropology department, which houses the Harley Collection.

The mortar has carvings on the bowl and is only the second example of African sculpture in the College Art Collection. At present there are two other examples of African sculpture, two carved figures from Liberia, on loan to the African Room. These pieces were a gift to the College Collection from the late Dr. J.T. Baldwin.

The gift of a three-piece Sheffield silver plateau, made around 1800, has been made to the President's House. The plateau, which has a center mirror and two side mirrors, will be used for special entertaining as well as an exhibition piece.

The plateau is the gift of Mrs. E. E. Falk of Newport News.

Hotel Discounts Arranged For Employees On State Business

The State has reached agreements with several hotel and motel chains and with a car rental firm for discounts to State employees traveling on official business.

The lodging agreements, in effect until further notice, apply to Howard Johnson Motor Lodges, Quality Inns and Ramada Inns. State officials emphasized that use of the price agreements is optional, and State employees are not required to stay at hotels and motels operated by these companies but are encouraged to do so when there is a saving.

Howard Johnson's and the Ramada Inns require advance reservations. For Howard Johnson's, State employees must give the Commonwealth's corporate identification number,

C-149210. For Ramada Inns, callers must request a "RamadaRate: when making reservations and present a RamadaRate identification card when checking in.

Quality Inns require only that the traveler present identification at time of check-in which shows him or her to be a State employee.

National Car Rental has agreed to give reduced rates to State employees carrying special identification cards, available in William and Mary's Purchasing Office. All necessary information, including directories, identification cards and assistance in making reservations, are available in the College's Purchasing Office, 306-A James Blair Hall, Ext 4215 or 4279.

Paul Koehly, College's Internal Auditor, displays "C.I.A." card

Auditor Is Sleuth, Salesman, Consultant

His business card carries the designation "C.I.A."

He is as much a salesman and management consultant, however, as he is an investigator.

Paul Koehly is the College's "Certified Internal Auditor." He reviews financial transactions within the College--everything from ticket receipts at athletic events to grant funds administered by the College--to insure that proper procedures are being followed.

Koehly's approach in auditing College accounts, however, goes beyond what he terms the "traditional, green eye-shade" approach. Although he must spend a good deal of time in his office going over financial records, he also makes a point of getting out of his office and talking with people who manage various accounts.

While he wants to make certain that prescribed policies and procedures are being followed, Koehly also looks at the system being followed to see if it can be made more efficient and effective.

He cited as an example of his approach, an audit that included an evaluation of the student room key deposit system.

Under the current system, entering students must pay a deposit before

Registrations Up For Exeter Program

A record enrollment for William and Mary's annual summer school of law in England is indicated by preliminary registrations for this year.

Professor Emeric Fischer, director of the program held on the campus of the University of Exeter, has received more than 200 registrations. Fischer estimates that the final count will be at least 50 students higher than last year's record-high enrollment of 125 students.

The students come from more than 60 American law schools, including a number from the college's own Marshall-Wythe School of Law. Since the program was inaugurated in 1966, more than a thousand law students have enrolled in the courses in American, British and European law offered by William and Mary and Exeter law professors on the campus in southwest England.

they can obtain room keys. In order to be reimbursed for the deposit, a student must not only furnish the key but also a receipt certifying that he had paid for it originally.

"The green eye-shade auditor," Koehly said, "would just look at whether all the money was being deposited. But there are problems with the system itself," he said. Students frequently lose the receipts over the course of a year, residence hall life and business office staff would have to spend time searching for the receipt records, and the amount of money involved is relatively minor, he said.

To improve the system, Koehly suggested including the key deposit in the room damage deposit. The suggestion will be implemented in the fall, and Koehly expects that, in the long run, it will save time and effort for students and college staff alike.

When Koehly discovers a problem in either the procedures themselves or in the way they are being followed, one of his chief concerns is finding a workable solution. "The primary aim of an audit," he said, "is not so much past history as future. We want to make sure problems do not recur."

Since an auditor only has power to recommend changes, Koehly said part of the role of an auditor is to convince management of the need for change.

"The name of the game is to be able to work with your clients," he said. "You have to convince them that you can provide a service, and then you have to be able to fulfill that promise."

Although he works closely with the business affairs office at the College, Koehly has reported directly to President Graves since a reorganization in

Anti-War Activist To Speak

Noted anti-war activist and Harrisburg seven defendant, Elizabeth McAlister, will discuss civil disobedience as a response to the nuclear arms race on Wednesday, April 27, at 8 p.m. in the Little Theater at the Campus Center.

A former Catholic nun, McAlister became well-known during the Vietnam War when she and six others were accused by the FBI of conspiring to kidnap Henry Kissinger and blow up heating tunnels in Washington's federal buildings.

McAlister was released this month from Arlington County Jail, where she

ROTC Students Receive Honors At Awards Review Today

Students in Military Science classes will be honored in the ROTC Spring Awards Review at 4 p.m. this afternoon in the Sunken Gardens. Twenty-two cadets will receive awards recognizing their outstanding achievements in academic studies, Military Science studies and extracurricular participation. Members of the College community are invited to attend.

Micken, Fuchs Named Chairmen Of Departments

New chairmen have been appointed in two departments.

Patrick Micken has been appointed to a three year term as head of the theatre and speech department, effective July 1. He replaces Roger Sherman, who is retiring this spring.

Alan Fuchs, on leave this year as a Fellow at the National Humanities Institute, has been named chairman of the philosophy department for a one year term, while current department chairman William Cobb is on leave conducting research. Fuchs' term is effective September 1.

No changes have been made in other departments.

Rehnquist To Give Address At May 15 Commencement

More than a thousand students are expected to receive bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees at commencement exercises Sunday, May 15, at 2 p.m. in William and Mary Hall.

William H. Rehnquist, associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, is commencement speaker.

In a change from what has been customary in the past, this year's commencement program listing the order of the ceremony will not carry the names of graduates. Instead, a special booklet will be published following commencement, and graduates' names will be listed there. The booklet is also expected to contain photographs of the weekend's events and excerpts from the graduation address.

The booklet, which will be mailed to all May graduates of the College, will not only provide graduates and their parents with a more lasting memory of the ceremony but will also save the College well over $2,000 in printing costs.

Justice Rehnquist will receive an honorary degree from the College. Honorary degrees will also be presented to U.S. Senator Harry F. Byrd Jr.; Jefferson historian Dumas Malone; Clement E. Conger, U.S. State Department curator; and Jouett Shouse, founder of the Wolf Trap Foundation for the performing arts.

Commissioning exercises for ROTC students will be held Saturday, May 14, at 11 a.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. Principal speaker will be Major General Alton G. Post, commanding general and commandant, Transportation School, Fort Eustis.

Finn Chosen For NEH Seminar

Thomas M. Finn, chairman of the department of religion, has been accepted as a participant in a National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) Summer Seminar at Yale University. The topic of the seminar is "The Social World of Early Christianity."

Mr. Finn holds B.A. and M.A. degrees from St. Paul's College, Washington, D.C. and the doctorate from The Catholic University of America.

Harrison Visiting Professor of History Herbert Gutman is one of several leading scholars who will discuss "The Black Family" in the eleventh annual History Symposium of Rhode Island College, Providence. Gutman has long been interested in labor and working class history and for a number of years has researched the history of the black family under slavery and its aftermath.

David Thompson, David Kranbuehl, Pat Metzger and Robert Fay published an interpretative nuclear magnetic resonance experiment in the Journal of Chemical Education. Pat Metzger was a chemistry concentrator and is presently working on her Ph.D. at Carnegie Mellon University, and Robert Fay is a chemistry professor at Cornell University.

David Kranbuehl, George Tsahakis, Debbie Gibbs and Jean Takeuchi presented a paper entitled "Kinetic Studies of Polyimide Precursor Resins" at the Symposium on Stabilization and Degradation in Polymers of the national meeting of the American Chemical Society. Tsahakis is a senior chemistry major and Gibbs graduated with honors in chemistry last year and is enrolled in a Ph.D. program in chemistry at the University of Illinois.

At the annual meeting of the School and College conference on English, April 2, at Barnard College, Margaret W. Freeman spoke on the background, philosophy and present state of essay testing as part of the College Board English Composition Test. Freeman, of the English department, is chairman of the College Board English Composition Test Development Committee.

Scott Wayland, a sophomore from Satellite Beach, Fla., recently participated in the 1977 Southeastern Undergraduate Philosophy Conference at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. At the conference Wayland presented his paper, "Teleology and Humanity in Plato's Republic."

The paper was chosen by a faculty committee at the University of North Carolina. Undergraduates submitted papers to the committee, which invited the authors of the best papers to participate in the conference.

Wayland is an English and philosophy major.

Geology professors Stephen Clement and Bruce Goodwin presented a paper on "Metamorphic Zonation of the Eastern Piedmonts" at a meeting of the southeastern section of the Geological Society of America in Winston-Salem, N.C. Metamorphic zonation, which determines the geologic history of an area, indicates that the Piedmonts were once the center of the Appalachians. Much of the data for the presentation was obtained by William and Mary undergraduates in a continuing research program, and this is the first such study that has been done of the Piedmonts.

Anthropologist Stephen B. Brush will serve as a consultant to the Agency for International Development in establishing a program of crop insurance for small farmers in Latin America.

Leonard G. Schifrin, economics, has presented a number of lectures on the economics of health care this semester. On February 7 he spoke at Eastern Virginia Medical School on "Financing Health Care: National Health Insurance and the Medical Care Delivery System." On March 4 in

The Williamsburg Report

May 2-8

NORMAN FASHING

A biology professor, Fashing talks about one of the world's most misunderstood creatures--the insect. He says tiny insects are some of man's best friends and claims it was the insect, in fact, that actually defeated Cornwallis at Yorktown. Fashing discusses common myths about killer bees, trained flees, black widow spiders, and tarantulas. Finally, he talks about the ability of insects to develop characteristics that will enable them to survive any pesticide ever invented, or likely to be invented in the future.

May 9-15

HANS VON BAEYER

Dr. von Baeyer talks about a surprising new innovation in space exploration that could become a reality in just 10 years--cities in space. These cities will have all the comforts of home, including fresh air, farm animals, garden vegetables, sunshine, running streams and normal gravity. And we'll find most of the raw materials to build the city on our own moon! One city may cost billions of dollars to create, but von Baeyer says it may be well worth it.

TOM SAVAGE

A sophomore at the College who works as a guide at Colonial Williamsburg's 18th century jailhouse, Savage talks about the punishment for gossiping or sleeping in church--being thrown in the stocks where you'd be scorned and ridiculed by friend and foe alike. He also talks about the jail's most famous prisoners, Blackbeard's Pirates, and the most popular jailkeeper of the colonial period, Peter Pellam, who supposedly lived with his wife and 14 children in a single room adjacent to the jail!

May 23-29

ROBERT BLOOM

An education professor and an expert on disruptive children, Bloom discusses a growing problem in grade school classrooms--the use of four-letter words. Too often, teachers and parents react wildly or even violently when they hear a small child curse. But Bloom says this is probably just what the child wants. Instead, the adult should react calmly and thoughtfully, first considering the reasons why the child cursed rather than the four letter word itself.

May 30-June 5

GERALD JOHNSON

A professor of geology, Johnson goes back several million years in the earth's history to describe how Africa and America "traded" land and how people on the East coast may well be living on "African soil." He also discusses the age-old war between land and sea, and talks about popular myths concerning tidal waves, Noah's Ark and the sinking of California into the ocean. Who'll be the ultimate victor in the war between land and sea? Johnson says anyone who can't swim may be in trouble. Area radio stations that broadcast the "Williamsburg Report" are WMBC, Williamsburg (Sunday, 11:30 a.m.); WDDY, Gloucester (Saturday, 9:55 a.m.); and WYCS, Yorktown (Tuesday, 6 p.m.)

Atlanta he spoke to the Georgia chapter of the William and Mary alumni on "Health Care in America: Can Costs Be Controlled?" On March 16 he conducted a colloquium on "Distributive Justice in Medical Care: The Potential of National Health Insurance" in Charleston, S.C., at the National Consultation on Emerging Issues and Future Directions in Health Care, sponsored by the National Council of Churches of Christ. On March 30 in Columbus, Ohio, he addressed the annual Ohio Pharmaceutical Seminar on "Price Competition and the Pricing of Prescription Drugs." On April 1 he was the guest of the Department of Economics at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, where he lectured on "Issues in the Economics of Health Care" in the undergraduate course in Industrial Organization and discussed "The State of the Art in Health Services Research" in a graduate seminar.

Schifrin is also scheduled to present Grand Rounds at the Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago on May 25, on the topic of "A Paradigm for Efficiency in Health Care Delivery."

Anthropology Professor Mario D. Zamora is co-author of a book entitled Changing Identities in Modern Southeast Asia, D. Banks, ed. World Anthropology Series, Mouton: The Hague and Paris. His review of D. Liang's Philippine Parties and Politics was published in the February 1977 issue of Modern Asian Studies, Cambridge University, England.

Sociology professor Wayne Kernodle presided over meetings of the committee on nominations during the annual meeting of the Southern Sociological Society in Atlanta earlier this month.

At the Virginia Personnel and Guidance Association (VPGA) convention held in March in Blacksburg, Fred Adair of the School of Education was named president-elect. He will serve as president of the organization in 1978-79. Adair was also named most outstanding member of the Peninsula Personnel and Guidance Association in 1976-77.

Carl Dolmetsch, on leave from the English department this semester as Fulbright Visiting Professor at Friedrich-Alexander Universitat in Germany, gave guest lectures in several other European and African countries this month. He has spoken in France at the Universite de Bordeaux, the Universite de Nice and the Universite d'Aix-en-Provence; at an American Studies Conference for Tunisian university students in Hammamet, Tunisia; at the Universita di Pisa in Italy, and in Austria at the universities of Salzburg and Innsbruck.

William and Mary Hall Director Les Hooker has been elected vice president of the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame. Members were inducted and the state sports shrine's new quarters in downtown Portsmouth were dedicated during ceremonies held last week.

Roger W. Smith of the government department will be a visiting senior lecturer at the University of Glasgow, Scotland, next year. He will lecture on political theory in a senior honors course and on political thought during the period from ancient Greeks to Machiavelli in a political history course. Smith will also conduct tutorials in two courses.

Smith will serve as an external honors examiner next month at the University of Virginia, and his review of Ghita Ionescu's The Political Thought of Saint-Simon will be published in the September issue of the American Political Science Review.

Modern languages professor Vickie Babenko participated this month in the Symposium on Contemporary Slavic Literatures held at the University of North Carolina and Duke University. She presented a paper entitled "Ukrainian Poetry: A Mirror of Sociopolitical Forces."

"Administrative Corruption as a Political Issue in Venezuela" was the topic of a paper that Judith Ewell, history, presented at the annual meeting of the Rocky Mountain Council on Latin American Studies in Tucson, Ariz., April 7-9.

Ewell also presented the paper, "The Law of the Sea in the Caribbean," written in collaboration with C. Richard Bath of the University of Texas, El Paso, political science faculty, at the annual meeting of the Southwestern Social Science Association, earlier this month in Dallas.

Ewell's review of Gomez, El Amo del Poder by Domingo Alberto Rangel was published in the February issue of The Hispanic American Historical Review.

Eunice Belgum, William Cobb, James Harris, and Elizabeth Reed of the philosophy department attended the recent meeting of the Southern Society for Philosophy and Psychology in Nashville, Tenn. Harris served as chairman of a session on Philosophy of Language and Cobb presented a paper on "The Final Argument for Immortality in Plato's Phaedo," arguing that Plato made the argument fallacious intentionally.

Sarah V. Gray, periodicals librarian at Swem Library, has been appointed to the recipient selection committee of the Southeastern Library Association. The committee will choose a recipient for the SELA's Outstanding Author award, recognizing works of literary merit by authors in southeastern states, as well as winners for the association's biennial awards in fiction and non-fiction.

James R. Haltiner of the School of Business Administration conducted a number of sessions in a seminar on "Investment Risk Analysis" sponsored by the Institute of Chartered Financial Analysts earlier this spring in Charlottesville.

Portfolio managers and trust investment officers from banks and financial investment firms around the country attended. Haltiner and other session leaders focused on how capital market theory applies to practical investment decisions.

Donald Messmer, also of the School of Business Administration, spoke on "Measuring the Effect of an Experiential Exercise" at the fourth annual meeting of the Association for Business Simulation and Experiential Learning, April 13-15, in Wichita, Kansas. Messmer's paper was published in the proceedings of the meeting.

"On Flatness Relative to a Torsion Theory," a paper by Robert W. Miller of the mathematics department and Mark L. Teply of the University of Florida, has been accepted for publication in the Communications in Algebra journal.

Bruce McConachie of the theatre and speech department has been invited to speak at the American Theatre Association convention in Chicago this summer. He will present a paper entitled "Understanding Theatre History in the Context of Cultural Values," an approach which joins the methodological insights of theatrical and cultural history.

Documents librarian Sandra K. Peterson was elected recording secretary of the Public Documents Forum of Virginia at a recent organizational meeting of the group in Charlottesville.

President Thomas A. Graves has been elected to the Board of Directors of the Reynolds Metals Co., the international aluminum company based in Richmond.

The election took place at the company's annual meeting April 20. He is also a member of the Board of Directors of the Life Insurance Company of Virginia and the United Virginia Bank-Williamsburg.

Earlier in April, Graves was appointed to the Executive Committee of the Southern University Conference, an organization of university presidents in the Southern region.

Professor Craig Canning, history, served as a moderator on a panel entitled "Local Governmental Reforms of the Allied Occupation: Historical and Current Perspectives." The panel was part of a two-day conference in mid-April on "The Occupation of Japan: The Impact of Legal Reform," sponsored by the MacArthur Memorial Norfolk.

Economist David H. Finifter attended the Southern Regional Science Association meetings in Birmingham, Ala., April 14-15, where he was discussant for a paper entitled "Projecting Labor Supply and Demand by Occupation from a Regional Econometric Model."

President Graves called for leadership in support of higher education and in particular the values of a liberal education, in an address at the inauguration of William W. Kelly as president of Transylvania University in Lexington, Ky., April 25.

"We need leadership that is pro active, not reactive; that is on the offensive, not the defensive; that is creative and committed, and that will draw together an involved and articulate consensus, in support of the values of a liberal education," said Graves.

"There are not enough real leaders in higher education today," said Graves, "let alone leaders in the case of liberal education. The educational community needs such leadership."

Graves was formerly a member of the Board of Curators for Transylvania College and before joining the board served the college as a consultant on higher education.

Warren Heemann, vice president for college development, will meet with representatives from U.S. Steel, the National Association of College and University Business Officers (NACUBO) the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE), and development officers from several universities in San Francisco this week.

Participants will discuss the feasibility of CASE and NACUBO implementing a program to measure cost effectiveness in college fund raising programs.

The U.S. Steel Foundation, which underwrites the NACUBO Cost Reduction Incentive Awards and the U.S. Steel Alumni Giving Incentive Awards for CASE, is sponsoring the meeting.

With the assistance of graduate student in education Robert Teitelbaum, Heemann initiated a cost effectiveness study last year of William and Mary's development operation.

Author Terms Hemingway 'Charismatic'

A new book on Ernest Hemingway by Scott Donaldson, professor of English, takes a unique approach toward solving an enigma that has challenged writers for many years.

"By Force of Will--The Life and Art of Hemingway," is a character study which attempts to understand what the man was like through an examination of everything he wrote and everything that was written about him.

Donaldson explores Hemingway's attitudes toward love, death, money, sports, religion, friendship and his lifetime obsession with mastery.

Publisher's Weekly says Donaldson's work provides a "fascinating assessment" of the man and is a "fair-minded book," though one that is "sure to raise a lot of hackles among the cultists."

For Donaldson, the publication of the book last week by Viking Press is the culmination of 25 years of interest, dating back to a senior thesis at Yale, and of five years of labor on the manuscript.

The saddest part of the book, said Donaldson, deals with friendship. Hemingway had a great gift for making friends, along with a compulsion to break off relationships, often nastily. He did amazing things in print, in books and magazines, to such friends as Dos Passos and Fitzgerald--sometimes openly and sometimes thinly obscured. "I do not know why he was driven to behave so badly. It may have been a repudiation of debts, an attempt to separate himself from the world of competition, a reluctance to get close, or a fear of getting hurt going back to his unhappy relationships with his parents," said Donaldson.

Hemingway certainly had magnetism, said Donaldson, who characterized him as charismatic. "Archibald MacLeish says he's known only two people who could 'empty the air in a room'--one was Franklin Roosevelt and the other was Hemingway. And his first wife Hadley, talking about the early days of their marriage in Paris, recalls that men, women, children, dogs--everyone found him irresistible."

"If there is a key to his personality, the drive for mastery seems to be it," said Donaldson. "Mastery not only as a writer but in everything else he tried. He played the expert on wines, bull-fighting, lovemaking, politics, war, painting, boxing; he even devised his own highly fallible roulette systems in an attempt to gain mastery of gambling. He had to prove his worth, and of course he was worth a good deal. But he set standards for himself no one could live up to." Hemingway's mastery of the craft of writing, he said, ranks as one of the major achievements of the 20th century.

In the introduction to his book, Donaldson writes that he has "set out to discover and record what Ernest Hemingway thought on a variety of subjects. . . and then, "from these disparate fragments, to construct a mosaic of his mind and personality of the sort of man he was."

His search for that pattern took Donaldson from the Firestone Library at Princeton, where there is a collection of Hemingway letters, to the Library of Congress, to the Humanities Research Center at the University of Texas in Austin and to several other research libraries.

Donaldson interviewed a number of people in connection with his research, including Malcolm Cowley, Carlos Baker, Donald Ogden Stewart and Mary Hemingway, the writer's widow.

He also cites in his acknowledgments insights supplied by graduate students in his seminars both at William and Mary and at the University of Leeds in England, where he spent 1973-74 as a Bruern scholar.

The College supported his research with grants through one summer and one semester. The American Philosophical Society also contributed toward a summer's research.

Personnel Bulletin

Blue Cross-Blue Shield State Health Insurance Plan

May is enrollment month for our State Health Insurance Plan. All eligible employees are advised that May is the only month for signing up to change coverage or to buy coverage if they previously chose not to participate in the plan. Enrollment information is available in the Payroll Office for permanent State employees.

Each permanent State employee will be furnished a copy of a letter from Mr. John W. Garber, Director of Personnel, advising that the premium rates will be increased effective July 1, 1977. These new rates will be deducted from employee pay checks beginning in June to cover the increased premiums effective July 1, 1977.

Any questions concerning the State Health Insurance Plan should be directed to the Payroll Office.

MDTS Course Offerings

The Management Development Training Service of the Commonwealth has announced the following courses, in addition to those described in the April 12 issue of the William and Mary News. Interested employees should submit requests in writing through the head of their department to the College Personnel Office. All costs must be born by the employing department. Tuition for each course is $30, with lunch provided; courses will be held in Richmond.

"Fundamentals for Potential Supervisors" will be held May 9-11 (deadline May 2) and repeated June 20-22 (deadline May 13).

"Fundamentals for Supervisors" is being offered June 13-15, (deadline, June 6).

Staff News

Sam Baker has been named director of athletic promotions at the College.

A graduate of Madison College, Baker received his master's degree in athletic administration at Ohio University. To satisfy degree requirements, Baker has worked as an intern for the past nine months in the College's athletic department, assisting Sports Information Director Bob Sheeran and Athletic Business Manager Ed Derringer.

In other staff news, Pamela Warren, English department secretary, made the dean's academic honors list at Christopher Newport College for the fall semester. Warren is a full-time student taking evening courses at CNC. She is majoring in sociology and social work.

Willis Praises Students For Outstanding Achievements

"I have no patience with those who stereotype the academic world as an ivory tower," English professor Jack Willis told an audience of students, parents and members of the College community at the Spring Honors Convocation, April 19, in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

"They can not possibly understand the business we are about, nor the virtues we respect and honor," said Willis.

"No image of a tower, not even a William and Mary green and gold one, adequately suggests the involvement with others, the submersion in the reality of complex experience which we cherish," he said.

"The virtues I think most praiseworthy here," Willis said, "are those of self-integrity and morality, coupled with generosity and humanity. It is the giving of the self, the involvement with others beyond the limits of self-interest which I most admire, and which I believe is what we truly honor at this convocation," he said.

Initiates of several honor societies were presented and individual students were singled out for their outstanding achievements in scholarship, leadership, journalism and athletic ability.

James C. Livingston, dean of the undergraduate program, presided, and President Thomas A. Graves Jr. congratulated award winners in closing remarks.

Scholarship Awards

Presentation of the Alpha Lambda Delta women's national honor society and Phi Eta Sigma men's national honor society awards opened the ceremonies. The Alpha Lambda Delta Book Award is given to the senior woman who has compiled the highest cumulative grade point average during her four years at the College. This year's recipient was Lisa Ann Williams of Pittsburgh, Pa. The presentation was made by Ginny L. Bumgardner, society president.

Paul D. Reilly of Westfield, N.J., and Graham John Tancill of Rockville, Md., tied for the Phi Eta Sigma Award, which is presented annually to the sophomore man with the highest quality grade point average for his first three semesters at William and Mary. R. Bruce McFarlin, society president, made the award.

Journalism Award

The Kays Gary-Charles McDowell Jr. award for excellence in journalism was presented to Ann Taylor Ruble, a senior from Roanoke and arts editor of the Flat Hat. The award honors Kays Gary, a columnist for the Charlotte Observer, and Charles McDowell, Washington columnist for the Richmond Times-Dispatch. It was presented to Ruble by English professor David Jenkins, chairman of the Colonial Booklet Fund.

Media Heads Named

Kevin A. Rossiter, chairman of the Publications Council, announced the names of the editors-in-chief for student publications and of the campus radio station manager. They are William Patrick Hayden, Rochester, N.Y., Flat Hat; Rita Marie Soler, Hampton, Colonial Echo; Mark William Musch, Richmond, William and Mary Review; Cynthia Karen Baskett, Virginia Beach, The Colonial Lawyer; Brian Langford Buckley, Vienna, Amicus Curiae; and Don G. Wilson Jr., Brewster, N.Y., station manager of WCWM.

Athletic Awards

The Athletic Educational Foundation Award recognizes outstanding intercollegiate athletes. Three awards were presented this year, to Jeff Hosmer of Pittsburgh, Pa., Ginny Ramsey of Phoenixville, Pa., and Bryan Rogers of Arlington. Hosmer has been co-captain of the football team, head of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and recipient of the James G. Driver award for the senior football player with the highest grade point average.

Ramsey is a college all-star in field hockey and lacrosse, was selected for the U.S. lacrosse squad, and has twice played on a field hockey team that competed in the national tournament.

Rogers is a champion wrestler, a member of the football team and has participated in many intramural sports.

Gil Granger, foundation vice president for the Williamsburg area, presented the awards.

The L. Tucker Jones award for outstanding intramural athletes was given to Sam Howard of Fork Union, Va., and Michele Zimmer of Rosemont, Pa. Howard has played on intramural basketball, football and softball teams and was a member of the Lambda Chi team which won the fraternity basketball championship for three straight years.

A junior, Zimmer has been active in intramural sports during her entire three years at the College. As a freshman she represented her residence hall on the Intramural Board and participated in all ten IM sports. By the end of her sophomore year she had compiled 300 points for IM participation, a record for sophomore women. She has been vice president and is currently president of the Women's Recreation Association.

Physical Education instructors M. Joy Archer and Edward E. Jones made the presentations. The prize is supported by the L. Tucker Jones Memorial Fund.

Mortar Board

Karen A. Yanity, president of Mortar Board women's honorary society, announced Brooke Tribble of Dunnsville, Va. as recipient of the outstanding sophomore award and gave special recognition to several seniors for their exceptional contributions to the College and community.

Tribble is a member of the honor council, of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, has been chosen a resident advisor for 1977-78 and will serve next year as student chairman of parents' weekend.

Named outstanding seniors were Allen Allison, Suffolk, who has been active in Circle K; Laurie Bond, West Hartford, Conn., president of the Student Association; Jeff Hosmer, Pittsburgh, co-captain of the football team and president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Greg Johnson, Virginia Beach, drum major for the college band, music composer and head of tutoring for Circle K; and Maggie Kneip, Philadelphia, president of Orchestis.

Also, Sharon Peake, Rochester, N.Y., a member of the choir and actor in Sinfonicron and William and Mary Theatre productions; Doug Pearson, Perisburg, a varsity football player and president of Sigma Nu fraternity; Maggie Rollins, Rockville, Va., senior class president; Sue Romaine, Bricktown, N.J., station manager of WCWM; Dave Smith, Arlington, vice president of the senior class; and Bob Thompson, Downingtown, Pa., president of the Inter Fraternity Council.

Omicron Delta Kappa

Peter H. Garland, president of Omicron Delta Kappa presented the J. Wilfred Lambert Leadership Award to Steven Bradley Willett, a sophomore from Fairfax.

Chuck Kelly, a freshman from Salem, N.H., checks phone numbers while Mark Eversole, a freshman from Hampton, "dials for dollars" in the College's fourth annual phonathon. Under the direction of Leonard Meyer, director for annual giving (standing), 40 students telephoned hundreds of William and Mary parents across the country last week in an effort to collect $20,000 for the Campaign for the College. The Parents' Fund supports faculty and student research, instructional materials, student financial assistance and cultural enrichment programs.

Peter N. Holloway

Drama Scholarship Awarded To Peter Holloway

Peter Nelson Holloway has been awarded the Prentice Hill Dramatic Scholarship.

A senior from Harrington Park, N.J., Holloway is a theatre concentrator. He has acted and provided technical assistance in many William and Mary Theatre productions. This year he played leading roles in three productions -- as Sky Masterson in "Guys and Dolls," as Edmund in "King Lear" and as Strepsiad in "The Clouds."

The scholarship was established by Mrs. Anna Belle Koenig Nimmo, an alumnus of the College, in memory of Prentice Hill. Hill came to the College in 1941 as an instructor in fine arts and quickly became one of the most accomplished designers in The Theatre's history.

The scholarship is awarded annually for devotion and talent in connection with the activities of the William and Mary Theatre.

Allen Receives NSF Fellowship

Stephen Allen, a senior majoring in economics and mathematics, has been awarded a three year National Science Foundation Fellowship for graduate study in economics. He will pursue his studies at Harvard.

Exchange Programs Students Chosen

William and Mary students will participate in three exchange programs with British universities and in one program with a German university next year.

The School of Education has initiated the newest of the British university

Hegeman Selected For Internship

Peter R. Hegeman has been accepted for the 1977 Magazine Internship Program sponsored by the American Society of Magazine Editors (ASME).

Hegeman will spend ten weeks this summer in New York City, learning to edit a magazine by working in various departments of two magazines. He will also meet weekly with magazine editors, executives and writers as well as the other interns, for informal discussions on magazine publishing.

Hegeman is a junior from Belair, Md. An English major, he has worked on the Flat Hat staff since his freshman year and has served as both news editor and contributing editor.

He was awarded the Kays Gary-Charles McDowell award of the College last year for excellence in journalism and last fall received first place in a feature competition sponsored by the Society of Collegiate Journalists.

exchange programs with Rolle College in Exmouth, England. Professor of Education Paul Unger, who is coordinating the program, said three education majors have been selected to spend the fall term of their junior year at Rolle College, John Underhill of Alexandria, Kim Edmiston of Martinsville and Karen Kraus of Arlington. Rolle College, Unger said, is a teacher training college, and its program is particularly oriented toward courses for elementary teachers. Students will have an opportunity to observe first hand the "open school" concept in action, a concept which Britain pioneered.

Gail M. Geddis of Pittsburgh, Pa., has been selected for the University of Exeter Exchange Scholarship. Geddis is a senior history major.

Scott P. Wayland, a sophomore from Satellite Beach, Fla., is the recipient of the St. Andrews Exchange Scholarship and will study next year at St. Andrews University in Scotland.

Two students have been accepted for the exchange program with the University of Muenster in Germany for the academic year.

Grace Springate has been selected recipient of the Muenster scholarship, which covers all major expenses for the year abroad. A sophomore from Baltimore, Md., Springate is majoring in German and Theatre.

Alice Stiff, a sophomore from Vienna, Va., will also participate in the exchange program. She is majoring in psychology.

The names of British and German students who will be attending William and Mary are not yet available.

The deadline for submitting advertisements is 4 p.m. on the Wednesday preceding publication. For a $2 fee, each ad is run in three consecutive issues. Payment must be received before the ad can be printed.

Individual advertisements should be limited to not more than 40 words. Advertisements for non-commercial announcements of goods, rentals, and real estate, either offered or sought, and for lost and found items will be accepted.

Advertisements for profit-making business ventures, such as guitar lessons and babysitting services, can not be accepted. There is no charge for listing found items.
