In the News

WASHINGTON JOURNALISTS RECEIVE COLLEGIATE AWARD

Two Washington-based journalists who helped launch a Journalist in Residence program here have been honored by the Society for College Journalists.

Roger Mudd of CBS News and Charles McDowell, Washington Correspondent for the Richmond Times-Dispatch, have been presented the William and Mary Heritage Award for Excellence in Journalism by the College's Chapter of SCJ.

The award given to Mudd for his contributions of broadcast journalism cites his devotion to his profession which has made his work a "hallmark of good writing and sound judgement." McDowell, who was principal speaker at the Society's annual publications banquet this spring following his stay on campus, was presented the award in recognition of his journalistic wit, candor and "his outstanding contributions to the field of journalism and mass communications."

FIRST ATKESON LECTURER NAMED AT MARSHALL-WYTHE

A former assistant to the attorney general will teach a course next spring as part of the evening tax program at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Meyer Rothwacks, a long time division chief for the department of justice, has been named the first Thomas C. Atkeson lecturer in law. Rothwacks will commute from Washington, D.C. to teach a course in fraud and criminal tax prosecutions. The course is one of four being offered next year in Marshall-Wythe's graduate tax program for practicing lawyers and accountants.

Rothwacks brings a special expertise to the study of criminal tax procedures. Before retiring in 1975, he served as chief of the appellate section of the justice department's tax division and supervised 53 attorneys handling the appeals of civil and criminal tax cases throughout the United States.

The guest lectureship was established in honor of the founder of Marshall-Wythe's law and taxation degree program, Thomas C. Atkeson, who was appointed professor of taxation at the College in 1954 and directed 13 annual tax conferences. He retired as chancellor professor of taxation, emeritus, in 1968.

Summer School Has Come A Long Way

June 19 - August 12, 1977, Tuition $10.
Room and Board $12.50 per month.
For men only.

As the Summer School opens today, the pale shadow of its first session in 1912 seems to evoke the commercial catch phrase--"You've Come a Long Way Baby."

The first summer school held by William and Mary wasn't even taught on campus.

To give students the most conducive atmosphere to study, lessons were held in Dublin, Va., in Pulaski County. While Williamsburg was described as a "most delightful place for work during the regular college session," school authorities felt the cool, invigorating climate of the mountains would be advantageous to both faculty and students. Tents were available for those who wanted to take full advantage of the salubrious location. A total of 50 registered.

The 1912 catalog listed one, two or at the most four courses in English, zoology, philosophy, education, physics, Latin, history, German, French, mathematics and athletics and physical training. It was also noted that men who attended would be taught entirely by men, they would be in classes with none but men and would find work generally organized for men.

Times have changed.

Summer Session 1977 in Williamsburg is expected to attract more than a thousand students. There will be two sessions, June 13 - July 15 and July 18 to August 19.

Over 250 courses will be offered to men and women, taught by men and women, and including a wide range of topics from planting and sculpture to marine geology, computer science and education law.

Students will register on the first day of each session. There will be no Saturday classes this year. Senior citizens who wish to take advantage of fee waiver privileges for attending courses are invited to contact the Office of Admissions for full details.

For the first time this year, an out-of-state tuition rate will be instituted. In the past there has been no difference in the rate charged Virginians and students from other states. Paul N. Clem, director of Summer Sessions, estimates that between 30 and 35 percent of summer school students come from outside of Virginia. He said it is too early to assess what effect the revised rate structure will have on enrollment.

The Summer session at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law begins June 6 and continues until July 15. The law school also offers a summer law school in England at the University of Exeter, which this year has received its largest number of applicants.

Besides the major summer school sessions, the Williamsburg campus will also be host to a number of special groups.

One of the largest groups meeting on campus this summer will be the

The Paul Taylor Dance Company will spend three days on campus next February as part of the 1977-78 Concert Series.

Series Features Dancers In Residence

A three day residency by the Paul Taylor Dance Company will highlight the 1977-78 Concert Series.

The company, termed "one of the most exciting, innovative and delightful dance companies in the entire world" by New York Times critic Clive Barnes, will perform February 2 at Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Under the Dance Touring Program of the National Endowment for the Arts, the company will also conduct a master class for William and Mary students and give lecture-demonstrations which will be open to the public.

The 1977-78 Concert Series will include performances by virtuoso pianist Misha Dichter, the Cleveland Quartet, Orpheus Ensemble, Canadian Brass Ensemble and soprano Jessye Norman, in addition to the dance program. All performances are held in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Season tickets may be reserved by writing to "Concert Series," College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, 23186, or calling 253-4235 or 253-4557. Tickets for the six performances are $15 for the general public and $10 for William and Mary students, faculty and staff.

Concert Series director Kenneth Smith pointed out that seating in Phi Beta Kappa Hall is limited to 805. Preference in reserving season tickets will be given to previous subscribers until August 1. The series has been sold out during the past three seasons, he said, and single performance tickets are available on a limited basis only.

Season ticket holders will also be eligible for a reduced rate for a special concert, January 19, by the New Orleans Ragtime Orchestra. Individual general admission tickets will be $4; season ticket holders may purchase tickets for $2 each.

The special concert is being tried on an experimental basis, Smith said, to offer concertgoers greater diversity of music. "Ragtime music," he said, "is something many have asked about. Because of limited funds, however, we haven't been able to offer it as part of the regular concert series."

The series opens September 22 with master pianist Misha Dichter. Since winning the silver medal of the renowned Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow in 1966, the 30-year old virtuoso has established himself as one of America's leading young artists.

The Cleveland Quartet will appear in the Concert Series on October 18.

Their first recording of the complete Brahms String Quartets received a Grammy nomination and Best of the Year awards from Time Magazine and Stereo Review.

Four performances in 1978 round out the season. The Paul Taylor Dance Company, which performs February 2, has represented the United States in the arts festivals of 35 different countries as well as danced in over 200 cities in the United States.

Since the company was formed in 1955, Paul Taylor has choreographed over 70 dances. Taylor was named "Dancer of the Year" by London's Dance and Dancers Magazine in 1965. He has received the Festival of Nations' International Award for Choreography and twice was the recipient of the Guggenheim Fellowship for Choreography. In 1967 he was honored by the

Kelly Heads Campaign Committee

Newport News attorney Herbert V. Kelly has been named to head one of the major committees of the $19 million fund raising campaign.

Kelly will head the 17-member leadership gifts committee for the three-year Campaign for the College, which was launched last May to provide more student financial aid, support faculty professional development and fund enrichment of the academic programs throughout the College.

Roy R. Charles of Norfolk, a member of the class of 1932, is national chairman for the Campaign.

In announcing Kelly's appointment, Charles noted that the leadership gifts committee will play an important role in the second phase of the Campaign. In the year ahead campaign leaders will concentrate on specific prospects throughout the country which have been identified as capable of making major gifts to the College.

Kelly, a member of the class of 1941, received his law degree from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law in 1943. He has been actively involved in the affairs of the College for many years and last year was appointed by Governor Mills E. Godwin Jr. to serve on the Board of Visitors. Cylindrical forms of all sizes are on display at Andrews Gallery in a new exhibit of pottery by Barbara Diduk.

Alumna's Pottery Exhibit Opens Today At Andrews

An exhibit of pottery by Barbara Ann Diduk opens today in the Gallery of Andrews Hall of Fine Arts and will be on display through July 8.

A 1973 graduate of the College of William and Mary, Diduk is currently completing her Master of Fine Arts degree at the University of Minnesota. She also holds a vocational diploma in ceramics from the West Surrey College of Art and Design, Farnham, England. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Roy Diduk of Williamsburg.

The exhibit is primarily salt glazed works, although several glazed and porcelain wares are also included.

Most of the works on exhibit are cylindrical or variations of cylinders. Many are asymmetrical. Although people are conditioned to like symmetry, Diduk said, she has deliberately introduced asymmetry into her works to achieve a feeling of fluidity. "I wanted to get forms that are casual but still communicate an idea," she said.

Ms. Diduk considers herself a functional potter. "I want to make things that people can use," she explains, "but also things that are pleasing to look at."

Diduk has exhibited throughout the Minneapolis-St. Paul area and has taught introductory ceramics classes for the University of Minnesota Union and for the University's Extension School.

Gallery hours for the exhibit, through July 8, are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Ford Executive Elected To Sponsors Board

William P. Benton of Dearborn, Mich., corporate vice president and general manager of the Ford Division of Ford Motor Company, has been elected to the board of directors for the School of Business Administration Sponsors, Inc.

The School of Business Administration Sponsors was formed in 1969 to expand and strengthen the relationship between the School and the business community. Since then, the role of the sponsors organization has grown to include providing financial support for faculty, research, scholarship assistance for graduate students, and increased faculty and student participation in special conferences and seminars.

A native of Laurinburg, N.C., Benton attended the University of North Carolina and joined Ford Motor Company as a sales trainee in 1947.

In 1970, he joined Lincoln-Mercury as general marketing manager. He was named general sales manager of the division in December, 1970, and five months later was elected vice president for marketing.

Last year Benton presented the first Anheuser-Busch Lecture on the free enterprise system at the College.

These purchase orders will be carried forward into the 1977-78 fiscal year and will be encumbered against your 1977-78 budget. Therefore, unless we are advised otherwise by you, all departmental purchase orders outstanding as of June 30, 1977 will be listed in our reply.

Please check your records and advise us no later than July 6, 1977 of any orders which might be cancelled or reduced in scope.

Mini-courses For Employees Being Offered This Summer

A series of mini-courses designed especially for William and Mary staff members will be launched on an experimental basis this summer.

Although a final listing of courses has not been completed, a number of faculty and staff members have already volunteered to teach mini-courses ranging from assertiveness training workshops to geology field trips.

English department secretary Pam Warren, who is coordinating the courses with Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences Jack Edwards, said more than 45 staff members have responded to a questionnaire distributed earlier this month to determine what courses employees would be interested in taking.

The courses are being offered with the approval of President Thomas A. Graves Jr. and the cooperation of the College Personnel Office.

Warren said most courses will be offered on a one-time-only basis and will last for two hours. Classes will generally be held from 4-6 p.m., with some evening classes scheduled. President Graves has given his approval for classified employees to attend the afternoon sessions without taking leave time, provided normal office services can be maintained.

Staff members surveyed requested mini-courses in first aid, crafts, photography, houseplants, basic grammar and office procedures, auto mechanics, child psychology for parents, and a variety of other topics.

Warren said she is still looking for course suggestions as well as for both faculty and staff volunteers to teach the mini-sessions. She can be reached at the English department, 110F Old Rogers Hall, Ext. 4370.

Judging by the responses to the preliminary questionnaire, Warren said, "people are interested in such a wide range of subjects, that if a person wants to teach something, there is probably someone interested in taking the course."

Warren says she hopes arrangements for the courses will be completed by June 30, and she plans to circulate a list of course offerings to all staff. Interested faculty members are also welcome to take the courses, she said.

Will the courses be continued in the fall?

"We've only proposed it for the summer," Warren says. "It all depends on the support it gets during the next two months."

Band School Marks Silver Anniversary

Despite the lure of surf and sand, baseball, swimming pools, and other summer diversions, young musicians from all over the state have been coming to Williamsburg for the past 25 years to go back to school.

The Summer Band School at William and Mary, a pioneer in the field when it began, marks its silver anniversary this year.

Designed to provide students in junior and senior high school bands with intensive training under master teachers, the school offers specialized instruction in every type of instrument. It is an opportunity for band members to sharpen their skills and learn new music from top music teachers.

The Band School invites baton twirlers and drum majors to classes that provide instruction in new routines and stress techniques and skills.

One of the traditional features of the Summer Band School is a series of outdoor concerts which are offered free of charge to the public and always draw appreciative audiences.

The concerts are performed in front of the Wren Building, and the stirring strains of a Sousa march never fail to draw a crowd.

The Summer Band School is divided into two sessions. The first, June 19 to July 2, is open to senior high school students, while the second session, July 3 to July 16, is for junior high school students.

The man in charge of the Summer Band School is Charles Varner, band director for the William and Mary band and a member of the music department faculty.

Surplus Property Sale

Over 130 miscellaneous vehicles and equipment items are listed on the latest surplus property sale notice from the State Department of Purchases and Supply. The sale is "as is and where is" without warranty. Bids will be opened June 14 at 2 p.m. Successful bidders will be required to remit within ten calendar days and remove property within 20 calendar days from the day of notice of award.

The 1970 Virginia Conflict of Interest Act prohibits any employee, spouse or relatives residing in the employee's household, to purchase property belonging to the agency by which the person is employed.

A schedule of items on sale, including several from the College is available in the Purchasing Office, the College News Office and the Plant Office.

Shamrock To Take Over Food Service Operation

The contract for operating the College's food service programs has been awarded to Shamrock System of Atlanta, Ga., effective with the beginning of the 1977-78 academic year.

Shamrock was chosen as the result of a year-long study of the College's food services by a committee of students, faculty and administrative staff. The 12-member food services committee, under the chairmanship of Associate Dean Carolyn Moseley, was established to evaluate food services on campus and to make recommendations for the operation of the services.

Shamrock System will replace the Crotty-Szabo firm which has been operating on campus since 1948.

William J. Carter, Vice President for Business Affairs, said that the contract with Shamrock includes stringent specifications to insure good quality in the student food services with minimal cost increases. Under the new contract the board fee will be $30 a year per student less than the fee authorized by the Board of Visitors in March.

Students will pay $387 per semester for a full 20-meal plan next year, compared to $383 per semester this year, an increase of slightly more than one percent. The previously announced board fee authorized by the Board of Visitors was $402 per semester, an increase of about 5%.

Carter said he was certain that students and parents would be pleased to learn that it would not be necessary to increase the board fee to the previously authorized level. He also thanked Dean Moseley and the committee "for conducting the evaluation and representing the College and making the recommendations in a very thorough, objective and professional manner." The Food Service Committee is expected to continue its evaluation role and will work closely with David G. Healy, director of auxiliary enterprises, to insure a smooth transition as Shamrock System assumes its duties in mid-August.

Nine companies, including Crotty-Szabo, were invited to submit proposals for operation of the food service program.

Sub-contracting Bids Opened For Construction at Ash Lawn

Work is expected to begin by June 15 on the new gift shop and rest room facilities and parking lot which the College will build at Ash Lawn in Charlottesville to accommodate the increasing number of visitors there.

Sub-contracting bids were opened June 1 in Charlottesville.

The College received Ash Lawn, the former home of President James Monroe, in a bequest from Jay W. Johns of Charlottesville at his death in December 1974. It is open daily to the public and has attracted increasing numbers of visitors since the College's interpretive program began in April 1975. Mrs. Carolyn Holmes is resident manager.

With a budget of $75,000, the College will erect a gift shop and rest room facility connected by an arcade, a brick forecourt which will serve as a reception area for visitors and a 70 vehicle parking lot.

Architect for the project is the firm of Grigg, Wood and Brown of Charlottesville. Funds for the project are coming from the operating budget of Ash Lawn.

The Charlottesville firm of W. E. Brown was apparent low bidder for electrical work, $5,473; mechanical, $1,492; and plumbing, $5,000. Apparent low bidder for roofing was Cedar Roofs of Richmond, $2,800. Apparent low bidder on the septic system was Gilliam Alvis of Charlottesville, and for the parking lot, Rock and Raines of Orange, Va., $17,661.

All sub-contracting bids will be sent to the Governor's office for review and approval.

Target date for the completion of the work is October 15. The parking lot will be built first. The two new buildings will be erected on the edge of the existing parking lot, where the gift shop is currently located.

Ragtime Music, Dance, Part Of Concert Series

Capezio Dance Award.

One of America's foremost chamber ensembles, the Orpheus Ensemble, is scheduled for February 7. To encourage the 24 members to participate directly in making artistic decisions, Orpheus rehearses and performs without a conductor, and members rotate in the first-chair positions.

Critics have praised the ensemble's performances for their "enviable spirit of spontaneity and dedication" and for "an enthusiasm that is hard to resist."

On March 17, members of the Canadian Brass Ensemble will perform on trumpets, French horn, trombone and tuba. From Renaissance to Ragtime, the Canadian Brass play a wide range of original music for brass as well as arrangements of Scott Joplin rags and Bach fugues and fantasies.

A concert by soprano Jessye Norman on April 18 will conclude the 1977-78 Concert Series. Since winning the first prize at the Bavarian Radio Corporation International Music Competition in 1968 in Munich, Germany, Norman has appeared throughout Europe, South America and the United States. She has given several recitals in the Great Performers series at Lincoln Center, N.Y., and has given concerts with orchestras ranging from the London Symphony and the Concertgebouw Orchestra in Amsterdam to the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and New York Philharmonic.

The special concert by the New Orleans Ragtime Orchestra will be given January 19, 1978. The repertoire of the seven-piece group includes not only "classic rag" numbers but also marches, cakewalks, waltzes, blues and other New Orleans jazz numbers with elements of ragtime.
