COLLEGE SENDS JUBILEE GREETINGS

As the first American college to receive a royal charter, the College has sent greetings to Queen Elizabeth II of England in honor of her Silver Jubilee, 1952-1977.

The charter of February 8, 1693, was granted by King William III and Queen Mary II. Funds for the new college were provided from quitrents in Virginia, a penny tax on every pound of tobacco exported from Maryland and Virginia to countries other than England, the profits from the surveyor general's office and 10,000 acres each in the Pamunkey Neck and on Blackwater Swamp.

By a resolution from the Board of Visitors, the College sent Queen Elizabeth "its sincere good wishes for her continued good fortune in the years ahead, as she continues her exemplary reign of dedication and devotion to the people of Great Britain and the Commonwealth of Nations."

The College's greetings will be conveyed to Queen Elizabeth by the Lord Bishop of London, successor to the College's first Chancellor.

DRUG EDUCATION INSTITUTE SLATED

The School of Education will sponsor the fifth annual Drug Education Institute on campus, July 20-22, directed by Robert Maidment.

John F. Lavach, Kevin E. Geoffroy, William F. Losito and Robert Bloom of the School of Education will be among guest speakers at the three-day program designed for teachers, counselors, administrators and parents.

Keynote speaker for the Institute will be Dr. A. Morton Casson, director, Division of Substance Abuse, Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, Richmond, who will speak on "The Drug Problem in Perspective," Monday afternoon, July 20.

In addition to the guest speakers from the College and the Tidewater region, the Institute will include panel discussions and films. Sessions will focus on the psychological aspects of substance abuse, early warning signs, prevention, and counseling, as well as on various approaches to reduce drug dependence among school-age populations.

The drug institute may be taken as a one hour credit course or as a non-credit course. The fee is $32.

Chessie System $100,000 Gift Funds Chair In Business

Chessie System, Inc. has established an endowment to fund in part a new professorship in the School of Business Administration.

The $100,000 endowment will support a professor whose primary academic interests and research will be in the area of common-carrier transportation and industry-government relations within the free enterprise system.

The Chessie gift is the third major corporate contribution to the College's three-year, $19 million Campaign for the College. It brings total receipts and commitments to more than $6,180,000, with 23 months remaining in the Campaign schedule.

President Thomas A. Graves, Jr. said the Chessie gift "will not only allow us to enhance the faculty of the School of Business Administration, but it will also be a signal to other major companies of the enthusiastic support and confidence that the School of Business Administration is obtaining from top leaders in business."

The Chessie Professor of Business Administration will prepare an annual report for the Chessie System which will analyze industry-government trends and relationships as they affect the American Economic climate, and the common carriers in particular. The Board of Visitors will appoint the Chessie Professor after recommendations from the School of Business Administration and the College.

The professorship is an extension of research and other activities which Chessie has supported at the School of Business Administration at William and Mary for several years.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE signer Thomas Jefferson is among the prominent alumni and associates of the College whose portraits are currently on exhibit in Swem Library's Zollinger Museum. See article on page 3.

Official Memorandum

To: Members of Teaching and Research Faculties and Members of Administration in Faculty-Equivalent Positions

From: President Thomas A. Graves, Jr.

Subject: Collegewide Faculty Meeting

You will recall that in each of the past three falls we have held a collegewide faculty meeting to introduce the academic session. The academic deans, Dr. Healy and I have the impression that these meetings have gone well and have been well received, and we are planning a similar meeting for September, 1977.

It will be held in Millington Auditorium on Tuesday, September 6, at 3:45 p.m. As before, a major purpose of the meeting will be to provide an introduction to the 1977-78 academic session.

New members of the faculty and of the administration will be introduced by Dr. Healy, the academic deans, and the Dean of the Undergraduate Program.

I shall make brief and general remarks about the major issues and questions facing the College as a whole in the coming academic year, and Dr. Healy will focus his remarks on several areas of interest within academic affairs for 1977-78.

We have tried to choose a day and time for the meeting when most of you can be in attendance. I hope that you can plan your schedule on what will be the first day of Tuesday-Thursday classes for many so that you may be with us as a faculty community.

I shall have a followup memorandum and reminder for you late in August.

State Employees Due For Raise

State employees will be taking home bigger paychecks July 16.

Governor Mills E. Godwin Jr. announced in mid-June that the anticipated 4.8 per cent pay raises for state employees would be effective July 1.

The 1977 General Assembly made the one-step increases a conditional appropriation to be implemented by the governor if state revenues allowed it.

Since revenue collections had improved the past two months, the pay raises--estimated to cost $33.6 million--had been understood to be a near-certainty.

In a statement released June 12, Godwin said that collections were $47.4 million more than budgeted appropriations for the 11 months ending in May.

Newsmakers

The professional appointments, lectures, achievements and publications of William and Mary faculty and staff are featured regularly in this column.

Faculty members in all schools and departments and professional staff in all offices are invited to submit written notices of appropriate professional activities to the News Office, 308 Old Chemistry Building.

It is the policy of the William and Mary News to include only activities of a professional capacity to an audience directly related to the speaker's field of expertise. Attendance at conferences will be included only if a faculty member or administrator has contributed to the program in a significant way, such as delivering a paper or address, or chairing a session.

Governor Godwin has reappointed Wesley C. Wilson as chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Committee. Wilson is affirmative action coordinator and special assistant to the President.

Edward P. Crapol, Exeter Exchange Professor for 1976-77, went on a speaking tour of Ireland recently. In May he appeared at a meeting of the Historical Association, Belfast and Northern Ireland branch, at the Queen's University in Belfast, where he presented a paper entitled "The United States, Great Britain, and the Origins of the Cold War." He presented another paper at the Irish Association for American Studies Conference at University College, Dublin, on "Change and Continuity: The Carter Administration and U.S. Foreign Policy."

Crapol was also interviewed in May on Radio Telefis Eireann on the program "Opinion," where the topic was President Carter's trip to the economic summit in London and his administration's foreign policy. Crapol will be returning to campus to teach the second session of the 1977 Summer Session.

Alva W. Stewart, associate librarian, is the author of a recently published article in the National Civic Review, the monthly journal of the National Municipal League, on the actions taken by the 1977 Virginia General Assembly. Stewart has had another article accepted for publication in North Carolina Libraries that describes and analyzes library statements in the college catalogs of approximately 35 southeastern colleges and universities. North Carolina Libraries is the quarterly journal of the North Carolina Library Association, representing 10 states, including Virginia.

"How to Tell for Yourself Whether that Consultant You're Considering is Solomon or a Snake Oil Salesman," an article by Robert Maidment, School of Education, appears in the June 1977 issue of the American School Board Journal. "How to Tell. . ." reviews ethical dilemmas posed by outside consulting efforts in school districts. A self-graded quiz, it is designed to allow school board personnel to judge what behavior they would expect of themselves and consultants and compare those expectations to the adopted ethical codes of practicing consulting firms.

Paul Unger, professor of education, recently published a review of David C. Humphrey's From King's College to Columbia, 1746-1800 in Educational Studies.

"The Effects of Cooperative and Competitive Background Experiences of Students on the Play of a Simulation Game" by Ron Wheeler, School of Education, will appear in a forthcoming issue of the Journal of Educational Research. Reviews of ten elementary social studies curricula were published by Wheeler in the May 1977 issue of Social Education.

Education Professor Mark G. Gulesian has been named a regional judge for the 1977 National Council of Teachers of English Achievement Awards in Writing. In the competition, writing samples submitted from rising high school juniors are judged and, of the more than 8,000 nominees, 800 are cited for excellence. The competition winners are recommended to colleges and universities for admission and possible financial assistance.

Curtis O'Shell, School of Education, has been notified by the executive secretary of the American Association of Marriage and Family Counselors that he has successfully met the requirements and has been accepted as a Clinical Member of the organization.

Donald Herrmann, director of Graduate Studies of the School of Education, has been invited to become a charter member of the Coalition of Postsecondary Education Research (CPER). The CPER is being organized to outline research needs in post-secondary education, encourage private and federal funding of such research, and disseminate research findings among other researchers and the public at large.

Mary Lou Cobb, head of the cataloging department at Swem Library, participated in the American Library Association's annual conference in Detroit June 17-24. She assumed duties as chairperson-elect of the College Section, Association of College and Research Libraries and attended a meeting of the ACRL Board of Directors. Sandra Peterson, documents librarian, also attended the ALA conference and a meeting of the Government Documents Round Table.

Wesley C. Wilson, special assistant to the President, has just completed the filming of a three-part educational series on Title IX. The series will be shown on WHRO-TV, Channel 15, in August. Wilson has also been appointed a member of the board of directors that will administer a federal grant sponsoring the production of an expanded version of the Title IX series to be aired nationally.

Leon Uris' book Trinity was the subject of a paper given by Alan J. Ward, government, at the annual meeting of the American Committee for Irish Studies in Denver on May 30. Ward also lectured on contemporary Britain at the Foreign Service Institute of the U.S. State Department on April 26 and May 24.

Stuart Flanagan, education, recently spoke at the annual meeting of the Greater Richmond Council of Teachers of Mathematics. His topic was "Massive Evasion in Mathematics Achievement: Where?"

The 55th Annual Meeting of the Virginia Academy of Science held recently in Petersburg had a number of representatives from William and Mary. Graduate students Ray Henry, Nick Nauro, Frank Watson, Celeste Corcoran, James Greaves, Pam Wilson, Dennis Unger, and Maggie Wiseman each presented papers in either the Biology or Botany sections. Undergraduates Harriet Sagan (jointly with N.J. Fashing), Kathy Brooks, Al Ruiz, and Gail Borgatti (jointly with B.W. Coursen) also presented papers.

Members of the biology department who attended included Gustav W. Hall, flora committee member; Stewart Ware, botany section nominating committee, chairma; Norman J. Fashing, biology section chairman; Donna M.E. Ware, treasurer of the Academy; Bradner W. Coursen and Lawrence L. Wiseman.

Spanish Professor John Moore

New Book Reviews Works of 16th Century Monk

The writings of a 16th century Spanish monk are the subject of "Fray Luis de Granada," a book written by John A. Moore, professor of modern languages, and published last month as the latest in the Twayne World Authors series.

"Granada was one of the four major religious writers of 16th century Spain," Moore said. "But, while much has been written on the others, scholars have tended to overlook Granada."

A Dominican monk, Granada lived in a time of great religious controversy. In northern Europe, Lutheranism was beginning to challenge the stronghold of Catholicism, and in Spain the Inquisition was finding threats to the Catholic faith everywhere.

Little of the religious upheaval is reflected, however, in Granada's writings, Moore said. Granada wrote to interpret the teachings of the Catholic church for those people not fortunate enough to acquire the education that he had received, he said. "Granada felt that he could give these people practical advice for daily living, without discussing heresy and schism," he said.

Probably his best known work is his "Sinner's Guide," a book explaining how to acquire and preserve virtues and how to avoid or overcome vices.

A humble and devout man, Granada evidently practiced what he preached. Moore's book relates how Granada would have someone read to him during meals, because "he feared abandoning his thoughts, even for a few moments, to the idle pleasure of consuming food."

Granada was a prolific writer. His works include sermons and a book of prayer and meditation, biographies and translations of Latin theological writings.

His last and longest work was "Introduction to the Symbol of Faith" in which he suggests that understanding nature is one way of beginning to understand God. The book is the most intellectual of Granada's works, Moore said, and the only place in which he shows his concern for the conversion of people from other faiths.

Professor Moore has long been interested in the works of Fray Luis, and chose them as the subject of his doctoral dissertation.

Shaver Named To NSF Staff

Kelly G. Shaver, associate professor of psychology, has been named to the administrative staff of the National Science Foundation for the 1977-78 term.

Shaver will take a one-year leave of absence to become program director for social and developmental psychology at NSF headquarters in Washington, D.C.

One of the nation's leading experts on social psychology, Shaver served as a member of the NSF advisory panel from 1973-75. He is the author of the textbook Principles of Social Psychology, as well as numerous other publications concerning experimental social psychology, defense attribution, and experimental design and statistics.

The prestigious appointment to the NSF staff of program directors places Shaver at the center of the field. "It's a tremendous opportunity. The program director has the chance to shape the discipline by the kinds of programs he tries to solicit and the kinds of preferences he expresses," says Shaver.

Shaver, who joined the William and Mary faculty in 1968, will return to his teaching post at the College at the beginning of the 1978-79 term. He received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Washington, and received his Ph.D. from Duke University.

Official Memorandum

From: George R. Healy,
Vice President for Academic Affairs
To: The College Community
Subject: Appointment of Acting Librarian

William C. Pollard, librarian of the Swem Library since 1966, has resigned his position effective 30 June 1977. A search committee has been appointed and presently is seeking to identify appropriate candidates for the Librarian's position. At this time it is impossible to predict when the appointment will be announced, or when the new person will be able to assume responsibility.

Until such time, Alva Ware Stewart has agreed to serve as Acting Librarian. Mr. Stewart, who holds degrees from the University of North Carolina and Duke University, came to William and Mary in 1971 as Associate Librarian. I am pleased that he is willing to take on these heavy additional duties, which I trust will be lightened as much as possible by the cooperation he may expect of all of us.

Mini-Courses Begin Today

Eight mini-courses on a variety of subjects are being offered free for William and Mary employees this summer. Courses include Assertion Training, Novel Discussion Group, Geology Field Trip, Photography for Beginners, Getting your Message to the Media, Houseplants, Review of Business English, and Exploring the Arts in Washington, D.C. Faculty and staff professionals are teaching the courses, which are open to all interested staff members.

For a copy of the course descriptions or to pre-register, write to Pam Warren, English Department secretary, 110F Old Rogers Hall, or call her at Ext. 4370.

As a result of a misunderstanding, it was earlier reported incorrectly that classified employees could attend the afternoon sessions without taking leave time.

In a statement issued June 30, Dean of the Faculty Jack D. Edwards and Vice President for Business Affairs William J. Carter said that individual employees are responsible for obtaining approval from their supervisors to attend mini-courses. According to the statement, "An employee might take a shorter lunch hour, forego approved coffee breaks, or rearrange the work schedule in other appropriate ways which are approved by the supervisor. The employee and the supervisor must make sure that normal office functions are carried out within the regular 40 hour work week."

"We are confident," said Edwards and Carter, "that the necessary rearrangements of schedules can be accomplished without undue burden. These mini-courses have a great deal of potential value for the College's employees, and we support them with enthusiasm."

From Garden Clubs, Girl Scouts

Wildflower Refuge Gets Helping Hand

The Williamsburg Council of Garden Clubs and a local Girl Scout Troop are the latest contributors to the new wildflower refuge project in Crim Dell.

The Garden Club has sent a check for $720 and Williamsburg Troop 328 has sent $80 to support the project. The Girl Scouts also participated in a "dig in" and transplanted endangered Mountain Laurel and ferns from a highway right of way to the refuge area.

The $28,000 project is aimed at turning about two acres of ravine area on campus into a scenic spot with an amphitheatre, plantings of native Virginia plants, meandering pine bark walks and benches. Martin C. Mathes of the biology department is directing the beautification plans, which were initiated about two years ago.

The project received a healthy boost from members of the senior class at the College this year, who have pledged the major portion of a $17,716 gift to the $19 million Campaign for the College, to the wildflower refuge project.

Recent contributions to the project have also been made by Mrs. G. G. Clark and Mrs. A. Ryland, both of Williamsburg; Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Taylor of Arlington, and the College Garden Club.

Mathes said that this summer approximately 12 benches will be set out in the refuge, which is located mid-campus, bordered by the old fraternity lodges, Old Campus Road, Swem Library parking lot and Crim Dell. Trees within the area have already been identified and labelled. The C&P Telephone Company provided small aluminum numbers for labelling the trees which are keyed to a tour map. The amphitheatre has been designed by Ralph Griswold, landscape architect.

The steering committee for the project is composed of Donna Ware and Gustav Hall of the biology faculty and Miss Libby Hodges and Mrs. Arthur Strong, both of Williamsburg.

During College's Three Centuries

New Exhibition Portrays Kings, Queens and Patriots

Since the College received a portrait around 1732 as its first gift of a work of art, it has acquired an extensive and impressive portrait collection.

Thirteen of those works that are less frequently exhibited have been selected for an exhibit currently on display through September 6 in the Zollinger Museum of Swem Library.

The portraits, which range in date from the 17th century to modern times, depict faculty, alumni, members of the Board of Visitors and chancellors who have been influential in shaping the College's history and who have been prominent in their chosen fields.

Among the paintings are portraits by an unknown English contemporary primitive artist of King William III and Queen Mary II of England, who founded the College in 1693.

Thomas Jefferson and others who excelled in the field of political affairs, dominate the Revolutionary era alumni portrayed.

The 19th century alumni and close associates of the College whose portraits were selected, achieved prominence as educators, historians, authors, industrial leaders and in a variety of other fields. Among them were John Tyler, tenth President of the U.S., and William Barton Rogers, founder and first president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Portraits of two 20th century faculty members complete the exhibition. Grace Warren Landrum was dean of women and professor of English, 1927-47, while Robert Gilchrist Robb oversaw the growth of the chemistry department during a period of rapid expansion, as departmental chairman from 1924-48.

The Zollinger Museum, located on the ground floor of Swem Library, is open free to the public weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 12:45 p.m.

Personnel Bulletin

Revised Salaries For Classified Employees

The Governor has approved a one-step increase in the minimum and maximum salary ranges for permanent classified employees of the Commonwealth of Virginia effective July 1, 1977. Eligible employees may be considered for an increase on the effective date, contingent on satisfactory job performance as evidenced by previous service ratings, current job performance, and availability of funds.

Every effort will be made by the College and the Department of Personnel and Training in Richmond to expeditiously process the approved salary increases for eligible employees on the earliest pay day possible after the effective date.

Employees are advised that questions pertaining to them as individuals must be directed to their supervisors. Employees selected for an increase are advised that any administrative delay in their receiving approved increases will be retroactive and will not result in any net loss of pay.

Staff Members Receive Awards

Retiring staff members and employees marking two decades and more of service to the Commonwealth, were recognized at an employee awards luncheon June 20 in the Great Hall of the Wren Building.

"The work that faculty members do, and the experiences students receive here, couldn't possibly happen without you," President Graves said during brief remarks following the luncheon. Graves and Vice President for Business Affairs William Carter presented engraved William and Mary plates to the retirees, and service award certificates to the employees with long-time service records.

"For those who are noting 20 years of service, we hope you will stay another 20 years," Carter said. "And we wish good luck and good health to those who are retiring."

Retirees and service award recipients gathered with their supervisors on the steps of the Wren Building following the employee awards luncheon. They are (front row, left to right) Alexander Parker, groundsman, retiring after 29 years; George Williams, carpenter, retiring after three years; Ansel Rorer, landscape superintendent, retiring after 43 years; Florence Lindsay, custodian in Blow Gymnasium, retiring after 37 years; and Earlee K. Brown, custodian in Barrett Hall, retiring after 18 years. Among those who received certificates of service are (second row, left to right) Dorothy Cary, custodian at Marshall-Wythe, 20 years; Trudi Neese, secretary in the Alumni Office, 22 years; Lois Byrd, secretary in the Student Health Center, 25 years; and Alberta Thomas, custodian in the Campus Center, 21 years. (Third row, from left)

Graves; Buildings and Grounds Director Ervin Farmer, who received a certificate for his 23 years of service; James J. Connolly, assistant director of buildings and grounds; Rena Brown, custodian at James Blair Terrace who was awarded a certificate for 24 years of service; and Frances Wallace, custodian at Marshall-Wythe, 22 years of service. (Back row, from left) Vice President for Academic Affairs George Healy, Personnel Director I.H. Robitshek; Student Health Services Director Dr. Richard Cilley; Dennis Cogle, assistant to the vice president for business affairs; Vice President for Business Affairs William Carter; Kate Carter, housekeeping supervisor for several academic buildings, who received an award for 22 years of service; and Gordon Yliet, executive vice president of the Alumni Society.

Radio Program To Focus On Child Abuse

Child abuse, child pornography and abusive parents are the topics of a special two-part program on the "Monty Griffith-Mair Show," which is heard weekly on the campus radio station WCWM-FM, dial 891.

Professor Ruth K. Mulliken of the School of Education and John Ward Bane, attorney and consultant for the U.S. Department of Justice, will be guests on the first segment of the program, which will be broadcast Sunday, July 10, at 9 p.m. Their discussion will center on such issues as the legal, moral and psychological aspects of child abuse and child pornography.

In the second segment Frank and Marlene Jones will discuss child abuse from their own standpoint as once abusive parents. The program is scheduled for Sunday, July 17, at 9 p.m.

Griffith-Mair, the show's host, invites listeners to ask questions of his guests by calling 253-4544 or 229-4068 during the broadcasts.
