PARKING DECALS TO GO ON SALE

Parking decals for 1977-78 will go on sale August 8 in the Campus Police Office. The decals are $5 for faculty and staff and may be purchased weekdays from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. The deadline for purchasing the stickers is September 15.

LONG DISTANCE PHONE CALLS

The Business Office has issued a memorandum reminding College faculty and staff about billing procedures for long-distance telephone calls. When calls are made on official business from locations other than a College telephone, billing should be requested to the individual's departmental phone number, and not to the general College number, 253-4000.

SPECIAL PROGRAMS OFFERS NEW COURSES

The fall schedule of courses being offered by the College's Office of Special Programs includes 21 new courses being taught for the first time this year.

Among those being offered are a citizen action seminar, classes in choral singing, folk life and lore, typical life crises, vocabulary building, basic fashion design, breadmaking, theatre, and federal real property law.

Scheduled during the evening and on weekends for the convenience of area residents, the courses allow adults who do not need credit toward a degree, the opportunity to enjoy educational programs without being concerned about grades or examinations.

Detailed information on courses and a copy of the complete schedule is available by writing the Office of Special Programs at 12070 Jefferson Avenue, Newport News, or calling them at 877-9231.

Visitors Approve Budgets, Cut Board Fees

The board of visitors, meeting July 22 in Short Pump, approved a 1977-78 educational and general maintenance and operating budget of $18,759,809. The budget is 7.96 per cent more than the actual costs for 1976-77.

The board also approved a $60,232,625 budget request for the 1978-80 biennium. The proposal will be submitted to Richmond this month for review by the governor and General Assembly.

The board approved a recommendation to reduce the board fee for the 1977-78 academic year by $30 per student.

At its meeting in May, the board had authorized a fee of $804 for the coming academic year. With the awarding of a new food service contract to Shamrock System of Atlanta, however, the College was able to reduce the fee to $744 for 1977-78. This represents an increase of $8 above the board fee for 1976-77.

In other financial matters, the board approved the appropriation of an additional $26,000 for the renovation of Taliaferro Hall and of an additional $7,500 for Chandler Hall.

The low bid received for the Chandler renovation was ten per cent above project estimates and for Taliaferro was 20 per cent above estimates. Although specifications for items considered desirable but not essential were eliminated, additional funding was still necessary.

The extra funds are available for Chandler from the proceeds of the revenue bonds for the overall student residence renovation program, and for Taliaferro from the renewal and replacement funds of Auxiliary Enterprises.

College Charter Is On Display

A contemporary copy of the Royal Charter which established the College of William and Mary in 1693 and two related documents will be on display at the College, August 2 through mid-September, in the Zollinger Museum of Swem Library.

Gallery hours are 8 a.m.-4:45 p.m. weekdays, and 9 a.m.-12:45 p.m. on Saturdays.

The three 17th century documents were recently acquired at auction in London for the College archives.

According to Professor of English Emeritus Frank B. Evans, who has studied the charter and its early history, the new acquisition is probably a copy made for Governor Sir Edmund Andros in September 1693, when James Blair presented the charter to the Governor and his Council at Jamestown. Blair, a prominent clergyman in the Virginia colony, was instrumental in obtaining the Charter and served as the College's first president until his death in 1743.

"It is likely that a Latin version was presented to the Governor on such a ceremonious occasion," Evans said. He speculates that this copy may be a translation made from the Latin version for the Governor's personal reference.

The two letters which are on display with the charter were sent to Governor Andros at the direction of King William III. The first, dated March 1693, requires that nearly 2,000 pounds be paid to establish "a College or Place of Generall Study. . . for the better Encouragmt of Arts & Sciences and the Propagation of the true Orthodox

Stanley Chosen New Chessie Professor

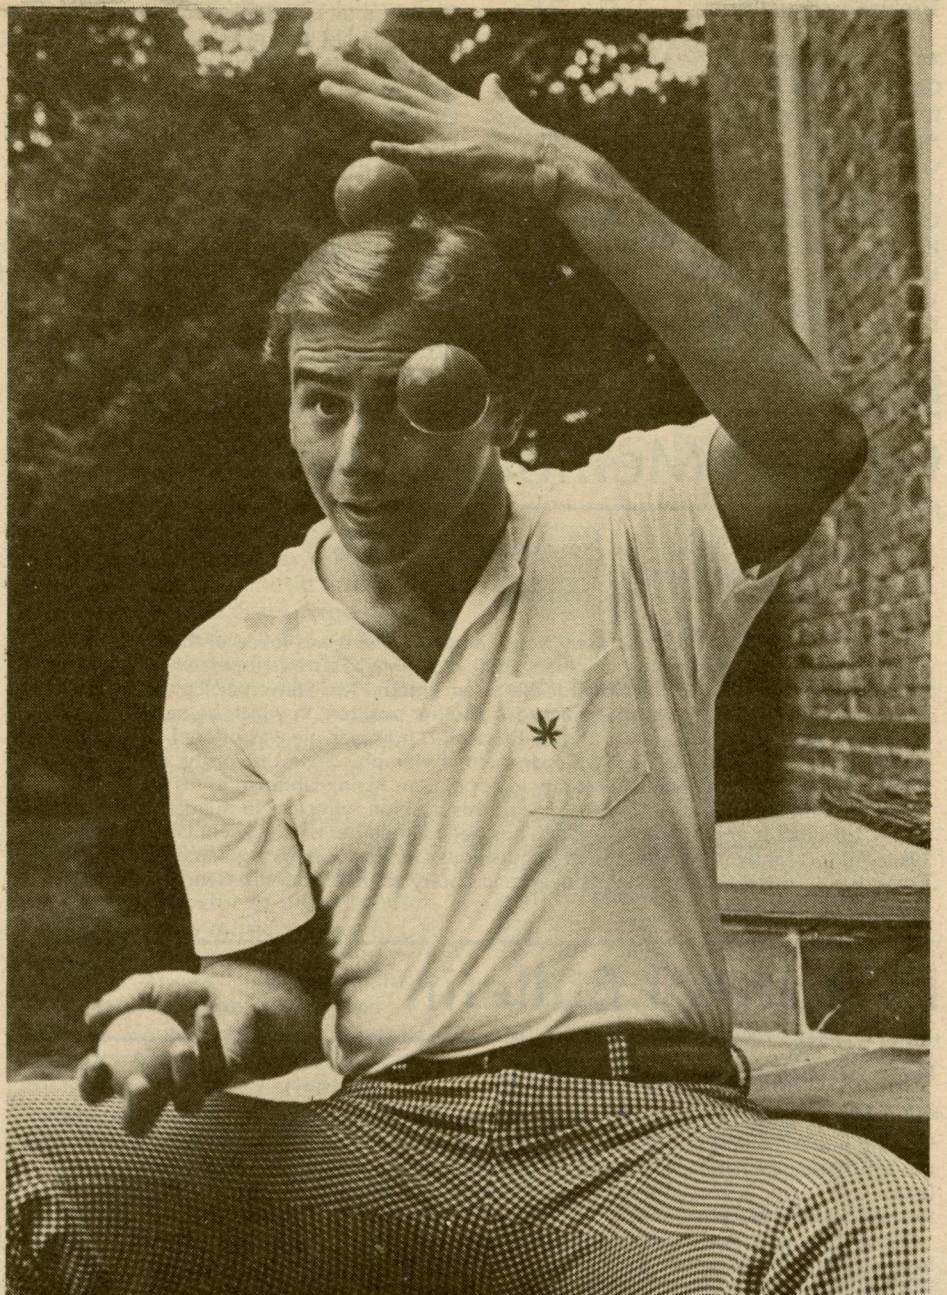

Marvin M. Stanley, one of Virginia's leading specialists in transportation, business policy and strategic planning, has been named the first Chessie Professor at the School of Business Administration, effective September 1.

In June The Chessie System, Inc., announced the establishment of a $100,000 endowment to support a professor whose primary academic interests and related research would be in the area of common-carrier transportation and industry-government relations within the free enterprise system.

Christian Faith" in Virginia.

The second, dated April 1694, directs Governor Andros to give "all fitting Support Furtherance & encouragement" to the College founded by royal patronage.

According to Archivist Kay Domine, the three documents will be taken this fall to a conservator, for necessary preservation. The documents will again be placed on display for the Charter Day celebration in February.

Bledsoe, McHugh Assume New Administrative Duties

Two faculty members in the Department of Theatre and Speech have taken on new administrative responsibilities.

Department Chairman Patrick Micken has appointed Associate Professor Jerry H. Bledsoe as Artistic Director for the theatre, and Instructor Susan McHugh as Acting Director of Forensics.

As artistic director, Bledsoe will advise Micken in matters concerning the total theatre program of the department, the operation of the William and Mary Theatre, the functioning of the theatre faculty, and the activities of theatre students.

He will also serve as liaison between the theatre and non-College organizations with theatre-related business. In addition, Bledsoe will coordinate scheduling for William and Mary Theatre productions.

Bledsoe joined the College faculty in 1971. A graduate of the University of Colorado, he holds an M.A. degree from the University of California at Los Angeles and Ph.D. from Purdue University.

McHugh's new assignment follows the appointment of debate director Patrick Micken to the chairmanship of the Theatre and Speech Department in July. McHugh, who holds degrees from Clarion State College and Southern Illinois University, joined the College faculty in 1976.

possible modification of reproductive behavior in ospreys.

Byrd is the co-author, with Charles J. Henny of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, of a paper entitled "Mid-Atlantic Coast Osprey Population: Present Numbers, Productivity, Pollutant Contamination and Status," published in the April issue of the Journal of Wildlife Management.

"Trade Regulation and the Small Businessman: New Areas of Old Law" is the subject of a talk Henry E. Mallue Jr., School of Business Administration, will give at the Aug. 24 meeting of the Gulf Beaches Kiwanis Club, Madeira Beach, Fla. Mallue will also attend the annual meeting in Miami Beach, Aug. 21-24, of the American Business Law Association. He will present a paper entitled "Revenue Sharing for Education: From Shepherd v. Godwin (1968) to 1977."

Associate Professor of Business Administration William J. Maddocks attended the 23rd International Meeting of the Institute of Management Sciences last week in Athens, Greece, where he presented a paper, "Inventory Balance Decision Through Simulation."

Two William and Mary administrators have assumed duties on local school boards. Wesley C. Wilson, assistant to the president, was elected chairman of the Newport News School Board in the board's annual July reorganization. Dean of Admissions Robert P. Hunt was appointed to the James City County School Board from Berkeley District. Wilson joined the William and Mary staff in 1974. He is a retired lieutenant colonel with 20 years of service in the U.S. Army. Hunt was appointed to the College staff in 1958 and promoted to dean of admissions in 1960.

Athletic Director Ben Carnevale has been named second vice president of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) for 1977-78.

The Southeastern Library Network recently commended Swem Library for its first quarter 1977 low error rate in entering cataloging records into the Ohio College Library Center (OCLC) data base. Thirty of the 150 SOLINET member libraries received commendations. Swem Library was a charter member of SOLINET in May 1975.

The National Association of College Stores has presented Assistant Bookstore Manager Richard Croot with a $25 award for his participation in an on-going NACS idea-sharing program. Croot contributed the idea for a clothesline art show, one he has successfully used at William and Mary. He set up a "clothesline" and cleared an area in the bookstore, where students could sell their paintings and crafts at no profit to the bookstore. A student committee, he explained, selected the works for display and handled all financial transactions directly with the student artists.

Recent Faculty Appointments Given

A number of new faculty appointments have been made to fill existing vacancies in the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, the School of Business Administration and several departments.

William W. Van Alstyne, Perkins Professor at Duke University School of Law, has been named visiting professor at Marshall-Wythe for the fall semester. Van Alstyne taught at Ohio State for a number of years before joining the Duke faculty in 1965. He is past president of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and has served on the National Board of Directors of the American Civil Liberties Union. A graduate of the University of Southern California, Van Alstyne received an LL.B. from Stanford University and Certificate in International Law from the Hague Academy.

Norfolk attorney John M. Ryan will also join the law faculty under a temporary appointment as lecturer during the fall semester. Ryan is a graduate of Dartmouth College and the University of Virginia Law School.

In the School of Business Administration, John H. McCray has been appointed visiting associate professor. He has taught previously at the University of Virginia and Virginia Commonwealth University. McCray received a B.S. in Commerce from U.Va. and Ph.D. in Business Administration from the University of Georgia.

Philip W. Meilman will join the Center for Psychological Services at the College as a clinical psychologist this fall. A graduate of Harvard University, Meilman holds a Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and completed his psychology internship at the University of Minnesota Hospitals.

J. Douglas Smith, director of Exhibition Buildings for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, has been appointed adjunct associate professor of history. Smith will coordinate a two-year apprenticeship program for students interested in the interpretation and administration of historical sites. He will also teach a course entitled "Introduction to the History Museum." Smith graduated from the University of North Carolina and holds both masters and doctoral degrees in history from the University of Virginia.

Also joining the History Department is James P. Whittenburg, as assistant professor. Whittenburg is a member of the faculty at the University of Missouri, Columbia. His special interests include the American colonial and revolutionary period and family history. He holds degrees from the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga, Wake Forest University and the University of Georgia.

Two appointments have been announced in the Government Department. Michael H. Lessnoff, senior lecturer at the University of Glasgow, Scotland, will serve as visiting associate professor this year. He is exchanging with William and Mary government professor Roger W. Smith, who will teach at Glasgow.

Manfred Ernst has been named acting assistant professor of government. He graduated cum laude from Knox College and received both graduate degrees in political science from Tulane University.

In Economics, Katherine C. Bazan and John H. Gates have been appointed visiting assistant professors. Bazan is a William and Mary graduate and currently a doctoral degree candidate at the University of North Carolina. Gates graduated from the State University of New York at Buffalo, where he is currently a candidate for the doctoral degree.

Official Memorandum

From: George R. Healy, Vice President for Academic Affairs
To: The College Community
Subject: Appointment of Acting Librarian

In the 5 July 1977 William and Mary News, announcement was made of the appointment of Alva Ware Stewart as Acting Librarian, until such time as a new Librarian was appointed and ready to assume responsibility for the Swem Library. Mr. Stewart accepted this assignment, believing that his candidacy for another position, in which he had earlier expressed interest, was inactive. Shortly thereafter, however, he was offered and accepted a position as Head of the Reference Department at Memphis State University, effective 15 August 1977. It thus becomes necessary to appoint an Acting Librarian in his place.

Ailene Anne Zirkle has agreed to serve in this position, effective 16 August 1977 and until a new Librarian is appointed. Ms. Zirkle has been a member of the Swem Library staff since 1963, and presently holds the title of Acquisitions Librarian. She is a graduate of Madison College, and received her master's degree in library science from the George Peabody College for Teachers.

Subsequent courses will be announced in the Aug. 16 William and Mary News.

Student Finds Juggling Is Relaxing

Juggling, the age-old battle between man and gravity, is not just challenging—it's also a cure for clumsiness, a builder of confidence, and a soothing tranquilizer.

At least that's what it is for Tom Pearce, a senior here who works during the summer as a juggler and entertainment supervisor at Busch Gardens.

One of the most ancient entertainers, jugglers entertained kings, pharaohs, and generals hundreds of years ago. "There even exist pictures on the walls of caves that show early man juggling," says Pearce.

"Juggling looks difficult," says Pearce, "but it's really just a matter of timing. If I had an hour, I could teach almost anyone to juggle three balls."

But how about thirteen? That's the unofficial world's record, held by none other than W.C. Fields. "Most people think of Fields as a crusty old guy who hated dogs and children, but he really got his start in show business as a terrific juggler," explains Pearce. His juggling talents seldom showed up on the screen, although he was known to toss around an occasional pool ball."

After three years of intensive juggling, Pearce is just breaking into the "professional" category. According to the standards established by Fields, a true juggler can handle at least five balls.

A native of Grove City, Pa., Pearce credits his high school coach for introducing him to the benefits derived from juggling. "I was on the basketball and football teams, but sometimes I had a hard time with hand-eye coordination," he remembers. His coach started him off with a single golf ball, which led to an "egg act" at a talent show, and finally a spectacular fire act at the Globe Theatre in Busch Gardens.

Pearce has taught several hundred people how to juggle, including some young children. "It's amazing what learning how to juggle can do for the confidence of some kids," says Pearce. "One day a kid can be just another face, and the next day he's the hit of the party."

During the school year, Pearce has "turned on" dozens of William and Mary students to juggling, but usually for a different reason. Instead of spending study breaks grabbing something to eat or watching a television show, Pearce and his fraternity brothers often take juggling breaks, especially during exams. "After you get into juggling, it's like driving a car. It's a habit that can be very relaxing, sort of soothing to the mind. And your awareness is usually heightened because you're so physically active," he explains.

Pearce does most of his juggling at the Old Country at Busch Gardens while talking almost constantly to the guests. The job does have its hazards—Pearce says he's knocked over quite a few drinks and had several of his balls land in people's ice cream cones.

Although it's doubtful he will make juggling his career, Pearce admits that he's spent hours trying to think of a new routine. "To be really successful in juggling, you need a gimmick," he says. First he considered goldfish—swallowing them one-by-one for a grand finale. But just like turtles, the creatures were too slippery to handle.

"Finally, I decided on armadillos. They tuck themselves up into a nice little ball that would be perfect for juggling," explains Pearce, only partially in jest. "But then I heard from someone that the critters were sort of mean. And besides, these days it's almost impossible to find an armadillo salesman."

Duke University Historian Named Harrison Professor

Lawrence C. Goodwyn has been named Visiting James Pinckney Harrison Professor of History for 1977-78.

Goodwyn is co-director of the Oral History Program at Duke University's Center for Southern Studies.

He is the author of numerous articles and several books that reflect his interest in race relations in 19th and 20th century America, social history and American reform movements. His book "Democratic Promise: The Populist Moment in America," published by Oxford University Press in 1976, was nominated for a National Book Award.

Prior to assuming the co-directorship of the Duke Oral History Program in 1971, Goodwyn was for many years a free-lance writer. His articles and publications focused primarily on the South. He served as editor of the Texas Observer in 1958-59.

A graduate of Texas A&M, Goodwyn holds a masters' degree in English from Trinity University and a doctoral degree in history from the University of Texas.

At William and Mary he will teach a graduate seminar in social history as well as an undergraduate course on the reconstruction, populist and civil rights movements in the South.

Goodwyn will give three public lectures next spring, based on the theme "20th Century Dilemma: The General Crisis of the Democratic Faith."

The James Pinckney Harrison Chair of History was established in 1969 as a memorial to the late chairman of the board of Universal Leaf Tobacco Co. of Richmond.

From Baroque Sonatas To Computer Sounds

Sunday Series Offers Musical Variety

A tremendous variety of artists in different and unusual musical fields will perform in the Sunday Series during 1977-78.

At one end of the musical spectrum, members of the Washington Consort will entertain concertgoers with gay Italian madrigals, foot-tapping 17th century dance suites and sparkling Baroque sonatas—all played on reproductions of Medieval and Renaissance instruments.

In striking contrast to the music of the Middle Ages will be a concert featuring music generated by the world's most modern "instrument"—the computer.

Sponsored by the Committee on Concerts, Sunday Series programs are held on Sunday afternoons in the Ballroom of the Campus center on James-town Road. Previously held at 4 p.m., the recitals during the 1977-78 session will begin at 3 p.m. Although there is no admission charge for the concerts, a silver collection is taken at the end of each performance.

The series opens September 11 with a chamber music recital by the Temple University Trio. They will be followed on October 2 by Hiroko Yajima who will present a solo violin recital.

The Washington Consort performs on November 6, while Colonial Williamsburg's own Governor's Palace Orchestra will play music of the Baroque and Classical periods on November 20. Due to the Palace Orchestra's extreme popularity, the performance will be held in Phi Beta Kappa Hall at 8:15 p.m.

Young soprano sensation Ashley Putnam will give a vocal recital, December 4.

The computer is the musical instrument for a January 22 presentation by Dexter Morrill, associate professor of music and director of the computer and electronics music studios at Colgate University. Morrill's program, entitled "Rotations," is a programmed concert of computer-generated sounds. While on campus, Morrill will also give seminars in physics, mathematics and computer science.

A young British group, the Omega Guitar Quartet, will appear in recital February 19.

Two solo recitals in April will conclude the 1977-78 Sunday Series season. Marian Hahn, a graduate of Oberlin College and the Juilliard School, will give a piano recital on April 2, while violist Marcus Thompson, also a graduate of the Juilliard School, performs on April 23.

Stanley

Marvin Stanley Is Chessie Professor

The Chessie gift is the third major corporate contribution to the three-year $19 million Campaign for the College. It brings total receipts and commitments to more than $6,180,000 with 23 months remaining in the Campaign schedule.

Stanley joined the faculty of the School of Business Administration in 1968 after retiring as a colonel in the United States Air Force. He received his MBA degree from Harvard Business School, where he was a Baker Scholar, and his doctorate from The American University. He completed undergraduate studies at George Washington University.

At William and Mary, Stanley teaches courses in the MBA program in business policy and strategy, transportation management, and marketing. Active as a consultant, Stanley has served in such a role with Chessie System, a consortium on environmental matters headed by Coca Cola and Anheuser Busch, Dibrell Brothers, Inc., and the U.S. Brewers Association. He recently completed a study of economic growth in Virginia for Lt. Governor John Dalton.

Sci-Fi Writer Avram Davidson Joins Faculty

Fantasy and science fiction writer Avram Davidson has been named Writer-in-Residence for the coming academic year.

Davidson has been writing professionally since 1946, and his writings, which have been translated into twelve languages, have appeared on five continents.

He was for three years editor of The Magazine of Fantasy and Science Fiction and also edited three of its anthologies. He is the author of a dozen published novels, including such recent works as "The Phoenix and the Mirror," "The Island Under the Earth," and "Peregrine: Primus."

Davidson's writing has earned several awards. For his collection of short stories "Or All the Seas with Oysters" he won the Hugo Award, for "The Necessity of His Condition" he received The Queen's Award, and "The Affair at Lahore Cantonment" brought him the Mystery Writers of America's Edgar.

Davidson follows poet Peter Klappert and novelists Stephen Marlowe and Herbert Burkholz as the fourth author to be selected for the residence program in as many years.

He will teach a professional seminar in writing for selected advanced students.

Marcus Thompson, violist, will give a recital April 23, 1978, in the Sunday Series.

The examinations are open to members of the William and Mary faculty.

Actions of the Board of Visitors

1977-78 EDUCATIONAL AND GENERAL MAINTENANCE AND OPERATING BUDGET FOR THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

At its March 17-19, 1977 meeting, the Board of Visitors approved increases in the tuition and general fee, in the board rate, in the room rate for student residences and in other fees to provide Special Fund Revenues to supplement the General fund appropriations from the State for 1977-78.

These fees and appropriations are projected to generate total revenues and essential expenditures of $18,759,809 to meet the requirements for the educational program and supporting services of the College for 1977-78.

The total Educational and General expenditures budgeted for 1977-78 show an overall increase of 7.96% over actual costs for 1976-77. A pronounced effort has been made to reduce general administrative costs and to increase the resources available for instruction and libraries. Despite general inflationary pressures on operating costs and escalating costs of all utilities, the physical plant budget is expected to remain virtually unchanged from that of the 1976-77 year. It is anticipated that this austere budget will result in a deferral of normal maintenance projects, coupled with a reduction in staff through normal attrition.

This budget has the approval of the President of the College. It will be monitored by a computerized budget control system directed by the Office of Business Affairs, in close cooperation with the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

RESOLVED, That the Board of Visitors of the College of William and Mary in Virginia hereby approves the 1977-78 Educational and General Maintenance and Operating Budget in a total amount of $18,759,809.

APPROVAL OF COMPLETION OF 1978-80 BIENNIAL BUDGET FOR THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY
