Conference, Charter Day To Mark Anniversary Of Public Education

The 200th anniversary of the concept of free public education in America will be marked next February by the College.

William and Mary will observe its own 285th anniversary as part of the two-day commemoration, scheduled February 10-11. Ernest L. Boyer, U.S. Commissioner of Education, will be speaker at the traditional Charter Day Convocation on February 11, ending the observance.

The Charter Day program will follow a conference on the diffusion of knowledge sponsored by the School of Education. Boyer will also take part in the conference, which will draw panelists from government, the media and education. Its purpose will be to explore how, in modern times, knowledge is diffused among the public by a variety of means.

The concept of a statewide system of public education from the grammar school level to the university, was laid out in Thomas Jefferson's classic "Bill for the More General Diffusion of Knowledge," which he prepared in 1778 for submission the following year to the Virginia General Assembly.

Jefferson, an alumnus, proposed in the bill that William and Mary become the state's university, drawing the outstanding students from each of the proposed school districts from around Virginia. Educational historians regard the blueprint for a statewide system of public education as "hardly less important than the Declaration of Independence," and "revolutionary for its time."

The bill failed to pass the 1779 legislature. However, in December that year Jefferson--as Governor of Virginia and a member of William and Mary's Board of Visitors--inspired the College's reorganization into the nation's first university. Forty years later, he founded the University of Virginia. A state system of public education was not established until about 1888.

Boyer, as well as being the chief statutory officer for education in the United States, is chancellor of the State University of New York. He has been a visiting scholar at the Aspen Institute of Humanistic Studies and a visiting fellow at the Battelle Research Center, Seattle, Wash. He serves on a number of boards and commissions including the Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education.

Boyer was educated at Greenville College, Greenville, Ill., A.B.; and the University of Southern California, M.A. and Ph.D.

Scotland Yard Official Views Criminal Justice

The William and Mary/NASA lecture series, "Our Future in the Cosmos," will hold its first Williamsburg lecture, Friday, Oct. 14, in William and Mary Hall with Sir Robert Mark, former director of New Scotland Yard as speaker.

The lecture is open free of charge to the public, but tickets are required. They may be obtained by calling the Office of Special Programs at William and Mary, 877-9231, and will also be available at the hall the evening of the lecture.

The lecture begins at 8 p.m.

A witty, entertaining speaker, Mark is regarded as a hero by many in England for his work in reorganizing the London police force.

Mark, who began his career in police work pounding a beat in Manchester, was appointed police commissioner for the famous London police force, better known as Scotland Yard, in 1972.

Scotland Yard has been celebrated in fiction for its unswearing honesty, but Mark found, in fact, there was police corruption in the ranks similar to that in forces of other major cities in the world. He spent most of the five years of his term fighting to clean up the force. "Though Sir Robert Mark is

Claudia Stevens

Claudia Stevens To Present Faculty Recital

Claudia Stevens, a new member of the music department, will present a faculty piano recital on Sunday, Oct. 16, at 4 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

There is no admission charge.

Stevens has performed in recitals throughout the East, including numerous appearances in contemporary and chamber music at the Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood.

A choral conductor as well as pianist, Stevens has held positions in conducting at the University of California, Williams College and the University of Richmond, where she joined the music faculty in 1975. Last spring she led the chorus of the University of Richmond on a tour of several major European cities.

She graduated summa cum laude from Vassar College, received her master's degree and the Alfred Hertz prize in piano performance from the University of California at Berkeley, and recently completed the doctor of musical arts degree at Boston University.

Personnel Bulletin

In order to facilitate changes in employment status, separation, leaves of absence and other personnel actions for non-faculty employees, the Personnel Office reminds supervisors of the following procedures:

Employment: In order for an employee to be paid, the completed "College of William and Mary Employment Form" must be submitted in duplicate to the Personnel Office. This applies to all personnel (except students paid from student funds), regardless of the nature of employment (hourly, weekly, monthly, etc.).

Individuals initially employed on an hourly probationary basis prior to permanent appointment in a classified status, should not be employed on an hourly basis for more than 60 days. Hourly employees do not receive the benefits of leave, health and life insurance, retirement, merit increases, etc.

Requests to Appoint Hourly Employees to Classified Status: Such requests must be received in writing in the Personnel Office at least five working days prior to the first or sixteenth of the month. Permanent classified appointments are normally effective at the beginning of a semi-monthly pay period (1st and 16th of the month), and processing must be completed before an employee may be placed on the payroll.

Application for Leave of Absence: Permanent classified employees must submit to their supervisor a request for leave for absence due to illness on the day following their return to work. For all other types of leave (annual, compensatory, military, etc.) the request must be submitted by the employee to their supervisor before the leave is taken. Approved requests must be forwarded to the Personnel Office without delay.

If an employee does not have enough leave time accumulated to cover his absence, waiting until the employee's return to duty to submit a leave slip will cause a delay in issuing the pay check on the normal pay day. To avoid this situation, the Personnel Office requests department heads and supervisors to notify them on the first day that an employee is absent, if such absence is not explained by an approved request for leave on file in the Personnel Office.

In case of bad weather, if an employee reports less than an hour late on a morning when road conditions are hazardous, the employee should have no charge made against his leave balance. If the employee does not report at all, however, a leave slip should be submitted for the entire day.

College of William and Mary Separation Forms (Revised 8/75) should be submitted for each person leaving College employment (except students paid from student funds). Supervisors should submit the completed forms to the Personnel Office at least two weeks prior to an employee's separation date to avoid delays in issuing the employee's final pay check.

The cooperation of all concerned is important in order that the leave and employment accounting for employees be accurate and up-to-date. Failure to follow the above guidance may result in a financial hardship to an employee.

Employment Forms, Separation Forms, and Leave Slips are obtained by ordering from the College Warehouse.

Classes Test Psychology Principles

For homework, students in a psychology course here are being asked to practice what their professor "preaches."

Larry Ventis, associate professor of psychology, teaches a course in behavior modification and requires that each student select a self-improvement project to work on during the semester.

Ventis discusses in class the psychological techniques that can be employed to help people help themselves with problem solving. As an adjunct to classwork, he has students select a personal habit or personality trait they would like to change and apply psychological principles learned in class to do the job.

Students pick problems that range from smoking to procrastination. Some students want to improve their study habits, he said, while others want to stop overeating or drinking.

The techniques they use to change a habit are simple but effective. Smokers may resort to chewing gum instead of lighting up a cigarette. Some wear rubber bands on their wrists which they snap when they feel the urge to smoke as forcible reminders that they are trying to overcome that urge.

Imagination can be effective in overcoming the desire to smoke. Ventis said some students pair the image of lighting a cigarette with a vivid image of getting nauseous. "If this is done repeatedly, the person will have the association of nausea, not pleasure, with smoking," he said.

The key to these techniques is that they force the person to stop and think about the habit they are trying to change, Ventis said.

The key to these techniques is that they force the person to stop and think about the habit they are trying to change, Ventis said.

Sometimes the habit is so automatic, such as in smoking, that a person may have the cigarette in his mouth before he remembers he's trying not to smoke.

Students have solved that problem by carrying a false package of cigarettes in their pockets. It comes as a shock when they reach unthinkingly for a cigarette, Ventis said.

How well does behavior modification work for smokers?

"You have to be pretty highly motivated," Ventis said. "Also, if you have smoked for a long time, it's much harder to stop, since many associations remind you of the desire to smoke."

The success rate, he said, has been much higher in helping people diet. The procedures are based on the same idea of getting people to think before they act. "The difference is that, with dieting, you're not trying to eliminate an addictive behavior; you're just changing a normal drive."

Ventis feels that often people credited with great willpower show a pattern of habits rather than a general trait, with each of the habits contributing to self control. Rather than being an inherent characteristic, willpower is usually the result of the combination of such specific learned habits, he said.

"We could attribute having good versus bad study habits to having strong versus weak willpower. But researchers find that a person with strong willpower has many good habits which result in this label."

But behavior modification research is showing that people do not need superhuman powers to change aspects of their behavior that they do not like. "It's more a matter of having lots of little habits that, put together, make for effective performance," said Ventis.

Official Memorandum

To: The College Community
From: Dennis K. Cogle, Assistant to the Vice President for Business Affairs
Subject: Revised procedure involving business machines

The memorandum below from Mr. Maurice B. Rowe, State Secretary of Administration and Finance, is self-explanatory.

Since this represents a rather drastic change in procedure it was deemed advisable to give details to the entire College community so that there might be no misunderstanding on the part of any dean, department head, or supervisor as to the revised requirements.

If there are questions as to the implementation of the directive, such questions should be directed to Mr. W. T. Allen, Director of Purchases and Stores, Ext. 4215.

It has become a common practice for State agencies to trade in to the selling vendor used office equipment when acquiring new typewriters, calculators, etc. Unfortunately, we have not always been receiving the true value of the equipment when it is disposed of in this manner.

Effective this date, and by authority of the Governor, all typewriters and other business machines which the owning agency or institution wishes to dispose of in any manner will be designated as surplus property subject to transfer, sale, exchange or other method of disposition by the Director of the Department of Purchases and Supply.

Renowned French Acting Company the Troupe de la Huchette of Paris will give two performances in Williamsburg, Oct. 21, at 8 p.m. in Bruton High School auditorium. "Larimaquoi? Larimarier!" a series of sketches, songs, and mimes based on the works of Jacques Prevert, will be followed by Eugene Ionesco's "La Cantatrice Chauve" ("The Bald Soprano"). Both performances are in French.

Starring in "The Bald Soprano," which is the longest running production in the history of the French theatre, are (left to right) director Nicolas Bataille, Micheline Bona, Jacques Legre and Anne Alexandre. The Department of Modern Languages is handling ticket arrangements. Tickets are $4 for adults, $3 for students, and may be reserved by calling 253-4326.

Award-Winning String Quartet Sets Concert, Oct. 18

The Cleveland Quartet will perform in a Concert Series recital Tuesday, October 18 at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Recognized as one of the great string quartets of our time, the quartet has received a Best of the Year Award from Time Magazine and Stereo Review and a Grammy nomination for its recording of the complete Brahms String Quartets.

The quartet made its debut at the 1969 Marlboro Music Festival with Donald Weilerstein and Peter Salaff, violin, Martha Strongin Katz, viola, and her husband Paul Katz, cello. They have since appeared on concert stages throughout Europe, Canada, the United States, and South America, and were the first American quartet invited to perform in East Germany since World War II.

A limited number of general admission tickets will be on sale from the office of the director of the Campus Center, Oct. 13, 14 and 17, and at the Phi Beta Kappa box office preceding the performance. Single admission is $4 for the general public, $3 for William and Mary students, faculty and staff.

Sir Robert Mark

Scotland Yard Official To Discuss Criminal Justice

gone," wrote Godfrey Hodgson in the London Sunday Times, "his legacy may have been to unravel the romantic notion of London's police as models of virtue. For that reason, he may be remembered as a figure as heroic as Sir Robert Peel, who invented the 'bobby' more than a century ago."

On his retirement the Police Review said "... as long as he husbands his ammunition, uses it sparingly and effectively, then from his retirement he may be as great a force for the improvement of the police service as he has been for the last 40 years."

In his talk Mark will discuss several major and current issues of the criminal justice system, including gun control, capital punishment, a comparison of the philosophies of the American and British systems of justice, the differences in attitudes of Americans and the British toward their police, and the relative freedom of police from political pressure in England.

Future speakers will include novelist James A. Michener in January and economist Milton Friedman in April.

This is the fourth year for the William and Mary/NASA series.

Choir Slates European Concert Tour

Concert performances in Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris and Westminster Abbey in London will highlight the William and Mary choir's first concert tour in Europe next spring.

With stops scheduled in Switzerland, the Netherlands and Germany in addition to Paris and London, the trip will be the most extensive ever undertaken by a William and Mary choir.

The trip will be a "pay if you go" venture for choir members. All expenses will be covered either by donations or by the students themselves, since there are no funds in the university's budget for the trip.

Frank Lendrim, choir director and chairman of the music department who is planning the concert schedule and travel itinerary, says preliminary planning indicates the cost of the trip, per student, will be about $1,000.

To help defray the cost of the trip, members of the choir have designed notepaper and Christmas cards which they will sell. Money earned will be used to cut the overall cost of the trip and lower the amount each student must pay.

Out of logistic necessity, a maximum of 46 students--one bus load--will go. In the group will be the Botetourt Chamber Singers, who will be featured in tour performances.

The singers will leave shortly after commencement May 16 and return on or around June 8, spending 11 days in Europe and 12 to 13 days in England.

Although this is the first time a William and Mary choir has traveled abroad, this is the third European choir tour for Lendrim, who directed two successful trips for the Kenyon College choir before coming to William and Mary.

Although the full concert schedule is not yet complete, performances have been scheduled to date for Geneva, Switz.; Frankfurt, Germany; The Hague, Netherlands, the Church of St. Martin's in the Fields and Westminster Abbey, London; and Notre Dame Cathedral, Paris. Lendrim is arranging the trip so students will have an opportunity for some relaxation and sight-seeing between performances.

The choir will sing in a variety of different types of locations from large cathedrals to small churches, schools and community halls. Singers are preparing two concert programs, one of sacred music and one which is more secular in nature.

Plans are for students to stay in private homes where possible. This plan will be less expensive than acquiring hotel accommodations and will also provide students with more intimate contact with the people of the various countries than would be possible under a commercially packaged tour.

Choir director Lendrim would like to see the overseas tour be developed into a regular program that would be repeated often enough to give each student generation an opportunity to participate.

Modern Dance Troup To Perform Here

The 5 by 2 Plus modern dance repertory company will be in residence at William and Mary, October 23-25, in a special program arranged by the Committee on Concerts.

The company's three day residency will include a public performance Monday, Oct. 24, in Phi Beta Kappa Hall at 8:15 p.m. General admission tickets are $3.

Season ticket subscribers to the Concert Series and faculty, staff and students may purchase tickets for $1.50.

Tickets will be on sale Oct. 18 at the Phi Beta Kappa box office, following that evening's Concert Series performance by the Cleveland Quartet. Thereafter, tickets will be available at the office of the director of the Campus Center, Jamestown Road.

While in residence, the company will also give a lecture demonstration on Sunday, Oct. 23, at Phi Beta Kappa Hall at 8:15 p.m. and will hold an open rehearsal on Monday, Oct. 24, also in Phi Beta Kappa Hall, from 1 to 4 p.m.

Both programs are open to the public free of charge.

Students in theatre and dance will have an opportunity to work directly with the professionals when the company conducts master classes Sunday afternoon and again on Tuesday morning.

The company's residency on campus was made possible in part by a grant by the Virginia Commission of the Arts and Humanities from funds granted by the National Endowment for the Arts.

Their visit to campus complements a modern dance recital Saturday, October 22 by William and Mary performers in a premiere of original dance compositions. "DanceEvent" will feature members of the student modern dance troupe Orchesis and from the community in a program of solo and group works, choreographed by faculty members Shirley Roby and Carol Sherman. The recital, which is open to the public free of charge, begins at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

The 5 by 2 Plus Dance Company, which Dance Magazine describes as "masters of the modern dramatic form," will present five works by major choreographers from the 1920's to the present.

The group, which made its debut in 1972 with Jane Kosminsky and Bruce Becker, has since performed from coast to coast and in several foreign countries. Kosminsky has been a member of the faculty of the drama division of the Juilliard School since 1971. She has performed with a number of companies, including the Martha Graham Repertory Company and the Paul Taylor Dance Company. In May, 1969 she was selected dancer of the month by Dance Magazine.

Known for his imaginative versatility, Becker has been soloist with several major American dance companies, has appeared in Broadway plays and has choreographed productions for a variety of television entertainers.

The "plus" of the 5 by 2 company are dancers Carol Parker, Dan Ezralow and Kathryn Komatsu.
