HARVARD LAW PROFESSOR LECTURES NOVEMBER 1

Harvard University Law Professor Charles Fried will speak on "Moral Responsibilities of Professionals--Theoretical Considerations," Tuesday, November 1, in the Campus Center Rooms A and B, at 8:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend his talk, which is sponsored by the Philosophy Club.

Fried is the author of numerous books on law and philosophy, including "The Anatomy of Value," "Medical Experimentation: Personal Integrity and Social Policy" and a forthcoming work entitled "Right and Wrong."

He is former vice president of the American Society for Political and Legal Philosophy.

He received his A.B. degree from Princeton, M.A. from the University of Oxford and his LL.B. from Columbia University. He has been affiliated since 1961 with the Harvard Law School, where he has been professor since 1965.

STUDENTS SPONSOR HAUNTED HOUSE

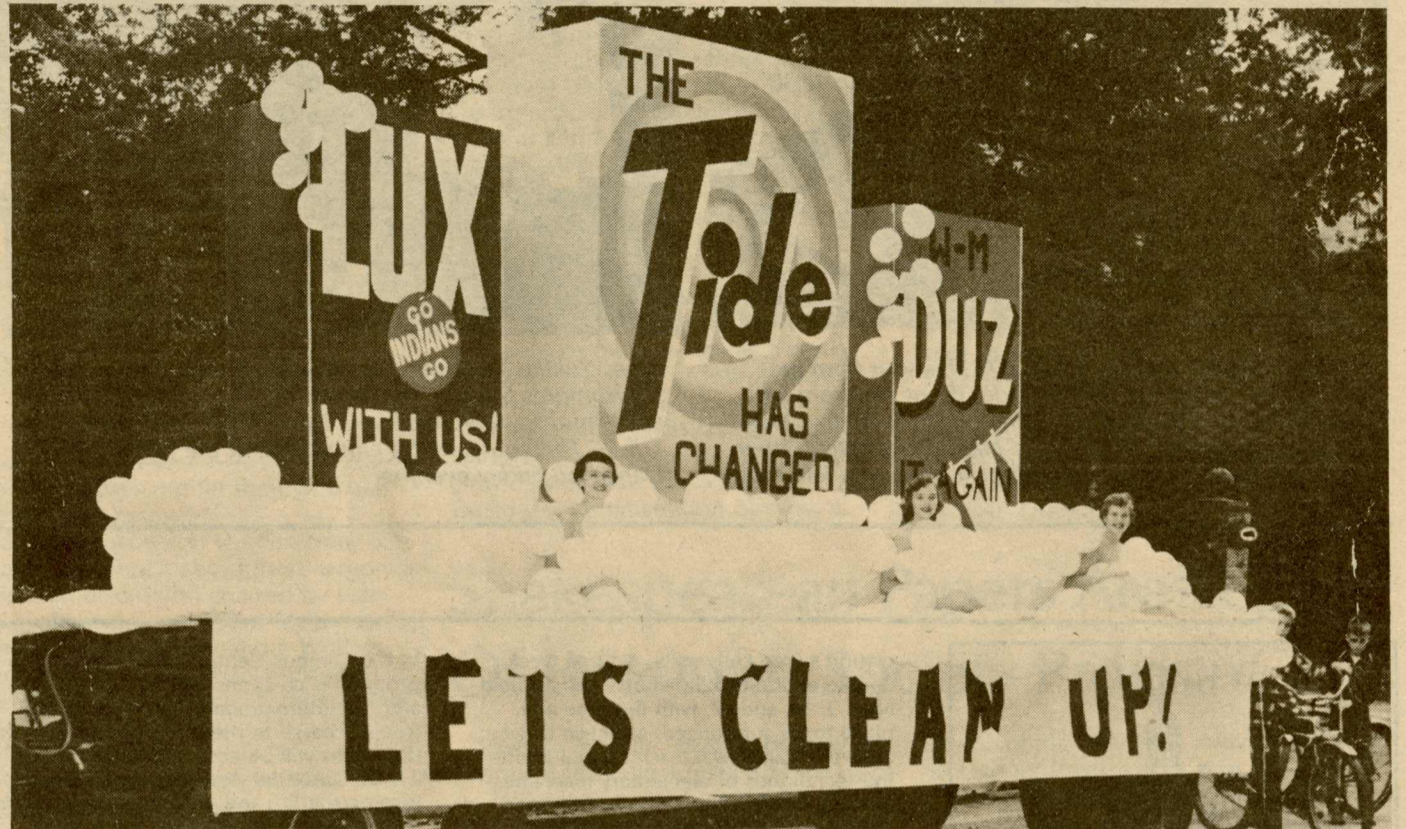

The William and Mary Science Fiction Club and the Bryan Complex Dorm Council will hold their annual Halloween Haunted House for Williamsburg area school children, Sunday, October 30.

The Haunted Dungeon will take place in Bryan Hall, across from Cary Stadium, from 7 to 10 p.m. Admission is free, but donations will be accepted to defray costs. There will be free candy for the children. For further information, contact Thomas Wilson, chairman, at 253-4566 or see him in 101 Bryan Hall.

CHANGES MADE IN WIGWAM HOURS

The evening and Sunday hours of operation at the Wigwam will be suspended until further notice, beginning this Wednesday, Oct. 26. The previous closing time of 11 p.m. is being changed to 3 p.m., and there will be no operating hours on Sunday.

According to David Healy, director of Auxiliary Enterprises, the change is a result of very low demand for services at the Wigwam during those hours and consequently of heavy financial losses for the food service program. The College and Shamrock System are currently reviewing possible alternatives for increasing demand for evening service at the Wigwam, he said.

Homecoming floats have changed through the years, but the William and Mary parade continues to attract some of the largest spectator crowds of any event in Williamsburg during the year. This float, constructed by members of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, won first prize in the 1950 parade. This year the event will feature some 30 floats as well as area high school bands. The William and Mary parade line-up will include the high school bands, the Strath-James Pipes and Drums, the Colonial Williamsburg Fife and Drums, and the American Eagle Fife and Drum Corps. The parade begins at 10 a.m. Saturday and proceeds along Duke of Gloucester Street.

Homecoming Festivities Begin Friday

Homecoming 1977 will be held October 27-29.

President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., will address the Society of the Alumni at its annual meeting, Friday, October 28. On that occasion the Society will present its highest award, the alumni medallion, to four alumni for service and loyalty and elect new directors.

A plastic surgeon, an award winning cartoonist, the former president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the only 5-sports letterman in William and Mary history, will receive the medallion this year.

The Order of the White Jacket, the organization of former students who earned money for their education through food service jobs, will hold a reception and banquet Thursday evening. The OWJ will place a plaque in the Alumni House, marking their contributions to the program to refurbish the Alumni House.

Among the VIPs on campus this weekend will be John William Tuthill, '32, former Ambassador to Brazil, and now President of the Salzburg Seminar in American Studies in Austria, who will meet with several classes in government while here for homecoming and his class reunion.

The name of the homecoming queen will be announced at the homecoming dance Friday evening. She will be crowned during half-time ceremonies at the William and Mary-Rutgers football game, Saturday afternoon at Cary Field. Finalists for the title of queen are: Seniors Sarah McCray of Evansville, Ind.; Dawn Fitzgerald of Nokesville, Va.; Mary Grayson of Blacksburg; Maryanne Nelson of North Tarrytown, N.Y.; and Martha Frechette of Williamsburg; Juniors Linda Davis of Salem, Va.; Cary Carr of Alexandria; and Brooke Tribble of Dunnsville. Sophomores Susan Cory of Roanoke; Ardith Myers of Rockville, Md.; and Becky Riddle of South Boston, Va. Freshmen Patty Blue of Fairfax; Yukika Yamoshita of San Marina, Japan, and Pam Pritchard of Birmingham, Ala.

Alumni will participate in tennis and golf tournaments during the weekend. The golf tournament will be held at the Kingsmill-on-the-James course. Other events planned for the weekend include a soccer match, a re-orientation and bus tour of the campus, and a sunset ceremony in honor of alumni who have died.

President and Mrs. Graves will host alumni at a reception and continental breakfast Saturday morning before the homecoming parade, which begins at 10 a.m. The alumni dinner and dance Saturday evening conclude the full weekend schedule.

The parade is billed as probably the only parade in America that can be viewed twice, from both coming and going. The parade will begin at College Corner on Jamestown Road at 10 a.m., proceed down Duke of Gloucester Street to Botetourt Street, turn onto Francis Street and come back down the Duke of Gloucester Street via Blair Street.

This year's theme "Fanciful Fiction" was chosen by students and will be reflected in the 30 floats which have been entered by fraternities, sororities, local organizations, student interest groups and residence halls. The entire parade will be composed of about 50 units. To heighten interest in the theme, especially for children, costumed characters from Busch Gardens, including St. George and the Dragon, have been invited to participate.

Wilford Kale '66 of Williamsburg is chief marshal for the parade and will be assisted by Peter Logan '75, of Williamsburg.

The alumni who will be honored as medallion recipients include Dr. Bromley S. Freeman of Houston, Tex., who has pioneered procedures in plastic surgery that have now become standard; Hugh S. Haynie '50 of Louisville, Ky., editorial cartoonist for the Louisville Courier Journal who is syndicated by the Los Angeles Times in more than 40 newspapers; Mrs. Marion Moncure Duncan '35, of Alexandria, Va., a past President General of the Daughters of the American Revolution and a former member of the Board of Visitors; and Y. O. Kent, a letterman in football, basketball, track, swimming and baseball while a student at William and Mary. He was elected to the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame in 1970.

The election of these four brings to 155 the number of alumni awarded the Alumni Medallion since its inception in 1933--out of a known alumni body of 30,000.

Feminist Author Friedan Is Speaker At 'Women In Business' Seminar

The School of Business Administration will sponsor a seminar Nov. 11 to encourage young women to enter big business in a big way.

Business school representatives from across the state, as well as feminist author Betty Friedan, will join forces at William and Mary for a day-long seminar designed to acquaint women with careers in business management.

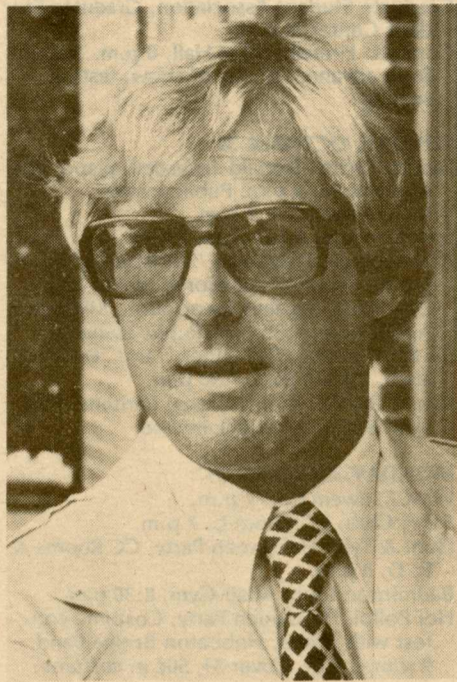

Professors and administrators from seven Virginia universities will encourage both undergraduate women and women already in the work force to advance their careers by entering Master of Business Administration programs.

The seminar, which is conducted as part of the "Women in Business" program sponsored by IBM Corporation, will take place from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the William and Mary Campus Center. IBM awarded a $100,000 grant to the Campaign for the College to fund the new business program.

Although more and more women are entering the ranks of business management, a study conducted by a William and Mary professor indicates that many females remain inhibited by culturally-defined sex roles. Associate Professor William W. Liddell, who conducted the study among small groups of male and female workers in leadership positions, found that many talented women need to increase their self-confidence, set their career goals higher, and "let their true personalities take over."

Liddell says an MBA degree can help young women in all of these areas--as well as in many others. "We're attempting to make women aware of the opportunities in business and to let them know that the law is on their side," says Liddell. "We're also trying to explain how the skills obtained in an MBA program can be one ticket for success in management positions."

Liddell says women in business often have the "dominant traits" so common in successful business leaders. "Unfortunately, these women are sometimes inhibited by the traditional sex roles society has constantly reinforced," says Liddell. "Women in business need to be themselves and let their true personalities take over."

William Liddell Business Professor

Several successful women from big business will talk about their careers in a special discussion chaired by Joan Showalter, vice president for personnel and recruiting at CBS and a William and Mary graduate. Also on the panel will be Mercedes Boyle, a staff specialist for the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, Dianne Sorrell, large systems marketing manager for IBM, and Marty Sullivan, planning and women's programs manager for IBM.

Ms. Friedan will deliver a keynote address on "The Changing Role of Women" at 1:30 p.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom. Author of "The Feminine Mystique," Ms. Friedan founded the National Organization for Women in 1966 and served as the group's first president until 1970. A year later, she organized the National Women's Political Caucus. Since then she has lectured at a number of universities and meetings of women's groups and professional societies across the nation.

Wesley Wilson, special assistant to the president at William and Mary, will speak on "The Impact of the Law on Women in Business." Other seminar participants include Sarah Bane, director of William and Mary's "Women in Business" program; Karen Emden, assistant professor of business administration; Harriet Reid, director of career counseling; and Robert W. Brocksbank, manager of college relations and recruiting for Mobil Oil.

In addition, representatives from business schools at the University of Virginia, Virginia Commonwealth University, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, James Madison, George Mason, Old Dominion and William and Mary will describe their current MBA programs.

Liddell said the business school is currently seeking federal funds to supplement the $100,000 IBM grant so that similar seminars can be conducted in other areas of the Southeast.

The program is open to all undergraduate women as well as women currently pursuing or interested in entering business management careers. Although there is no charge for the seminar, participants are required to pre-register with the School of Business Administration by Nov. 4.

Faculty Recital Notes Anniversary Of Dohnanyi

The Music Department will present F. Donald Truesdell in a faculty piano recital on Sunday, Oct. 30, at 4 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Auditorium.

A feature of the program is the Rhapsody in F-sharp Minor by Ernst von Dohnanyi, whose birth one hundred years ago is being observed this year. The rhapsodic characteristic of the work is reminiscent of Liszt, while the style shows the influence of the Hungarian gypsy cimbalom. The program also includes sonatas by Mozart and Beethoven, and a set of pieces by Debussy.

Professor Truesdell has been with the Music Department since 1960. He earned degrees in composition and piano from the University of Michigan, and a D.M.A. in performance and pedagogy from the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester.

Truesdell has been active in many professional music organizations and is past president of the Virginia Music Teachers Association. He has played recitals at colleges and universities in Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland and Washington, D.C. in recent years.

The recital is open to the public without charge.

Shakespearean Papers Are Topic Of Botetourt Society Program

Laetitia Yeandle, curator of manuscripts at the Folger Shakespeare Library, Washington, D.C., will give an illustrated lecture on the Shakespeare manuscripts, Thursday, Nov. 3, in Botetourt Theatre at 4 p.m.

The public is invited to attend her lecture, which is being offered by the Botetourt Bibliographical Society. Sherry will be served following her presentation.

Yeandle holds an undergraduate degree from Trinity College, Dublin, and a degree in archive administration from the University of London.

She is currently textual editor of the "Tractates" volume of the complete works of Elizabethan theologian Richard Hooker and is co-editor of "Winthrop's Journal," a manuscript in the library of the Massachusetts Historical Society. She is also co-author of the "Manual of Elizabethan Handwriting."

Williamsburg Report

A weekly five-minute interview program produced and marketed to radio stations along the East Coast by the Office of Information Services.

November 7-13

CLEMENT CONGER, curator for the State Department and White House, is now starting a project to furnish the oldest house of a university president in the country with antiques from the Queen Anne and Chippendale periods. Conger explains how furniture can tell us about the tastes and preferences of the people who live in the house.

November 14-20

MITCHELL BYRD, ornithologist and professor of biology at the College, is spearheading a project to save the bald eagle, America's national emblem. Byrd says the United States may be the only country in the world to kill off its emblem with pollutants. With a team of expert tree climbers, Byrd thinks he has found every eagle's nest in Virginia--and he's only uncovered 34.
