At Business School's "Meet The Presidents Day"

Execs Discuss Crucial Business Issues

What happens to the tourist industry if the Arabs embargo oil again? Do business leaders really have a social conscience? What is the real economic outlook for 1978?

These and other questions will be answered this Thursday, February 23, when more than 60 of the nation's most successful business executives congregate at the School of Business Administration for "Meet the Presidents Day."

George A. Stinson, Chairman of National Steel Corporation, and Earl Butz, former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, will be among those participating in the day-long series of panel discussions and seminars designed to bring William and Mary students in contact with the world of business.

"This is one of the finest groups of business leaders we've had visit the Business School at one time," said Dean Charles Quittmeyer. "And with the topics they're scheduled to discuss, it's hard to say exactly what we should expect."

Stinson, a former chairman of the International Iron and Steel Institute, will lead a panel discussion on the steel import issue.

William B. Walton, vice-chairman of Holiday Inns, Inc., will speak on "What Happens to the Travel and Tourism Industry if the Arabs Embargo Oil Again?" The nation's number two industry, travel and tourism are described in business circles as "America's best-kept business secrets."

Leland E. Traywick, director of the Business School's Bureau of Business Research, will head a panel discussion on "Financial Planning and the Economic Outlook for 1978." Other panelists include Robert H. Malott, Chairman of FMC Corporation, and Edwin J. Coleman of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

"Social Conscience in Business--Dow Chemical's Approach" will be the topic of Joseph G. Temple, Jr., Dow's vice president for marketing. Four students in William and Mary's Master of Business Administration program will question Temple on the methods a business utilizes in trying to align its goals with those of society.

David E. Guerrant, chairman and president of Nestle Enterprises, Inc., will discuss "How to Succeed and Have Fun in the Food Industry--Even the Coffee Business."

A special program on "Women in Business" will be directed by M. Kathleen Conley, Dow Chemical's manager of financial and business services, and Sarah Bane, director of William and Mary's innovative "Women in Business" program.

New Members Appointed To Board of Visitors

Four new members have been appointed to the Board of Visitors by Governor John N. Dalton. All are alumni.

Named to three-year terms were C. Randolph Davis, Suffolk, Va.; Horace "Chip" Mann III, Richmond, Va.; William R. (Buster) O'Brien, Virginia Beach; and Henry T. Tucker, Jr., Chicago, Ill.

Davis, '50, president of the Society of the Alumni from 1971-75, is the only person in the 135 year history of the Society to serve four consecutive terms. Davis is vice president and general manager of the Ferguson Manufacturing Company of Suffolk. Active in church and community affairs, he was named Outstanding Young Man by the Suffolk Jaycees in 1959.

Horace E. "Chip" Mann, III, '77, the youngest of the new appointees, is currently on the campaign staff of former Governor A. Linwood Holton in his race for the U.S. Senate. Mann served in the General Assembly for five years as a page. He was a government/philosophy major, president of the F.H.C. Club and a member of Project Plus.

O'Brien received his law degree from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law in 1974 and his undergraduate degree from the University of Richmond. He is a partner in the Virginia Beach law firm of Brydges, Hudgins, Eye, Burt and O'Brien and was a candidate last year for the Virginia General Assembly. O'Brien played professional football for the San Francisco 49ers.

Tucker received a law degree from the University of Virginia after graduating from William and Mary in 1972. A member of both the Virginia and Illinois Bar Associations, he is a trust

Appropriations Committee Responds To President's Pleas, Restores Funding To Budget

Full funding for William and Mary's authorized number of teaching faculty has been restored to the 1978-80 maintenance and operation budget by the House of Delegates' Appropriations Committee.

The funding, for about 35 positions which had been eliminated in the Governor's recommended 1978-80 budget, is included in the total of $1,856,840 which the House Appropriations Committee added to William and Mary's projected budget.

The increase in William and Mary's budget authorized by the House committee is slightly above 6 percent, the largest of any of Virginia's 39 public institutions of higher learning. For doctoral-granting universities, the average increase was 2.2 percent.

The budget bill is now before the full House of Delegates for action this week. It goes then to the State Senate's Finance Committee and then to the Senate floor.

The Appropriations Committee's action came after a strong plea by President Graves to protect the College's quality by funding 100 percent of the authorized faculty strength. He appeared February 8 before the full Appropriations Committee and has met privately in recent weeks with key members of the legislature to explain William and Mary's needs. He was assisted by contacts made by members of the Board of Visitors and alumni volunteers.

According to President Graves' February 8 presentation, the amount required to maintain existing faculty strength at William and Mary in 1978-80 is $1,597,595, which has been added to the College's proposed budget. The remaining $259,245 added to the William and Mary budget was mostly for library acquisitions, particularly serials and periodicals for the Law Library.

For the two years, the House Appropriations Committee restored funding for about 103 teaching and research employees in higher education, one-third of them at William and Mary. Fifteen were restored at Norfolk State and 14 at VCU.

According to a summary prepared by the State Council of Higher Education, the College's maintenance and operations budget for 1978-80 now totals $41,996,585, or about 4.4 percent of the entire higher education budget for the Commonwealth.

Music Students To Perform In Duo Recital

Two juniors at the College, Nelda Casper of Richmond and Laurie Gescheider of Rockville, Md., will be featured in a duo piano recital Tuesday, February 28, at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Casper, a student of Vera Lendvai, will perform Mozart's Fantasia in C minor, Schubert's Impromptu, opus 142, and Rumanian Dance by Bartok.

Gescheider, a student of Yona Knorr and Claudia Stevens, will play Sonata in C Major by Scarlatti and Beethoven's Sonata in D Major.

Casper is concentrating in both music and physics. This year she is conducting an independent physics project analyzing the harmonic tones made by the piano. Next year she plans to conduct research in acoustics for her senior project.

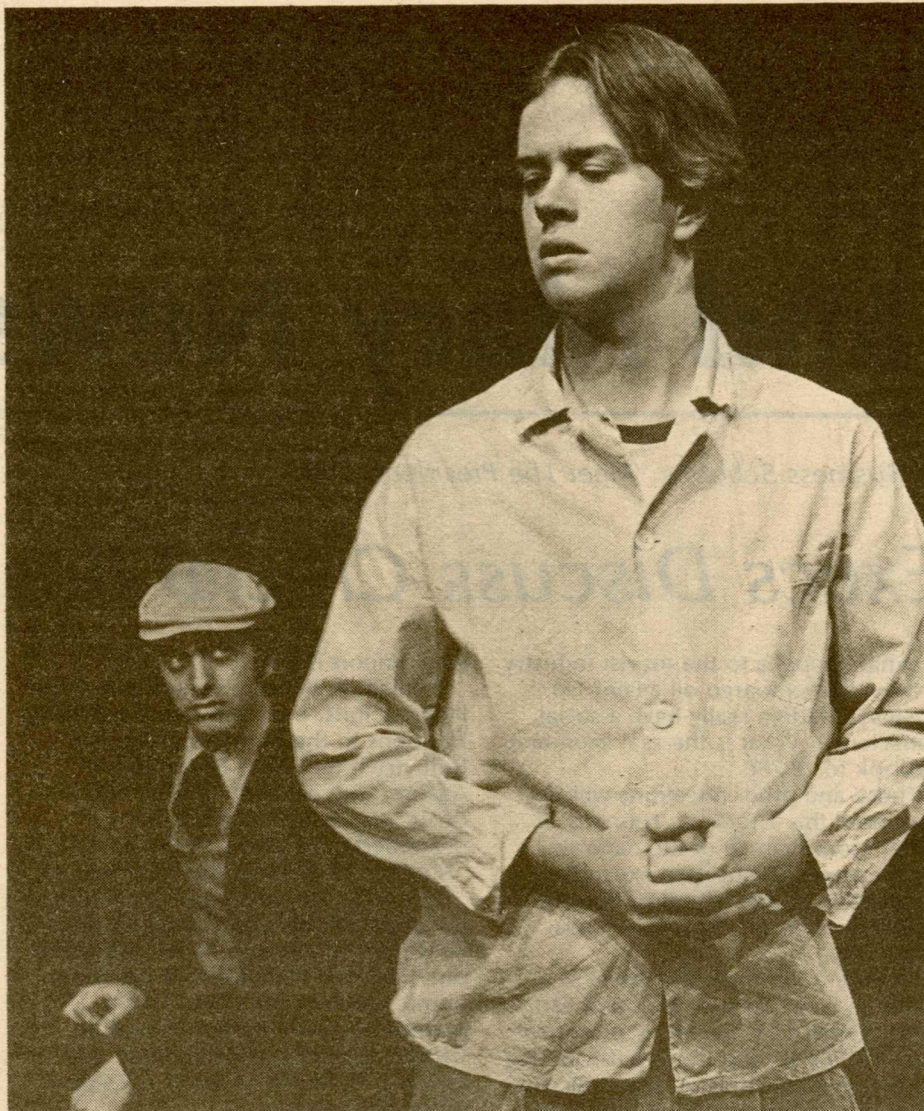

A music major, Laurie Gescheider plans to pursue her music interests after graduation, following a career either as a professional accompanist or as a college-level music instructor.

Indoor Badminton Tournament Set This Weekend

William and Mary's Badminton Team is sponsoring an invitational indoor tournament at Adair Gymnasium, Friday, February 24, from 6-11 p.m. and Saturday, February 25, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Men's and women's singles competition will be held Friday. Men's, women's and mixed doubles matches and the finals will be held Saturday. There is no admission charge.

Badminton Coach Catherine Scheibner, who is directing the tournament, said people may be surprised to see the difference between indoor and outdoor badminton. "There's no comparison; they are two completely different games," she said. "Indoor badminton is a much quicker game."

Last year was the first time the team had sponsored such a tournament, she said, and the response was so enthusiastic that the team decided to make it an annual event. About 60 men and women from colleges throughout the East participated.

McCann (Daniel Izzo) looks on as Stanley (Dylan Baker) explains he's not "the sort of bloke to cause any trouble" in a scene from Harold Pinter's The Birthday Party. This "comedy of menace" by England's best contemporary playwright will be presented February 22-25 at Phi Beta Kappa Hall by the William and Mary Theatre. For ticket information, call 253-4272.

Members are allowed to serve no more than two full terms. Miss Peebles and Mason will be eligible for reappointment to full four year terms next year.

New Curriculum Study Initiated

The undergraduate curriculum will come under close scrutiny over the next two years by a special review committee to be appointed by President Thomas A. Graves, Jr. The faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences has voted on a recommendation of the faculty educational policy committee calling for the review and recommendations for possible changes.

"A lot has happened in education since our last study. Students and faculty attitudes have changed, the political and economic climate is different. There have been changes in the academic marketplace. Isn't it our obligation to see if the curriculum that satisfied our needs then is still the best one for us?" asked Jack D. Edwards, dean of the faculty of arts and sciences.

The last curriculum study was conducted in 1969-70 and recommendations were implemented in 1971. Changes were designed to give students the opportunity for more flexibility in selecting their courses.

Edwards said the faculty would discuss and vote on any specific proposals presented by the committee. Differences about the curriculum would be thoroughly argued out when the committee completes its work, he added.

No matter how quickly the committee works, said Edwards, the total project will take about two years. He said he anticipated that the bulk of the work will be done during the summers.

"We are talking about changes that probably wouldn't go into effect until the 1980-81 year at the earliest," said Edwards.

In his yearly report last fall, President Graves, asked that high priority consideration be given to a curriculum study.

"The revision of 1970, when the curriculum was last reviewed, was a very good one for its time," said Graves in his report. "While many colleges were abandoning degree requirements completely, we established a set of flexible requirements which has a far better foundation than the preceding set."

The current curriculum has served its purpose well, said Graves, "but simply by virtue of its seven years of age it begs for reconsideration."

F. Donald Truesdell will present a faculty piano recital Sunday, February 26, at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Professor Truesdell has been a member of the William and Mary faculty since 1960. He has taught previously at Washington State University and the U.S. Navy School of Music.

He holds degrees from the University of Michigan and the Eastman School of Music.

He is a member of the American Musicological Society, the Sonneck Society, Music Teachers National Association and the College Music Society.

Music Club Donates $500 To Choir Tour

The William and Mary Choir has received a donation of $500 from the Wednesday Morning Music Club toward its European tour this spring.

The choir is seeking to raise $12,000 to help defray costs of a concert tour that will include performances at Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris and Westminster Abbey in London.

This is the first European tour for the William and Mary choir which will be directed by Frank Lendrim. Expenses will be covered either by donations or by the students themselves, since there are no funds in the university's budget for the trip.

The donation by the Music Club came from proceeds of the club's "Pops Concert," held last November at the Campus Center Ballroom. It was given in appreciation for the continued support of the College in the activities of the Music Club. The presentation was made at a club meeting at which several collegians presented a program of songs.
