SOPHOMORE RECEIVES MUNSTER SCHOLARSHIP

Jeanne Renee Meyer, a sophomore German and mathematics major, has been selected for the Munster Exchange Scholarship for 1978-79.

Selected for non-scholarship positions at Munster are Rebecca Ann Nass, a German major and Rebecca Mary Price, who is majoring in art history. Both are members of the sophomore class.

Charlene Regina Flanagan, a senior concentrating in Spanish, has been selected for a full grant under the Mutual Educational Exchange Program (Fulbright-Hays Act) for study in Portugal next year.

CHAMBER CHOIR TO PRESENT CONCERT

The Chamber Choir of Middle Tennessee State University, under the direction of Dale Voelker, will present a concert in the Wren Chapel, this evening at 8:30 p.m. The program will feature sacred and secular choral works from the Middle Ages through the nineteenth century. There is no admission charge.

STORASKA TALKS ON RAPE, ASSAULT

Fred Storaska will present a lecture on rape and assault prevention, "How to Say No to a Rapist - And Survive," Tuesday, March 28 at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom.

His lecture will be the final event of his visit to campus, which is being sponsored by the Panhellenic Council and will include several receptions and forums during the day. Storaska will also be available for questions following his lecture.

SMOOT DISCUSSES CLASSICAL GREEK DRAMA

Jean J. Smoot, associate professor and Editor of The Comparist at North Carolina State University, will lecture on "Classical Greek Drama and its Reverberations in Twentieth Century Literature," March 30 at 8 p.m. in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library.

This lecture is being sponsored jointly by the College Lectures Committee, the Department of Modern Languages and Literatures, Comparative Literature and Casa Italiana.

At Commencement Exercises

Barbara Jordan To Address Seniors

Congresswoman Barbara Jordan of Texas will give the address at Commencement, May 14.

The invitation to Miss Jordan was extended by the Board of Visitors following the recommendation of the senior class and its president Christopher Kelley of Amagansett, N.Y.

At commencement the College will confer honorary degrees upon Miss Jordan and two alumni, John Willis Tuthill '32, former U.S. Ambassador to the European Communities and Brazil and now President of the Salzburg Seminar in American Studies in Austria; and a San Diego industrialist, Walter J. Zable '37, founder and president/chairman of the board of Cubic Corporation.

Miss Jordan has represented the 18th Congressional District of Texas since January 1973. She is a member of the House Committee on the Judiciary, the House Committee on Government Operations, and the Steering and Policy Committee of the House Democratic Caucus.

She proposed amendments to the Voting Rights Act which expanded its coverage and provided for the printing of bilingual ballots and worked for the repeal of federal authorization for state "Fair Trade" laws which sanctioned vertical price fixing schemes. Miss Jordan also counts as one of her major legislative achievements the enactment of detailed mandatory civil rights enforcement procedures for the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and the Office of Revenue Sharing.

Miss Jordan has been named Democratic Woman of the Year by the Women's National Democratic Club. The Ladies Home Journal picked her as 1975 Woman of the Year, and in a poll by Redbook Magazine Miss Jordan was selected as top "Woman who could be President." Miss Jordan was also a keynote speaker at the 1976 Democratic National Convention and has received the distinguished Texan Award from the Texas Association of Broadcasters.

She is a member of the State Bar of Texas, the Massachusetts Bar, American Bar Association and the Texas Trial Lawyers Association. She maintains her membership in the NAACP and the Good Hope Baptist Church of Houston.

Miss Jordan attended public schools in Houston and graduated Magna Cum Laude from Texas Southern University with a B.A. degree in Political Science and History. She received a law degree in 1959 from the Boston University School of Law. She has since been awarded 24 honorary degrees.

"Evening of Dance" Concert Features Pure Abstract, Jazz

Dances which range from the pure abstract to Jazz will be presented by Orchesis in "An Evening of Dance," March 23, 24 and 25 in Phi Beta Kappa Hall at 8:15 p.m., at the College of William and Mary.

Each dance is an original composition choreographed and performed by members of the Orchesis Company.

There is no admission charge. The public is invited to attend.

The program opens with "Masquerade," choreography by Lynn Allison, which is in the vein of pure dance. "Tangents," by Lynn Whitlock, and "Sparkling Burgundy," by Kathy Jones, are similar dance experiments dealing with the interrelationships of space, movement and music.

"Exordium" by Karen Simmons suggests mystery and the occult, and the effect is heightened by the use of unusual mobile scenery.

The music of Debussy provides the background for "Degas With a Twist," by Nancy Antle, and "Shenanigans," by Sheryl Lukasik. The Degas dance is presented in three parts, "At the Ballet," "At the Milliners," and "At the Racetrack," each segment taking a whimsical look at some of the characters of Degas paintings. "Shenanigans," was inspired by children's games and the poetry of English Department Sponsors "Writers' Upheaval"

"Writers' Upheaval," March 27-30, will bring several well known poets and writers including W. D. Snodgrass and Raymond Federman for a three-day program of workshops and readings.

The program for the three days, designed by Peter Klappert of the English department, has been made possible by funds from the Department of English and the Committee on Lectures of the College, the William and Mary Review and grants from the Virginia Commission of the Arts and Humanities and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Snodgrass, a Pulitzer Prize winning poet, will give a slide lecture "Poems About Art," at 1:30 p.m., Wednesday.

Raymond Federman, critic, novelist and poet, whose recent novels include "Double Or Nothing," and "Take It Or Leave It," will take part in a panel discussion March 29 at 10:30 a.m. in Rooms A&B, of the Campus Center.

Students and non-students are encouraged to submit manuscripts for consideration by the poetry and fiction workshops to be held during "Writers Upheaval." All manuscripts must be typed and must reach the Graduate English Office in the Wren Building by 5 p.m., Friday. Manuscripts will not be returned.

One of the highlights of the program will be a presentation Wednesday of a one-act play, "Pecos Bill Meets the Trickster," by James L. Magnuson, following a fiction reading by Magnuson sponsored by the William and Mary Review.

"Pecos Bill Meets The Tricksters," won the Show Business Outstanding Achievement Award, in 1977. For the on-campus performance, L. Curry Worsham will play the part of Pecos Bill and Granville Scott will be Coyote. The director will be Sally Darling.

Video Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is a series of videotaped interviews with readings by poets and fiction writers. The series includes John Beecher, Galway Kinnell, Etheridge Knight, William Matthews, Ron Padgett, Leslie Silko and Bennie Lee Sinclair.

"Poetry In The Schools" will be a discussion of the program which has been in existence since 1966 and includes all 50 states and five special U.S. jurisdictions. Program participants will include Peggy Baggett and Lindsay Nolting, Artists in Schools Coordinators for the Virginia Commission of the Arts and Humanities, and writers

Fletcher, Godshall Present Concert

The music department will present a faculty recital Sunday, March 26, at 8:15 p.m. at Phi Beta Kappa Hall, featuring Mary Lou Eason Fletcher, soprano, accompanied by H. Edwin Godshall on the piano

Mrs. Fletcher, who has been on the Music faculty of the College of William and Mary since the fall of 1976, will perform arias by Handel, songs by Schubert and Strauss, and the rarely-performed "Quatre Chansons de jeunesse" by Debussy.

Mrs. Fletcher is a native of North Carolina and has appeared with the Boston University Opera Theatre, Colorado Opera Festival, and Music Academy of the West. She has studied with Adelaide Bishop, Iride Pilla, Allen Rogers, and Martial Singher.

Dr. Godshall is a lecturer in music at the College of William and Mary, where he teaches piano and organ. He also holds the position of Director of Music at St. Bede's Church.

Shreve

Ken McCullough, and Susan Richards Shreve. Peter Klappert and Fanny Ventadour both of whom have worked in the schools, will also be on hand to answer questions.

In his slide lecture, Snodgrass will discuss five paintings - Matisse's "The Red Studio," Vuillard's "The Mother and Sister of the Artist," Monet's "Les Nymphes," and Van Gogh's "The Starry Night" - and the poems he has written about them.

The Book Bus, a traveling exhibition of small press publications, will be on campus during "Writers Upheaval." It will be parked at the Campus Center and will be open for browsing March 28, 29 and 30.

Books by participating writers will be available at the bookstore in the lobby of the Campus Center and on the Book Bus.

Questions concerning events during Writers Upheaval and details of manuscript submission should be directed to Peter Klappert in the English department.

D.C. Trip Focuses on Environment

The next Washington Program has been designed to be especially appealing to students interested in the sciences and public policy.

"The Environment: Land, Water and Air," is the title of the April 3-5 program.

Applications and faculty recommendations for the program should be returned to the Office of the Associate Dean for Extramural Programs, Joseph Healey, James Blair Hall 209, by noon on Tuesday, March 28.

Applications for the Washington Program are available at the Campus Center Desk, College Switchboard in James Blair Hall, Dean Healey's office, the Swem Library Circulation Desk and from area coordinators.

Speakers for the program are being invited to discuss specific environmental issues not only from a technical viewpoint but also from a legal, economic and social standpoint. The ethical dimensions of the problems will also be explored.

Senator James A. McClure of Idaho; and Donald Goolsby with the U.S. Geological Survey and Carl E. Bagge, president of the American Coal Association; will be among the program speakers. Dean Healey has also invited an executive from the Exxon Corporation and members of the Congressional staff which helped draft the strip mining bill. He is also seeking Congressional representatives from Oregon to talk about the water quality project undertaken at the Wilamette River in Oregon.

The final program schedule, Healey hopes, will include an economist, to give students a perspective on environmental issues from many different points of view.

The 20 students for the program will be selected by a committee of faculty and students. Fee for the program is

ROTC Offers New Option

A new option is available to qualified sophomore students to participate in ROTC through the two-year program.

Lt. Col. Lawrence L. Mills, professor of military science, recently announced that under a newly adopted program, those students who so desire may be guaranteed of serving on active duty for as little as three months.

Colonel Mills said, that qualified sophomores and in some cases rising graduate students and first year law students can be assured of summer employment and may earn up to $2900 over the next two years. Mills added that the opportunities are excellent and the short commitment after graduation interferes very little with other career plans.

Many students are finding that the ROTC leadership experience and the Army commissioned officer status is considered a definite plus when interviewing for a job. Said Mills, "This is where the new option is really important because the graduate has the experience, has earned the commission and yet is free to take the job when it is offered."

$45 and includes lodging, food and transportation. As a break from study, the Washington group will attend a performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe" Tuesday evening by the D'Oyly Carte Company.

Interested students may get detailed information on this special program option by calling Capt. Jim Stone at 4366 or visiting him in Blow Gym 1.

Physics Receives NASA, Energy Grants

Grants totaling more than $50,000 have been awarded to two members of the Physics Department.

Jae H. Park has been awarded $32,398 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) in support of an ATMOS (Atmospheric Trace Observed by Spectroscopy) experiment scheduled to fly on Space-lab I.

This experiment will provide unprecedented high resolution spectra in the stratosphere as well as new data on solar lines, both within and outside of sunspots. Work will be undertaken in close cooperation with the Langley Research Center ATMOS science team.

The Department of Energy has awarded $20,000 to George M. Vahala for a year-long study of Nonlinear Magnetohydrodynamics.

Orchesis Concert Accents Variety

Gertrude Stein, which Howard Scammon will read as narrator for this dance.

Lisa Sagolla is choreographer for "16 West 10th Street," a dance which has been developed in the Jazz idiom both in sound and movement. Dancers in rehearsal clothes interpret impressions of city life accompanied by music by Springsteen.

The only solo performance on the program will be given by Lynn Whitlock, president of Orchesis. She will present "Diary," a dramatic interpretation of "The Diary of Anne Frank," with an original musical score composed by Robert Linquist and performed by an instrumental ensemble. Musicians include Maryanne Dawson, cello; Kathleen O'Kane, flute; Alice Averette, clarinet; Richard Lacey, snare drum; and Laurie Burdan, piano and celesta.

Orchesis will conclude its program in a burst of energy and movement in the presentation of a pure abstraction, "Colorspray," choreographed by Pam Black, in which the entire company of dancers will participate.

David Dudley is technical advisor for the show, and stage manager is Kim Haller. Lighting design is by Mark Stanley. Laurie Smith is in charge of sound.

Employment

The following positions are open to all qualified individuals; however, current faculty and classified employees will receive first considerations. Except where noted, inquiries and applications should be made at the Personnel Office, 201 James Blair Hall, and not at the department where the opening exists. Official Memorandum

From: George R. Healy
To: The College Community
Subject: Appointment of Search Committee

As announced in last week's William and Mary News, the position of Dean of the Undergraduate Program, which will be vacated by James Livingston's return to full-time teaching, will be continued and augmented by part-time general administrative responsibilities in the office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

A Committee charged with the search for candidates for this position has been appointed, and is now ready to receive applications. The President has asked, at my recommendation, that we limit the search for candidates for this position to present faculty members of the College.

The membership of the Committee is:

Robert E. Welsh, Professor of Physics (Chairman)
Fred L. Adair, Associate Professor of Education
Judith Ewell, Associate Professor of History
William C. Mims, Jr., '79
Kenneth E. Smith, Jr., Associate Dean for Student Activities and Organizations

James M. Naughton, national news editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer, has been named the 1978 recipient of the Heritage Award for excellence in journalism and will spend three days on campus March 30-April 1 as "Journalist in Residence."

The award is given annually by the Society of Collegiate Journalists at the college, recognizing a journalist of national stature for contributions to his profession.

The "in-residence" program is designed, not only to give the visiting journalist an opportunity to talk and work with collegiate journalists, but also to become involved with the academic aspects of campus life. He is scheduled to participate in several classes on Thursday and Friday in the government department and several other departments on campus, as well as seminars, rap sessions and open houses for publications members.

Naughton was selected by the society's membership said Debbie Johnson, president, because of his "outstanding writing" and perspective reporting skills. He was a recipient of the Society for Professional Journalist, Sigma Delta Chi's award for national reporting in 1973.

Naughton will receive his award at the annual publications banquet April 1 in the Wren Building. The banquet honors student journalists on campus and each editor will present certificates of merit to deserving staff members.

Until recently the Washington correspondent for the New York Times, Naughton began his career as a reporter in high school when he began working evenings and summers for the Painesville Telegraph, a small daily in Ohio.

He was graduated cum laude in journalism from the University of Notre Dame and served as an officer in the Marine Corps for two years. While stationed in Quantico, he worked part-time as a reporter for the Fredericksburg Free Lance-Star.

From 1962-69 he was a reporter for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, covering the police, federal court, city hall and politics beats. From 1969 until November, 1977 he was a correspondent in Washington for the New York Times. During that time, among the stories he covered was the rise and fall of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, the 1972 presidential candidacies of Sens. Edmund S. Muskie and George McGovern, the Congress, the White House, the Senate Watergate hearings and the house Judiciary committee proceedings into the impeachment of President Richard Nixon and the presidency and presidential candidacy of Gerald R. Ford.

Naughton is the third person to receive the Heritage Award for excellence in Journalism. Previous winners have been Roger Mudd of CBS News and Charles McDowell, Washington correspondent for the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Free U. Sponsors Douglas Talks

Beginning today, Free University will sponsor a series of talks by William Wade Douglas. Douglas will explore topics ranging from Karma and Reincarnation to Alchemy to Healing and Regeneration through Color. Following today's introduction, subsequent talks will be held on April 4, 11, 18, and 25. All meetings will begin at 8 p.m., in Campus Center Room C (the April 18 meeting is scheduled for the CC Gold Room).

Personal experiences, actual outdoor practice, and survival techniques characterize a new Free University series on the out-of-doors. The program begins at 6:30 p.m. this evening and will run April 4, 11, 18, and 25. All but the April 18 meeting will be in Room C of the Campus Center (on April 18, the program will be in the CC Gold Room).

The next session in the Decorative Arts and Williamsburg Gardens program will be a session on "Crafts and Craftsmen," March 25 at the Court House of 1770 beginning at 10 a.m.

Further information on Free University programs may be obtained from Cynthia Saunders, ext. 4207.

Chinese Course Renewal Depends On Interest

A pilot program of beginning courses in the Chinese Language (101-2) will be offered for the last time this fall under a three-year program which began in 1976.

Renewal will depend on student interest.

The courses are being offered through the Modern Languages Department under a cooperative arrangement between the College and the East Asian Languages and Area Center at the University of Virginia. Craig Canning, assistant professor of history, directs the Chinese language program and serves as a liaison for the Modern Languages department.

The agreement called for the Center to fund the first-year level courses (Chinese 101-2) for three years. The College agreed to fund the second-year level course (Chinese 201-2) for three years also beginning in the fall semester last year, 1977-78.

Eight students are currently taking the courses which require six hours of class and laboratory work each week as well as preparation time. A natural adjunct to a liberal arts curriculum, the study has also become attractive to educational pragmatists who see skills in an Eastern language as opening doors to several career possibilities. Several students currently enrolled in Chinese 202 have successfully petitioned the Committee on degrees to have their Chinese language study fulfill the language proficiency requirement.

Measles Cases Show Decrease

The number of new cases of German measles on campus has greatly diminished according to Dr. Richard Cilley at the Student Health Services.

Dr. Cilley said he hoped the recent outbreak would alert students to the importance of keeping routine immunizations current. He urged that students check their medical records especially with regard to regular measles and polio immunizations.
