Commencement Set Saturday in PBK

Some 216 degrees, 17 of them doctorates, will be conferred at the Summer School commencement, Saturday, August 19 in Phi Beta Kappa Hall at 1:30 p.m.

George R. Healy, Provost of the College and Vice President for Academic Affairs, will preside.

Principal speaker will be J. Wade Gilley, Secretary of Education, for Virginia.

Some 2,300 students have been enrolled for summer school classes this year according to Paul J. Clem, director.

Summer School has gone through many changes since it was first initiated in 1912. That year, students, books, supplies and teachers were moved to Dublin, Va., in Pulaski County so they could enjoy the cool, invigorating climate of the mountains.

Tents were available for those who wanted to take full advantage of the salubrious location. A total of 50 students registered. The curriculum included two or at the most four courses in English, zoology, philosophy, education, physics, Latin, history, German, French, mathematics and physical training. Tuition was $10 and classes were for men only.

In the future Summer School will undergo further changes. In June President Graves announced that following an extensive study of the Summer Sessions and Evening College by an ad hoc committee chaired by Cecil McCulley of the English Department and based upon Dr. Healy's recommendation, the decision has been reached to decentralize the administration of the Summer Session and Evening College.

Dr. Clem will continue in his present responsibilities and duties through December. The Office of the Summer Sessions and Evening College will then be discontinued.

In January Dr. Clem will move full time to the School of Education as Professor of Education.

President Graves said that many of the functions which are currently being carried out by the Office of Summer Sessions and the Evening College will need to be continued in one way or another under the decentralized approach through the offices of the several academic deans and of the Registrar's Office.

Graves said that he was hopeful that through the decentralization plan the College would be able to reduce administrative costs as one part of a collegewide approach to administrative cost reduction.

Everything grows in the summer - even luggage - it fit when I came - but maybe the car has shrunk.

For Professorship in Retailing

Business School Receives Mack Grant

The J. S. Mack Foundation has given $100,000 toward the establishment of the J. S. Mack Professorship in Retailing at the School of Business Administration.

The gift for endowment honors both John Sephus Mack, co-founder of the G. C. Murphy Company and one of America's most successful retailing executives, and his son James Stephen Mack, who followed in his father's footsteps after graduating from William and Mary with a bachelor of science degree in 1935.

The gift will be credited to the $19 million goal of The Campaign for the College. Over $13 million has been raised to date in the three-year campaign, with 11 months remaining.

The J. S. Mack Professorship in Retailing will be the fourth endowed position at the business school which was founded just 10 years ago. Other gifts to the Campaign for the College established both the Chessie Professorship, with focuses on transportation, and the Richard S. Reynolds, Jr. Professorship, which supports a scholar involved in the study of international business management. The school's first endowed professorship was established in 1976 by J. Edward Zollinger who was National Chairman of the Campaign for the College until his death.

The J. S. Mack professorship will give the school of Business Administration an added dimension in an area where it is most needed. "Our chief marketing expert made a survey of retailing courses at the best business schools across the nation and discovered that at William and Mary, there is a strong need for an additional course in retailing, particularly on the undergraduate level," said Charles L. Quittmeyer, dean of the school.

"It's appropriate that the J. S. Mack Foundation has selected a professorship in retailing at the College to honor a father and son who con-

First Seminar for Campus Police Stresses Unique Needs of CP Units

The first seminar devoted to the special needs of Campus Police officers was held on campus August 6-9.

Funded by a $1,800 grant from the Criminal Justice Services Commission of Virginia, the seminar was attended by approximately 45 campus police officers from across the state and from Delaware and Maryland.

Harvey Gunson, Director of Campus Police at William and Mary and immediate past president of the Virginia State Police Association, was instrumental in getting state funding for the seminar.

It is the first time, said Gunson, that the state has sponsored a seminar contributed a great deal to the retailing industry," said President Graves. "It also shows an increasing awareness in the business world of the contribution our business school is making to the education of the business leaders of tomorrow."

The J. S. Mack Foundation, which was established in 1935 by John Sephus Mack, provides, among other actions, grants to colleges for use in faculty self-improvement projects. It also provides funds for medical service, civic and public welfare, churches, hospitals, community housing and public exhibitions.

The senior Mack was the driving force behind one of the nation's largest and most successful retail chains. He and co-founder Walter C. Shaw purchased a small group of "dime stores" from the George C. Murphy estate in 1911. Mack served as the firm's president from 1912 until his death at age 60 in 1940.

James Stephen Mack followed in the tradition established by his father, moving up from the position of management trainee through the executive ranks of the Murphy Company to the position of president and chairman of the board, the title held at the time of his death in 1968.

"The Murphy Company's founders had a great concern about the availability of properly-educated leaders for chain store retailing," said S. Warne Robinson, chairman and chief executive officer of the G. C. Murphy Company and a William and Mary graduate. "Establishment of this professorship in retailing by the J. S. Mack Foundation will continue significantly to resolution of those original concerns."

Today the G. C. Murphy Company includes over 535 G. C. Murphy stores and Murphy's Marts in 24 states and the District of Columbia. Sales for 1977 were $664.7 million.

tailored to campus policing which is a specialty. Members, he said, need a specialized type of training in addition to regular police training.

Lex Eckenrode, Assistant Director, Criminal Justice Services Commission, gave the opening talk.

Several members of the faculty and administration also participated as seminar speakers. They included the following: Larry L. Guenther, associate professor of sociology; Wesley Wilson, Assistant to the President; W. Samuel Sadler, Dean of Students; Ed Derringe, Business Manager, Athletic Department; Lt. Richard Cumbee, William and Mary Police; and Harvey Gunson.

Newsmakers

Henry E. Mallue, Jr., assistant professor of business administration, has recently had two convention papers published. "Confusion in Dade County - or - Some Judges Never Learn" and "To By-pass Point East Management, Dial A.T.&T.: A Threshold Attack on Condominium Tying Arrangements" have been published in Selected Papers of American Business Law Association Regional Proceedings, Vol. 1, 1978.

William G. Poole, Jr., associate professor of mathematics and computer science, had the following paper published: "Incomplete Nested Dissection for Solving n by n Grid Problems," SIAM Journal on Numerical Analysis 15 (August 1978). The paper was co-authored by Alan George and Robert G. Voigt.

Mark Gulesian, associate professor of education, spoke on "What Achievement Tests Don't Measure," at the Virginia Testing Conference, August 7, 8 at the Sheraton Inn, sponsored by the Virginia Department of Education.

Cynthia Null, assistant professor of psychology, attended a European meeting on June 15, on Psychometrics and Mathematical Psychology in Uppsala, Sweden, and presented a paper "A Monte Carlo Investigation of Initial Configuration Strategies in Kyst". Recently, Dr. Null attended a Symposium on the Recognition and Classification of Aural Signals, on June 29, and presented a paper, "Auditory Perception: Recommendations for a Computer Assisted Experimental Paradigm". Both papers were written with Forest Young of the University of North Carolina.

Carl A. Roseberg, professor of fine arts, served as a one-man jury for the Chesapeake Bay Arts Association's 17th annual outdoor festival held in Norfolk, August 5, 6.

An article entitled "The effects of reinforcement and strategy training on impulsive responding" by Pamela M. Cole, former graduate student, and Deborah G. Hartley, department of psychology, appeared in the June issue of Child Development magazine.

Fire Department and Rescue Squad Help Train Residence Hall Coordinators in CPR Skills

Residence Hall Area Coordinators Ginger Nobles and Peter Garland have added a new emphasis to this year's Resident Assistant (RA) Fall Training Program.

Utilizing the services of the Williamsburg Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Nobles and Garland are arranging a series of Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) training sessions. Under the direction of Fire Marshal Bob Bailey, the 130 undergraduate staff members will learn the basics of artificial respiration combined with cardiac massage methods.

"We added the CPR training to our regular sessions on advising as an experiment last year," says Garland, and the response from the kids was so positive that we decided to continue the program.

Using practice mannequins designed for CPR training, all of the staff members will be thoroughly drilled by Bailey and his assistants during the evening sessions. And, as well as orienting the students to heart attack situations, emphasis will also be placed on the use of CPR skills in other emergencies such as drowning, electrical shock, and choking.

"All of the RAs will be expected to take a written exam and skills test before they are certified," said Ms. Nobles. "But the best part of the training is that it will prepare our RAs mentally, as well as physically, for emergencies that they are very likely to encounter in Williamsburg."

Personnel Bulletin

"EMPLOYEES' DAYS"

As a token of the esteem and appreciation of the College community for our employees, the following dates have been designated as "Employees' Days" for football games at William and Mary:

September 9, 1978 -- Virginia Military Institute
November 4, 1978 -- the Citadel

A total of 100 complimentary tickets for each game will be issued to Permanent College employees who have an annual salary that does not exceed $7032.00 as of July 1, 1978. College employees with long service and retirees who fall within the stated salary limitation will be given preference. Eligible individuals may obtain the complimentary tickets by applying in person at the College Personnel Office.

Employees are advised that they may purchase additional tickets at reduced rates through the William and Mary box office.

PERSONNEL RECORDS

It is the responsibility of each employee to advise the College Personnel Office whenever a change in their personnel records is appropriate. Changes such as the beneficiary of their VSRS Life Insurance Policy; home address and/or telephone number; date of birth; marital status; attainment of an educational degree or certificate; (or any other evidence that may qualify the employee for promotion) should be reported in writing to the College Personnel Office. Employees, by appointment, may review their personnel files in the Personnel Office to insure that the information contained in the file is current and correct.

LABOR DAY HOLIDAY, 1978

Labor Day, September 4, 1978 is a legal holiday for permanent classified employees. Since this date falls on Monday and classes will be in session on that day, normal service must be maintained. The responsibility for maintaining normal operating services rest with the Department Head.

A leave slip must be submitted to the Personnel Office for any permanent classified employee who takes the holiday. Permanent classified employees who are required to work on this holiday are urged to take the compensatory leave earned as soon thereafter as possible in order to avoid excessive leave accumulation. Hourly employees who work on this holiday will be paid at their regular hourly rate.

EMPLOYEE RECOGNITION AWARD PROGRAM

The College of William and Mary initiated a program April 30, 1973, which included the recognition of permanent classified employees who demonstrate outstanding performance and initiative as indicated below:

Members of the College staff who continually perform their duties beyond the normal job requirement as shown by their annual service ratings and other supporting evidence will be recognized. Employees may also be recognized for outstanding performance of a special task beyond normal job expectations. Recommendations should be submitted in writing to the appropriate Dean or Department Head for comments and endorsement. If approval is recommended by all supervisors concerned, the primary recommendation and the endorsements should then be forwarded to the College Personnel Office. Two classified employees were recognized during calendar year 1976, and one employee was recognized in 1977, in this manner for their performance.

Employees are also encouraged to recommend ways to save money, improve efficiency and promote safety at the College. Recommendations should be submitted in writing by the employee directly to the College Personnel Office, and should include an outline of current and proposed methods of operation, and how changing them will benefit College operating effectiveness. Recommendations will not be considered for award if a similar suggestion has been accepted or rejected within the past twenty-four months; if it is a matter of routine attention, obvious repair or maintenance; if it is a personal grievance or request; or if it is a matter not completely controlled by the College of William and Mary. The Personnel Office will provide assistance in preparing such recommendations.

Winners of citations for performance or accepted suggestions will receive a $25 U.S. Savings Bond. Each employee who receives three or more such citations during the calendar year will receive an additional $25 Savings Bond and will be named Employee of the Year. However, a maximum of only three persons may be selected annually for this award.

Supervisors at all levels are encouraged to promote this program within their areas of responsibility.

Director of Personnel

DESIGNATIONS FOR OUTGOING MAIL

Recently I have had called to my attention by the Campus Post Office supervisor the fact that more and more types of outgoing mail are being stamped "FIRST CLASS" at the point of origin. These include catalogues, books, brochures, and other such bulky material.

This is an appeal to each of you:

PLEASE CAUTION THE PEOPLE WHO PREPARE YOUR OUTGOING MAIL TO USE THAT "FIRST CLASS"
DESIGNATION MOST JUDICIOUSLY, ONLY FOR ITEMS WHICH REQUIRE FIRST CLASS HANDLING.

With the first-class rate at 15¢ per ounce, there is a big gap between that rate and the special rates for books, catalogues, and other such items. For information as to rates for specific categories, please call the Campus Post Office, Ext. 4491.

As an indication of the magnitude involved in terms of dollars, I would point out that during a three-week period in July we used $9,500 in postage! We definitely are not budgeted for such use throughout the year.

Accordingly, I urge you to exercise as tight control over your outgoing mail as you do over your M & O budgets; we must reduce this postage usage, and soon.

Thank you for your usual fine cooperation.

Vice-President for Business Affairs

Meet The Duchess Receptionist in Ewell Is Talented Singer

Anne McCartney, receptionist at the President's House leads a double life - she's also a "Duchess".

Her hands fly over the typewriter keys with great efficiency - and they are also capable of skipping across the keyboard of a piano with equal dexterity.

The voice that sounds warm and pleasant over the telephone can make you chuckle belting out a barbershop chorus and just as easily move you to tears singing a poignant operatic aria.

Singer in Residence for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation for over a decade until her retirement in April, Anne has entertained presidents, prime ministers and ambassadors as well as less august, but equally appreciative, local audiences.

Anne has also been a soloist with the Bruton Parish Church choir and choir-mistress for the youth choirs at the church.

Her versatility in the musical field is impressive. She directs and sings with the Dukes of Gloucester Street, an all-male barbershop chorus which performs Monday evenings at the Hospitality House. She's known as the Dukes' "Duchess".

Anne gave up singing as a full-time job because there just wasn't enough local support. "I just couldn't pay the bills," she explained. She opted to stay in Williamsburg rather than going "the New York route" because she believed in local talent, and still does.

Anne has many stories to tell about the VIPS she has sung for. She says she will never forget her encounter with an Australian prime minister who was full of nationalistic fervor.

"Not having anything Australian to sing for him I chose "Rule Britannia" said Anne. "When I started singing he banged his fist on the table but I kept on singing. Afterwards he laughed and said that Australia should have a national anthem of its own - which it does now."

One of her favorite audiences included the Shah of Iran and his wife. "I liked them," recalled Anne. "They were very responsive to our music."

She also sang for Gerald Ford when he was in the White House and the late Hubert Humphrey when he was vice president.

Anne still does special assignments for Colonial Williamsburg and will sing in a Palace Concert during the Christmas season.

A 1958 graduate of the College, Anne worked before on campus in admissions with H. Westcott Cunningham, who went on to become Director of Christopher Newport College and is now Headmaster of the Pingry School.

IEAHC Professor Receives Grant-In-Aid from ACLS

Norman S. Fiering, editor of publications at the Institute of Early American History and Culture and a member of the history faculty has received a $900 grant-in-aid from the American Council of Learned Societies.

Fiering will use the grant to support his research into seventeenth and eighteenth century moral philosophy in England and America. He has already accepted a fellowship from the National Humanities Center in Research Triangle Park, North Carolina, and will spend the 1978-79 term working with other scholars at the center.

The American Council of Learned Societies held their national competition in January and selected Fiering and 105 other scholars from 73 academic institutions to conduct post-doctoral research in the humanities and related social sciences. The program has been made possible by grants from The Ford Foundation and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Shakespeare Festival Offers W&M Folk Reduced Ticket Rates

If you haven't seen any of the plays being given this summer by Virginia Shakespeare Festival in Phi Beta Kappa Hall, run, don't walk, to the ticket office.

The reviewers have been generous with their praise of "The Taming of the Shrew," "Twelfth Night," and "Romeo and Juliet."

There are just six productions left. The final performance of the Festival, "Taming of the Shrew" will be given Sunday evening, August 20. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Reduced ticket prices are available for members of the William and Mary community, staff and faculty. All general admission tickets are $2. To take advantage of the special price, please identify your affiliation with the College when you get your ticket.

The box office in Phi Beta Kappa Hall is open daily from 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Telephone orders (ext. 4272) must be picked up by 8:15 p.m. on the night of the performance. Reserve seat tickets are $5 and $4.

The praise of the critics has been welcomed news to actors, directors and production crews who have been working extremely hard to make the Festival a success.

Cecil McCulley in the Virginia Gazette said of "The Taming of the Shrew," "... there is a special quality well justifying the admission and rewarding spectators of all ages."

Tim Mortan of the Virginian Pilot and the Ledger Star said, "Productions of Shakespeare have been a tradition in Williamsburg... George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, each a lover of Shakespeare, were frequent visitors... I doubt that either ever saw a much better Shakespeare than I saw Friday night. Please go to Williamsburg."

Kathy Schuille in the Times-Herald said the play was "a polished, confident slice of bawdy, farcical Shakespeare, rubbed to a glistening shine with young talent."

Writing in the Daily Press, Vianne Webb said, "... wonderfully funny and done with professional thoroughness."

"Romeo and Juliet" will be playing tonight and Thursday evening.

"The Taming of the Shrew" will be played Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday evenings. The final performance of "Twelfth Night" is scheduled on Friday evening.

"I told you guys to get me tickets before they are all sold out" (Carmella Maurizi as Katherine berates Jeffrey West and Terry Aselford in a scene from the Taming of the Shrew)

School of Education Sponsors Personnel/Guidance Workshop

Dr. Norman C. Gysbers, professor of education at the University of Missouri and past president of the American Personnel and Guidance Association, was one of the featured speakers at a five-day career counseling and guidance workshop here July 31-August 4.

Fred L. Adair and Kevin E. Geoffroy of the School of Education faculty coordinated the workshop. Some 60 counselors and administrators in the state representing all levels of education from elementary school to college attended. Topics of discussion concentrated on all phases of counseling, including work with the handicapped, working with gifted and talented students, counseling minorities, professional assertion for counselors and sex stereotyping in careers.

John Cook, supervisor of guidance services for the State Department of Education in Richmond, discussed the different facets of Virginia's guidance program. Newell Anderson, assistant supervisor of guidance services, will review the use of the "Dictionary of Occupational Titles," a new reference book in career guidance and counseling.

"There is as much sex stereotyping of males in careers as there is of women," says coordinator Geoffroy. "The public hears a lot about how it affects women but there is an equally large number of males who would like to break confining stereotypes. Sex stereotyping puts a lot of expectations on a male worker that control what he does in life and how he behaves."

Geoffroy adds that boys in school tend to score much higher anxiety levels than females when the topic of achievement is mentioned. He says that the expectations placed on males sometimes have dire consequences--a shorter life expectancy due to more accidental as well as disease-caused deaths.

Males also become more guarded with their feelings, which causes additional anxiety. "When males talk to each other, they tend to talk around their feelings and concerns," says Geoffroy. "Females, on the other hand, seem to be able to open up with each other and talk more freely about how they feel."

An address of welcome to participants was delivered by James M.

Yankovich, dean of the School of Education.

James E. Forrester of Alternatives, Inc., spoke on sex stereotyping in careers, currently a "hot" issue in the counseling field.
