At the Dance (In the Good Old Days)

"Conduct on the part of freshmen at the first Saturday night dance was not all that could be expected. They persisted in having a stage line in the middle of the floor and showed in general a complete lack of understanding of college custom. Breaking an old man several times in succession and breaking on Home Sweet Home are not considered to be good taste, to say the least.

Private Support Is Increasing

Private voluntary support of the College amounted to nearly $3.8 million in 1977-78, an increase of more than $600,000, or 20 percent, over the previous year.

"I think this clearly demonstrates that our alumni and friends, as well as corporations and foundations across the country, are realizing that William and Mary has a very real need for increased private support," said President Thomas A. Graves, Jr. "I also believe that the momentum we've established during the Campaign for the College has helped tremendously in our efforts to increase private giving. We can only hope now that the final year of the Campaign will be our best year ever for private support."

Gifts and grants from individuals, corporations, foundations and other organizations during the 12-month period ending June 30, 1978, totalled a record $3,783,100.02. It is the second consecutive year private gifts to the College have exceeded $3 million.

Last year, the College received $3,181,760.20 in private gifts.

According to Warren Heemann, vice president for development, this year's total of nearly $3.8 million consists of cash or properties in hand and includes no pledges, testamentary commitments or government grants.

Alumni gave more than $876,200 to the College, including a record $301,602 to the William and Mary Fund. This is the first year the William and Mary Fund, which benefits the undergraduate program and supports the programs of the Society of the Alumni, has exceeded $300,000 in cash receipts. In 1978-79, the College is working to increase the William and Mary Fund by one-third to $400,000.

In other categories, gifts included $371,802.59 from corporations and businesses; $520,941 from non-alumni individuals; $1,988,589 from foundations; and $25,511 from non-alumni and non-church groups.

The College is in its final year of the Campaign for the College, a 3-year fund-raising drive that seeks to raise $19 million. The College has now received in cash or commitments $14 million of its $19 million goal. In the final year, the College is emphasizing solicitation of its more than 30,000 alumni, with regional dinners and receptions nationwide.

Heemann said that more than 2,000 alumni and friends are assisting the College on a voluntary basis in its fund-raising efforts.

Heemann said that in the seven years of the administration of President Graves gift revenues to the College have increased by a dramatic 700 percent -- from $462,548 in 1971-72 to this year's nearly $3.8 million.

Of the past year's $3.78 million, gifts for capital purposes such as endowment and of real and personal property, including art and antiques, totalled $2,364,506, an increase of approximately $1 million over last year. For current operations, the amount given was $1,418,593.

Epps on Politics in Virginia Slated at Wednesday Forum

"Creativity and Change in Virginia Political Thought" will be the topic of a talk Wednesday evening, Sept. 27, by Garrett Epps, author of "The Shad Treatment," for the Project Plus Forum, 7:30 p.m. in Millington Auditorium.

Native of Richmond and graduate of Harvard '72, Epps received a master's degree in creative writing from Hollins College, 1975.

He has spent most of his active career as a political reporter for the Richmond Mercury. In 1977 "The Shad Treatment" won the Lillian Smith Award of the Southern Regional Council for the best southern novel of the year. The novel deals with the politics and history of Virginia.

In June, the Washington Post Sunday Magazine published a provocative article by Epps dealing with Virginia politics from Jefferson to Dalton.

Robert M. Engman, who will be sculptor-in-residence in the fine arts department next semester, has an exhibit of his work on display in Andrews Gallery. He poses here with one of his bronzes which is included in the show. Engman has exhibited internationally from Paris to Sao Paulo, Brazil, and his sculpture is represented in the collections of the Museum of Modern Art and the Whitney Museum, both in New York; the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston; Yale University; Joseph Hirshorn Collection, and many others. The exhibit will be up until Oct. 13. The gallery is open weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Fried/Ohlsson Open Concert Series Thursday

The William and Mary Concert Series opens Thursday, Sept. 28, with a performance by the violin/piano duo of Miriam Fried and Garrick Ohlsson.

The concert will be held in Phi Beta Kappa Hall beginning at 8:15 p.m. According to Ken Smith, associate dean of students for activities and organizations and director of the Concert Series, a limited number of season tickets are still available. General admission tickets are on sale at the Campus Center and will also be on sale at the box office in Phi Beta Kappa Hall the evening of the concert. Tickets are $3 for William and Mary students and employees and $4 for the general public.

Fried and Ohlsson will select for their concert works from Beethoven and Schubert in honor of the 150th anniversary of Beethoven's death in 1977 and Schubert's death in 1978. Their performances, both in this country and abroad, have earned them high critical acclaim.

Since becoming the first woman to win the prestigious Queen Elizabeth of Belgium Competition in Brussels in 1971, Miriam Fried has appeared with virtually every major orchestra in North America and Europe.

Garrick Ohlsson has firmly established himself as one of the leading pianists in the concert world today since winning the Chopin International piano competition in Warsaw in 1970.

Fried was born in Rumania in 1946 and emigrated to Israel with her parents when she was two. There, she began her violin studies at the age of eight and was concertizing by the time she was eleven. She won a scholarship from the American-Israel Cultural Foundation for study at the Rubin Academy of Music in Tel Aviv and later studied at the Conservatory of Music in Geneva, Indiana University, and the Juilliard School of Music. A protegee of Isaac Stern, she won first prize in the 1968 Paganini International Competition in Genoa, Italy. The following year she made her debut at Carnegie Hall.

Ohlsson, who was born in White Plains, N.Y., began studying the piano at the age of eight with Thomas Lishman at the Westchester Conservatory of Music. At 13 he became a pupil of Sascha Gorodnitsky of the Juilliard School and later studied with Olga Barabini and Rosina Lhevinne. Currently, he works with Irma Wolpe.

Last season he appeared with the Los Angeles, Baltimore, Detroit, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, San Francisco, New York, Buffalo and Chicago symphonies, as well as giving solo recitals in several European cities. This season he has an equally demanding schedule with appearances with the Philadelphia, Vancouver, Toronto, Atlanta, Denver and Sacramento symphonies, recitals in New York, Boston, Victoria, Washington, D.C., and Berkeley, as well as performances in Europe.

Grants and Research Applications Available for Faculty Members

Application forms and policy statements for summer research grants for 1979 and semester faculty research assignments are now available in Room 6 of the Brafferton.

All members of the faculty, as defined by the by-laws of the several faculties of the College who are not emeritus and who hold a contract for full-time employment from the College with a commitment for renewal beyond one year, are eligible to apply for the summer grants. The stipend is $2,000.

Semester faculty research assignments are available to all full-time members of the faculty as defined by the by-laws of the several faculties of the College. Worthy proposals will be funded on the basis of seniority of service to the College, as described in the policy statement.

Faculty members may elect any semester during the two academic years 1979-80 and 1980-81 for research. Recipients may also elect to request leave for a full academic year at one-half of their ten-month salary. Stipend for the semester assignment is one-half of the recipient's ten-month base salary.

For both the summer grant and semester assignments, sixteen copies of applications should be sent directly to Dale Hoak, Chairman, Committee on Faculty Research, Department of History, Morton Hall.

Deadline for summer grants is midnight, Oct. 29; for semester assignments, midnight, Nov. 17.

English Students Don't Work as Hard

Rolle Students Enjoying Exchange Visit Here

The three exchange students in education from Rolle College, England, Caroline Watkins, Michelle Macey and Diane Collinson, have already settled in to the routine of campus life.

They are very complimentary about the friendliness of fellow students who have helped them get oriented; have been wilting with the heat; think students here work too hard; and find it difficult to get to 8 o'clock classes.

Work starts about 9 o'clock for students at the small English college of Rolle in Exmouth, Devon, just outside Exeter on England's "Riviera Coast."

The school is a compact unit, a stone's throw from the residence halls. The girls find the campus here large by comparison.

Caroline is a third year student and has already had two classroom practicums. Under the English system, students who plan to be teachers spend five weeks each year in the classroom. The first practicum gives tutors an opportunity to see if the student shows the aptitudes to be a good teacher. If students do not measure up, it is suggested that they try another career. The third year grade for classroom work is especially important as this grade is sent to prospective employers. Teaching jobs in England are hard to come by so grades or "marks" are very important.

To get to college the girls were given "places" on the basis of their record on "O" level examinations they took at age 15 and "A" level examinations they took at 18. Students must have at least two passes in "A" levels for university study which is financed by local education associations.

Caroline thinks the idea of a series of practicums is a good one. She feels it gives the student a good idea of what her chosen profession will really be like; an opportunity to work with children; and the advantage of being able to relate course work to classroom experiences.

Caroline is facing the crucial third year evaluation when she returns home and is currently researching a thesis on religion which is also due when she gets back in December.

Each of the three girls as a specialty outside of education. For Caroline it is religion; for Diane, French; and for Michelle, dance. Diane hopes to become a language teacher and will spend a year in France as part of her training.

There's nothing like Homecoming at Rolle so the forthcoming festivities in October will be a new experience for the English visitors. Rolle students, however, have many opportunities for fun. "Rag Week" at Rolle is a series of dances, parties and a fancy dress parade all staged for charity. "Reading Days" at Rolle are for relaxation or vacation, added holidays, and are not tied to examination periods. Rolle students get a month off at Easter but classes do not end until July.

Rolle is on the quarter system so there are "Coming Up" and "Going Down," dances that accompany the beginning and ending of each term and the formal "Butterfly Ball," in honor of "leavers," at the end of the year.

Diane is amazed that girls on her hall stay up all night studying or typing papers. The English apparently are earnest but not fanatical about study. Students are more relaxed at home, she said.

"We were really surprised that a campus this big could be so friendly," said Michelle, who would nominate her RA, Sharon Jacobs, as "Friend of the Year," for her helpfulness. Diane is sure Wendy Fujimoto is the best roommate on campus.

While all three praised the friendliness of students here they all agreed that American students are not used to having people just "pop in" for a chat unannounced as English students are.

This is the second year for the exchange program. Mary Ann Dawson, Marlene Press and Don Mansfield left this weekend for Rolle. They probably will soon get used to the luxuries of 9 o'clock classes and the maid service in the residence halls that their counterparts miss.

Classics Club To Hear Robert Deryck Williams

Robert Deryck Williams, professor of classics at Reading University, here under the Eminent Scholar Program, will be speaking to the Classics Club tomorrow afternoon, Sept. 27, at 4:30 p.m. in Morton Hall, room 39, on Virgil.

Ronald N. Giese, academic advisor to international programs in the School of Education (l) and Paul Unger, professor of education and coordinator of international programs in education, go over study plans with (l-r) Michelle Macey, Diane Collinson and Caroline Watkins.

Women's P.E. Gets $50,000

The McGregor Fund of Detroit, Michigan, has given the College $50,000 in support of women's athletics.

The College, with the approval of the McGregor Fund, the Board of Visitors and the appropriate Governor's offices, will use the money to convert a portion of the locker room in Adair Gymnasium into a weight room and training area.

The grant from the McGregor Fund will be used to construct partitions, to extend the ventilation, electrical and plumbing systems, and to purchase a whirlpool, hydrocollator, icemaker and training tables. The funds will also be used to create two small offices, one for the College's new trainer for women athletes and the other for physical education staff.

The new training facility will include a weight room with a universal gym. Millie West, head of women's physical education, says that the gift comes to the College at an ideal time. "Women are now using weight training and conditioning much more," she said. West noted that the locker room area being converted is not used very heavily, and that the new training room would provide students in the physical education program with a facility "that has never been available before."

The gift was made to the Campaign for the College, a three-year fund-raising effort scheduled to conclude next June. The College has currently received gifts and pledges of more than $14 million toward its $19 million goal.

Robert C. Walker, president of the United Virginia Bank in Williamsburg, offers congratulations to Scott Cousino of Fairfax, Va., winner of the 1978 UVB scholarship awarded to a first-year student in the Master of Business Administration degree program at the College of William and Mary's School of Business Administration. At left is College President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., and at right, Charles L. Quittmeyer, dean of the School of Business Administration.

UVB Scholarship Goes To Cousino

Scott Cousino of Fairfax, a first year student in the MBA degree program at the School of Business Administration, has been awarded the United Virginia Bank Scholarship for 1978.

This scholarship is based upon a $1,500 commitment each year by the United Virginia Banks. The money is used to provide $750 to a first year student and $750 to a second year student in the MBA program. Raymond H. Johnson, who received the scholarship last year as a first year student, will continue to receive the scholarship support for his second year of study.

In addition to the funds committed to the scholarship, United Virginia Bank of Williamsburg will offer each recipient of the scholarship part-time employment during each of the two academic years required to complete the MBA degree program and full-time employment during the summer period between the recipient's first and second year of study.

To be eligible for the scholarship, applicants must be domiciled in Virginia, be admitted as regular, full-time MBA students, demonstrate a valid need for financial assistance and a genuine interest in and intention to follow a career in commercial banking in Virginia after graduation.

For Student Scholarships

Endowment Established with duPont Funds

The College has received $50,000 from the Jessie Ball duPont Religious, Charitable and Educational Fund to establish an endowment for support of student scholarships.

Born in 1884 in Northumberland County, Virginia, where the Ball family had lived for many years, Mrs. duPont made several contributions to the College before her death in 1970. In 1941, she established the Thomas Ball Scholarship Fund in memory of her father, who attended William and Mary in 1855. In 1953, she set up the Jessie Ball duPont Special Reserve Fund to support the program in law and taxation and to purchase books for the law library. Between 1964 and 1970, she donated more than $75,000 to support student scholarships.

Mrs. duPont received an honorary doctor of laws degree from the College in 1954 and was named a trustee emeritus for life by the Endowment Association in 1969. In 1964, one of the College's largest and most modern residence halls was named in her honor.

New Faculty Are Announced

Delores Pesce, a graduate of Goucher College and the Peabody Conservatory of Music, has been appointed instructor of music for the semester.

Alan C. Stewart, professor of music, has requested a semester leave due to illness.

Pesce was a Fulbright scholar for research in music history and theory in Vienna last year. She has taught at Johns Hopkins, Goucher, Dundalk, and Essex community colleges in the Baltimore area and, since 1972, has given private piano lessons.

Thomas D. Coe and Edwin E. Ellis have both been appointed lecturers in psychology for this semester.

Coe, who holds a doctorate in psychology from the University of Tennessee, is Unit Chief of the adolescent unit at Eastern State Hospital.

Ellis is Assistant to the Chief Psychologist, Psychological Training Director, Eastern State Hospital. Last year Ellis was mental health psychologist and team coordinator for the Brookside Park Family Life Center, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Wisconsin Professor To Address Physics Colloquium On Violins

Professor William F. Fry, University of Wisconsin at Madison, will speak on "The Acoustics of Violins" at the physics department colloquium Friday, September 29, at William Small Laboratory, Room 109.

His talk will be addressed to a very general audience and will describe his studies of the violin and how it vibrates. He will discuss topics such as how the type of varnish and the shape of the violin (in particular, the thickness of the wood) influence the tone the violin produces.

Fry has made measurements on the graduations (thicknesses) and acoustic responses of a number of old Italian violins and has constructed a number of excellent violins based on his research. He has also studied violin bows and their physical properties.

Fry's investigations of violin acoustics have been in addition to his work in experimental high energy physics. His work there has involved the use of photographic emulsion and heavy liquid bubble chamber techniques to study K-mesons and other elementary particles of physics. In 1975 his research group working at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory made a very important discovery by detecting elementary particles with a new property called "charm."
