Summing Up

Room Reservation Deposit

All undergraduate students interested in living in college housing for the academic school year August, 1979 - May, 1980, must pay a $50 room reservation deposit between February 5 and February 23 at the Treasurer's Office in James Blair Hall to be eligible for any housing next year. This includes all fraternity, sorority and special interest housing, as well. For further information, please contact the Office of Residence Hall Life in 206-B James Blair Hall.

Looking Back

The practice of men of the senior class at William and Mary carrying canes has been revived this year following a meeting of that body this week. The practice was in vogue here for a period of years, but was abandoned by the class of 1927 and not followed at all by the Class of 1928.

Members of the class had a meeting Tuesday night. Many of the class at the meeting Tuesday night were practically unanimously in favor of starting the practice again. It was felt by those present that some form of distinction to mark the members of the graduation class of next June from the sophomore and junior groups was needed.

Several other methods were discussed, notably wearing a class blazer and wearing Piccadilly collars but those were discarded in favor of the cane idea which seemed to be accepted as the best thing.

Members of the class will carry canes at any time they desire to do so but on Tuesdays and at all athletic contests, all members will be expected to appear with their sticks.

It is expected that a standard cane will be adopted, if it is possible to secure a cane of like nature for all men of the class immediately.

The Flat Hat, Oct. 12, 1928

Sweet senior students will soon swagger stealthily with stylish sport sticks - Senior girls have decided to carry swagger sticks to distinguish them from other upperclassmen. This class insignia was voted upon and passed at the meeting of the senior women held in Phi Beta Kappa building last Tuesday morning.

Van Alstyne Chosen Wythe Lecturer

William W. Van Alstyne

William W. Van Alstyne, Perkins Professor at Duke University School of Law, will deliver the third annual George Wythe lecture at 8 p.m., Friday, January 19, in the Moot Courtroom at Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

He will speak on "The First Amendment and the Predicaments of the Press."

Van Alstyne, one of the most respected legal educators in the nation, has been a much sought-after lecturer during recent months, particularly on topics related to the legal aspects of reverse discrimination and the controversial Bakke case. He has been a guest on the television show "The Advocates" and has lectured to a number of legal groups across the east.

During his one semester tenure as a visiting professor at Marshall-Wythe during fall 1977, Van Alstyne delivered a powerful address on the Bakke case to a standing-room-only crowd. At Charter Day ceremonies scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 10, he will receive an honorary degree from the College.

Van Alstyne taught at Ohio State law school before joining the Duke faculty in 1965. He is past president of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and has served on the National Board of Directors of the American Civil Liberties Union. A graduate of the University of Southern California, Van Alstyne received an LL.B. from Stanford University and a Certificate in International Law from the Hague Academy.

The first George Wythe lecture was given during the 1976-77 session by Professor Francis Allen of the University of Michigan Law School. The second lecture, during the 1977-78 session, was given by Justice Paul Reardon, who served as visiting professor of law at Marshall-Wythe in Spring 1977.

Faculty Salaries Top Budget List

Governor Dalton has recommended to the 1979 General Assembly a 7% increase in faculty salaries for 1979-80 at the State's public colleges and universities.

The recommendation came in a document which proposes a variety of amendments to the 1978-80 Appropriations Act. Formerly, the Act provided for a 4.8% increase in faculty salaries for next fiscal year.

Funds for the 7% increase, if approved, would be allocated by the Governor from a central appropriation which covers salary adjustments for all State employees.

The specific amendment says the allocation "shall be used to assist in effecting a maximum and approximate 7.0% increase during the second year in the salary averages funded for employees in teaching and research positions in institutions of higher education. Provided, however, these increases shall at no institution provide a salary average for teaching and research positions which exceeds the salary average benchmark for 1979-80 specified for that institution. . ."

In presenting his budget recommendation to the legislature, Governor Dalton said the increase would "improve the competitive position of our college and university faculty salary averages."

No amendments to any college or university's maintenance and operating budgets were proposed by the Governor, and no additional capital outlay projects were suggested. An allocation of $29,000 was made to the State Council of Higher Education which, if approved by the General Assembly, would fund William and Mary's share of the proposed minority recruitment scholarships of $1,000 each as part of the State's new desegregation plan.

Robert Emans, associate dean of education, has an article published in the Nov./Dec. issue of "Language Arts," the official journal of the National Council of Teachers of English.

Thomas Sheppard, professor of history, has published, a review of: Jean-Claude Perrot, "Genese d'une ville moderne: Caen au XVIII^e siecle." Vol. 2. Paris: Mouton, 1975 in the October issue of The American Historical Review.

Mario D. Zamora, professor of anthropology, was awarded an international travel grant to join the U.S. delegation to the 10th International Congress of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences (ICAES) in India, December 10-21.

Zamora was chairman of the international session on third world anthropology in New Delhi and was a discussant of the symposium on anthropology and the future of world anthropology, presided over by Professors Sol Tax (Chicago) and L. Vidyarthi (Ranchi), past and current president of the world congress of anthropology. Prof. Zamora's paper entitled "Marcelo Tangco: A Native Founder of Philippine Anthropology," was included in the special issue of "The Eastern Anthropologist," distributed to most of the 3,000 delegates from all over the world. Zamora was also international symposium chairman of the post-plenary session on the anthropology of shifting cultivation, Dec. 19-21, held at Utkal University in Orissa state where he delivered the chairman's address before foreign and Indian delegates which included three university presidents and two ministers of state.

In New Delhi, Zamora was hosted by Drs. S.C. Dube (Vice-Chancellor of Jammu and Kashmir University) and Dr. L. Vidyarthi (President of Xth ICAES) and Head of Ranchi University's Anthropology Dept. Both Drs. Dube and Vidyarthi are members of the international editorial advisory board of "Studies in Third World Societies," an international journal published by the anthropology department and edited by Nathan Altshuler, Vinson Sutlive, and Zamora.

Zamora's trip to India was partly supported by the College.

Among members of the law faculty attending the annual meeting of the American Association of Law Schools in Chicago January 3-5 were Caroline Heriot, law librarian, Doug Rendleman and William F. Swindler, professors, and Fred Schauer, visiting associate professor. Ms. Heriot is a member of the AALS study group of law libraries, and Rendleman participated in a panel on legal remedies.

Ron Brown, professor of law, has been appointed chairman of the American Bar Association's subcommittee on strike litigation of the ABA committee on state and local government bargaining. He is also author of "Tenure: Issues Raised by Collective Bargaining," in the current issue of Public Personnel Administration: Labor-Management Relations.

William F. Swindler, John Marshall professor of law, is the author of an article, "Justices in Academe," in Yearbook 1979 of the Supreme Court Historical Society. Another article on the bicentennial of American legal education is featured in the December issue of the American Bar Association Journal.

Robert Noonan, associate professor of computer science, gave a talk on "Computers in Education: Colleges and Universities" to the Virginia Association for Virginia Educational Data Systems (VAEDS) November 17 at the Dumbarton Library in Henrico County.

Tom Finn, Jim Livingston, and Jack Van Horn of the Religion Department attended the annual meeting of the American Academy of Religion in New Orleans, November 17-21. Tom Finn read a paper on "Social Mobility in the Roman Empire: A Study of the Spread of Early Christianity." Jim Livingston, who serves on the academy's executive committee for Nineteenth Century Theology, chaired a session on Modern British Christianity. David Holmes has recently published two articles. The first appeared in The Historical Magazine of the Protestant Episcopal Church, September issue, "The Episcopal Church and the American Revolution." The second appeared as a lead article in the annual fall education issue of The Christian Century, "After Twenty Years: How a Professor's Mind has Changed since College."

The Faculty Council of the School of Marine Sciences met on December 12. The council elected John M. Zeigler, professor of marine geology, President, Maury Roberts, associate professor of marine biology, Vice-President, and John Munday, associate professor of marine geology, Secretary. These officers will serve the faculty for one year terms.

Jim Beers, assistant professor of education, was recently elected to Phi Delta Kappa and the National Conference on Research in English.

Dean William B. Spong, Jr., of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, is among twenty-seven persons asked to undertake a two-year study on the role of Courts in American Society. Dean Spong attended the initial meeting of the committee in New Orleans January 5-6.

John M. Zeigler, professor of marine geology, was one of ten American scientists sent by the National Science Foundation to meet recently with Indian counterparts in Goa, India, to develop an oceanographic program between India and the United States. The workshop was in response to Indian suggestions for closer ties. United States scientific vessels have been denied permission to work in Indian territorial waters for many years. The bi-lateral workshop at Goa developed a plan which will be submitted to the appropriate authorities for approval.

Seven Added to Faculty Roll

Seven new faculty members have been given part-time, temporary appointments for the current semester in law, modern languages and business administration.

Three of the new faculty members will be part-time lecturers in the Marshall-Wythe School of Law for the current semester. Joining the law faculty this semester is Albert L. Clovis, professor of law at Ohio State University and a member of the Columbus, Ohio law firm of Porter, Wright, Morris and Arthur; Mendes Hershman, chairman, legal advisory committee to the Board of Directors, New York Stock Exchange and senior partner in the New York firm of Risenman, Colin, Freund, Lewis and Cohen; and Toy D. Savage, Jr., a former member of the Virginia House of Delegates and a member of the Norfolk law firm of Willcox, Savage, Lawrence, Dickson and Spindle.

Pierre C. Laubriet, director of University Service for foreign students at the University of Valery, will be a part-time visiting professor of modern languages for the semester. Professor of Modern Languages at Montpellier, Laubriet was president of the University of Paul Valery at Montpellier, 1970-75.

Part-time lecturers in modern languages will be Barbara Eger and Martha Hunsucker. Dr. Eger, who has taught at Indiana, North Carolina State and Virginia Commonwealth Universities, is currently teaching German at York High School. Dr. Hunsucker was an instructor at the College 1967-71 and director of the language laboratory 1972-73.

Harvey W. Rubin, director of marketing research for the Life Insurance Company of Virginia, will join the School of Business Administration faculty as a part-time lecturer.

Physics Colloquium

Mark Conradi of the Oak Ridge National Laboratories will be guest speaker at the Friday physics colloquium this week in William Small Physical Laboratory 109, at 4 p.m. Coffee will be served in the conference room at 3:30 p.m.

Conradi will speak on "Pulsed NMR Studies of H₂ in Inert Solids and Liquids."

Photography Highlights Life of Sioux Indians

"We are only trying to make known the fact that God breathed into the Indian a soul of which the public at large knows little, nor has ever tried to understand."

John A. Anderson,
photographer, 1869-1948

"Crying for a Vision," a unique and deeply moving photographic essay of the struggles of the Brule Sioux Indians on the Rosebud Reservation in South Dakota to preserve their roots, is currently on exhibit in Andrews Hall and will be here until February 15.

Sponsored by the Student Association, the exhibit is one of the largest ever mounted at the College. "Crying for a Vision, a Rosebud Sioux Trilogy 1886-1976" has achieved acclaim for the scope and understanding of the work as an interpretation of the land, the people and the quality of life on an Indian reservation.

Arrangements for the exhibit have been made through David Healy, Director of Auxiliary Enterprises. Healy first saw the exhibit in Omaha and has worked with the Mid America Alliance to bring the exhibit here. Members of the Residence Hall Life staff are volunteering their time for a lot of the security work and it is anticipated that other service organizations will also provide volunteers.

The exhibit has been presented at major museums throughout the Midwest, and the presentation at the College is the only showing of the photographs in the East.

The exhibit is open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday and from noon to 10 p.m. on weekends in the main gallery of Robert Andrews Fine Arts Hall.

The photographs, which are assembled and shown under the auspices of the Mid-America Art Alliance, are the work of John A. Anderson, who migrated from Pennsylvania and homesteaded near Valentine, Neb., just south of the Sioux Reservation, and two Jesuit priests, Eugene Buechel and Don Doll.

The book which includes 125 photographs by the three men has been praised by a New York Times book reviewer as "an excellent book. . .not only about our treatment of the Indian, but also about the use of photography in anthropology." The book will be on sale at the College Bookstore during the run of the exhibit.

The Indians Anderson, Buechel and Doll photographed were skilled horsemen and warriors for more than a century after the white man came. They enjoyed the life of typical Northern Plain Indians. They have been termed "brutal" and "blood-thirsty" because they fought for a way of life as they had always known it. They were first bewildered and then embittered as they tried to adjust to the changes in lifestyle white men thrust upon them.

The disappearance of the buffalo and pressure from white settlers forced them to give up their nomadic ways. In 1868 they agreed to the Fort Laramie Treaty, which was to provide them with a permanent reservation and many benefits including schools, tools and instruction in agriculture. Progress, however, was slow. "Crying for a Vision" documents the tribe's efforts to adjust to reservation life.

Anderson, who photographed the Sioux at the turn of the century, took some of the most significant photographs of the Brule Sioux ever taken. The "Brule" part of the tribe's name was coined by the French after a number of the Indians suffered severe burns in a prairie fire. To distinguish them from the rest of the Sioux, the French traders called them the Brule (burnt) Sioux.

Anderson's collection includes some of the best and perhaps the only existing images of the great chiefs and important families, and covers the period between 1895 and 1915, including the early years of reservation life.

Eugene Buechel, S. J., took over 2,000 pictures of Indian families and activities between 1911 and 1945.

Like Buechel, Don Doll began working with a camera when he was assigned to the mission on the reservation. In 1974 he spent a year photographing the Sioux Indians. An exhibit of his work was held at Creighton in 1976. Doll received special recognition in the World Understanding category of the Pictures of the Year Competition.

Doll and Jim Alinder, professor of photography at the University of Nebraska, serve as co-curators of the exhibit and editors of the highly-praised book of photography.

Washington Program Set Feb. 5-7

A Washington Program on "Church and State," is planned for Feb. 5-7 in the nation's capitol and applications are now being received by the Office of Extramural Programs for the 20 spaces available.

During the two-day seminar, attention will be given to the constitutional issues of the separation of church and state and the establishment clause of the first amendment.

Students will discuss the constitutional issues with members of the staff of Justice William Brennan at the Supreme Court and with representatives of the American Civil Liberties Union. A general overview of the legal issues will be presented by William Barron, professor of law at George Washington University and a leading authority on constitutional law.

The group will also meet with representatives of the Task Force on Public Policy Issues of the inter-denominational Council of Churches and members of the editorial staff of "Liberty," a magazine devoted to church-state issues.

The Washington Program will also include a visit to the Kennedy Center for a performance of a new play "On Golden Pont."

Cost of the program is $50 which covers room, board and transportation as well as the performance at the Kennedy Center.

Brown Baggers to Hear Ondercin

Women's Center Brown Baggers will hear Pat Ondercin, clinical psychologist at the Center for Psychological Services on the subject of compulsive eating at their noon meeting, Friday at the Center on the lower level of St.

For further information please contact the Office of Extramural Programs, James Blair Hall 209, ext. 4353. Applications are due by noon, Friday, January 26.

Stephen's Church, 612 Jamestown Road.

Slide Program Set Thursday

A meeting and slide presentation on the Cambridge Summer program will be held Thursday, January 25 at 7 p.m. in Millington auditorium for all interested students.

The faculty of this year's program will be on hand to hold an information session following the slide presentation which will be made by participant's in last summer's program.

Applications for the Cambridge Program are available from Dean Joseph Healey, James Blair 209 and will be accepted until 5 p.m., Tuesday, January 30.

College Ranks High Among Fundraisers

The College raised enough private money during the first year of the Campaign for the College during 1976-77 to rank number one among its peers in the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU).

William and Mary raised $3,181,760 to head the list of 122 reporting public colleges and universities which are grouped together according to size and function in an analysis published by Brakeley, John Price Jones, Inc. from data gathered by the Council for Financial Aid to Education.

The College also placed in the "top ten" in all eight other categories used to judge institutional performance. It raised the most money for capital purposes ($1,346,783), from non-alumni donors ($1,575,927) and by way of bequests to the institution ($1,215,176). The College rated third in money raised for current operations, tenth in funds raised from foundations, and fifth in money raised from businesses. It collected the second-biggest amount from its almost 30,000 alumni. The report shows that 6,746 alumni, or about 22.6 percent, made contributions during the 1976-77 fiscal year.

The 356 public colleges and universities in the AASCU have combined enrollments of over 2,500,000 students and educated one out of four of all U.S. college students.

Private voluntary support of William and Mary has risen steadily in recent years, from just under $463,000 in fiscal 1971-72 to the $3,181,760 in fiscal 1976-77 cited in the Brakeley analysis. Private giving to the College was up again in 1977-78, the most recently completed fiscal year, with $3,783,100 received.

Prayer for Christian Unity Planned by Campus Ministries United

Dr. Glenn Hinson

Campus Ministries United will participate in The Octave of Prayer for Christian Unity, January 18 through 25.

The practice of observing an eight-day period of prayer and reflection upon Christian unity began in 1908 at the Graymoor Institute in Garrison, New York and swiftly spread throughout the world. This year Campus Ministries United will observe the period with a series of events which are open to the public.

On Thursday evening, January 18, Dr. Glenn Hinson will open the observance with his keynote address: "Praying Without Ceasing," at 8:15 p.m. in Millington auditorium. Dr. Hinson is the David T. Porter professor of Church History at Southern Baptist Seminary in Louisville, Ky.

Prefacing the Octave of Prayer, Dr. Hinson will lead a seminar entitled "Thomas Merton: Spiritual Perceptions," Jan. 16-18 in Rooms A&B of the Campus Center beginning at 8 a.m.

Other events within the Octave include a time of prayer each day, Jan.

19-25 at noon in the Wren Chapel. These lunch-hour services will include brief readings and time for personal reflection and prayer.

Jacques Cousteau

Large Audience Expected Famed Oceanographer to Speak at Coliseum

Captain Jacques-Yves Cousteau, world-renowned ecologist, oceanographer and explorer, is expected to draw one of the largest lecture audiences locally when he speaks on "The Role of the Oceans in the Future of Man," at the Hampton Coliseum, Monday, January 29 at 8 p.m.

His lecture is part of the "Our Future in the Cosmos" series sponsored jointly by the College and NASA Langley Research Center.

There is no admission charge but free general admission tickets are available from the Office of Special Programs, 877-9231, ext. 215, 238 or 296. After Jan. 20 tickets will be available only at the Coliseum box office. To date over 5,000 tickets have been requested from the OSP office according to director Carson Barnes.

Since 1946 Captain Cousteau has dedicated his life to the exploration of the seas as a means of preserving mankind's quality of life. In 1950 he began the famous adventures aboard the oceanographic research vessel Calypso. Many of the Cousteau projects have been documented on film including the early television series "The Underwater World of Jacques Cousteau," and the current "Cousteau Odyssey," series now appearing on PBS.

Captain Cousteau's lecture also marks the fifth anniversary of the Cousteau Society, a non-profit, membership supported organization dedicated to the protection and improvement of life. Among the many projects of the Society has been work carried on with NASA in an effort to monitor the oceans from space. The Society also carries on or sponsors research that has little chance of being funded by government or industry.

On Wednesday, January 24 at 5:30 p.m., the Catholic Student Association and the Canterbury Association will conduct a joint service of prayer in the Wren Chapel at which time they will renew their covenant of faith and service begun three years ago. The Most Reverend Walter Sullivan, Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Richmond, and The Right Reverend Charles Vache, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Virginia, will be present to witness the service of renewal between these two student organizations whose cooperative venture was among the first of such efforts between these two Christian communions.

The Octave of Prayer will end with a covered-dish supper in Rooms A & B of the Campus Center sponsored by the member organizations of Campus Ministries United.

Scottish Fiddler Opens P.P. Forum Series

Project Plus opens its weekly Wednesday evening forum schedule with a musical program on Scottish Fiddling with the Rev. John Turner as guest speaker. The forum will be held at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow night in Millington auditorium.

Three time U.S. Scottish fiddling champion, the Rev. John Turner has performed on radio and television along the Eastern coast as well as on the BBC in England and Scotland. He has recorded three albums, "Montgomery Blue," "The Scottish Fiddling of John Turner," and "John Turner Third Generation Fiddler." In addition he has written a book on fiddling, "Fiddling Tree Manuscript."

Turner will give a demonstration of Scottish fiddling as well as discuss creative concepts in fiddling.

On January 24, Bruce Manchester, associate professor of speech at George Mason University will speak on "Creativity Through Communications."

The program February 21 will be a showing of the film: "King of Hearts," starring Alan Bates with commentary by F. Robert Bohl, Jr., of the philosophy department.

Rev. John Turner does some fiddling Scottish style at a festival in Richmond.

Food Talk

Lois Casey, Shamrock dietician will be on campus Jan. 23-25 for a series of talks about food.

January 23 she will speak at 7:30 p.m. in the Sit 'n Bull room on nutrition for athletes.

January 24 Casey will speak at 2 p.m. in Room C of the Campus Center on trends in diet therapy and at 7:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre on tips on weight control.

Her final lecture January 25 at 10 a.m. in the Campus Center Room C, will deal with requirements for good nutrition. All interested persons are welcome.

The Shamrock Food Service may know you can't please all the people all the time but that doesn't stop them from trying.

Special events planned for the semester offer a wide variety of special meals from Soul to Cordon Bleu.

Next Wednesday, January 24, Shamrock is offering a Soul Dinner in the dining hall from 4:30 - 7 p.m. The menu of fried chicken, barbecue spareribs, blackeyed peas and Southern deep dish apple pie can be enjoyed with a musical accompaniment provided by disk jockey George Washington. Washington is a Shamrock employee who makes a serious hobby of broadcasting.

For those on the food plan Soul Dinner will be part of the package but for cash customers the price is $2.45 at the door.

This is the first of several special meals. Shamrock is planning culinary delights in celebration of W.C. Fields birthday, Feb. 10, and St. Patrick's Day, a fashion show and outdoor jazz festival.

Shamrock has also come up with an innovative idea for those who want to dine in style - "A Moveable Feast." They are turning the Little Theatre at the Campus Center into a candlelight dining room Friday evening from 5-8 p.m. for students, faculty or staff who would like something extra special. Next week the site will be the Great Hall.

Five course meals will be served, complete from appetizer to dessert at a moderate price (range will vary with menu).

The first of these dinners will be served Friday evening. Reservations must be made and paid for by Friday noon. Students on the meal plan will pay only the extra amount over the regular meal.

For reservations call Shamrock, 229-0521.

Ceramics Exhibit Features Well Known Artists

An exhibit of ceramics by a group of well known artists is currently on display in Andrews Gallery.

The exhibit spotlights the work of Paul Soldner, Donna Polseno, Susan and Steven Kemenyffy, Roberta Marks, Bill Abright and Richard Hirsch.

All pieces have been fired in sawdust or in the raku technique. Many are handbuilt or are a combination of handbuilt and wheelthrown.

While glazes are seen on some of the raku fired pieces, all artists have made use of smoke patterns as a major element of decoration.

Paul Soldner is a nationally known ceramicist who has pioneered firing techniques. He lives and works in Colorado producing ceramics which are widely recognized and represented in both private and museum collections.

The two pieces in the exhibit by Donna Polseno are slab built boxes with coiled handles whose shapes are reminiscent of Chinese bronzes. Ms. Polseno has her studio in Floyd, Va.

The most colorful pieces in the show are four wall plaques by Susan and Steven Kemenyffy who have their studio in McLean, Va.

Three pieces in the show are by Roberta Marks of Florida. Her pieces are handbuilt and sawdust fired. The forms she uses are simple though large; the surfaces are smooth with minimal incised decoration near the top of two of the pieces.

Richard Hirsch, one of the parts in artists in the show, is widely recognized for his raku work. His pieces have a matte surface obtained by airbrushing transparent underglazes over which white slip is applied. Metallic oxides are sprayed over the hot surface after removal from the kiln.

By forming slabs over a form or into a mold, Billie Walters of Albuquerque, New Mexico, obtained a softened vessel form, subtly colored by oxide washes.

Bill Abright's sculptural constructions employ molded or cast elements as well as thrown pieces. In some instances pieces have been fired then broken and reassembled into a new arrangement.

All work is on loan from the Elents Gallery in New York and will be on display until February 2. Gallery hours are Monday - Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Future of Television in the Courtroom

Television will be used in courtrooms of the future, but more as a recording and training device than as a source of entertainment. William B. Spong, Jr., dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law says the College's new law school building will house one of the most sophisticated videotaping setups for courtroom television in the nation. But it will be there for instructional purposes, not for Perry Mason-type excitement.

"I consider it much like the athletic applications for television on the college campus," says Spong. "It enables the instructor to point out specific weaknesses and strengths to the student. Hearing yourself on tape is tough for just about anyone, but hearing and seeing yourself can show just how much work it takes to be a first-rate trial lawyer," says Spong.

The cameras and taping equipment will be in the moot courtroom of the new law school building scheduled to be completed next year. There William and Mary students will have an opportunity to practice arguing their cases before a judge. Then they can go back and replay the video-tape of the trial to see what they did wrong-or right.

"The camera serves as a court recorder, but I don't expect it to replace the traditional court recorder's position. We don't want students to feel like they're on display, so professors will have to be sensitive to individual students and how they react on camera," says Spong.

"I'm not at all sure that the public interest is served by allowing television into trial proceedings, and I'm pretty sure that the purpose of justice is not served, from the defendant's point of view, by having the trial shown on television," says Spong.

"What we are trying to do is offer the student every resource for the broad, academically-oriented type of legal education which was begun in America by the College of William and Mary back in 1779," says Spong.

An aerial view of the National Center for State Courts and new Marshall-Wythe School of Law building under construction.

Courts of law have traditionally excluded any type of camera from trial proceedings, which is why artist's sketches are used on television news if trials are being covered. The few exceptions have been highly publicized. In Florida the trial of an 11 year-old boy was broadcast in its entirety by the local public broadcasting station, an action both praised and criticized as a forerunner of public involvement in courtroom trials through television.

"Television has been used successfully for many years as an instructional medium in other fields, and it will be an effective tool in the moot courtroom for turning out competent, professional people," predicts Spong.

State funds for the new $5.1 million buildings were approved by a statewide bond issue in November 1977. W. M. Jordan Company, Inc., a construction firm based in Newport News, was awarded the contract in early 1978. The moot courtroom, designed to be one of the most advanced in the country, is supported by private funds donated by the Kresge Foundation of Troy, Michigan, the Robert G. Cabell and Maude Morgan Cabell Foundation of Richmond, and the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

"We often hear the complaint that there are too many lawyers. But the field is expanding and becoming more complex all the time, so there are many opportunities for competent, well-trained men and women to do well in a law career," says Spong.

Spong says the new moot courtroom, with its video facilities, will be a welcome addition to the teaching and instructional resources of Marshall-Wythe. The new library, which will relieve extremely crowded conditions at the current law school building, will be near a study area, which is absent in the present building.

"The National Center for State Courts moved its headquarters from Denver to Williamsburg precisely because their people were assured of the use of an extensive research library and a fully equipped modern courtroom. In return, Marshall-Wythe School of Law will have regular contact with distinguished professionals from all over the country," explains Spong.

COMMONWEALTH INTERNSHIPS--Five candidates will be selected to participate in the 12th year of Virginia's professional in-service training program. The internships begin July 1 and will be for a full year, ending June 30, 1980. Minimum qualifications and salary: a bachelor's degree or completion by June, 1979/ $10,032.

Contact the Office of Corporate Relations and Placement, Morton Hall or write the Intern Supervisor, Department of Personnel and Training, P.O. Box 654, Richmond, 23205 for details. Applications must be completed by March 9.

FASHION FELLOWSHIPS--Seniors may pick up registration blanks for full-tuition fashion fellowships awarded by the Tobe-Coburn School for Fashion Careers in New York City at the Office of Corporate Relations and Placement in Morton. Ask for Ref. J-3-1.

Each year the school offers eight $2600 full-tuition fashion fellowships to senior men and women graduating from four-year colleges before August 31 and December 31. Registration closes Feb. 15.

CARNEGIE INTERNSHIPS--Three students will be nominated by a committee of three professors as candidates for the Carnegie Student Internship Program which provides an opportunity for those interested in foreign policy to have a working experience in Washington for a period of six months beginning in July. Nominees are restricted to graduating seniors and first or second year graduate students. Nominees will be of highest academic quality and should have done course work in some aspect of international relations. Other nominees will not be considered.

The internship provides month wages of $650, plus round-trip economy air fare, major medical and dental insurance and group life insurance. Salary is subject to federal and local taxes.

Deans of Schools and chairmen of departments should submit completed student applications to the Office of Corporate Relations and Placement, by 5 p.m., Jan. 23. All applicants will be notified of the judges' decision as the final three nominees' applications are forwarded to the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace to meet their deadline of February 1.

For further details, please contact Stan Brown, Office of Corporate Relations and Placement.

UP, UP AND AWAY--Currently the United Airlines are employing stewards and stewardesses. Applications can be picked up at Patrick Henry Field from United Airlines and arrangements will be made for interviews in Washington, D.C.

KINGS DOMINION AUDITIONS--Kings Dominion of Doswell, Virginia will be conducting auditions for live shows for the summer in the Campus Ballroom on Tuesday, January 23, from 1 to 6 p.m. For additional information, contact the Office of Corporate Relations and Placement, extension 4604.

Glory Lot Open

The Common Glory parking lot is now open to all comers with a college sticker. There are no restrictions.

Teacher Examination, Interviews are Set

Prospective teachers who plan to take the National Teacher Examination here February 17 must register by Jan. 25, with Educational Testing Service (ETS) at Princeton, N.J.

John W. Sykes, director of educational placement, said registrations should be mailed in time to reach ETS no later than Jan. 25 when regular registration closes. A penalty fee of $5 is charged for registrations received at ETS after Jan. 25 but prior to Jan. 31. After Jan. 31, registrations will not be accepted for the February administration.

Registration forms and instructions may be obtained from the Office of Educational Placement (Morton 140) or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, ETS, Box 911, Princeton, NJ 08541.

During the one-day testing session, a registrant may take the common examinations, which include tests in professional and general education, plus one of the 26 area examinations designed to prove knowledge of particular subject matter and teaching methods.

The following school systems will interview on campus during the month of January 1979:

Richmond City Public Schools	Jan. 24	9-4:30
Portsmouth City Public Schools	Jan. 25	10-4:30
Prince William County Schools	Jan. 26	9-4:30
Clayton County Georgia Schools	Jan. 31	9-4:30

Interested students are reminded to sign up for interviews and to have credentials filed with the Office of Educational Placement (Morton 140, extension 4467) as soon as possible.

Pictured above is an artist's interpretation of the amphitheatre at Crim Dell which will be the focal point of the Wildflower Refuge on campus. A handsome sign, the work of student Robert Duffy is already in place at the amphitheatre site. W. M. Jordan and Company of Newport have been awarded the contract to construct the amphitheatre and completion is expected within 80 days.

Law Society Hosts Speaker

Richard Greenwald, secretary and general counsel for Deepsea Ventures, Inc., of Gloucester, Va., a subsidiary of Tenneco, will speak at 2 p.m., January 25 in the Sit 'n Bull room of the Campus Center on "National and International Legal Aspects of Deep Seabed Mining," under the sponsorship of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law International Law Society.

The speaker will also show a short movie which demonstrates the techniques employed in deep seabed mining.

The speaker will be introduced by Gary Marshall, president of the International Law Society. Walter L. Williams, Jr., professor of law, serves as faculty adviser for the society.

Earlier the Society sponsored a lecture by Parker T. Hart, former Ambassador to Saudi Arabia and Turkey, Jan. 12 in the Great Hall of the Wren Building. Hart spoke on "The Legal and Political Aspects of the present Middle East Situation."

Concert Cancelled

The College-Community Orchestra has cancelled its scheduled February 6 concert in order to devote more time to preparation for its April 25 concert with the choir.

The major work in rehearsal for the April concert is Mozart's "Requiem," in which the orchestra and choir will perform together for the first time. The orchestra is under the direction of Dora Short. The choir is directed by Frank Lendrim, chairman of the music department.

Save Time and Money - Send a Postcard

Do you need to send a short message to a correspondent outside of the College?

Don't want to waste a secretary's time with a letter or pay the 15 cent postage charge for a letter?

Then try the new postcards the Purchasing Office has stocked in the warehouse. They are perfect for a short message and can be mailed first class through the campus post office for 10 cents or sent bulk mail in lots of 200 or more for 2.7 cents.

The postcards have William and Mary printed on them as the return address, with room to write the name of the department or person who is sending them.

For information on obtaining the cards, contact the Purchasing Office at 4215.

NSF Funds Physics Research For Third Year With $199,000

The National Science Foundation has awarded the College a grant of $199,000 for the one-year period 1 January - 31 December 1979. This amount represents the third year of funding for "experiments on the interactions of muons, pions, sigma hyperons, and antiprotons" under the direction of Morton Eckhause, John R. Kane, Robert T. Siegel and Robert E. Welsh of the physics department. Others associated with the project include Professor Rolf G. Winter, research associates Rene Hartmann and William Orance, electronics engineer William F. Vulcan, graduate students Kevin Giovanetti, David Hertzog, and Jose Martinez and several undergraduate students.

The award for 1979 brings the total funding of this project to $578,000 during the three years 1977-79.

The group carries out experiments at several particle accelerators, including those located at Los Alamos (New Mexico), Brookhaven National Laboratory (Long Island, New York), and TRIUMF (Vancouver, Canada). Most of the experiments are designed and tested at the College before the experimental runs, and the data analysis following is carried out on campus as well. Much of the special equipment used in the experiments is fabricated by the William Small Machine Shop, under the direction of Stanley Hummel.

Most recently, the group has been involved in experimental studies of muonium atoms (an atom consisting of a positively charged muon and a negatively charged electron), radiative capture of muons in calcium (a rare mode of decay), and the exotic atoms known as pionic hydrogen (a pion-proton system) and protonium (an antiproton-proton system).

In the past year, two students have completed doctoral dissertations based upon this work. One, Richard Hart, is presently a member of the Harvard University group working at the French nuclear facility in Grenoble. The other, George Dodson, is a research physicist at Boston University.

Writer's Aid Offered By English Prof.

Does it take you too long to write essays, reports, term papers, or theses?

- Do you put off writing until you feel excessively rushed or pressured?
- Are you easily interrupted or distracted while writing?
- Is it difficult for you to concentrate on your writing?
- Do you dislike writing because you don't know where to start, how to gather materials, how to proceed, or when to stop?
- Does writing seem unnecessarily difficult for you?

If you've answered "yes" to one or more of the above questions, then a workshop on "Identifying and Reducing Writing Anxiety" may be just what you need.

The workshop will be conducted by Dr. Lynn Bloom of the English Department; she has done extensive research and writing on the subject.

The first series, restricted to students from freshman through graduate level, will be held on three Saturday mornings, Jan. 27, Feb. 10, and Feb. 24, from 9:30-11:30 in the Campus Center, Room D.

Dr. Bloom will design individual programs tailored to alleviate each participant's particular problems, and will work with participants individually and in groups to help them write efficiently and effectively.

If you wish to register for either series (at no cost), phone Dr. Bloom at ext. 4436, or 229-2816.

Gift to Library

The Earl Gregg Swem Library has received copies of Goldsmith's "Grecian History," (Philadelphia, 1818) and William Cullen's "First Lines of the Practice of Physic," (London, 1778) the gift of Mrs. Ruth Weeks Harvey of Richmond.

Mrs. Harvey has also donated to the library certified photocopies of Henry Tyler's will, the inventory of his estate, and a document relating to a Tyler family land transfer in Sussex County.

Personnel Bulletin

Changes in Amounts Taxable Under Social Security

Effective January 1, 1979, employees will contribute to 6.13% of their gross annual salary to the Social Security Administration. This contribution will be based on the first $22,900 of the employees salary instead of on the first $17,700 as was done in 1978. This means that the maximum Social Security Tax a wage earner pays during 1979 will be $1707.00 as compared to $1071 during 1978. Pay checks distributed on and after January 1, 1979, will be subject to this change.

Official Memoranda

We have been advised by Phillip R. Brooks, Director of the Division of Purchases and Supplies, that "the paper industry is currently experiencing a period of short supply which is daily becoming more critical." Mr. Brooks expects this condition to last through March.

Accordingly each of you is requested to institute every feasible method of conservation and allocation of all paper products at your disposal. Mr. Brooks assures us that we will be advised when the supply situation returns to normal.

Your cooperation in this matter will be appreciated greatly.
