Wren Forum Opens Tonight

Tom Mainor of Campus Ministries United would like to see some lively dialogue generated by the two topics under discussion at the Wren Forum tonight and tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the Great Hall of the Wren Building.

The topic Wednesday is: The Economics of Health Care - Who Shall Live?

"The U.S. is spending four times as much of the nation's resources for health and medical care as we did twenty years ago," said Mainor, "yet the dilemmas concerning cost, availability, quality, and access to health care continue."

Helen Hill Miller Due Thursday

Mrs. Helen Hill Miller, an eclectic career woman, will talk on "Careers I Have Liked Best," Thursday, April 5, at 3:30 p.m. in the Sit 'n Bull Room of the Campus Center.

Mrs. Miller, who holds a diploma from Oxford and her Ph.D. from the University of Chicago, has had several careers. She was an early member of the New Deal Administration under Franklin Roosevelt. Mrs. Miller was a correspondent in Washington for The London Economist during World War II, and she has been a contributing editor of The New Republic. She taught in the Great Books program at St. John's College in Annapolis. She was married to Col. Francis Pickens Miller, a forerunner of liberalism in the state of Virginia and also a colonel in the Office of Strategic Services in London.

Mrs. Miller is the mother of Andrew Miller, former Attorney General of Virginia and unsuccessful candidate for senate in last fall's election, and Robert Day Miller who is an official in the Southern Presbyterian Church in Atlanta. She is the author of a number of books, of which the most recent is the biography, George Mason: Gentleman Revolutionary.

Mrs. Miller's visit is co-sponsored by the Office of Career Planning and the Religion Department.

Seminars Set

The VIMS seminar committee and the biology department seminar committee will present two seminars April 6 featuring Robert G. Jaeger of the State University of New York at Albany.

Jaeger will speak on "Competition and the Structure of Salamander Communities" at noon on April 6 in the Byrd Hall conference room on the VIMS campus at Gloucester Point and will speak at 3 p.m. on "Behavioral Components of Competition Among Salamanders" in Millington Hall.

Interested persons are invited to an informal discussion with the speaker at 4:30 p.m. at the Billsburg Greenery, Ramada Inn, 351 York St.

The U.S. Congress debates a national health policy and national health insurance. Insurance, hospital and physician costs continue to rise. Will spending more dollars on health care really solve the mounting problems?

These are some of the issues a panel headed by Roger Eitelman, administrator at Hampton General Hospital, will tackle. Other members of the panel are Dorothy Healy, Health Systems Agency Board; Roger Jones, Williamsburg physician; Richard O'Neil, philosophy department; and Leonard Schifrin, economics.

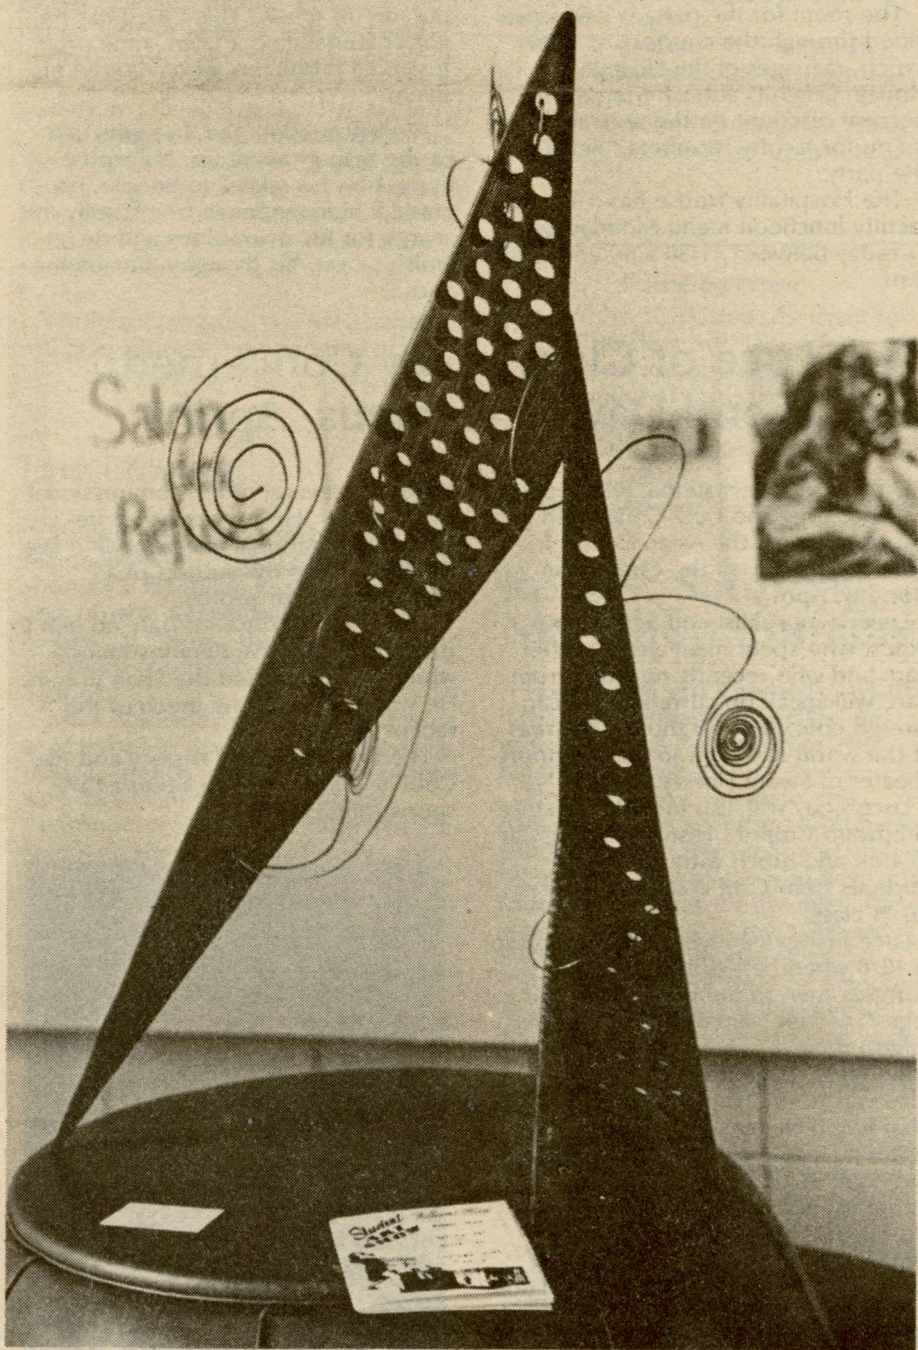

Tonight's forum will feature Karl Frieden, a lawyer with the National Center for Economic Alternatives, who will speak about the community-ownership model created by the residents of Youngstown, Ohio, in response to a crippling strike in 1977.

Frieden will explore the alternatives a community turned to when 5,000 steel workers were left without jobs when the Lykes Corporation, a shipping conglomerate, closed down its subsidiary, the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company.

On the program with Frieden will be Ronald C. Brown of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law; Edward Crapol, department of history; Susan Kramer, department of economics, and William Liddell, School of Business Administration.

Mainor will serve as moderator for both programs.

Time Horse in wood and brass by Biery Davis is one of the pieces included in the student Art Show currently on exhibit in Andrews Hall.

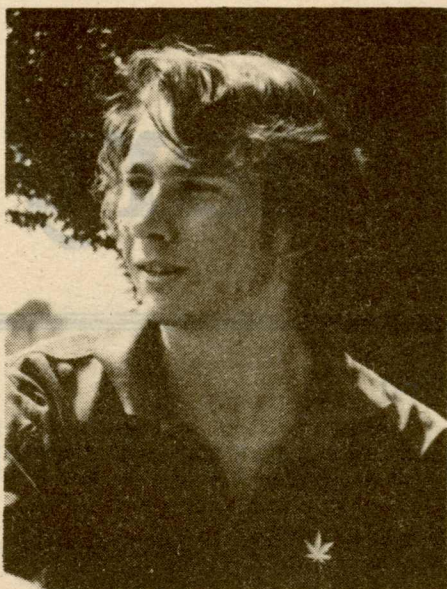

Smith Has A Way With Strings - Tennis and Guitar

David Smith is definitely a string man. He is No. 1 player on the varsity tennis team. He and his doubles partner, Chris Brady, claim the best record on the team this year.

David Smith is also a good musician. He has five years of training in classical and flamenco guitar to his credit and has composed the lyrics and music to over 200 songs. He has performed at the Pub, was part of the recent music marathon and will play at an outdoor festival coming up soon on campus.

Right now, classes and tennis take top priority. A junior from Cresskill, N.J., on a partial tennis scholarship, Smith is working toward a degree in history and trying to stretch his skein of tennis wins as far as he can. After graduation he plans to devote all his energies to music. He has a home base close to New York City and he wants to work towards a musical career as a performer and composer.

David started guitar at the American Academy of Music in New Jersey when he was about eight years old. At first he used a small guitar until he was big enough to handle a full-size one. He had earlier tried the clarinet, trombone, viola and piano, but decided to stick with the guitar.

Smith

When he was a senior in high school he was asked to write three Bicentennial songs. He wrote "The Ballad of the Boston Tea Party," "The Bicentennial Salute," and "To See The Light of Revolution." A number of school appearances convinced Smith he liked to perform his own music before an audience. He had written poetry for English classes but the combination of words and music was like "giving a spirit to the words, making them come alive," said Smith. The climactic performance of his Bicentennial songs was at a festival on the White House grounds in an amphitheatre before an audience of several thousand.

With his Washington performance Smith confirmed that he wanted to pursue his music. This Christmas he got encouragement from some professional producers who admired his talent.

His lyrics reflect the thoughts of a young man growing up, his aspirations, how he relates to people, his gradual independence from family, his search for his own values and, in Smith's case, his thoughts on coming South.

His music sometimes has a hauntingly sad quality about it. This comes from songs he has heard his mother's family sing. His grandfather Bodrug translated and wrote Ukrainian prose and lyrics. He was a Presbyterian minister who was one of the leaders of the migration of Ukrainians to Canada during the Bolshevik Revolution. Smith says the family enjoys listening to him play and sing at family reunions and delights in the strains of old world music that have almost unconsciously slipped into his songs.

While family ties benefit him musically, on the tennis courts he also brings a great deal of inherited skill. His father, Seward Smith, loves tennis; he plays every day and is a regular competitor in tournaments for players 55 and over.

In high school in New Jersey Smith was No. 1 on the varsity team all four years and only lost four or five matches during his career. His junior year he won the New York hard court championship as a junior player and got to the finals of the New Jersey championships.

As a varsity player here, Smith is known for his steadiness and concentration. He is not a power player. "There's nothing booming about me," he concedes. Smith has a good mental attitude and, as he sees it, tennis is more mental than physical, a really frustrating game that causes many players to drop out after a few years of competition.

Smith credits his parents with instilling in him a healthy competitive attitude rather than a win-lose complex. "I never got any pressure to win from my parents. They taught me that, regardless of the outcome, you are a winner if you give 100 percent of yourself to the game," said Smith.

A member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and the William and Mary Christian Fellowship, Smith says he enjoys both of these organizations for the friendships of the other members and the help it gives to athletes in channeling their frustrations into the right kind of competitive spirit.

Smith will wind up his varsity tennis season this year on April 24. He is disappointed that William and Mary is no longer in the Southern Conference. No. 2 singles champion last year, he was looking forward to defending his title.

Faculty Party

The Faculty Club will hold a cocktail party, Friday, April 6, at the Hospitality House, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Those planning to attend may pay at the door or ahead of time to Martin Mathes in biology. The usual rates apply: $2.50 for members (non-drinkers $1.50); non-members $4 (non-drinkers $2.50).

The room for the party is being provided through the courtesy of John Lynch, manager of the Hospitality House. Lynch is also offering a 20 percent discount on the regular dinner menu for faculty members following the party.

The Hospitality House has a special faculty luncheon menu Monday and Tuesday between 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

Don Luce of Clergy Laity Concerned Will Spend Day on Campus, April 9

Don Luce, International Representative of Clergy and Laity Concerned and Coordinator for the Asian Center in New York, will visit the campus on Monday, April 9.

Luce, a journalist and agricultural expert who spent many years in Viet Nam and who recently returned from Iran, will speak on current American foreign policy toward those two areas of the world at 4 p.m. in the Botetourt Theater of Swem Library.

Luce's day will also include a lecture to Edward Crapol's History 444 class at 10 a.m. and lunch with several students from Cam Walker's History 202-H class.

Luce first gained worldwide attention in 1970 when he led two U.S. Congressmen to the infamous "tiger cages" of Viet Nam where the former Saigon regime imprisoned its political opponents. Time magazine wrote that Luce was to the Saigon government what Ralph Nader was to General Motors. He was expelled from South Viet Nam in 1971 because, wrote columnist Mary McGrory, "he knows too much." In 1976, the former American Ambassador to South Viet Nam, Graham Martin, singled out Luce and a co-worker as the two people who should receive "the main credit--or blame--for ending the war."

Luce has testified on human rights issues before the Senate Foreign Relations and several other Congressional Committees. He has appeared frequently on national television and last December was the subject of a Washington Post profile.

Luce's familiarity with Iran led him to predict the massive demonstrations which finally toppled the Shah in Iran. He was in Iran during much of the recent upheaval.

The Department of History and the College Committee on Lectures are sponsoring Luce's visit.

Immelman Plays Thursday

Pianist Niel Immelman will perform a concert at 8:15 p.m., Thursday, April 5, in the ballroom of the Campus Center.

Immelman was born in South Africa where he began taking piano lessons at the age of six. After moving to London, he became the pupil of Cyril Smith at the Royal College of Music, where he won the top piano prize during his final year. He completed his training under the guidance of Ilona Kabos and Maria Curcie.

While still a student at the Royal College of Music, Immelman made his first of several appearances with the London Philharmonic Orchestra. This was quickly followed by concerts at the Royal Festival Hall, the Albert Hall and the Amsterdam Concertgebouw, and concert tours through Europe, Africa and America.

Critics have praised his insight and the authority of his interpretations. His repertoire ranges from Bach to contemporary composers.

Immelman's Williamsburg concert will include compositions by Liszt, Brahms, Scriabin and Scarlatti.

There is no admission charge, but donations will be accepted.

WMTV Spreads Its Wings, Plans For Talent Show

WMTV will be auditing student talent April 9 for an amateur hour show.

Auditions will be held at 7 p.m., April 9, in the TV studio in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. The show will be taped April 16 and aired soon after in the Campus Center on closed-circuit TV.

The upcoming amateur show is one of the many steps WMTV has been taking this year on the come-back trail. Three years ago an energetic band of mostly seniors started WMTV. They had a great following for their news shows, interviews and features and, especially, their campus soap opera, "The Young and the Pathetic." When this group graduated, WMTV lost a lot of its momentum. There are no television courses offered so student interest and energy had to be the motivating force to get things started again.

This year Jim Slate, campus television system engineer, and Liz Shifflette, a graduate student in education, directed a workshop in television production through the Office of Special Programs. A charter and by-laws for WMTV has been written and submitted to incorporate the group into the publications community of the college and the staff for next year, with a solid year of instruction and experience to draw on, is already making plans.

Patricia Knauer will be production manager next year. Patricia brings a special kind of creative talent to WMTV. This year she has been working on comedy shorts with a cone-head family she fashions out of clay.

Alex Deane will be business manager. Alex has been part of a team, with Todd Thompson, that has produced some very polished shows this year, including a special on Rush Weekend.

Another team this year has been Frank Robert and Marc Balsa, who have been conducting the Campus Challenge, a quiz show on trivia. WMTV has acquired some professional quiz show props from a now-defunct college bowl show and so the duo will

Sunday Concert

The Richmond Sinfonia will play an afternoon concert, April 8, at 3 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall as part of the Sunday Series. There is no admission charge.

The Sinfonia, under the direction of Jacques Houtmann, music director and conductor of the Sinfonia and the Richmond Symphony, will open with Sinfonia in G Major by Frederick the Great. They will also play Symphony No. 64 in A Major by Franz Joseph Haydn.

Soloist for Sunday afternoon's concert will be Pierre Feit, oboe. He will perform Krzystztof Penderecki's Capriccio for Oboe and II String and Mozart's Concerto for Oboe.

Born in France in 1941, Feit studied at the Academy of Music in Saarbrücken, Germany. He later travelled to Essen to work first privately and then participate in the master class of perhaps Germany's most famous oboe teacher, J. B. Schlee. Upon the retirement of Schlee, Feit succeeded his former teacher as Professor of Master Classes, becoming one of the youngest full professors in the German academic system. He has been the recipient of numerous prizes for both his recordings and musical accomplishments.

have a more commodious set for their show next year. Marc has been the man in the booth this year, Frank on camera. Marc is a physics major and his only interest in TV is as a hobby but Frank is logging experience towards a career as a sports announcer. He has done some work with WBCI keeping statistics for football and basketball games and will work with WCWM in broadcasting the April 3 baseball game with UVA.

Angela Attobre did two consumer oriented shows this year with "household hints" for residence hall dwellers.

Section directors for next year will include Jeff Strang and Philippe Berenz.

One of the talents WMTV will be losing to graduation this year is Ann Ward, who has developed good skills both in front of the camera as an interviewer and on the production side, too.

Jim Slate serves as advisor to WMTV and has been a helpful, knowledgeable and conscientious guide in getting the television station crews moving again.

Mehra has written extensively about the recent history of physics. He is the author of three books, Einstein, Hilbert, and the Theory of Gravitation, The Quantum Principle, and The Solvay Conferences on Physics. He is editor of Physical Reality and Mathematical Descriptions and proceedings of a symposium on the development of the physicist's conception of nature in the twentieth century.

Mehra has taught at universities in the United States and Canada and has been associated with the research center for particle theory at the University of Texas at Austin.

There will be a question and answer period following her presentation.

The program is sponsored jointly by the Women in Business Program at the College which is supported by grants from the IBM Corporation, the International Paper Company Foundation and the Williamsburg Area Women's Center.

While on campus, Ms. Macdonald will also address the noon meeting of The Forum on April 10.

Law Program

Student Legal Services of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law will sponsor a forum entitled "Landlord and Tenant: Respective Rights and Duties" at 3 p.m., Thursday, April 5, in the moot courtroom of the Law School.

Mike Madison, a property professor at Marshall-Wythe, will be addressing tenants' rights and duties, and a representative from the Great Atlantic Apartment Management Corp. will be speaking about landlords' rights and duties. There is no admission charge.

He has studied with Richard Provost, with Gordon Crosskey from England, and has performed in master classes with Oscar Ghiglia, Michael Lorimer and Carlos-Barbosa Lima. He was a 1975 participant in the International Guitar Competition in Toronto, Canada.

While a resident of New England, Mr. Olbrych was Guitar Instructor at Massachusetts State College at Westfield, at Holyoke Community College, and at the University of Connecticut at Storrs.

Going on Leave

Wesley C. Wilson, Assistant to the President, will take a leave of absence from the College beginning 13 April 1979 in order to seek the Democratic nomination for the Virginia Senate from the 3rd District.

Relays, Saturday Marathon, Sunday

Track coach Roy Chernock says that if the weatherman cooperates, this year's Colonial Relays will be the biggest and best.

The Villanova track team, the national indoor collegiate champions, will be here for the event and no fewer than eight top athletes who have under four-minute times for the mile. They will be competing in the 1,500 and 5,000 meter invitational races.

Also this year for the first time, the Relays have expanded the opportunities for women to compete at both the high school and college level. There are 12 events in both categories this year.

The Half Marathon, a 13.1 mile race which will start and finish at William and Mary Hall has over 600 entries. Chernock thinks there will be 750 competing in the race. Entrants so far include a runner 66-years-old and an 8-year-old boy and his dad.

Entry forms for the marathon may be picked up at any F&M bank, which is co-sponsoring the Relays, or from the track office at William and Mary Hall. The entry fee is $5.
