NEH, Guggenheim Award Winners

James C. Livingston, professor of religion and former Dean of the Undergraduate program, has been awarded a National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowship for 1979-80 to study the 19th century poet and critic Matthew Arnold.

Livingston also received a Fellowship from the American Council of Learned Societies for the same period but declined this award because he had already accepted the NEH Fellowship.

Livingston will attempt a reassessment of Arnold's religious writings and his place in modern religious thought.

Livingston's study of Matthew Arnold is one of a series of projected studies including a book on English religious thought, 1870-1914, and a book of essays on late Victorian religious thinkers, including studies of Arnold, Fitzjames Stephen, R. H. Hutton, George R. Romanes and Walter Pater.

Livingston spent a year in England, 1972-73, under a Fellowship from ACLS researching late Victorian religious thought at Clare Hall, Cambridge University. He was also a Visiting Fellow at Clare Hall, 1967-68. He has received summer research grants from the College, the Danforth Foundation and American Philosophical Society.

This coming year Livingston will spend most of his time doing research and writing in England.

Livingston taught at New York University, Columbia and Southern Methodist University before joining the faculty in 1968 as chairman of the department of religion, a post he held until he was appointed Dean of the Undergraduate Program and Professor of Religion in 1973. He returned to full-time teaching last year.

Livingston edited the abridged edition of Matthew Arnold's "Literature and Dogma," published in 1970 as part of the Milestones of Thought series and authored a textbook, Modern Christian Thought: From the Enlightenment to Vatican II, published by Macmillan, New York, 1971.

Livingston also published The Ethics of Belief: A study of the Victorian Religious Conscience, in 1975 as part of the American Academy of Religion Studies Series. He recently contributed a chapter, "British Agnosticism," for Religious Thought in the 19th Century, to be published by Cambridge University Press in 1980.

Mott to Study Merton

Michael Mott, who has been writer-in-residence this year, has been awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship for 1979-80.

Mott has been asked by the Thomas Merton Trust and Houghton Mifflin publishers to write the authorized biography of Thomas Merton, who died in 1968. Merton was a poet, theologian and Trappist monk who authored some 50 books. He was active in the anti-war movement of the sixties and the Civil Rights movement. The Guggenheim Fellowship will support Mott's work on the biography.

Mott will devote next year full-time to writing. He will be based in Atlanta, which has been his home for the past 10 years. He will also make trips to France, where Merton was born; England, where he was educated; the Far East, the scene of his last journey and of his death; and the Monastery of Our Lady of Gethsemane near Louisville, Ky., where he was a monk.

California Bound

Walter L. Williams, Jr., professor of law at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, has been awarded a National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowship to attend a summer seminar for law teachers at the University of California, Los Angeles, on "Topics in Law and Morality."

This is one of four such seminars which will be held across the country this summer under NEH awards. The one at UCLA will be conducted by Herbert Morris, a distinguished teacher and scholar who holds professorships both in law and philosophy.

Williams is particularly interested in the development of a system of international sanctions and legal accountability to secure adherence to laws without the use of force.

The six-week seminar, which will host 15 law professors, will begin in mid-June.

Williams has been invited to participate in an international business law course at Parker School for International Comparative Law at Columbia University from June 1-16 and will fly directly to the West Coast from New York. Williams, in addition to teaching at Marshall-Wythe, teaches an interdisciplinary course in international business law in William and Mary's School of Business Administration.

Before returning to the campus, Williams will participate in a meeting of the International Conference of World Peace Through Law, which will meet in Madrid in September.

Pulitzer Prize Winner

Don E. Fehrenbacher of Stanford University, who was James Pinckney Harrison Professor of History for 1973-74, has been awarded the 1979 Pulitzer Prize in history for his book The Dred Scott Case: Its Significance in American Law and Politics.

An authority on the United States in the 19th century, Civil War and Western history, Fehrenbacher was a professor at Coe College in Iowa when he came to William and Mary.

Newsmakers

A paper entitled "Partial Subindexes of Input Prices: The Case of Computer Services" by Robert Archibald of the economics department and William Reece of the University of Minnesota has been accepted for publication in the Southern Economic Journal.

Robert B. Bloom, associate professor of education, will be a staff consultant for a national conference/workshop on Preparation Programs for Teachers of Seriously Emotionally Disturbed and Behaviorally Disordered Youth. The conference/workshop is sponsored by the Advanced Institute for Trainers of Teachers for Seriously Emotionally Disturbed Children and Youth and will be held May 20-25 in St. Paul, Minn. This workshop/conference is intended to stimulate recommendations about the knowledge and skills needed by teachers of disturbed adolescents.

"A Statistical Re-examination of Miles," by Rosemary L. Gates, graduate student in English, has been accepted for publication in Language and Style. The article was written in collaboration with John H. Gates, visiting assistant professor of economics.

"Forbidden Diary," excerpts from Natalie Crouter: A Diary of Internment, 1941-44, edited by Lynn Z. Bloom of the English department, was published in the April/May issue of American Heritage. The diary itself will be published later this year by Burt Franklin, Inc., as the second volume of its American Women's Diary Series.

Michael Faia, associate professor of sociology, has had a paper, "The vagaries of the vignette world: a comment on Alves and Rossi," accepted for publication by the American Journal of Sociology. The paper addresses itself to the issue of income distribution in American society.

William S. Cobb and James F. Harris of the philosophy department each chaired sessions at the annual meetings of the Southern Society for Philosophy and Psychology in Norfolk, April 13-14, and David H. Jones read a paper entitled "Radical Compatibilism."

Jones has been invited to give a lecture on "Moral Responsibility in Contemporary Anglo-American Philosophy" on May 11 at the Center for Philosophic Studies in Athens, Greece.

Harris recently delivered a paper entitled "A New Approach to Teaching Introductory Philosophy" to the Inter-mountain Philosophy Conference in Bristol, Tenn.

James E. Smith, professor of business administration, presented a paper entitled "Effective Dates for Tax Legislation: Logic or Lobby," at the Midwest Regional Meeting of the American Accounting Association in Chicago, April 6. His paper was co-authored with William Hawthorne and Henry Mallue, both of the School of Business Administration faculty, and has been published in the proceedings of the meeting.

Elmer Schaefer, associate professor of law, testified April 10 at the invitation of the Subcommittee on Monopolies and Commercial Law of the Committee on Judiciary of the House of Representatives. His testimony dealt with the proposed amendments to the antitrust laws, which would reverse or modify the decision of the Supreme Court in Illinois Brick Company v. Illinois.

Robert J. Scholnick, associate professor of English, delivered a paper, "Culture and Society in Democratic Vistas," at the biennial meeting of the Southeast American Studies Association held at Tampa, Fla., April 5-7. The theme of the conference was "The Institutionalized American."

Virgil V. McKenna, Cynthia H. Null, and W. Larry Ventis of the department of psychology have submitted their final technical report, "Marital Age and the Spacing of Children: Influences on Children, Parents, and Family Interaction" to the Center for Population Research, National Institutes of Child Health and Human Development. The report presents the results and discussion of a three year, longitudinal investigation of two child families.

A paper, derived from the larger study, "Effects of Family Composition Variables on Contingent Responses in Family Interaction or 'Mom Always Liked You Best'," was presented by W. Larry Ventis with co-authors Virgil V. McKenna and Cynthia H. Null at the meetings of the Southeastern Psychological Association in New Orleans.

Several members of the department of sociology attended the annual meetings of the Southern Sociological Society held in Atlanta, Ga., April 4-7. David Aday presented a paper on "Further Developments in the Uses of Official Crime Data." Anthony L. Guenther was Chairman of the Criminology Section and discussant of four papers on that section. Jon Kerner and Wayne Kernodle were panelists on a special workshop for Departmental Chairpersons of the Southern Sociology Departments.

Thomas M. Finn, associate professor of religion, was elected a fellow of the Society for Values in Higher Education. Based in New Haven, Ct., the society comprises some 1500 Danforth Foundation Fellows in both academic and professional life who share a strong commitment to liberal learning and effective teaching and a keen interest in moral values and issues in higher education and the professions.

"The Episcopal Church and the American Revolution" is the title of an article by David L. Holmes, associate professor of religion, in The Historical Magazine of the Protestant Episcopal Church for September, 1978. His "After Twenty Years: How a Professor's Mind Has Changed Since College," appeared in the annual Higher Education issue of the Protestant weekly, The Christian Century, for October 18, 1978. Holmes chaired the session on "Anglicanism in Transition" at the annual meeting of the Southeastern Region of the American Academy of Religion in Atlanta on March 16.

Joe Galano of the psychology department was recently invited by the Technical Assistance Development System of the Frank Porter Graham Child Development Center at the University of North Carolina to provide technical assistance in program evaluation to two special demonstration projects funded by BEH's Handicapped Children's Early Education Program. The purpose of the two programs is to develop model programs for stimulating better services for young handicapped and emotionally disturbed children and their families. Galano will assist the programs in determining their effectiveness and in using evaluation to improve services to children.

The following physics paper has been published: Nuclear-magnetic-resonance studies of amorphous Ni-P alloys. L. H. Bennett, H. E. Schone, and P. Gustafson, Phys. Rev. B, 18, 2027 (1978).

W. J. Kossler, J. A. Moriarty, K. G. Petzinger, A. Sher and W. P. Winfree attended the American Physical Society meeting in Chicago, Illinois, 19-23 March 1979. K. G. Petzinger was invited to present a paper which was entitled: Theory of Muon Hyperfine Fields and Spin Depolarization. Four other papers were contributed:

Gamma Ray Irradiation of High Purity GaAs. W. P. Winfree, J. F. Soest, A. Sher, and N. D. Wilsey.

CPA Calculation of the Valence Bands of the Quaternary Alloy InGaAsP. A. B. Chen and A. Sher.

LaF₃ Insulators Used to Improve MIS Structure Interface State Measurements. A. Sher, Y. H. Tsoo, J. A. Moriarty, W. E. Miller, R. K. Crouch, B. A. Seiber.

Trapping of Muons by Impurities in Aluminum. W. F. Lankford, K. G. Lynn, C. E. Stronach, A. T. Fiory, R. P. Minnich, and W. J. Kossler.

Anne Netick, associate professor of modern languages and literatures, presented a paper at the Third Comparative Drama Conference, held at the University of Florida, Gainesville, April 5-7. The title of the paper was: "Andreyev's Neo-realism and Pan-psychism: Approaches to a New Theatre." Several of her reviews have recently appeared in the journal Choice: Tolstoy, Lev N., Tolstoy's Letters, translated, selected and edited by R. F. Christian; Mikhailovsky, Nikolai K., Dostoyevsky: A Cruel Talent; Siadura, Vladimir, Dostoyevsky in Russian and World Theatre; Sologub, Fyodor, Bad Dreams, (First) translation by Vassar W. Smith.

Mario D. Zamora, professor of anthropology, is author of a review of the book General Sociology: Focus on the Philippines, by Isabel Panopio, et. al., 2nd edition, 1978 published in Contemporary Sociology, American Sociological Association. His review article entitled Amazonia: Social Adaptation, Identity, and Change (co-authored by J. Skibiak) will appear in a forthcoming issue of the Latin American Research Review, Latin American Studies Association. This review is a consolidated publication on Charles Wagley's two books, Amazon Town and Welcome of Tears: The Tapirape Indians of Central Brazil and Orlando and Claudio Villas Boas' Xingu: The Indians, Their Myths. Zamora was elected (in absentia) member of the executive committee representing anthropology of the Philippine Studies Association of the United States.

Jesse S. Tarleton, associate professor of Business Administration, attended the Piedmont-Southwest Virginia International Trade Seminar in Roanoke, April 11-12, where he was an invited participant on a panel on International Business Education in Virginia Colleges and Universities.

Ruth Mulliken, professor of education, will make a presentation on the school psychology program in the School of Education at the convention of the Virginia Psychological Association, meeting in Richmond, April 5-8.

The latest issue of Hispanic Review has a review article by Merritt Cox, professor of Spanish, of Guy Mercadier's "Diego de Torres Villarreal: Masques et Miroirs."

The March issue of Social Forces contains a review by Satoshi Ito, associate professor of sociology, of John V. Ogbu's monograph, "Minority Education and Caste."

David Fyfe and David Montgomery, professors of physics, "Possible inverse cascade behavior for drift-wave turbulence," Physics of Fluids 22, 246-248 (1979).

Montgomery and George Vahala, assistant professor of physics, "Two-dimensional magnetohydrodynamic turbulence: cylindrical, non-dissipative model," Journal of Plasma Physics 21, 71-83 (1979).

William Barnes, assistant professor of fine arts, has had one of his drawings accepted into the 1979 Virginia Artist Biennial which will be held at the Virginia Museum and comprise 109 works from a preliminary judging of 1185 slides. The exhibition was judged by internationally known painter Allan D'Arcangelo. His work was also selected from the Virginia 1979 for a small exhibition that will travel statewide for a two-year period under the auspices of the Virginia Museum's State Services Department.

John F. Lavach, professor of education, was a recent invited speaker at Hampton Institute's symposium on undergraduate teacher education. His address dealt with emotional adjustments of the beginning elementary and high school teacher.

Judith Ewell, associate professor of history, attended the national meeting of the Latin American Studies Association, held in Pittsburgh, April 5-7. She participated as a commentator on a panel entitled "Human Rights in Latin America." She also attended, as a member of the interim executive committee, the founding meeting of the Middle Atlantic Council of Latin American Studies, held in conjunction with the LASA meeting. Her review of "The Mexican Cinema: Interviews With Thirteen Directors" appeared recently in the Latin American Literary Review (Vol. 6, No. 12, Spring-Summer, 1978).

Virgil McKenna, professor of psychology, presented "A Working paper on the history of psychology at William and Mary, 1916 - present" in a symposium on "The History of Psychology in the South" at the meetings of the Southern Society for Philosophy and Psychology in Norfolk, April 13.

Bruce McConachie, assistant professor of theatre and speech, recently delivered a paper entitled "The Theatre of Edwin Forrest and Jacksonian Democracy" at the Comparative Drama Conference sponsored by the University of Florida, Gainesville.

Alumni Contribution Bolsters Writing Awards

Recognition of outstanding student writing has been expanded considerably as the result of a grant by the Society of the Alumni.

The grant will increase the cash award for the traditional Tiberius Gracchus Jones Literary Prize and initiate three additional awards of $50 each.

The Jones Literary Prize of $30 has been given by the College since the turn of the century for the outstanding written piece of any type by an undergraduate. It will continue, in effect, but the cash award has been increased to $50 as a result of the Society grant.

In addition to the Jones award, the College will give the Goronwy Owen Prize for the best undergraduate poem, the Glenwood Clark Prize for the best piece of fiction, and the Howard Scammon Prize for the best play. Each winner will receive a certificate, in addition to the $50.

Cecil McCulley, professor of English, who is the permanent member of the faculty committee which selects the winner, said he was very pleased by the Society action.

"This will give us an opportunity to recognize students who excel in different types of writing," said McCulley. "In the past, we had to pass some excellent writing because we had only one award."

McCulley recalled that the best student play he has ever read at the College did not win the Jones award a few years ago because the prize went to a poem. The play was written by Glenn Close, now a recognized star on Broadway.

McCulley added that the action by the Society is "an extraordinarily generous and pertinent thing for alumni to do for the College."

"It shows the breadth of their concern for William and Mary and ties in with their support of faculty research and other academic initiatives," McCulley said.

The original Jones award was endowed by the son of Tiberius Gracchus Jones in the late 19th century as a memorial to his father. The newest awards are named for an eighteenth century Welsh poet who taught at the College, for the former chairman of the English Department, and for the former chairman of the Department of Theatre and Speech and director of the William and Mary Theatre.

Entries for the awards should be brought to McCulley's office in Old Rogers Hall, Room 208, by April 25. More than one piece may be submitted.

Aceto Resigns VARC Post

Henry Aceto, Jr., director of the Virginia Associated Research Campus in Newport News, will resign that post July 1 and return to full-time teaching and research at the College.

Aceto has been director of VARC since 1972 but has continued to teach courses in radiation biology as a full professor in the College's biology department while administering the Newport News program. A successor will be named soon, according to George Healy, Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Healy credited Dr. Aceto with helping attract more than $1,000,000 in research grants to VARC during his seven years as director.

He said that Aceto has made VARC "an adaptable, efficient and effective research laboratory for the lower Peninsula and has broadened its service to regional educational needs. Research and educational service at VARC are on a firm footing, thanks to his leadership."

The facility has acquired a number of items of research equipment, most notably a $500,000 4 MeV Proton Van de Graaff accelerator being shared with area educational agencies and used in trace metals research now being conducted. VARC is the headquarters of the College's program of non-credit courses and programs; it is shared for graduate instruction by William and Mary and Old Dominion University; and has been used for classes for Thomas Nelson Community College. It is also the headquarters for the Tidewater Virginia Educational Consortium.

Aceto, a native of Schenectady, N.Y., has degrees in physics and bio-physics from the State University of New York at Albany, the University of California at Berkeley, and the University of Texas at Austin. After seven years as research associate and group leader at Berkeley, he joined the biology department in 1970, also serving then as Assistant Director of the Space Radiation Effects Laboratory adjacent to VARC.

His research specialties are in radiation oncology and nuclear medicine, and for five years he directed an active program of research and later treatment of cancer using SREL capabilities. He plans to conduct further research in tumor studies, working with faculty at the University of Virginia and Eastern Virginia Medical Centers.

Hachey to Speak

Thomas Hachey, professor of history at Marquette University, will address J. Alan Ward's class in U.S. Foreign Policy, Wednesday morning at 10 a.m. in Small 113.

Hachey, a specialist in modern European history, particularly Britain and Ireland, has written extensively on nationalism and separatism. He will speak on "U.S. Foreign Policy and Europe: Trends for the 1980's." Those interested are invited to attend.

Hachey is on campus to address the induction banquet of Pi Sigma Alpha, the government honors society, which will be held tonight.

Ward and Elizabeth Jones Publish New Work on Aeneid

A new critical edition of "The Commentary on the First Six Books of the Aeneid of Vergil Commonly Attributed to Bernardus Silvestris," is the work of a husband and wife team of researchers, J. W. Jones, of the classical studies department and his wife Elizabeth Frances Jones of the classical studies department at Christopher Newport College.

The commentary on the Aeneid generally attributed to Bernardus Silvestris, the only allegorical commentary on the Aeneid surviving from the Middle Ages, is invaluable as an index of the way teachers and students of the period looked upon that great epic.

The only previous printed version of the commentary in 1924, was based on a single late and very corrupt manuscript. Since then, two older manuscripts have been discovered and another more recent copy. By using all of these, Ward Jones and his wife Elizabeth have been able to construct an authoritative and readable text. They also present, for the first time in printed form, the continuation (by a different author) of the commentary which is found in one extant manuscript.

The text of the book is in Latin and is preceded by an introduction in English in which the editors discuss the origins of the commentary and call into question Bernardus' authorship of it, its ideas and cultural context and the manuscripts on which the edition is based.

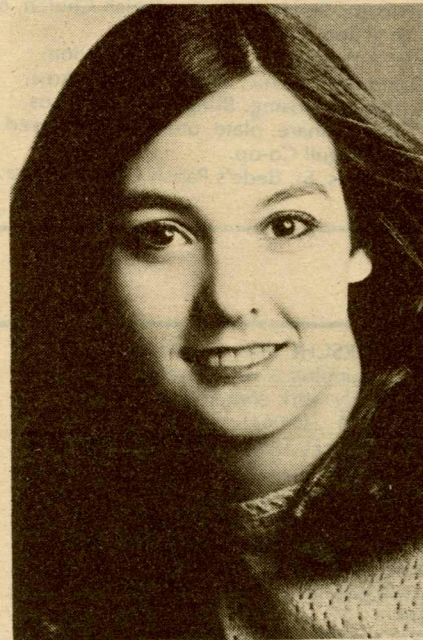

According to Robert S. Haller, a distinguished Medievalist, the work by Ward and Elizabeth Jones represents an important contribution to the field of classical scholarship.

"The authors have, with great difficulty, done the required work; they have even gone to Cracow (Poland) to transcribe an important manuscript. They have made use of every possible source for manuscript readings and have sited every significant 12th century text and 20th century secondary work which has a bearing on the establishment of the commentary's intellectual milieu. Their judgement as editors and their conclusion in the introduction, are marked by scholarly objectivity of the most scrupulous sort."

Begun in 1961 and financed by grants from the College of William and Mary and a grant from the Ford Foundation, the new book is "the definitive edition of a well-known work, and will be a standard for many years to come," according to Haller.

A reviewer Theodore Silverstein of the University of Chicago gives the book high praise. The book, he said, is a "positive contribution" both in using and adding to the available manuscript materials.

"The publication continues apace of that remarkable group of philosopher-teachers working at Chartres or in its ambiance around this the middle of the twelfth century. This edition of the Commentary on the Aeneid ascribed to Bernardus Silvestris, using three known manuscripts makes available for scholarly use an important example of academic literary interpretation during that great humanistic period."

Suzanne Mentzer

Orchestra and Choir in Concert Tomorrow Night

The William and Mary College-Community Orchestra and the Choir will perform Mozart's Requiem on Wednesday evening, April 25, at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

The performance will be under the direction of Dora Short, conductor of the orchestra and member of the music faculty.

Soloists will be Hei-Kyung Hong, Soprano; Suzanne Mentzer, Alto; William Mitchell, Tenor; and Peter Lightfoot, Bass. Hei-Kyung Hong and Suzanne Mentzer are voice students at the Juilliard School in New York City studying with Rose Bampton. William Mitchell and Peter Lightfoot are voice students of Oren Brown, also in New York City.

The Orchestra will open the concert with the Suite from The Water Music by Handel.

Tickets are available at the music department office and at the box office the night of the concert.

Yearbooks Ready

The 1979 Colonial Echo will be distributed from the Echo office on the second floor of the Campus Center May 2 thru 5, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Student I.D.'s required.

Mangum Receives More NSF Funds

Charlotte Mangum, professor of biology and a specialist in environmental and physiological biochemistry, has been awarded a National Science Foundation grant of $26,757 to continue work on a project begun in January, 1978.

The National Science Foundation awarded $28,483 last year for research focusing on the mechanism that permits fish and other animals living in a salt water environment to "breathe." Mangum's research will continue over a three year period. She has received consistent NSF support for her work, which is providing information of a basic nature for understanding the adaptations of marine organisms to their environment.

Her work this year will take her to the oceans around the Philippine Islands in search of the Pearly Nautilus as part of a study of the evolution of respiratory functions in the blood of animals.
