Summing Up

Cavett Coming

TV's Dick Cavett is coming to speak at Parents Weekend.

David Brinkley, who was scheduled to speak Saturday evening, Oct. 6, had to cancel due to work commitments involving the visit of Pope John Paul II.

Cavett will speak at 8 p.m., Oct. 6, in William and Mary Hall as part of the Speakers Forum series, sponsored by a coalition of student organizations including the Student Association, the Student Legal Forum and the Black Students Organization.

No topic for Cavett's talk has yet been announced.

Season tickets for the Forum series are $3.50 for faculty, staff and students. Individual tickets, which may be purchased at the door, are $1.50.

The Forum is sponsoring the campus visit of former President Gerald Ford, Oct. 10.

SA Elections

Voting for Student Activities Council is underway today. Resident students can vote from 4 - 8 p.m. in their residence area and day students can vote until 4 p.m. in the lobby of Swem Library.

Anyone with inquiries concerning the election may call one of the following: David Sacks, SAC chairperson, 220-3613; Richard Sherman, BSA chairperson, 220-2803; or the SA office, ext. 4350.

Shamrock Jamboree

Next Wednesday night, Sept. 26, Shamrock System is planning an outdoor Western Jamboree at the Commons and the Wigwam.

Specialties will include live country western music, sliced barbeque, chuch wagon stew, tossed and potato salads, corn on the cob, ranch-style beans, bacon cornbread squares, deep dish apple cobbler and beverages.

As an added attraction, diners may get their picture taken on a horse for 60 cents.

Dalton, Robb Join the Team

Governor John Dalton and Lieutenant Governor Chuck Robb received No. 1 and No. 2 football jerseys at the Burgesses Day luncheon Saturday in William and Mary Hall preceding the game with Colgate. Robb told the presenters, President Graves and Ben Carnevale, Director of Intercollegiate Athletics for men, that he was ready to join the starting lineup, but fortunately, the Indians didn't need any extra help in downing Colgate 28-15. Mrs. Harriet Nachman Storm, past president of the Society of the Alumni, who heads the Society's Public Affairs and Communications Team, was mistress of ceremonies. The Queens Guard served as an escort for guests who gathered for a reception on the grounds of W&M Hall before the luncheon. The entire Burgesses Day program which was revived after a lapse of several years was sponsored and funded by the Society of the Alumni.

Project Plus Forum

Gender Identity/Role: Inherited or Learned?

Tom Mazur, program director in psychoendocrinology at The Children's Hospital, Buffalo, N.Y., will speak on "Gender Identity/Role: Inherited or Learned," at the Project Plus Open Forum, tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in Millington auditorium.

After receiving his doctorate from Baylor University, Mazur spent a number of years in the Psychohormonal Research Unit of The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine and Hospital. He was a member there of the Gender Identity Committee which concerns itself with sex reassignment and transsexual considerations. He is consulting editor of the Journal of Sexual Research.

The theme for Project Plus this year is "Man and Woman" and Forums throughout the year will include topics within that general field.

"Children's Views of Sex Roles" will be the topic of the Forum September 26 which will also be held in Millington auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

A video tape of the topic will be shown and Laurence C. Gilbert, director, Educational Media Services, and Deborah G. Hartley, assistant professor of psychology, will serve as commentators. The tape is an original one made particularly for this program and reveals how five and six year old children feel about the roles of their fathers and mothers, of men and women in general.

McLane Campus Representative For Danforth Fellowships

Inquiries about the Danforth Graduate Fellowships, to be awarded by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri in April 1980, are invited by the campus representative, Earl McLane of the philosophy department.

The Fellowships are open to all qualified persons who have serious interest in careers of teaching in colleges and universities, and who plan to study, in a graduate school in the United States, for a Ph.D. in any field of study common to the undergraduate liberal arts curriculum.

Approximately 55-60 Fellowships will be awarded to college seniors who are nominated by Baccalaureate Liaison Officers. Another 35-40 awards will be made to Ph.D. graduate students, nominated by Postbaccalaureate Liaison Officers.

Applicants for the baccalaureate awards must be college seniors or recent graduates and may not have begun graduate level programs of study. The deadline to seek information about the campus nomination process is November 1.

The Foundation is currently making a special effort to bring qualified persons from racial and ethnic minorities into the profession of teaching. Approximately 25 percent of the awards are expected to go to Blacks, Mexican-Americans, Native Americans and Puerto Ricans.

The Danforth Graduate Fellowship is a one-year award but is normally renewable until completion of the advanced degree or for a maximum of four years of graduate study. Fellowship stipends are based on individual need, but they will not exceed $2,500 for single Fellows, and for married Fellows with no children. Fellows who are married, or are "head of household," with one child, can receive up to $3,500. There are dependency allowances for additional children. The Fellowship also covers tuition and fees up to $4,000 annually.

Buckley

Cosmos Series Opens Thursday With Buckley at Hampton Coliseum

William F. Buckley, Jr., author, editor and lecturer, will open the "Our Future in the Cosmos" lecture series, Thursday evening, Sept. 27, at 8 p.m. in Hampton Coliseum.

The series is sponsored jointly by the College and NASA Langley Research Center.

Buckley was on campus in 1973 when he debated with Ramsey Clark, former Attorney General, during the Johnson administration, on "America's System of Justice." The debate in William and Mary Hall drew a large audience including returning POWs from Vietnam who came to challenge Clark's views on the war.

Next Thursday Buckley will discuss "Some of the Problems of Freedom," and will express his views on why the usual defenses of the free marketplace are never enough. He is also expected to incorporate in his talk an analysis of some of the major views and prejudices of the public.

A courageous and outspoken critic of certain economic and political policies, Buckley will present views on a wide variety of topics which currently concern the general public as well as

'Woman' Seminar Opens Friday

Frank and Evelyn Stagg will present a seminar on "Woman," under the sponsorship of the Baptist Student Union in cooperation with Campus Ministries United.

The seminar will begin Friday, Sept. 21, at 7 p.m. in Millington Hall auditorium. The program will continue Saturday morning at 9 a.m. with the final session scheduled for 7 p.m., Sunday evening.

Dr. Stagg is Senior Professor of New Testament Interpretation at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky. Dr. and Mrs. Stagg have written Woman in the World of Jesus, which was published in 1978 by Westminster Press.

business and government leaders.

There is no admission for Buckley's talk. No seats will be reserved.

Buckley is the author of more than 15 books including Up From Liberalism, and Four Reforms, and as host of the weekly television program "Firing Line," has interviewed many world leaders.

Buckley founded the magazine National Review, in 1955 and writes a weekly column "On the Right," which is syndicated in over 300 newspapers across the country.

Introduced in 1974, the lecture series "Our Future in the Cosmos" was initiated to provide Tidewater residents an opportunity to hear some of the major issues of the day discussed in laymen's terms by major speakers.

The series program is administered by the Office of Special Programs at 12070 Jefferson Avenue at VARC, the Virginia Associated Research Campus, phone 877-9231.

Friday Colloquium

James Nechvatal of the department of mathematics and computer science will be the Friday colloquium speaker. His topic will be "Sieve Structures Related to Latin Rectangles."

The colloquium will be held in Jones Hall 102 at 3 p.m. Coffee will be served at 2:30 p.m.

Volunteers Sought For Circle K

Circle K will hold its Project Meeting tonight in the Campus Center Ballroom at 7 p.m. Volunteers are invited to sign up for projects at that time. Workshops for volunteers and members will be held Thursday evening at 7 p.m. in the Ballroom.

Tomorrow, Circle K will hold an open house at the Circle K House on North Boundary Street, beginning at 7 p.m.

Circle K's Saturday recreational project and Saturday tutoring projects will begin this week on Sept. 22.

Stokes

Garfield Stokes Completes Over 40 Years on the Job

For Garfield Stokes of the Buildings and Grounds department, Friday was a day he will long remember.

Friday was his birthday, the beginning of his retirement, pay day and his co-workers honored him with a special presentation and said a lot of kind words about how great he had been to work with and how sad they were to see him leave.

In the Buildings and Grounds shop, Landscape Superintendent B. L. Clements gathered members of the department at noon for the presentation of a William and Mary medallion rocker to Stokes, who has completed more than four decades of service to the College, one of the longest work records on campus.

"He is a tremendous asset; it is really going to hurt us to lose him," said Clements.

Since he first came to the College as an hourly employee in 1935, Stokes has seen many changes and undertaken many jobs. He remembers driving up to President John Stewart Bryan's farm near Charlottesville to bring back boxwood for planting around the Sunken Garden. Bryan, who was president from 1934 to 1942, gave the plants to the College.

He recalls seeing the flames from his house and coming to investigate the night in 1953 when the Old Phi Beta Kappa building, now Ewell Hall, caught fire.

One of his first assignments in 1935 was to help move furniture into the new James Blair Hall, then called Marshall-Wythe Hall.

Stokes also recalls the scare he got one stormy day when he looked up from his work and saw hurricane Hazel blow the corner off the old power plant building.

Stokes helped Lisbon Garst lay many of the brick sidewalks across campus. He put in power and water lines to the new campus and planted many of the beech trees on the old campus.

"When I came they were still farming some of the college land," said Stokes. "There was a strawberry patch back there," he said, pointing to a spot in back of the shop building.

A heavy equipment operator, Stokes was characterized by his supervisors as a man who did the job well no matter what the assignment, and a dependable trouble shooter in an emergency. Clements said Stokes often came in on his own time when quick repairs were needed.

"And he's like a walking encyclopedia," said Clements. "He knows where all the old foundations are and, if we get ready to dig a hole somewhere, he's the first one to tell us, 'no don't dig there--you'll hit something'."

"It is unusual to find someone who is so highly respected not only by the people in his own department but also by those in other departments," said Clements.

"He did everything as well as he could, whether it was digging a ditch, repairing a break in a water line or clearing away snow," said Robert A. Wilson, grounds supervisor.

"I've enjoyed working with you. You've taught me a lot," said Wilson, giving Stokes a firm handshake as he left.

Clements said that the rocking chair presented to Stokes was significant because it was only the second time such a gift had been presented to a retiree; the department gave one to William Rorer when he retired. Also, he explained, donations for the gift came from a wide circle of Stokes admirers on campus. The card that went with the gift included extra pages for the names of well-wishers.

Through all the accolades and gift giving, Stokes sported a broad grin and tried out his new chair. There was no doubt about the chair having a place in his living room at home, "even if I have to throw something out," he said.

Stokes heard himself described as a man who got along with everyone. "There were mighty few he didn't," added Clements. "He might not have liked some of them, but those he bent over backward to get along with."

Born in York County, Stokes has spent his entire life in Williamsburg and plans to relax, do some hunting and fishing and plan for next year's garden during his immediate retirement.

Stokes and his wife Sophorenia have four children: Evangeline Bowman; Althea Stokes; James Stokes; and Larry Stokes. Larry is also a College employee.

Handicapped, Energy Projects Need Cooperation

Whenever possible, the Buildings and Grounds department tries to get work at heavily used building accomplished during off-peak times and during vacations, but that is not always possible.

When it isn't, and the project is marked "priority," work must proceed and cooperation becomes the byword at the project sites.

In the months ahead the department will seek the cooperation of the entire College community, students, faculty and staff, in getting two important programs involving accessibility for the handicapped and Federal energy saving directives, successfully completed.

The six-month program to provide accessibility for the handicapped on campus will continue through most of the academic year. This means there will be some jackhammers at work during class hours, some entrances that will be temporarily blocked, detours around work areas and lots of dust in and around Small and Millington Halls, Swem Library and the Commons.

Lockwood Brothers, Inc., of Hampton was low bidder for the work to remove architectural barriers for the handicapped on campus. The company entered a bid of $191,300 with completion in 180 days. The work will commence by the last week in September and is scheduled to be completed no later than March 31, 1980.

The work will provide access to what have been determined to be the highest priority buildings on campus. The work includes access ramps, modifications to toilets, enlargement of doors and related mechanical and electrical work at the four buildings listed above.

Another part of the work includes providing ease of access through the campus with curb cuts, ramped walks with hand railings, wheelchair rest areas on certain walks and additional walks to make these priority buildings more accessible and to provide easy access between the old and new sections of the campus.

Buildings that will be affected in this

Rolle Scholarships Available Now

The School of Education is now accepting applications for the Rolle College Exchange Program for the fall 1980 school year.

Rising juniors in elementary education are eligible. Applications are being accepted until mid-November.

For further information contact Paul Unger, coordinator of international programs, School of Education, Jones 221, ext. 4312.

Scholarship Meeting Set for Thursday

A special meeting for students interested in the Rhodes and/or Marshall scholarships will be held at 4 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 20, in the Campus Center Sit 'n Bull Room.

The deadline for these scholarships is Oct. 2. The deadline for Fulbright awards is Oct. 15.

Applications for the Washington Program seminar on the energy crisis, which will be held Oct. 14-16, are now available. Deadline for this program is Oct. 4.

For more information on any of these scholarships or the Washington Program, students should contact Joseph P. Healey, Associate Dean of Students for Extramural Programs, James Blair 209, ext. 4354.

phase of the work include Hugh Jones Hall, Landrum and Old Dominion residence halls.

While the work is being done, said James J. Connolly, assistant director of buildings and grounds, there will be noise from machinery; instructors may have to close windows to block out the sound or move temporarily to quieter areas.

Workers will be on the job during the prime shift from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., said Connolly, so classes will probably be affected.

There will be holes made in some walls as facilities are altered and debris and dust will be a natural accompaniment, he added. Connolly said the work must be done and he hopes the College community will cope, knowing the inconveniences will be only temporary.

The general contractor will construct dust barriers and take all reasonable precautions to protect the areas surrounding construction on the interior of buildings. Barricades will be erected around exterior work areas. The Department of Buildings and Grounds and the Project Architect will

Classics Club Meets Thursday

The Classics Club will hold its first meeting of the year, Thursday at 4 p.m. in Morton Hall, Room 3.

Everyone interested in the Classical World through languages, literature, drama, history, religions, art or architecture is welcome.

At Thursday's meeting the club's program for the year will be outlined; also some Greek, Roman and Middle Eastern baked goods will be served.

Holinde Returns, Speaks Friday

Karl Holinde of the University of Bonn, Germany, visiting professor in the physics department the fall of 1977, will be back on campus this week and will speak at a Friday afternoon colloquium.

Dr. Holinde, a theoretical nuclear physicist, will speak on "Two Nucleon Forces and Nuclear Matter," Friday afternoon at 4 p.m. in William Small Laboratory, room 109. Coffee will be served at 3:30 p.m. in the conference room.

Holinde arrived Sunday and this afternoon was scheduled to give a seminar at the University of Virginia. During his stay here he will meet with members of the physics department and will confer with Franz L. Gross, professor of physics, on research work they are conducting jointly.

His campus visit is being sponsored by the physics department and is being paid in part by a National Science Foundation grant held by Gross and Carl E. Carlson, associate professor of physics.

Rigelman to Talk On Law Admissions

The Pre-Law Club will sponsor a meeting on how to apply to Law School on Tuesday, September 25, at 3:30 p.m. in Morton Hall, Room 20.

Bruce Rigelman, assistant professor of government, who is prelaw advisor for the College, will be the principal speaker.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Bruce Menkes at Sigma Chi House, Room 208, ext. 4453 or John Pirri at the French House, Room 201, ext. 4535.

work with the general contractor to assure that these protective measures are maintained to provide the least possible disruption to the building occupants and the entire academic program, William J. Carter, Vice President for Business Affairs, reassuringly stated.

Regarding the energy program, Connolly said that for the past three years the College has set winter thermostats in most areas to 68° to conform with fuel saving directives from the State. Now the Federal government has made 65° a mandatory norm.

Some people will be chilly, Connolly admits. Since the use of auxiliary heating devices, such as small heaters that fit under the kneehole of desks are prohibited, extra clothing should be worn, he said. He also suggests that those who have trouble keeping their feet warm at the lower temperature can rig an insulation pad from newspaper or pieces of carpeting.

Connolly also suggests that people be careful about keeping windows and doors closed during the winter months, closing off rooms not in use and reporting any broken windows or serious air leaks around windows and doors.

People have become used to the muggy hot weather of the summers here, said Connolly, who thinks people will be more affected by the winter regulations than the summer one which set the cooling system at 78°.

In the older buildings, he explained, high ceilings make it difficult to heat all areas evenly and long corridors tend to spread the winter air quickly through the buildings when doors are opened. It may be some comfort in those chilly days ahead to know that the College is saving 2% per degree on its oil bill. By lowering the temperature from 68 to 65 degrees, the College will save an estimated $42,000 on an annual oil bill of around $700,000. A savings of approximately $30,000 is anticipated from the Christmas break when the College closes down and thermostats in buildings are reduced further.

Bruder Exhibit Opens Monday

The exhibition of Harold Bruder paintings which goes up in the Andrews Hall Gallery next Monday illustrates how the most ordinary sights can become visual experiences in the hands of an artist.

These 13 small paintings represent a unique view of street scenes, the corner gasoline station and other familiar landscapes. Bruder has taken these ordinary subjects and given them an extraordinary lifelike, almost tangible quality in transferring them to canvas.

Bruder has been working with the passing scene for some time. Born in 1930, he studied at Cooper Union and since 1965 has taught at Queens College, N.Y.

After his first one-man show in 1962, he has exhibited widely and regularly. His work has been included in many museum exhibitions including the Corcoran, Biennial, the Pennsylvania Academy Annual and the Whitney Museum's "22 Realists" show. In 1978 he received the Hilde Hassam purchase award from the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters.

The gallery is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Bruder exhibit will be on display until October 19 and is on loan from the Forum Gallery in New York City.

There will also be a savings of some $10,000 in the heating bill by the reduction of the hot water temperature on campus from 125° to 105°.

The savings will be used to help meet the rising price of heating oil.

In meeting Federal requirements for energy saving measures, Connolly will post a compliance form in each building as well as report regularly to the Department of Energy.

While the temperature regulations are college-wide, there are exceptions for specific purposes. These exceptions include the Student Health Center, Adair and Blow gymnasiums pools, laboratories in Small and Millington Halls and Swem Library where preservation requires keeping a continuous and static temperature control.

Connolly has been working for the most efficient use of energy on campus for some time. The highly successful BOSS 9 (Building Operating Service System) was installed in November, 1976. BOSS is a computer system operated in Richmond that controls the heating, ventilating and air-conditioning in 12 key buildings on campus. In the first two years of operation, savings paid for the installation of the system and rental costs and still came out $10,000 ahead.

The new residence-classroom complex under construction on Campus Drive, scheduled to open in the Fall of 1981, will not be placed on the BOSS system but will have more adequate insulation than older buildings on campus. The new Marshall-Wythe School of Law, when completed, will be added to the BOSS system.

Connolly has said that student groups have been interested in energy saving measures and have come to talk to him about what they can do to help the cause.

Connolly advises them to turn off lights in their rooms when they leave, make sure furniture is not blocking heating ducts and reporting windows that won't close or faucets that won't turn off.

Connolly is an optimist, but he is realistic about the months ahead. It is a situation that calls for the three C's he said -- "Communication, Consideration and Cooperation."

Tiefel to Open Church Series

St. Martin's Episcopal Church is sponsoring a series of six lectures which will explore some of the changes and challenges of modern life.

For the College and Williamsburg communities, the lectures will deal with the moral and ethical problems posed by changes in sex roles, evolving relationships between parent and child, husband and wife, the growth of a leisure society, family time versus career time and problems of aging and dying.

Hans Tiefel, associate professor of religion, will open the series Wednesday, Sept. 26, with a lecture entitled "Death and Dying." He will speak at 7:30 p.m. at St. Martin's Church, 1333 Jamestown Road. Transportation is available by calling either 229-1100 or 898-3453.

The second speaker will be James J. Thompson, Jr., associate professor of history. His topic has not yet been announced.

The Rev. J. Pickett Miles, Jr., Rector at St. Martin's, hopes the lectures will prove challenging and will stimulate discussions between speaker and audience after the address.
