Hesburgh to Give Charter Address

One of America's most influential educational figures, the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, will be the 1980 Charter Day Convocation speaker.

Father Hesburgh, president of the University of Notre Dame for 28 years and an individual whose leadership has been felt in many areas of American public affairs, will deliver an address which will culminate a two-day focus on the future of liberal education in America.

Charter Day is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 9, at 2 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. The previous day, also in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, a panel will discuss the issues confronting liberal education.

Dr. Daniel Bell, the noted social scientist, will be a major figure in the Friday panel discussion. Both he and Father Hesburgh will receive honorary degrees from the College at the Saturday convocation. Dr. Bell is a professor of sociology at Harvard University and the author of a number of major books on the social sciences.

The 1980 Charter Day program commemorates the 200th anniversary of several of William and Mary's "firsts" in higher education, all stemming from the December 1779 reorganization of the College's curriculum. That year the College evolved as the nation's first full university. As a result of the reorganization, the elective system of studies was born, and America's first chairs of law and modern languages were established along with a professorship of anatomy and medicine. The 1980 commemoration also focuses on the undergraduate curriculum review now being undertaken.

Planning for Charter Day and the special Friday symposium was developed by a committee headed by Dr. Thad Tate, professor of history and Director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture. Other members include Professors Clifton Conrad, education; J. Ward Jones, classical studies; James C. Livingston, religion; Robert A. Orwoll, chemistry; Robert J. Scholnick, English; Roger W. Smith, government; and Neill Watson, psychology.

Father Hesburgh, over the last decade, has been involved in national studies of race relations, higher education, campus unrest and the volunteer armed forces. A recent news-magazine's poll of influential Americans ranked him second in influence in the field of religion and third in education.

His chief contribution on the national level has been in the area of civil rights, first as a member of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights when it was established in 1957, and later as chairman from 1969 to 1972. Earlier this year, he was appointed by President Carter to the rank of ambassador to head the United States delegation to a United Nations conference on the transfer of technology from developed to underdeveloped nations.

As an educator, he has been given special recognition as a staunch defender of academic freedom on the campus and for advocating that colleges and universities deal firmly with violent and disruptive behavior while protecting the right of nonviolent dissent.

Board Tackles Complex Agenda

The agenda of the Board of Visitors Oct. 11-12 was broader in scope than usual since items concerning both economic and aesthetic issues were included.

The Board approved adjustments in the allocation of the Tuition and General Fee and Other Fees for 1979-80 without affecting the amount of the fees. This action is detailed on p. 7.

The revised 1979-80 budgets for the men's and women's athletic associations were set at $1,633,590 for the men and $439,746 for the women. Details of this action are printed on p. 7.

The Board authorized the allocation of auxiliary enterprise funds sufficient to increase the project budget from $180,000 to an amount up to, but not to exceed, $290,000 in order to expedite completion of alterations and new equipment for the Commons Dining Hall.

Preparation of preliminary plans and appointment of an architect were authorized for alterations and expansion of the College Bookstore. A sum not to exceed $8,000 was approved for this work.

The Board also reaffirmed its previous approval of the renovation of the nine Sorority Court student residences for a total amount not to exceed $1,500,000, of which an amount not to exceed $300,000 will be provided from private funds controlled by the Board of Visitors. Seven buildings in the project are State-owned; two are non-State-owned.

In other housing matters, the Board authorized the continued leasing of units at Ludwell Apartments. Although the completion of the Randolph Residence, the new student residence complex, will add appreciably to the student housing capacity, it is projected that demand still will exceed supply. Also, the proposed renovation of Sorority Court by August, 1981, and the projected retirement of Tyler Hall as student housing space in 1981, require the continued leasing of Ludwell Apartments. The Board authorized continuation of the arrangement to lease 60 apartments through August 31, 1982.

The Board approved the proposed location in general of the Robert Engman sculpture "Oliver," and has authorized the President to take final action, subject to approval by the Art and Architectural Review Council of the Commonwealth of Virginia, if such prior approval is required.

The President has recommended that the sculpture be placed near Millington Hall. It is not anticipated that this location will affect the use of Martha Barksdale Athletic Field for women's athletics.

In a report on campus improvements and capital outlay projects it was noted that in the construction at the new student residence complex, the general contractor is taking action to make up 20 days lost due to strikes and weather conditions early in the project.

Furnishings at the new law school building are scheduled for February installation, permitting total project completion in late February, 1980. The Moot Court special equipment will extend beyond this date due to LEAA grant conditions. A schedule for occupancy is being prepared.

Working drawings and specifications have been completed for renovation of the physical plant services complex. Construction is scheduled for completion in November, 1980.

Bids have been let for the alterations for handicapped accessibility work and completion is scheduled for March 21, 1980.

Work on a lecture room addition in Rogers Hall will be advertised for bids in November.

After a review and authorization by the Division of Engineering and Buildings, an addition to the Student Health Center to provide additional doctors' offices and examining rooms will be advertised for bids.

Chappell Named Fellow for Study in Florence

Miles Chappell, associate professor of fine arts, has been named a Fellow at the Harvard University Center for Italian Renaissance Studies at the Villa I Tatti in Florence, Italy.

Villa I Tatti is well known among art historians and travelers as the home of the art historian and connoisseur Bernard Berenson, at whose death in 1959 it and its important library of books and photographs related to Italian art were bequeathed to Harvard University. Chappell will spend the first half of 1980 in Florence working on a catalogue of paintings by the Early Baroque artist Lodovico Cigoli (1559-1613). He will also initiate work on an exhibition of paintings and drawings planned for 1985 and entitled "Cristofano Allori (1577-1621) and the Court of Cosimo II de Medici in Florence."

A specialist in Italian Renaissance and Baroque art, Chappell has concentrated much of his research and publications on painting in Florence in the sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries and, in particular, on the careers of Cigoli and his pupil Allori. He is currently completing a catalogue of some 200 "missing" paintings by Cigoli. These are lost but known paintings from inventories, drawings, prints, archival records, and from other descriptive sources. While Chappell makes proposals about some of the missing paintings, he hopes that the systematic treatment of this large body of works will facilitate the identification of additional paintings by other scholars. Chappell is particularly interested in drawings and he recently returned from Florence where he collaborated on an exhibition of drawings at the Uffizi Gallery devoted to the theme of Florentine Artists of the Early Baroque in Rome.

His research interests extend to other artists and periods. Recently published was an article on the relationship between the late eighteenth-early nineteenth-century Italian painter Vincenzo Camuccini and Jacques Louis David. He is interested in British and American art and in particular in American artists in Italy. He has completed recently a study, "Abel Nichols (1815-1860), A New England Painter in Florence and Rome."

Chappell is currently Chairman of the Department of Fine Arts. He is also Associate Editor of Studies in Iconography and on the board of directors of the Southeastern College

His article on the 17th century British painter Mary Beale and her portrait of Mrs. Cressett, donated by the late Professor Thomas Thorne to the College Art Collection, was published in the Journal of the Southeastern College Art Conference.

Hostetler Sets Public Lectures

John A. Hostetler, Walter G. Mason Visiting Professor of Religion, will give two public lectures, Oct. 25 and Nov. 29.

Hostetler, presently professor of sociology and anthropology at Temple University and Director of its Center for the Study of Communal Societies, is America's leading authority on the Anabaptist tradition in Christianity. Anabaptists emerged from the "Left Wing" of the Protestant Reformation and divided into the Mennonites, the Amish, and the Hutterites, pioneering in such now-common concepts as baptism of believing adults only, separation of church and state, and pacifism. One of their hallmarks has been living in communities of faith.

In his lecture Thursday evening, Oct. 25, Hostetler will discuss "The Amish and the Gentle Art of Survival." For his lecture on Nov. 29, Hostetler will take as his topic "The Hutterites: The Most Thriving Communal People in America."

Both lectures will be given in Millington Auditorium beginning at 8 p.m. Each evening will consist of a 25-minute lecture, followed by a 30-minute film on which Dr. Hostetler was the consultant. The meetings will then be open for questions from the audience.

A graduate of Goshen College, Goshen, Ind., and Pennsylvania State University (Ph.D. 1953), Dr. Hostetler has earned many awards during his more than two decades of teaching and research. He won the American Folklore Prize at the University of Chicago, 1952; and was a Fulbright Scholar at Heidelberg University, 1953-54. He is a member of the editorial board of Pennsylvania Folklife, associate editor of the Mennonite Quarterly Review and editorial consultant to McGraw-Hill textbook division. He is the author of 12 books on the lifestyles and beliefs of the Amish, Mennonite and Hutterites and has contributed major articles to scholarly journals both here and abroad. His latest book, Hutterite Society, published by The Johns Hopkins University Press, was issued in paperback in 1977 and listed that year in the New York Times selection of "Noteworthy Titles."

In 1976 he was consultant to producer John L. Ruth for a documentary film, "The Amish -- A People of Preservation," which was shown over educational TV for a nationwide audience, was excerpted on CBS "Sixty Minutes," and is available now through the Encyclopedia Britannica Educational Films program.

Because he is considered the nation's leading authority on the Amish and Mennonite people, he has been called frequently as an expert witness: in 1972 in a case before the Supreme Court dealing with compulsory attendance laws and First Amendment Rights as they pertained to the Amish School system; and in 1974 in a case before the U.S. District Court, Pennsylvania vs. Brubaker, which dealt with an Old Order Mennonite's refusal of alternative service as a conscientious objector.

The Center for the Study of Communal Societies, which he now heads, serves as a referral service, bibliographical repository and limited library for monographs and dissertations not in libraries. Research at the Center engages in an area of professional concern, embracing its scope traditional communitarian societies such as Amish, Hutterite, Mennonite, Kibbutz, and new contemporary communal groups.

Visiting Jurist Here Next Tuesday

The Institute of Early American History and Culture and the Botetourt Bibliographical Society will jointly sponsor an address by a visiting British jurist and scholar, Judge Eric Stockdale, at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 23, in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library. The subject of his address will be "John Stockdale of Piccadilly, Publisher to Jefferson and Adams."

Judge Stockdale has the degrees of B.Sc. (Econ.), LL.B., LL.M. and Ph.D. of London University. He was a practicing barrister from 1950 until 1972, when he was appointed a circuit judge. He sits in courts in Hertfordshire and exercises both civil and criminal jurisdiction.

Judge Stockdale's two principal interests are history and criminal justice. His first book, "The Court and the Offender," was written at the request of publisher Victor Gollancz and published in 1967. His second book, "A Study of Bedford Prison 1660-1877," was published in 1977 by Phillimore and simultaneously by the Bedfordshire Historical Record Society as Volume 56 of the Society's publications. The U.S. edition was published in 1978 by Rowman and Littlefield, Totowa, N.J.

Ceramics Exhibit Features Well Known Artist

"Vessels 1977-79" is the title artist Harvey Sadow has given to his show of raku fired ceramics which will be on exhibit in the gallery of Andrews Fine Arts Hall, Oct. 19 to Nov. 15.

A public reception for the artist will be held at the gallery Friday evening from 7-9 p.m.

Currently teaching at Montgomery College in Rockville, Md., Sadow has several years of teaching experience and has exhibited widely in both invitational and juried shows. The artist has agreed to donate ten percent of sales to the American Crafts Council.

The exhibition includes work Sadow has created over the past two years and reflects his impressions of over 40,000 miles of travel in various parts of the country, including Wisconsin, New England, Virginia, North Carolina and Maryland.

By the use of surface colors and textures he has tried to record the various landscapes and atmospheres encountered on his travels on the ceramic pieces he produced.

"The work is concerned with light as it affects color, form and pattern in our visual perception of natural landscape," explained Sadow.

All the vessels are wheel-thrown as Sadow feels the result provides both a symbolic three-dimensional object and also "shaped canvasses of curves, planes and textures."

Judge Stockdale is currently preparing a book to be entitled "The Damned Publishers: John Almon and the Stockdales 1760-1840." He has given lectures at a number of U.S. universities, and is currently President of the British Society of Criminology.

The program is a celebration of the classic Greek heroines in song, dance and drama.

Still Missing

The four Olympic games prints missing from a recent Virginia Museum exhibit in the Campus Center have still not been recovered.

Return of the prints is still being sought, no questions asked. The Campus Center has lost its exhibit privileges with the Museum as a result of the loss and, according to Campus Center director Mike Bradshaw, the Museum may send investigators to look into the problem.

Anyone with any information regarding the prints is asked to call either Ken Smith, Associate Dean of Students for Activities and Organizations, or Mike Bradshaw, at the Campus Center, ext. 4235.

Following a brief opening session at 9 a.m., with welcoming remarks by Charles L. Quittmeyer, Dean of the School of Business Administration, the first session will focus on "The Business Climate for Women." Panelists will be Joan Showalter, a William and Mary graduate and vice president for compensation and benefits at CBS in New York; Elaine Miller, account executive for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc., in Richmond; and Rona Feit, executive director for the interagency Committee on Women's Business Enterprise in Washington, D.C.

The Women in Business Program is supported by grants from IBM Corporation and International Paper Company Foundation.

United Fund Seeks Second Half

The campus United Fund drive is half-way to its goal and, while chairman Melvyn Schiavelli is delighted with the progress so far, he realistically knows that the second 50 percent of the goal may be harder to collect than the first.

"We had a good response the first week," said Schiavelli, but in the last few days contributions have dropped off to almost nothing. "The response at the outset of the drive was greater than we have experienced in the past but we are still only half way to our goal."

Schiavelli said he thinks the $10,980 goal is a relatively small one for an institution of this size, but a realistic one.

"We are asking people to increase their giving over last year by a percentage of their salary increase during that period; if everyone did this we would be in fine shape," he said.

Contributors have the option of making an outright donation for the full amount of their contribution, being billed quarterly by the United Fund office or having their contribution deducted through payroll deductions. Those planning to use the payroll plan, he said, must make their requests known by returning their donor cards by Nov. 2.

Programs supported by United Fund contributions include the Adult Skills Program on campus; the Williamsburg Area Day Care Center; Bacon Street; the American Red Cross; the Association for Retarded Citizens; Meals on Wheels; Child Development Resources; Children's Home Society; Citizens Advocacy Program; Florence Crittenton Services; the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts; the James City Rescue Squad; the Kings Daughters; the SPCA; the Salvation Army; USO; and the Catholic Home Bureau.

Total goal of the greater Williamsburg Drive this year is $177,425.

Acheson Passes GED Exam

James Acheson, a William and Mary employee, is the latest graduate of the Adult Skills Program on campus.

Acheson, who works at the power plant under Jesse Lee, has passed the GED exam. He is planning to go on to Vo-Tech on G.I. Bill funds he accrued while in service.

Acheson put in over 100 hours with the ASP during 1978-79.

Last June 10 students in the program passed the GED examination. Started in 1975 and supported by the United Fund, ASP, headquartered in Chancellors Hall, is a community-wide service and open to anyone in the Williamsburg area who wishes to complete his high school education.

Enrollment in the early days of the program was approximately 30, but that figure has grown to over 100 each semester. At present the program is appealing for more tutors to serve those enrolled. Ages vary from 17 to 75 years. Of the total number of students, 30 percent are male, 70 percent female, 50 percent black, 36 percent white and 14 percent of Asian extraction. This semester there are six graduate students and one undergraduate who are enrolled and are studying English as a second language. Approximately 25 employers, including the College of William and Mary, are represented by the ASP students.

Full time director of the program is Mrs. Rita Welsh.

Rector Named 'Alumni Orator' for Banquet

Dr. Edward E. Brickell, Jr., rector of the Board of Visitors and superintendent of Virginia Beach Schools, has been named "Alumni Orator" for the annual Homecoming banquet scheduled for Friday, Oct. 19, at William and Mary.

Dr. Brickell is the second prominent William and Mary alumnus who has been asked to deliver a special address at the banquet sponsored by the Society of the Alumni. Last year, Gov. John N. Dalton served as the Society's first "Alumni Orator."

This year's banquet will take place at 8 p.m. in William and Mary Hall.

Brickell earned his B.A. degree from William and Mary in 1951 and a master's degree from the University of Chicago the following year. He was awarded a doctorate in education from the College in 1973.

He was director of secondary schools and assistant superintendent of schools in Virginia Beach prior to assuming his present position in 1968. From 1965 to 1966 Brickell was administrative assistant to President Davis Y. Paschall at William and Mary.

He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and in 1973 was named Virginia Educational Administrator of the Year.

Dr. Brickell is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, Kappa Delta Pi, and Quill and Scroll. He is a member of numerous societies and community organizations, including the National Education Association, the National Association of School Administrators, the Virginia Association of School Administrators, and the Virginia Association of School Executives. He has also been chairman of the Board of Trustees of Tidewater Community College, and a member of the Board of Directors of the Virginia Beach Boys Club. He has served on the Advisory Councils of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Intergovernment Institute of Old Dominion University.

Dr. Brickell has received the "First Citizen Award" for South Norfolk, the Service to Scouting Award, and the Achievement in Education Award given by Phi Delta Kappa. Dr. Brickell has served as an educational consultant and advisor on local, state, and national levels, and has done extensive speaking on education and other topics on a state and national basis. He is listed in several biographical collections, including Who's Who in America, Who's Who in Virginia, Men of Distinction, and the Dictionary of International Biography.

The Williamsburg Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution presented Gerald H. Johnson, professor of geology, the coveted national medal for conservation last Friday at a special ceremony at the Board of Visitor's meeting in the Alumni House. Johnson has worked with school children, civil groups and county leaders to make the public more aware of erosion problems, the geological history of the Peninsula, and the importance of conservation. The DAR conservation medal is given only to a few of the nation's most respected conservationists and, according to chapter leaders, Johnson is the first recipient in Virginia. Those who took part in the presentation were Edward E. Brickell, rector of the Board; Professor Johnson; Mrs. Joan Orton, regent of the local DAR chapter; President Graves; and Mrs. Pat Mahone, conservation committee chairman. Mrs. Mahone nominated Johnson for the award and her committee has won several state awards for its conservation efforts.

Special Exhibit Traces 200 Years of Law Education

Student law notes from the early eighteenth century, reminiscences of George Wythe and St. George Tucker as law teachers, and a catalog from the 1830s describing course requirements for the law degree are some of the items on display in the Zollinger Museum of the Earl Gregg Swem Library, which commemorate the bicentennial of American legal education.

Nearly 80 items are contained in the exhibit, commemorating the establishing of the first chair of law in the United States at the College, Dec. 4, 1779. The College's modern Marshall-Wythe School of Law has been observing the anniversary in several ceremonies which began last February with Charter Day and will culminate the weekend of Oct. 25-27 with a bicentennial address by Sir Rupert Cross of All Souls College in Oxford, England.

The national convention of the American Society for Legal History will meet in Williamsburg the same weekend, in recognition of the anniversary. A reception for arriving delegates to the meeting, honoring Professor Cross and featuring a special showing of the museum exhibit, will be sponsored by the Law School chapter of the Supreme Court Historical Society Oct. 25. The Cross lecture will be given the evening of Oct. 26, in the Millington Hall auditorium.

Although formal study of law started at William and Mary in 1779, the exhibit begins with the colonial antecedents represented in the several generations of the Randolph family who attended the College and then pursued their formal legal training at the Inns of Court in London. Sir John Randolph (the only colonial Virginian to be knighted), his sons Peyton and John, and his grandson Edmund all attended William and Mary between 1705 and 1772 and became leaders in legal and political affairs of the colony.

Dr. William F. Swindler, retired John Marshall Professor of Law, has continued in residence at the Law School this year to oversee the bicentennial events, including the exhibit and the completion of a three-volume history of legal education at the College. The books are expected to be published by the University Press of Virginia in 1980. Swindler points out that the Randolphs, and other colonial families whose sons attended William and Mary and then entered law practice, helped "Americanize" the English common law and thus prepared the way for an American law school to teach this "domesticated" law after independence.

Sir John Randolph's "commonplace book" has been borrowed for the exhibit from the rare books division of the Library of Congress. Manuscript books were regularly used by early American law students, who copied selected passages from hard-to-get volumes in law libraries in England or in the book collections of great plantations. Randolph's book was believed to have been used by him when he studied at Gray's Inn in London from 1715-17. It may also have been used by his sons Peyton and John, who studied law at Middle Temple, London, a generation later. It later was acquired by the Randolphs' cousin, Thomas Jefferson, and was included in the sale of Jefferson's own collection to the Library of Congress in 1815.

Other exhibit items have been borrowed or copied with special permission from the libraries of the Inns of Court, the Public Record Office in London, the Clements Library of the University of Michigan and the Huntington Library in San Marino, Calif., as well as special collections of Colonial Williamsburg and Swem Library.

The actual minutes of the Board of Visitors for Dec. 4, 1779, have been destroyed by fire, but the exhibit features two documents relating to the reorganization. One is a report of the Board's action published in the Virginia Gazette the following week. Another is a copy of the original minutes of the faculty for a meeting Dec. 28, 1779, in which the reorganization authorized by the Board was put into practice. George Wythe's name appears in these minutes as professor of law and police. During the eighteenth century, the term "police" referred to the general organization of government.

Wythe had been teaching young boys and men for nearly 20 years before he became the first American professor of law. Jefferson studied law under him in the early 1760's but Wythe also tutored younger students in classics, history and science. An entry from the diary of Littleton Waller Tazewell, describing his reading of Greek each morning at dawn when he came to Wythe's home, is included in the exhibit as an example of Wythe's teaching methods.

St. George Tucker, who read law under Wythe on the eve of the revolution, became the second law professor in 1791 when Wythe left Williamsburg to become chief judge of the chancery court in Richmond. Among the Tucker exhibit items is the Swem Library's copy of Tucker's original annotation of American cases for his 1803 edition of Sir William Blackstone's commentaries on the common law.

Swindler points out that the Tucker papers also contain a significant manuscript showing that William and Mary offered a formal law degree with stiff requirements in history and social sciences. This is supplemented with an 1830 college catalog describing courses taught by a son, Nathaniel Beverley Tucker. A photostatic copy of a law diploma dating from 1835--conferred upon the great-grandfather of Judge Robert T. Armistead of Williamsburg--is also shown.

The exhibit is divided into three parts, covering the colonial beginnings, the first formed law curriculum from 1779 to 1862 and the revival of the law program in 1920-21. William A. Hamilton, a well-known legal scholar and practitioner; Oscar L. Shewmake, longtime Richmond attorney; and John Garland Pollard, a governor of Virginia, taught the gradually re-established law course in the 1920s. The revival culminated in the formal accreditation of the "school of jurisprudence" in 1932, then under the deanship of

Homecoming Parade Theme 'The Way We Were'

Fifty years ago, the students at the College decided to organize a parade celebrating Homecoming.

The first parade in 1929 was somewhat short on razzle-dazzle, but long on participation—there was a single float followed by the entire student body of 1,400 marching in lines of four. The football game was anything but fierce, with the Indians stomping George Washington by a lopsided 51-6 score. The flashy backfield of "Red" Maxey, "Rony" Ryan and "Butch" Constantino gave the returning alumni much more excitement than they'd paid for—50 yard line seats cost only a dollar.

A half-century later, the Homecoming Parade has grown into an event which draws spectators from throughout the Peninsula and alumni from coast to coast. But the key ingredient, according to a man who can only be described as a national authority on homecoming parades, is still the enthusiastic participation of William and Mary students.

J. Wilfred Lambert, '27, who served as grand marshal of the parade from 1946 to 1970, will once again be the center of attention at this fall's Homecoming Parade, which is scheduled to begin at College Corner at Duke of Gloucester Street at 10 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 20. Lambert, a long-time dean and administrator at the College, is this year's honorary grand marshal.

The theme of the parade is "The Way We Were," an appropriate take-off point for Lambert, a diminutive, soft-spoken gentleman with the memory of an elephant. He claims to know "more alumni of the College than anyone alive," and so far, no one has disagreed. Lambert entered the College as a freshman in 1924, and with the exception of four years he spent in graduate school and teaching, he's been at William and Mary ever since.

Lambert took over the task of organizing the parade in 1947 and gave up the job to his son-in-law, Wilford Kale '66, after 1971. His record as parade chief was virtually flawless, and not one of Lambert's 25 parades was cancelled by rain.

Applications Show College Popular

Bucking a national trend, the College received more applications for the class of 1983 than it did for the class of 1982, marking three straight years of increased interest among students entering William and Mary.

A total of 6117 students applied to the College last year for entrance with the class of 1983, an increase over the 5814 students who applied the year before. Two years ago, 5617 students applied, an increase over the 4878 students who applied for entrance with the class of 1980.

For the last several years, educators across the country have predicted that a decrease in the number of students graduating from high school would leave many universities in dire financial straits as the pool of college students drops off. William and Mary has a different problem—many more qualified students apply for admission than the College has room to accept. Only about one of six students who send in an application can be offered a spot in the freshman class.

The profile of 1,071 freshman students and 139 transfer students who entered the College for the first time this fall, released by the office of admissions, shows that the students attending William and Mary continue to be among the brightest and most active high school students in the nation.

Lambert

The 1979 parade should be an exceptionally competitive one for floats, which are traditionally assembled by sororities, fraternities, residence halls and campus organizations. For years, the Society of the Alumni has given awards to the best floats in several categories. But this year, a new grand prize, the Lambert Cup, will be awarded to the best of show float. The large silver cup commemorates the 25 years of dedicated service Lambert provided as grand marshal of the Homecoming Parade. Three loyal alumni from the Boston area who are longtime friends of Lambert, Ralph Levine '34, Maxfield Kremen '35 and George Weinbaum '35, contributed the cup to the Society in honor of their "favorite dean."

College, Colonial Williamsburg To Co-Sponsor Conference

The College and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation will co-sponsor the 1979 conference of the East-Central Region of the American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies, Nov. 8-10.

Norman Fiering, Editor of Publications for the Institute of Early American History and Culture, which is co-sponsored by the College and the Foundation; and Jeffrey Barnouw, Fellow, American Council of Learned Societies, will give plenary addresses at the opening session of the conference Thursday evening. Fiering will speak on "Philosophical Anglicanism and the First American Enlightenment," and Barnouw will take as his topic "Pursuit, Progress, and Posterity: Jefferson and Enlightenment Times." Moderator for the session will be Thad Tate, IEAHC Director.

Several faculty members will participate as moderators and speakers.

Leroy Smith, professor of English, will moderate the section on literature and women. Speakers in that section will include Julia Epstein, a former William and Mary English instructor, now at Drexel University.

Frank MacDonald, Professor of Philosophy, Emeritus, will be moderator for the section on philosophy. The history of science section will be moderated by Hans vonBaeyer, professor of physics and director of the Virginia Associated Research Campus, VARC. vonBaeyer will join John McKnight, professor of physics, in a presentation of an 18th-Century Science Lecture-Demonstration as a special evening program for conference participants. McKnight will speak on "The Illustrious Dr. Small: Catalyst," during the section on history and science.

David Holmes, associate professor of religion, will moderate the section on religion. One of the speakers will be H. Grant Sampson of Queens University, a former visiting professor of English at the College.

A special feature of the conference will be a series of "Williamsburg Seminars" on a variety of topics including the following: Decorative Arts, Graham Hood, Colonial Williamsburg; architecture, Roy Graham, Colonial Williamsburg; music, James S. Darling, Bruton Parish Church; landscape gardening, James Kornwolf, professor of fine arts; portrait painting, Miles Chappell, professor of fine arts; and churches, David Holmes, department of religion.

Pre-registration is being handled by Merritt Cox, modern languages. Robert Maccubbin, associate professor of English, is chairman of the planning committee which includes Thad Tate, Cary Carson, Colonial Williamsburg; Miles Chappell, Merritt Cox, James Darling, Graham Hood and Walter Wenska, associate professor of English.

Covenant Players to Stage 'St. Joan' in Wren

Tickets go on sale Thursday for the eight performances of George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan," which will be presented in the Wren Building Oct. 25, 26, 27, 28 and Nov. 1, 2, 3 and 4 by the Covenant Players.

Admission is $3 per person and 84 tickets will be sold for each of the performances. Tickets will be available at the Commons, 4:30-7:30 p.m., and at Bruton Parish House on Duke of Gloucester Street, next to Casey's.

The players are planning to utilize both the Great Hall and the Chapel of the Wren Building for their presentation. Play dates have been extended from the originally announced dates; two Sunday performances have been added.

Alicia Wollerton, a sophomore will play the part of Joan. The director is Howard Scammon, professor of theatre and speech, emeritus.

Scammon, who is teaching this semester at Christopher Newport College, is also active as the director and emcee of the "Redcoat Show Tuners," who perform at the Williamsburg Hospitality House.

Assisting with the production are the Rev. Sam Portaro, campus minister for the Canterbury Association, and Father Ron Seguin, campus minister for the Catholic Students Association.

Because of the unique setting for the play, ticket holders are being asked to arrive promptly for the 8 p.m. curtain. Late seating will be disruptive to the actors.

"Saint Joan" is the second theatrical effort of The Covenant Players, who are members of the Canterbury Association and the Catholic Students Association on campus. Last year, the group presented the highly successful musical "Godspell," drawing capacity audiences to performances at the Campus Center Little Theatre, St. Martin's Episcopal Church and Walsingham Academy, and gave additional performances due to public demand.

After deciding last year to merge their interests and talents in a joint drama ministry, members of the Canterbury Association and the Catholic Students Association decided this year to adopt the name "The Covenant Players," referring to a covenant signed three years ago by the two student religious organizations. After all expenses are paid, the money left over from the play productions goes to a selected charitable organization. Following "Godspell" last year, the group was able to donate over $2,000 to the World Hunger Association.

"This play should prove to be an exciting challenge to the actors and the audience," said Howard Scammon. Scenery and lighting will be kept to a minimum.

Considered to contain some of Shaw's best dramatic writing, "Saint Joan" demands the keen attention of each audience member. Shaw, he said, is more interested in conflicts going on in the mind than physical ones, although the story deals with Joan's desire to see the Dauphin crowned King and England defeated.

Cast members include Richard Krohn, John Riley, William Shewmake, Clark Beil, William Kamberger, Konrad Spicer, Brent Harris, Jenny Edenborn, Roger T. Schellenberg, Paul Sagan, Steve Heretick, Daniel Izzo, Jonathon Centner, Greg McMinn, William Schermerhorn, Ken Hager, Cliff Williams, Peter Culpepper, Joe Yackow, Matthew Silvestro, Steven Munson, Katja Parsons and Gloria Simpson; also in the cast are Arthur Roach, a teacher at Bruton High School; Cliff Williams, a balladeer for Colonial Williamsburg from Surry; and Hardwick Spencer, a graduate from Chatham.

Gay Wilson Allen Due Oct. 25

Gay Wilson Allen, Professor of English, Emeritus, at New York University, will give a lecture on campus Thursday, Oct. 25, at 8 p.m. in Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library.

Allen will speak on "New Views on Emerson." His lecture is being sponsored by the department of English. In 1977 Allen won the Hubbell Medallion, presented by the American Literature Section of the Modern Language Association for a lifetime of work in American Literature.

Former President Gerald R. Ford enjoys a relaxing chat with (l-r) Marshall Coleman, Attorney General; Governor John Dalton, and President Graves with Andrew Graves, the President's son, listens in intently. Ford spent the day on campus Wednesday visiting with students and gave a public lecture in William and Mary Hall that evening.

Board Accepts Painting, to Return Dunmore Papers

New work drawings are scheduled for completion this month on the lecture room addition to Rogers Hall. The project will be advertised for bids in November.

The College has submitted a capital outlay request for the 1980-82 Biennium to remove the asbestos hazard in William and Mary Hall, the Commons Dining Hall, Hugh Jones Hall, Adair Gym, Morton Hall and Millington Hall. The projected cost of this work is $723,800.

The Board accepted for the College a painting from the National Academy of Design, a bequest from the late Henry W. Ranger. The painting, entitled "Yesterday's Women," is by Morten E. Solberg.

The Board also took up a request from the Ninth Earl of Dunmore for the return of Dunmore Family Papers now on loan to the College and housed in the Earl Gregg Swem Library. The papers will be returned to England as requested and, under an agreement with Earl Dunmore, eleven manuscripts from the original consignment will be retained on loan at the library.

In other matters, the Board approved the award of the J.D. Carneal, Jr.,

Scholarship to Herman C. Daniel for the academic year 1979-80. Daniel is a candidate for the Master of Law and Taxation degree in the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

The W. Wilford Kale, Jr., Endowment Fund was established with funds from the sale of a booklet entitled "Private Homes in Williamsburg. . . Today," authored by Kale. The income from the

The modern period of the exhibit includes the Marshall-Wythe ceremonies commemorating Blackstone in 1955, the establishment of the graduate program in law and taxation, the summer law program in England which began in 1966, the coming of the National Center for State Courts to the new law campus, and the construction of the new Law School building, which is to be occupied sometime next year.

The exhibit is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, until Dec. 15.

endowment will be used to fund an annual award to be known as the Kays Gary-Charles McDowell, Jr., Journalism Award for outstanding work in journalism by a student at the College in accordance with procedures established by the President.

The Board also ordered the transfer of funds held in the S. Judson Dunaway Fund to the Harold Lees Fowler Fund, functioning as an endowment.

Debate Team Wins Awards

The debate team has now won awards in both of its tournaments this year, winning Quarter-Final honors at the Johns Hopkins University tournament, and, more recently, the James Madison University Debate Tournament Oct. 5-7.

Debaters are preparing now to participate in southern tournaments at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, Appalachian State University, and Wake Forest University before returning north for their last tournament of the semester at Towson.

In 1948, he became head of the theology department and the following year was named executive vice president of the institution. In 1952, at the age of 35, he was appointed President of Notre Dame.

Official Memoranda

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAYS

The administrative offices, the plant department (except for those employees required to maintain essential services), and the mail room of the College of William and Mary will be closed on November 22 and 23. The Campus Police Department will maintain the regular 24-hour schedule.

The names of permanent classified employees who are required to work on either November 22 or 23 should be reported in writing to the Personnel Office in order that they may be credited with Compensatory Leave. Permanent classified employees who are required to work on either of these days should take compensatory leave earned as soon thereafter as possible in order to avoid excessive leave accumulation. Hourly employees who work on either of these days will be paid at their regular hourly rates.

Board Actions

ADJUSTED ALLOCATION OF TUITION AND GENERAL FEE, AND OTHER FEES FOR 1979-80

Requirements for the educational program and supporting services have been re-evaluated carefully by the President and his administrative officers for the year 1979-80.

Section 23-45 of the Code of Virginia (1950), as amended, provides that the Board of Visitors may fix, in its discretion, the rates charged students for tuition, fees, and other necessary charges, and, further, in Section 23-44, that the Board shall control and expend the funds and any appropriations provided.

In addition, the 1978 Appropriation Act reiterated that the Board, indeed, has this responsibility and authority, when in Section 4-3.05 of the Act it is stated that "the determination of proper tuition, fees and charges is left to the judgment of the Board of Visitors or other governing bodies. . ."

In the promulgation of the original 1979-80 budget for the Men's Athletic Association, an amount of approximately $200,000 derived from television and radio was used to balance the budget without increasing the allocation of Tuition and General Fee for intercollegiate athletics attributable to men's athletics.

Upon further analysis of the 1979-80 budgets, it became evident that it is advisable to increase expenditures to accommodate necessary unanticipated adjustments. A major portion of these adjustments involves procedures whereby a reserve in excess of $300,000 might be accomplished by transferring $163,500 to the reserve, with the reserve being available to offset unanticipated revenue shortfalls. Prudent management dictates such a reserve when the combined total of athletic expenditure budgets for men and women is in excess of $2,000,000.

Accordingly, the appropriation of funds in 1979-80 for intercollegiate athletics attributable to men's athletics has been reconsidered.

A reallocation of $32 of the Tuition and General Fee per year provides sufficient funds to balance the 1979-80 revised budget for the Men's Athletic Association and to leave a fund balance with which to begin the 1980-81 fiscal year, thus holding the 1980-81 increase to a more reasonable amount than would be possible without the reallocation.

The reallocation of funds will be accomplished without an increase in the total Tuition and General Fee previously approved by the Board of Visitors for the 1979-80 academic year.

Reallocation of an additional $4 per year is designated as a portion of Debt Service for funding renovation of Cary Field; this is in addition to the earlier allocation of $15 approved by the Board, because the cost of renovation exceeded original projections.

All of the above will be accomplished without an increase in the total Tuition and General Fee previously approved by the Board of Visitors for 1979-80.

RESOLVED, That the Board of Visitors of the College of William and Mary in Virginia hereby approves adjustments in the allocation of the Tuition and General Fee and Other Fees for 1979-80, as detailed below:

Increase the allocation for Intercollegiate Athletics by $16.00 per semester, increasing the amount from $89.00 to $105.00 per semester, a total of $210.00 for both semesters of the regular session.

Increase the allocation for Debt Service by $2.00 per semester, increasing the amount from $36.50 to $38.50 per semester, a total of $77.00 for both semesters of the regular session, based on action taken by the Board at its called meeting on July 13, 1979, Resolution W-5, Approval Of Additional Funding For Renovation Of Cary Field Stadium.

Decrease the allocation for General Auxiliary Enterprise Services by $18.00 per semester, decreasing the amount from $107.00 to $89.00 per semester, a total of $178.00 for both semesters of the regular session.

RESOLVED FURTHER, That the above allocation actions do not affect the total Tuition and General Fee and Other Fees approved by the Board of Visitors on March 24, 1979 for either full-time or part-time students for the 1979-80 regular session.

APPROVAL OF REVISED 1979-80 BUDGETS FOR THE MEN'S AND WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATIONS

Revised budgets for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1979, through June 30, 1980, have been prepared for the Men's Athletic Association and the Women's Athletic Association.

Summaries of revenues and the projected expenditures have been prepared by the athletic departments and have been carefully reviewed by the President and his administrative officers.

In the promulgation of the original 1979-80 budget for the Men's Athletic Association, an amount of approximately $200,000 derived from television and radio was used to balance the budget without increasing the allocation of the Tuition and General Fee for intercollegiate athletics attributable to men's athletics.

Upon further analysis of the 1979-80 budgets, it became evident that it is advisable to increase expenditures to accommodate necessary unanticipated adjustments. A major portion of these adjustments involves procedures whereby a reserve in excess of $300,000 might be accomplished by transferring $163,500 to the reserve, with the reserve being available to offset unanticipated revenue shortfalls. Prudent management dictates such a reserve when the combined total of athletic expenditure budgets for men and women is in excess of $2,000,000.

Accordingly, the appropriation of funds in 1979-80 for intercollegiate athletics attributable to men's athletics has been reconsidered.

A reallocation of $32 of the Tuition and General Fee per year provides sufficient funds to balance the 1979-80 revised budget for the Men's Athletic Association and to leave a fund balance with which to begin the 1980-81 fiscal year, thus holding the 1980-81 increase to a more reasonable amount than would be possible without the reallocation.

The reallocation of funds will be accomplished without an increase in the total Tuition and General Fee previously approved by the Board of Visitors for the 1979-80 academic year.

RESOLVED, That the Board of Visitors hereby approves the total expenditures and transfers reflected in revised budgets for the 1979-80 fiscal year as follows:

Men's Athletic Association	$1,633,590
Women's Athletic Association	$ 439,746

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS

Again this year the College will observe an extended Christmas-New Year's holiday period, beginning Tuesday, December 25, through Tuesday, January 1, dates inclusive. Should the Governor declare an additional holiday, or holidays, such holiday or holidays will lengthen this period from the beginning of the holiday. As an example, if he declares one day, we would close at 5 p.m., on Friday, December 21, with the holiday beginning on Saturday, the 22nd. In any case, the holiday will end on Tuesday, January 1, and full operation will resume on Wednesday, January 2.

Due to the nature of the service provided by the College of William and Mary, it is necessary that employees work on certain days which are listed as legal holidays in the Virginia Personnel Act. In recognition of this fact, the Board of Visitors of the College has authorized an alternate holiday schedule. The seasonal holiday noted above is consistent with that alternate holiday schedule, and it includes no holiday time over and above those total holidays authorized by the Virginia Personnel Act for all State employees.

The alternate holiday schedule adopted by the College provides for only five working days during this period. It will be noted that six working days are involved in the schedule described above. In order to provide the sixth day, we will utilize the holiday which falls on November 11, a Sunday in 1979. Observing this holiday for the Christmas-New Year's holiday period will remove the necessity to heat buildings and require employees to work one day during that period.

Administrative offices, and the plant department (except for those employees required to maintain essential services), will be closed during that period.

The Campus Post Office will be open from 9:00 a.m., until 12:00 noon, Wednesday through Friday, December 26, through December 28. This Post Office will NOT be open at other times during the holiday period noted above.

The Campus Police Department will maintain the regular 24-hour schedule.

The Switchboard will be open during regular hours each day, except for Christmas Day, when it will be closed.

Emergency service may be obtained at any time by calling the regular College telephone number, 253-4000, or by calling the Campus Police at 253-4596, or at Emergency Extension 333.

The names of permanent classified employees who are required to work during this holiday period should be reported in writing to the Personnel Office in order that they may be credited with compensatory leave. Permanent classified employees who are required to work on any of these days should take compensatory leave earned as soon thereafter as possible in order to avoid excessive leave accumulation. Hourly employees who work on any of these days will be paid at their regular hourly rates.

This holiday decision has been considered from many standpoints, since it is recognized that a few people might be inconvenienced by such a close-down over a continuous period.

Those individuals or groups who might be so inconvenienced by this extended holiday should direct their concerns to me, IN WRITING, no later than Friday, December 7, 1979, in order that we might make any special arrangements necessary to accommodate those concerns. In the absence of such notification it will be assumed that all offices are agreeable, and adaptable, to this extended closedown.

In the light of past experience, we are assuming that the following operations/activities will require such special arrangements, and are prepared to approve them again:

Anthropology	Law Library
Biology	Campus Police
Chemistry	Campus Post Office
Computer Center	Telephone Switchboard
Endocrinology and	Basketball Team
Population Laboratories	Track Team
Physics	Psychology
	Swem Library

Please advise me, in writing, no later than Friday, December 7, if our assumption for those listed is not a valid one.

Employee morale constitutes one strong justification for an extended holiday. Another justification, of equal importance, is the fact that it enables the College to exercise effective energy and cost saving measures. We are under constant pressure on these points, and, with the students away from the College, this holiday period affords the best opportunity of the entire College year for a virtual close-down of most facilities.

Paychecks for permanent employees will be available at the normal location (Payroll Office, 2nd Floor, James Blair Hall) from 9:00 a.m., to 12:00 noon only on Monday, December 31.

Access to buildings during the holiday will be as follows:

1. No access after Friday, December 21, at noon, except for 216 Jamestown Road, 312 Jamestown Road, Hoke Garage, Bull House, 314 Jamestown Road, Ludwell 602, Thiemes, and JBT #42. Heat will be reduced elsewhere to 50° at that time to extend through noon, Sunday, January 6. Separate instructions to Area Coordinators, Resident Tutors, and Resident Directors will be issued by the Office of Residence Hall Life.

2. Offices

Access at the discretion of the individual who occupies the office. However, after 5:00 p.m., on Monday, December 24, heat will be reduced to 50°; this will extend through Tuesday, January 1.

3. Libraries

Access governed by hours established by the two libraries (Swem Library and the Law Library).

Actual savings last year from this holiday closing amounted to more than $30,000. It is estimated conservatively that this year's schedule can produce savings in excess of that amount. We are confident that, with your continued cooperation, such significant savings can be achieved without hardship or dislocation to our educational objective. We join you in looking forward to a well-earned happy holiday.

VETERINARY--Virginia now has its own College of Veterinary Medicine, located at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in Blacksburg. The first class is scheduled to enter in the fall of 1980.

This means that contract agreements for Virginia students to attend other schools are no longer valid. The only school for Virginia residents will be VPI&SU. A projected class size of 50 for the fall of 1980 has been announced, with 40 students from Virginia and 10 from Maryland. Application forms will be available by mid-November and may be obtained by writing: Admissions Office, College of Veterinary Medicine, VPI&SU, Blacksburg, VA 24061.

For advice and additional information on prerequisites for admission, etc., contact either Mitchell Byrd (biology) or Randolph Coleman (chemistry).

MEDICAL--A recent compilation of acceptance statistics for the Class of '78 indicates once again that William and Mary students are being accepted with relatively little difficulty by medical schools. The following summary is based on an Advisor Information Service Roster released to pre-medical advisors by the Association of American Medical Colleges:

For the class of 1978, those students with a GPA of 3.0 or higher tallied as follows: 22 accepted, 3 rejected, 3 withdrew before action. This is an acceptance rate of 88% not including withdrawals. In addition, 5 students were accepted who had a GPA below a 3.0. It should be apparent from this information that a lack of grade inflation at the College is not hurting our students. It doesn't take a 3.5 - 4.0 GPA to get into medical school.

GOVERNMENT CAREERS--All students, especially seniors, are urged to come by the Ballroom of the Campus Center on October 11 from 1:30 to 4 p.m. At that time representatives from various Federal, State and Local Government Agencies will be available to discuss employment opportunities. For a list of the agencies that will be present, come by the Office of Corporate Relations and Placement or the Office of Career Planning.
