Summing Up

President's Office Hours

President Graves will be in his office this afternoon from 4 to 5 p.m. and next Tuesday afternoon at the same time to meet student visitors. No appointment is necessary. Callers will be given 10 minutes with the President to discuss any topic of their choosing, on a first come, first served basis.

Study-Tour

This summer the history department will offer History 490, a study-tour of the Germany of Young Hitler. The course is designed to introduce students to the environment that was Adolf Hitler's through formal study and by visiting Germany. For details contact the Office of Extramural Programs, James Blair 209, or George V. Strong in Morton 320.

Bored, Sophomores?

In an effort to combat the sophomore slump, the Sophomore Board is sponsoring a Sophomore Games Day, to be held Sunday, October 28, at JBT from 11:30 to 4 p.m. All sophomores and freshman hallmates are invited to join the crowd on a JBT bus for volleyball, special events, lunch, and a general good time. "Be there!!" says Debbie Lowry, publicity committee.

Skills Workshop

A workshop on "Concentration and Personal Study Habits: Organizing Time and Environment" will be held in Swem Library's Botetourt Theatre at 7:30 p.m., tomorrow evening. All students invited.

For more information, contact Lilly Rheinhardt at Ext. 4633.

American Society for Legal History to Convene

Cross to Give Law Lecture

With a special lecture by the latest successor to Sir William Blackstone and a national meeting of legal historians, the public bicentennial ceremonies of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law will conclude this coming weekend.

This will be the third of a series of major events in observance of the Law School's 200th anniversary, which included Charter Day ceremonies last February and a Law Day program last April.

Sir Rupert Cross of All Souls College, Oxford, will deliver the annual George Wythe Lecture, which has been designated the official bicentennial address, Friday evening, Oct. 26, at 8 p.m., in Millington auditorium. His subject will be the work of the first two Vinerian professors of English law, Blackstone (1758-66) and Sir Robert Chambers (1766-77). The Vinerian chair of law at Oxford and the professional training in the Inns of Court in London were models for the chair of law at William and Mary established Dec. 4, 1779, during the governorship of Thomas Jefferson.

The American Society for Legal History will be meeting Friday and Saturday, at the Hospitality House.

On Thursday, the Marshall-Wythe chapter of the Supreme Court Historical Society will sponsor a reception for Professor and Mrs. Cross in the Botetourt Gallery of the Earl Gregg Swem Library from 3-5 p.m. in cooperation with an open house by the Institute of Early American History and Culture.

The Thursday reception will also be an "official" opening of the special bicentennial exhibit on legal education at the College, which will be featured in the library's J. Edward Zollinger Museum for the next two months. The museum display will be open for a special showing Friday evening following the Cross lecture.

Dr. Stanley N. Katz of Princeton, president of the American Society for legal history, and Mrs. Betty Crites Dillon of Washington, D.C., executive director of the Supreme Court Historical Society, will represent the national organizations. Local arrangements have been handled by Dr. Charles Cullen, associate editor of the Papers of Thomas Jefferson and formerly editor of the Papers of John Marshall, and Dr. George Curtis of the Marshall Papers.

To provide general background information on the Vinerian Professorship of English Law, in advance of the Cross lecture, a supplementary exhibit on the Oxford chair is on display in

Library Project Gains With Gift by Mrs. Baran

Through the generosity of a graduate, the Marshall-Wythe School of Law will fulfill its dream of duplicating Thomas Jefferson's original law library for its new Law School building now under construction.

Mrs. Lena Stratton Baran, a 1936 graduate of the College from San Mateo, California, has given the Law School a gift of stock valued at over $25,000 to honor her sons Ralph A. Elmore, III, and Donald S. Elmore, both graduates of the College as well as the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

In recognition of Jefferson's part in establishing legal education in America, the reconstruction of Thomas Jefferson's law library was chosen as a special bicentennial project of the Law School. The first chair of law in America was established at William and Mary in 1779. Marshall-Wythe officials hope that the collection will become the nucleus of a special rare book collection to be housed within the library in the new Law School building. Members of the bicentennial committee spent time on an inventory of Jefferson's library, beginning with the extensive collection that Jefferson sold to the Library of Congress in 1815.

At that time, Jefferson's collection had 470 legal titles alone, and was one of the largest in Virginia. When the congressional library was destroyed by fire in 1815 in Washington, Jefferson's patriotism, together with his increasing financial difficulties, led him to offer his library to Congress. Even after the sale, however, Jefferson's love of books was undeniable, and he began purchasing books once again for a new collection.

Because a number of editions have been located in Colonial Williamsburg, Earl Gregg Swem Library and the Marshall-Wythe Library, the subcommittee in charge of the library project decided not to duplicate identical or earlier editions. Instead, committee members concentrated on locating volumes not now located in the Williamsburg area. According to Law School librarian and bicentennial committee member Caroline Heriot, the completed collection will be of special use to scholars and researchers in nineteenth century law or history.

"We have located 60 to 70 volumes we are looking for out of a collection in Kentucky that a book dealer has bought," said Dean William B. Spong, Jr. "We will be using this gift to buy these books and others, and believe we will have enough money from other sources to complete the collection."

Dr. Suy of UN Guest Speaker

The International Law Society of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, in commemoration of the 34th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations, will sponsor a public address by Dr. Erik Suy, Undersecretary-General and Legal Counsel to the United Nations, on United Nations Day, tomorrow at 2 p.m., in the Great Hall of the Wren Building.

Dr. Suy's address will culminate a day-long visit to the Williamsburg area and will concern the topic of "The United Nations' Peace-Keeping Efforts."

Dr. Suy has a distinguished background in both the fields of International Law and International Relations. He received a doctorate in International Law at the University of Ghent, Belgium, and a doctorate in International Relations at the University of Geneva, Switzerland, and began his academic career at the University of Leuven, Belgium, where he served until 1974. From 1967 to 1973, he also served as legal advisor to the Belgian Ministers for European and Foreign Affairs.

In addition to his academic and advisory career, Dr. Suy has a long involvement with several international bodies. He served as a member of the Belgian Delegation to the United Nations Vienna Conferences on Diplomatic Intercourse and Immunities (1961) and on the Law of Treaties (1968-1969). From 1969 to 1971 he was a Belgian delegate to the United Nations General Assembly and served as the Chairman of that body's Sixth Committee (Legal) in 1972.

Lisa Jo Sagolla to Give Concert

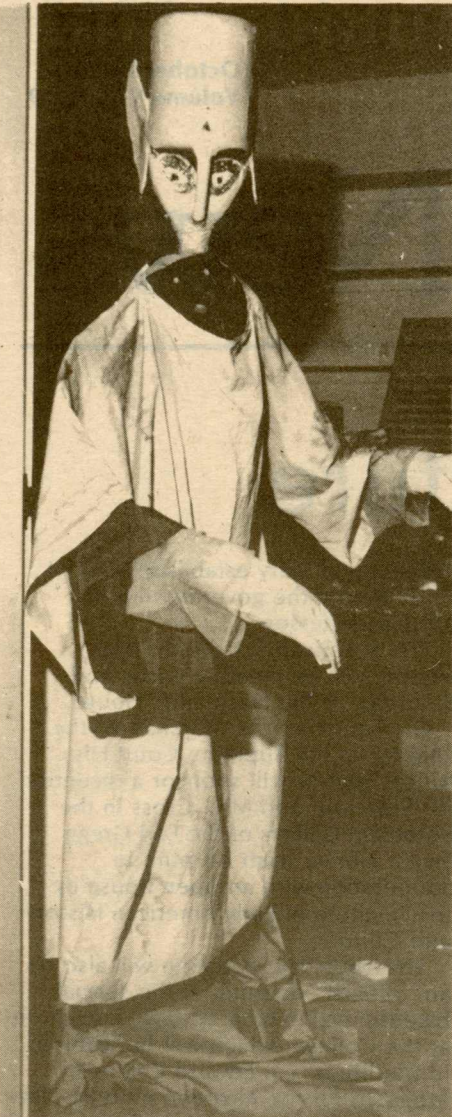

The music department of the College of William and Mary will present Lisa Jo Sagolla in "An Evening of Music and Choreography," Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

The program will feature a full-length choreographic work entitled "Orbits," based upon the music of Gustav Holst, The Planets. Catherine Welsh will assist Miss Sagolla in this analysis and interpretation of music through choreography.

Lisa Jo Sagolla, a senior at the College concentrating in music education and government, has studied dance for seventeen years and was a member of the Knecht Ballet Company in Levittown, Pa., before entering William and Mary. Miss Sagolla has participated in Delta Omicron and Orchesis and last year she was director and choreographer for the Sinfonicon production of "Patience."

Catherine Welsh, a senior biology concentrator, is a member of Orchesis and was assistant choreographer for "Patience."

There is no admission charge.

CC Monster

Linda Gavula, supervisor of the Craft Shop in the Campus Center, is holding classes in monster making and will be delighted to assist anyone in making a Halloween monster even scarier than the one above. If interested, drop by the Craft Shop in the basement of the Campus Center Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monster classes end Oct. 31. For those who are low on bats for the holiday, an original class on bats will be held tomorrow evening at 7:30 p.m. in the Craft Shop. Happy Halloween!

Fun Runners Invited to Jog

Time certificates will be awarded to all participants in the Fun Run Saturday, sponsored by the track team and the Peninsula Track Club at Cary Field. Sign-up time is 8:30 a.m. Runs start at 9 a.m. One-half, one mile and three mile distances are set for Saturday. There is no age limit, no entry fee.

Project Plus Forum

The Project Plus Open Forum tomorrow evening will be entitled "Homosexuality," and will include two films, "Coming to Know," about lesbianism, and "A Gay View, Male," about male homosexuality. Commentators will be members of the gay community.

The Forum will be held in Millington auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

Homecoming 1979

Five Alumni Fellows Named

Alumni Fellows for 1979 are John H. Drew, mathematics and computer science; Howard M. Fraser, modern languages and literatures; Robert Hanny, School of Education; James J. Thompson, Jr., history; and Robert E. Welsh, physics.

Designated outstanding teachers, the five were honored at the annual banquet of the Society of the Alumni Saturday evening which was one of the highlights of the Homecoming Weekend.

The program of Alumni Fellowships, to reward young faculty members who are particularly outstanding teachers, was established in 1968. Fellows each receive $500.

E.E. Brickell, Rector of the Board of Visitors and designated Alumni Orator, delivered a speech at the banquet in which he recounted the struggles and accomplishments of the United States during its first 200 years, his faith in its future and his confidence in the steadfastness of the College in troubled times ahead. Summing up, he said:

"Nothing like us (the United States) ever was before, in the entire history of the world.

We have accomplished more than any other nation in the history of the world; we have accomplished things that no other nation even dared to attempt.

If we have some failures, and we do, it may just be because we attempt so much, and we try so valiantly, and we dare so greatly.

I would hope that this institution, and all in it, will always accept the challenge of trying valiantly, of daring greatly, so that the charge given us by those early leaders will be carried out fully, to the everlasting glory of this old College and all who love it.

And at the same time, we must never lose the sense of proportion, the perspective that enables us to view events over the long reach of history, confident that come what may, this old College will endure.

Around her proud and noble head will break storms of strife and discord, contention and dispute, but this old College will endure.

State and national governments will regulate and impose and hinder and burden and direct and push and shove in all directions, but this old College will endure.

Boards of Visitors will meet and study and deliberate and legislate and occasionally pontificate, but this old College will endure.

And presidents will lead, some well or some not so well, and be the focal point of praise or the center of condemnation. Tenure in office will be brief or tenure in office will be long, but this old College will endure.

And faculties will hold forth, some good and some not so good; some outstanding and some not so outstanding; a few great and a few not so great, but this old College will endure.

Students will come and go, through the classrooms and dormitories, the libraries, the playing fields, the laboratories; and there will be a million individual and a thousand collective protests and revolts against tradition or practice or procedure or regulation or policy or method—sporadic (but sincere) outbursts against every single aspect of academic life, but this old College will endure.

And from these portals graduates will go forth into every nook and cranny of this great nation, bearing the indelible mark of William and Mary on their minds, their characters, their very souls. And to the home, the classroom, the laboratory, the marketplace, the church, the legislative halls. And in years to come, when the realization of the transiency of things temporal sits heavy upon them, when they've heard the whispers of their own mortality and suffered an inward tremor at the sound, when in quiet moments of meditation they summon up remembrances of things past, and when they long for the snows of yesteryear, they will look back with pride, pleasure, and satisfaction, resting secure in the knowledge that whatever else befall, down through the ages, this old College will endure.

In an ephemeral world stands this rock of permanence; in an uncertain life stands this certainty of living. In the maelstrom of struggle stands this bastion of strength; in the darkness of ignorance stands this beacon of knowledge. This old College will endure. This old College will endure."

Walter J. Zable of San Diego, Ca., stepped down as president of the Order of the White Jacket and was succeeded by Allen C. Tanner of Newport News.

John H. Garrett, Jr., '40, Irvington, Va.; Jane Spencer Smith, '48, Grosse Pointe Shores, Mich.; Denys Grant, '58, Richmond; Henry D. Wilde, '53, Houston, Tex.; and Stewart Gammage, '72, Washington, D.C., were named to three-year terms on the Board of Directors of the Society.

Alumni Medallions were presented to Dr. Lee B. Todd, Quinwood, W.Va.; Ernest W. Goodrich, Surry, Va., former Rector of the Board of Visitors; S. Warne Robinson, Pittsburgh; and Colin R. Davis, Suffolk, former president of the Society of the Alumni and presently a member of the Board of Visitors.

J. Wilfred Lambert, grand marshal for the Homecoming parade from 1946-1970, was honorary grand marshal of this year's parade which took as its theme "The Way We Were."

The winning sorority float, "Way Back Wren," was entered by Kappa Kappa Gamma. Second place in that division went to Chi Omega; third place to Alpha Chi Omega; and fourth place to Gamma Phi Beta.

Winning float in the fraternity division was entitled "Frankly, Scarlet Knights, We Don't Give a Damn," entered by Kappa Alpha. Second place went to Sigma Chi; third place to Pi Lambda Phi; and fourth place to Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Faculty Club Slates Party

The Faculty Club will hold its first social event of the year, a cocktail party, Nov. 2 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Alumni House. The party is open to faculty members and members of the administration and their guests.

The Faculty Club will host four more cocktail parties during the academic year. Dates and locations of these will be announced.

Membership in the Faculty Club is $8.50 for the year and entitles the member and his spouse or guest to reduced rates for each party ($2.50 per person). Non-drinker members will pay $1.50 per person.

Non-member will be charged $4.50 per person for each party, and non-member non-drinkers $3.00 per person.

Individuals who join the Faculty Club by paying dues at the door will be admitted to that party free of additional charge.

As in the past, emeritus professors of the College of William and Mary are extended complimentary membership in the Faculty Club.

In the open division, Barrett Residence Hall won with "We've Had 53 Years to Grin and Barrett." In that division Circle K took second place, the Amos Alonzo Stagg Society third.

Top band in the parade was the Lafayette High School Marching Rams who won a division trophy. Second was Bruton High School and Gloucester High School was third.

The overall winner in the parade and recipient of the Lambert Cup was Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

There were no declared winners in the Alumni Jog down Duke of Gloucester Street in which over 70 alumni participated. Each participant received a certificate.

In the golf tournament, Mary Galloway, '83, was first in women's low gross and Shirley Lowman, '73, in low net. In the men's division, Dave Stewart, '73, was men's low gross and Mike E. Eberhardt, '72, men's net on a match of cards.

In tennis, Jeane Cogle, '49, and Ron Barnes, '52, were winners. Runners-up were Bertha Sheeran, '38, and Jim Dryden, '66. In the Pro-Am portion of the tournament winners were John Dayton, '50, and Chris Mast, '82.

For the second time, the Atlanta Chapter of the Society was awarded the outstanding chapter award.

The score of the football game was Rutgers 24, William and Mary 0.

Homecoming Queen was Ann Patterson, a senior from Roanoke.

Theatre Readies 'The Wild Duck'

Innovation and tradition are being combined to prepare the opening show of the 54th season of the William and Mary Theatre.

Jerry H. Bledsoe, associate professor of theatre and speech, will direct Henrik Ibsen's masterpiece of dreams and deception, "The Wild Duck," utilizing a new "conservative approach," which combines an academic program with the usual theatrical production preparations. Special colloquiums and in-class emphasis on "The Wild Duck" will give the student actors and technicians a fuller understanding of the play and its history before its presentation Nov. 14-17.

Law Programs

the law school building. This exhibit includes photographs and short sketches of the dozen scholars who have held the chair first endowed by Charles Viner, author of an encyclopedic abridgment of common law, in 1758.

"In many respects, the Oxford chair of law has had a history comparable with the William and Mary chair," says Dr. William F. Swindler, John Marshall Professor of law, emeritus, at Marshall-Wythe. Swindler is in charge of the concluding activities for the College's legal bicentennial, including the program for the coming weekend. One of the principal remaining bicentennial projects is a three-volume history of the "Americanized" English common law and its pioneer instruction at the College. The University Press of Virginia is to publish the volumes, with Swindler and Cullen as the principal authors, in 1980.

Applications Available for Seminar in Publishing

Applications are now available for the fifth Seminar in Publishing to be held on campus Nov. 15 and 16.

The biennial program, sponsored in memory of the late William Cross Ferguson '16, president of the World Book Company, is designed to introduce upper-level William and Mary students to the general nature of book publishing and to the prospects for a career in book editing, design and production, and sales and marketing.

Students who wish to participate in the two-day program may secure application forms and further information about the program at the Swem

Library Circulation desk, the front desk at the Campus Center and at the Office of Career Planning, JB 208. A limited number of spaces will be available and will be allotted on a first-come, first-served basis, except that juniors and seniors will have priority over underclassmen.

Applications will be received at the Office of Career Planning through Nov. 2. There is a $2 registration fee for the Seminar.

This year's program speakers will discuss various aspects of the overall theme "Varieties of Publishing."

The opening session Thursday evening will focus on trade publishing.

Speakers will be Richard Seaver, Publisher, General Books Department (Trade), Holt, Rinehart and Winston; and Barbara Bannon, Executive Editor, Publishers Weekly.

Ronald Busch, President and Publisher, Pocket Books, and Stephen Dietrich, Eastern Regional Manager, College Division, McGraw-Hill Company, will open the session Friday morning on paperback, college textbook and scholarly publishing. Also on the program for that session will be Gail Filion, Social Science Editor, Princeton University Press.

Donna Sheppard, Editor, Publications Department, Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, will be the first speaker at a session devoted to editing, design, production and publicity.

The luncheon speaker Friday will be Richard Hendel, Assistant Director and Designer, University of North Carolina Press.

Continuing the theme during the afternoon will be Peter Mollman, Vice President for Production, Random House; and Daniel G. Harvey, Director of Publicity, Trade Books, Harper and Row.

Mrs. Diggory Venn, Director, Radcliffe College Publishing Procedures Course; Barbara J. Meredith, Director, Center for Publishing, New York University; and Judith Pappo, Coordinator, Publication Specialist Program, George Washington University, will comprise a panel on training programs for careers in publishing.

Joseph N. Rountree, Director of Publications, Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, will be moderator for a final session on getting a job in publishing. A panel of program speakers will address this topic.

The seminar is planned by the Committee on Training and Publishing Procedures and this year was arranged by Joy Dickinson Barnes, chairman; Norman Fiering, editor of Publications, Institute of Early American History and Culture; John E. Selby, Dean of Graduate Studies; Joseph N. Rountree; Walter P. Wenska and David C. Jenkins, English department; and Harriet E. Reid, Director of the Office of Career Planning.

'Dancevent' Performances Oct. 26-27

Dancer Carol Sherman isn't usually found in the physics department shop in the basement of William Small measuring stress properties of aluminum tubing, but in choreographing a dance for the upcoming "Dancevent," Oct. 26-27, that's one of the places her research took her.

For "Journey," she was looking for a shifting, movable environment which dancers could work with. After checking industrial catalogues and the physics shop, Ms. Sherman designed an eight-foot high scaffold which is lightweight and yet strong enough to support nine people. Thirteen dancers will use the tubing and large pieces of fabric to create a fluid series of environments. Music for the dancers will be percussion scores which include over 100 different instruments.

A solo dance by Ms. Sherman, "Sourwood," captures the pure Appalachian sound of five-string banjo, guitar and harmonica. The piece is intended to take a humorous look at the seriousness with which artists take themselves, said Ms. Sherman. "It is not necessarily a truism that dance is always graceful; I enjoy humor in dance," she said.

Shirley Roby dedicated a great deal of her summer to creating over 100 images of which she chose fifteen for a dance entitled "Tides," which will be featured in the "Dancevent" program.

"Tides" has five sub-titles, "Earth," "Wind," "Fire," "Water," and "Space." "The trick is to make all the ingredients work together . . . to be compatible in the same viewing space," says Roby.

After intermission Roby's second group dance, "Two Views," will be performed. Roby describes it as "a piece intending to investigate the 'non-sequitur' in movement and thereby create a sense of spontaneity."

The program will open with "Questar," a group composition choreographed by Martina Young for seven dancers with a score by jazz pianist Keith Jarrett. Young's idea for the piece was to "develop movement with a sense of energetic lyricism reflected in the quality of the music."

Young's solo, "Off Beat," will be danced in two sections with a score by Yusef Lateef, a vocalist and jazz saxophonist. The dance developed as a character study based on images of people Young grew up with during the early sixties.

"Dancevent" is a program of dances choreographed by faculty members Shirley Roby, Carol Sherman and Martina Young. Students of Orchesis, the modern dance club, will dance in the group pieces.

The two performances Oct. 26 and 27 will be held in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, beginning at 8:15 p.m. each evening. There is no admission charge.

General Stilwell's Daughter To Talk on China - Old and New

Nancy Stilwell Easterbrook, eldest daughter of the late General Joseph (Vinegar Joe) Stilwell of World War II fame, will give a lecture and slide presentation entitled "China -- Old and New" at the Asia House, Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. A reception will follow at 9 p.m.

She first went to China in 1920 when her father was assigned to Peking as a language student. At her young age and with her daily contact with the Chinese people, she easily learned the language and developed a native ability to speak with the pure tones of Peking Mandarin. The Stilwell family was stationed in China on two more occasions and Nancy continued her studies with Chinese tutors, developing a keen sense of appreciation for Chinese culture and way of life. Her interest continues to this day and she still studies the written characters as well as the spoken language.

In recent years, Nancy has made two extended visits to China.

Mrs. Storm Named to Fill Vacancy

Mrs. Harriet Nachman Storm of Hampton has been named by Governor John Dalton to fill a vacancy on the Board of Visitors.

Mrs. Storm, a 1964 graduate of the College and former president of the Society of the Alumni, will fill the unexpired term of Joseph E. Baker, who recently resigned from the Board after being appointed a circuit judge in Norfolk. Mrs. Storm will serve until March 1980, when she will be eligible for re-appointment by the Governor.

A free-lance writer and former newspaper reporter, Mrs. Storm has served the College in many capacities. She was the 1978-79 chairman of the William and Mary Fund, which was the most successful annual fund in the history of the College. She was chairman of last month's Burgesses Day activities and served on the national development council during the Campaign for the College. She is also a member of the executive committee of the Athletic Educational Foundation.

Mrs. Storm is active in a number of community affairs, including the American Cancer Society, the United Way, the Peninsula Legal Aid Center and Reading Is Fundamental, Inc. She is married to Charles Ray Storm, an attorney. They are the parents of two children.

Dr. Graves has taped a radio program that will be aired on WGH-FM News.

It is an interview on William and Mary-Why the College is what it is-On the series "Presidential Profiles-Presidents Speak." The air time is 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, October 23, on WGH-FM 96.
