Dalton Backs Renovation for Business School

A $2,000,000 state appropriation to renovate Old Rogers Hall for the School of Business Administration has been recommended by Governor Dalton to the General Assembly.

The recommendation is in the Governor's proposed 1980-82 budget now under consideration in the House of Delegates Appropriation Committee.

State funds are also proposed to renovate Marshall-Wythe Hall, now the law school, for other uses once the law school moves to its new facilities this year. The proposed allocation is $63,700 for this purpose.

The Governor's budget recommendations also contain provisions for approval of the renovation of the sorority court buildings, to cost $1,500,000, not at state expense; and to expand Cary Field Stadium to about 20,300 permanent seats (Phase I) at a cost of about $2,300,000 not at state expense.

The budget recommendation also suggests an allocation of $101,200 to repair floors in Blow Gymnasium and $145,250 to repair roofs on five academic buildings at William and Mary. In addition, $304,460 is suggested to complete the College's handicapped accessibility plan. The College is authorized, subject to legislative approval, to obtain a portion of a $5,749,030 allocation for energy conservation measures which is proposed for the entire state. In addition, the Governor has recommended a $2,000,000 allocation to be distributed throughout the state for correction of asbestos hazards.

The budget recommendation establishes a central fund to support a 7% salary increase effective July 1, 1980 for all classified employees, and another 4½ for July 1, 1981 for all classified employees, in addition to any authorized merit increases.

In terms of maintenance and operating fund recommendations, the Governor proposed a total budget of $34,204,455 for 1980-81 and $36,372,995 for 1981-82. The higher education instruction component of that recommendation is $13,321,600 the first year and $14,207,200 the second. The second highest allocation is for auxiliary enterprises, in non-tax funds, at $7,249,900 the first year and $7,522,700 the second. Plant maintenance would cost $3,746,000 the first year and $3,743,000 the second, under the proposed budget. Details of the proposed appropriation are not included in the budget document.

Gov. Dalton Appoints Holton To Board

Gov. John N. Dalton appointed former Gov. Linwood Holton, a fellow Republican, to serve on the College of William and Mary board of visitors on Jan. 4.

According to an announcement released by Dalton's office Holton will fill the unexpired term of Delegate-elect William R. O'Brien, a Virginia Beach Republican who resigned to take office in the House.

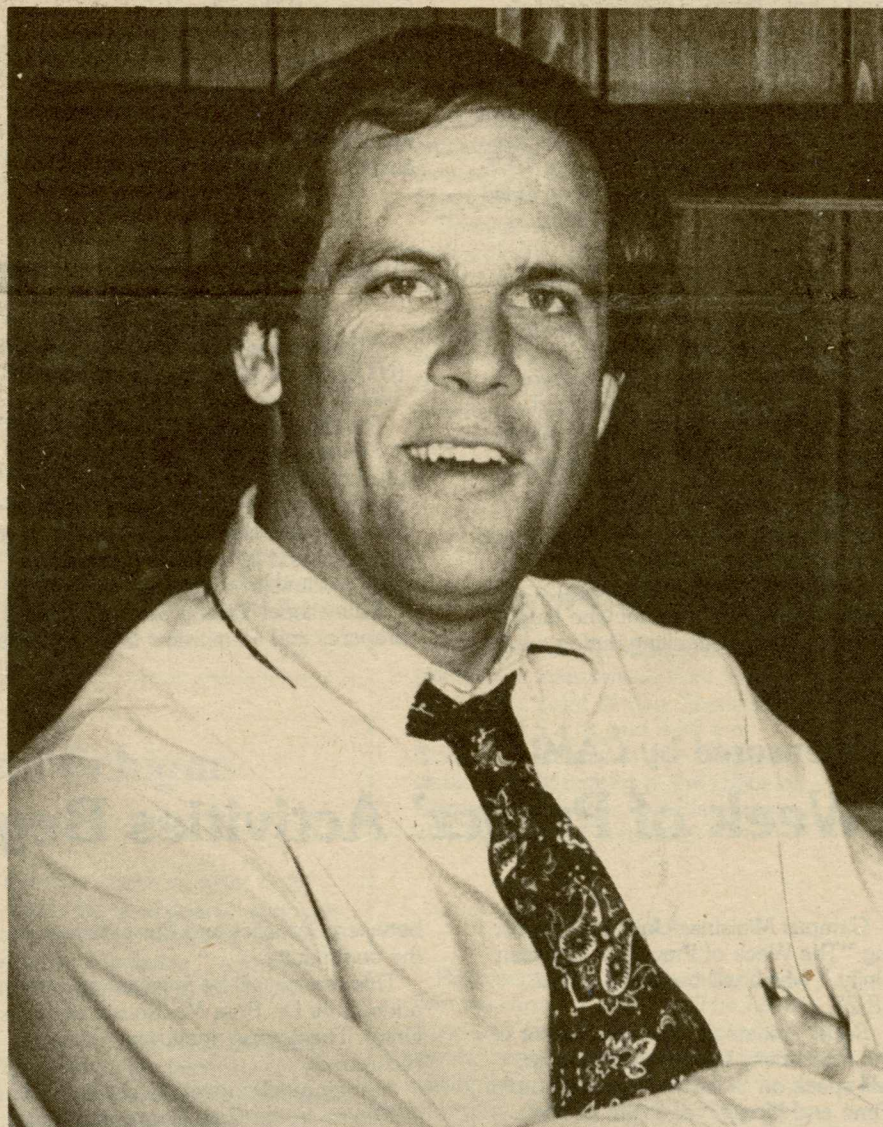

Holton's term expires March 6, 1981.

According to a Dalton spokesman, Holton, the first Republican to become governor of Virginia in this century, has a special affinity for Williamsburg since he was instrumental in helping establish the National Center for State Courts in the Colonial capital.

Holton, a McLean resident, virtually removed himself from seeking further political office in 1978 after losing a bid to become his party's nominee for a U.S. Senate election contest that year.

The spokesman noted, in response to questions, that there is precedent for former governors to return to state service. Gov. Thomas B. Stanley, chief executive from 1954 to 1958, also spent time on the William and Mary board, the spokesman said.

Albert S. Harrison, governor in 1962-66, still serves on the Virginia Supreme Court.

Coach Laycock

Laycock Returns 'Home' to Coach Indians

Jimmie Laycock, '70, has been named head football coach to replace Jim Root.

For the past three years Laycock has been offensive coordinator for football at Clemson. Following a one-year appointment as offensive coordinator at Newport News High School, Laycock spent two years at Clemson as a graduate assistant. He then joined the Citadel staff as backfield coach and was quarterback coach at Memphis State 1975-77 before returning to Clemson.

In 1978 the Clemson Tigers had an 11-1 record which included a post-season victory over Ohio State in the Gator Bowl. In 1979 Clemson posted an 8-3 regular season mark and played in the Peach Bowl.

Laycock, whose wife Ginny is an assistant professor of special education at Clemson, says he is looking forward to returning to William and Mary.

"I am extremely proud to be selected and am excited about coming 'home.' I look forward to developing a sound and exciting football program to complement William and Mary's rich academic tradition."

Ben Camevale, athletic director, said, "The committee was most impressed with Jimmie. He has the credentials and background we are looking for. He is unquestionably one of the most outstanding young coaches around." He added, "We had about 100 applicants and many of them were excellent candidates. We had a difficult time narrowing the field to the final group interviewed."

Project Plus Forum To Hear Dr. Cox

Dr. Martha Glenn Cox, a lecturer at Harvard University, will be guest speaker at the first Project Plus Forum of the second semester, Wednesday, January 23 at 7:30 p.m. in Millington Hall.

Dr. Cox will take as her topic "A Tale of 'O': The Business Consequence of Being Different."

Dr. Cox replaces Dr. Pauli Murray who had rescheduled her talk for Project Plus for Jan. 23 but cancelled due to a death in her family.

Newsmakers

An article by assistant professor of government Alan I. Abramowitz, "A Comparison of Voting for U.S. Senate and House of Representatives in 1978," will be published in the September 1980 issue of the American Political Science Review.

Donald Lashinger, associate professor of education, will be overall co-chairman of the visiting committee for nine Norfolk elementary schools seeking accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Thomas M. Finn, James C. Livingston, Hans O. Tiefel, Jack D. Van Horn, and David L. Smith attended the annual meeting of the American Academy of Religion in New York in mid-November. Livingston co-chaired a session on late nineteenth century English religious thought and Van Horn presented a paper on "Mahar Buddhists and Liberation Theology."

Mario D. Zamora, professor of anthropology, recently attended the 78th annual meeting of the American Anthropological Association in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he presided over the Association of Third World Anthropologists meeting and was a panel discussant of the symposium on "Third World Concepts of Development and Change." He also initiated the formation of the Philippine Anthropological Association of the United States in this meeting.

Thad W. Tate, director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture, presented a paper on "Problems of Definition in Environmental History" at the annual meeting of the American Historical Association, held in New York, Dec. 27-30. His review of Michael Kammen, A Season of Youth: The American Revolution and the Historical Imagination appeared in the Fall 1979 issue of Early American Literature.

Mark Gulesian, associate professor of education, has been elected to the editorial board of the Virginia English Bulletin for 1980-81. As a member, he will review manuscripts, assist in the soliciting of topical manuscripts and meet periodically to determine the focus topics and publications procedures.

Vickie Woodbury, lecturer of modern languages and literatures, is the author of a review of Three Russian Poets, translated by Elaine Feinstein, to be published in World Literature Today. She presented some of her poetry at the Russian Poetry section at the meeting of the American Association of Teachers of Slavic and East European Languages, Dec. 26-30 in San Francisco.

Robert B. Bloom, associate professor of education, recently presented a lecture, "The Psychoeducational Approach to Teaching Children with Severe Behavior Disorders," as a part of a University of Cincinnati lecture series on teaching emotionally disturbed children. He has been invited to repeat the lecture for Wright State University this winter.

Alan J. Ward, professor of government, published a review of Martin Kolinsky, ed., Divided Loyalties: British Regional Assertion and European Integration, in the American Political Science Review, September 1979.

George C. Grant, research chemist at VARC, has been awarded a contract in the amount of $93,330 from the U.S. Department of Energy Environmental Research Laboratory for the ultra low level trace element analysis of mammalian tissue samples, principally from fish. The work will be performed under the direction of Grant by a team of scientists and technicians including physicist Dr. David Buckle, using VARC's 4 million volt Van de Graaff accelerator to excite x-rays in the samples.

An article by Michael Faia, professor of sociology, entitled "Teaching, Research, and Role Theory" will appear in the March 1980 issue of the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

The issue of publish-or-perish is essentially a matter of the complementarity (or lack thereof) of teaching and research roles. Role complementarity is a traditional concern of social psychology, and theories of role complementarity are applicable to the teaching-research relationship. While available evidence shows little objective incompatibility of teaching and research roles, it is possible that misperceptions of incompatibility may act as a self-fulfilling prophecy. Those concerned about incompatibility of teaching and research should find ways of heading off this process. Some ways are suggested.

In addition, Faia's paper, "The Vagaries of the Vignette World," is included in the January 1980 issue of the American Journal of Sociology.

New Hampshire: A Bibliography of Its History, compiled by John D. Haskell, Jr., associate librarian, and T.D. Seymour Bassett, was published on November 30 by G. K. Hall & Co.

Robert Archibald, Samuel Baker, David Finifter and Fred Harris attended the American Economics Association's annual meetings in Atlanta, Dec. 27-30. Harris, assistant professor of economics, discussed a paper on the interaction between security valuation and the research and development behavior of individual firms in a session entitled "The Impact of Government Rules on Private Behavior."

Mathew Winston, assistant professor of English, gave a lecture on "Contemporary Comedy and the 'Evolution' of Comic Form" at the December convention of the Modern Language Association. An expanded version of this talk will be published in Folio.

Three Featured in Exhibits

The Department of Fine Arts is currently presenting two exhibits of prints and drawings featuring the work of three artists at the galleries in Andrews Hall.

In the main gallery is a two-person show featuring the work of Liz Peak, an instructor at Kent State University, and Chris Hickey, a teacher at Clark College, Atlanta.

Ms. Peak's work includes etchings of a wide variety of scenes ranging from a work table to views of the freeways and outdoor bill boards. Ms. Peak has been actively exhibiting her work since 1975 and has been included in several juried as well as invitational shows and has had several one-person shows.

Sharing the gallery with Ms. Peak's work are prints and drawings by Chris Hickey. Hickey is showing five large tonal drawings and five prints.

Several of Hickey's prints are color intaglios rather than the traditional, black and white intaglio image. All of the images make use of the human figure as a subject. Like Ms. Peak, Hickey has been very active in exhibiting his work and has participated in many juried and invitational shows.

In the Andrews Foyer Gallery is an exhibit by Robert Franzini who taught drawing and printmaking during the fall semester. His work is figurative, too, featuring the human body and several studies of heads. One suite of prints will be included in a book by Franzini. The major portion of the exhibit is devoted to prints but there are, in addition, four large drawings. Franzini's work is also on exhibit at the Twentieth Century Gallery in Williamsburg.

The two exhibits, said a Gallery spokeswoman, provide an opportunity to see how three artists use the same techniques to produce three distinct, individual kinds of images, unique to each.

Teacher Exam Deadline Approaches

The National Teacher Examinations (NTE) will be given at Morton Hall 140-B, 141 on Feb. 16.

Deadline for registration is Jan. 23.

Scores from the examination are used by states for certification of teachers, by school systems for selection and identification of leadership qualities, and by colleges as part of their graduation requirements.

Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the tests, says they are designed to measure knowledge gained from professional and general education and in 26 subject-matter fields.

Bulletins describing registration procedures and containing registration forms may be obtained from the Office of Educational Placement, Morton Hall 140, John W. Sykes, or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, Box 911, Princeton, NJ 08541.

'Week of Prayer' Activities Begin Friday Night

Campus Ministries United is sponsoring "The Week of Prayer for Christian Unity," which will be observed Jan. 18-25.

Roger Anderson, regional director of the Interservice Christian Fellowship, will speak on "Christian Stewardship of Time and Money" at 6 p.m., Friday, Jan. 18, in Millington auditorium.

The Canterbury/Catholic Student Association will hold a covenant renewal service Monday, Jan. 21, at 5:30 p.m. in the Wren Chapel.

The Canterbury and Catholic Student Associations signed a covenant of love and service in 1977 which has been cited by ecumenists as a model for campus covenant agreements. The third anniversary of its signing will be celebrated at this service.

St. Bede's Church, Richmond Road, will be the setting for a prayer for unity by the St. Bede's/Williamsburg Presbyterian congregations Wednesday, Jan. 23, at 7 p.m. St. Bede's Parish and the Williamsburg Presbyterian Church signed a covenant with one another last year, signalling a new day in relations between Catholics and Presbyterians in the community.

This service will be followed by an address by Dr. Ross MacKenzie of Union Theological Seminary, Richmond.

At their regular meeting Thursday at 4:30 p.m. in the Gold Room of the Campus Center, Christian Science students will hold an "Interfaith Dialogue."

The week's program will conclude on Friday, Jan. 25, with a service of prayer at noon in the Wren Chapel, sponsored by the member organizations of the Campus Ministries United, and a Wesley Foundation coffee house from 8-12 p.m. that evening.

College Pays City's 'Services Charge'

The College of William and Mary doesn't pay real estate taxes, but it does contribute financially to City of Williamsburg operations.

On December 5, when local property owners paid their annual real estate taxes to the city, the College transmitted a check for $66,827.08 to Finance Director Raymond Adams.

The amount is known as a "services charge," paid by the College under legislative authority in lieu of real estate taxes.

Of the total, $42,023.42 was for properties used for educational and general purposes; $21,163.63 was for properties used for auxiliary enterprises; $2,616.05 was for property held by the Board of Visitors and not the State; and $1,023.98 was for property held by the Endowment Association, Inc.

In addition, the College purchases from the City at regular rates its water and sewage disposal service, thus contributing along with other taxpayers to the maintenance of the water and sewerage systems.

Expanded Orientation Helps Entering Students

An expanded orientation program was offered last week to the 120 new students entering for the second semester. There are also 65 former students who are resuming their studies this semester.

According to Amy Worthington, associate dean of students in charge of orientation, the schedule changes were made in response to student evaluations of the fall orientation.

Students suggested that rather than spend a day on their own after checking into their residence halls, they be given an opportunity that first day to start talking over academic questions and meet other new students.

Residence halls opened for new students at noon on Tuesday and, following a welcoming session Tuesday afternoon, a panel of representatives from the residence hall life program and academic advisors was on hand to answer questions and familiarize students with the schedule for the first few days of the semester. A reception after the program gave students another opportunity to continue the dialogue with staff and faculty members and get better acquainted with other newcomers.

Students will evaluate all aspects of the orientation program for the mid-year and future programs will take into account their suggestions and ideas for change.

There were no activities planned for the weekend for mid-year students and Dean Worthington is curious to see whether evaluation returns will indicate whether students would like things planned for those two days or whether they prefer the free time to get settled.

In the past, she said, some students have suggested that too many activities were planned, leaving them no time for themselves, but just as many, she said, responded that they liked the idea of having their time filled with activities during those first days on campus.

At the beginning of the year, transfer students feel it is the entering freshman who gets the lion's share of the attention and, at mid-year, the freshman feels the focus is on the transfer students, explained Dean

Worthington, who works to keep an even balance between the attention she gives both constituencies.

"I've had phone calls from more parts of the world than I will ever visit," she said of arrangements she has been making during the past week for five international students entering this semester from Pakistan, Lebanon, Panama and Switzerland.

Jesse Jackson Next Forum Speaker

The William and Mary Speakers Forum will sponsor an address by the Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, Wednesday, January 23, at 8 p.m. in William and Mary Hall.

Jackson will speak on "The Role of Americans in Foreign Policy." A question and answer period will be held following his formal presentation.

Tickets are $1.50 for William and Mary students and faculty; $2 for the general public. Tickets will go on sale at the Campus Center desk today and will also be available at the door on Jan. 23.

This is the only college speaking engagement that Jackson will make this year.

Ankney No. 1

David Ankney, campus police officer, was No. 1 academic ranking at his recently completed 10-week training course at the Peninsula Academy of Police Justice.

A native of Ottawa Hills, Ohio, Ankney completed the course with officers from Williamsburg, Newport News, Hampton and other areas of the Peninsula. He has been on the staff at William and Mary for eight months and formerly worked in hospital administration.

Applications Available

Applications are now available from the Office of Extramural Programs, James Blair 209, for the following programs and scholarships: Cambridge summer program, Exeter exchange program, Exeter exchange scholarship, St. Andrews exchange scholarship, and James Blair fellowship at St. Mary's Divinity School of St. Andrews University.

Book Is Donated

The Earl Gregg Swem Library has received a copy of Fall Out to the Right of the Road! by Edgar B. Jackson of Norfolk, the gift of his grand-niece Jane Trotter, a member of the freshman class.

The book is illustrated and includes pictures of areas in France where

Jackson was stationed during World War I. Thomas F. Sheppard, chairman of the history department, in accepting the book for the library, notes that the author's mention of students from William and Mary and other Virginia

Swimming Registration

Registration will be held Saturday, Jan. 19, from 10-11:30 a.m., in Adair gymnasium lobby for swimming lessons sponsored by the College Women's Club.

Classes are open to faculty and staff of the College as well as their spouses and children. Participants may be from four years of age through adult. Red Cross certificates will be given to those who complete class requirements.

For further information, call either Jean Miller, 220-0564, or Susan Axtell, 229-3345.

VRCA Colloquium

The Virginia Research Center for Archaeology will hold a prehistoric archaeology colloquium Tuesday, January 22, at 4 p.m. in room 300 of Chancellors Hall (Old Rogers).

Speaker will be Keith Egloff, staff archaeologist, who will talk about prehistoric ceramics of coastal Virginia.

The colloquium is a project of VRCA to stimulate interest and interaction between VRCA staff and students and faculty of the College. Those actively involved or interested in prehistoric archaeological research in Virginia are invited to attend.

Employer on Interviews

Joe Black of the Milliken Company will discuss interviewing from the employer's point of view Thursday, Jan. 31, at 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Students interested in attending the sessions must register at the Office of Corporate Relations and Placement, 104 Morton Hall, ext. 4605.

Summer Jobs

Representatives of Wyonegonic and Winona camps in Maine will be holding interviews for summer staff to teach tennis, horseback riding, aquatics, sailing, hiking, music and dance, Thursday, Jan. 24, from 8:30 through 11:30 a.m. Interview appointments should be made at the Office of Corporate Relations and Placement, 104 Morton Hall, ext. 4605.

Salzburg Summer School

The Goethe Institut is offering a summer school program at the University of Salzburg, Austria, designed to provide participants with an opportunity to learn German and to have direct contacts with Austrian culture and folklore. Intensive instruction in German is available on all levels ranging from beginning to very advanced. Applicants should have completed one year of university by the beginning of the summer session. For more information contact the Office of Extramural Programs, James Blair 209.

Walls Alive

Mike Bradshaw, director of the Campus Center, has given the walls on the ground floor of the Campus Center a new look with a bold graphic design in brown and brick red. The label for each room has been incorporated into the graphic design and should prove helpful to visitors trying to find their way to meetings and other events on that floor.

Wanted: Skills Teachers

Linda Gavula, director of the Craft Shop on the ground floor of the Campus Center, is looking for people with special arts skills to teach classes or hold workshops. Teachers may, she said, charge a fee for their services.

Car Pooling

The School of Education is setting up car pool information for the spring semester. Persons interested in forming car pools should contact D. J. Herrmann, ext. 4232.

Students Welcome

President Graves has reserved the following dates and times during January to meet with students in his office in Ewell Hall and discuss any issue of their choice: Jan. 18, 22 and 29 from 4-5 p.m. on each day. No appointment is necessary.

ASP Classes

Classes in the Adult Skills Program began Monday for the second semester. Those who wish to enroll, or students or members of the College community who can volunteer time as tutors, are asked to call the ASP Office, 216 Chancellors Hall, ext. 4644.

Classes are held Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. and on Fridays from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. The program offers one-to-one instruction to any adult who has not graduated from high school or who is learning English as a foreign language. There is no charge to the adult student.

Ceci Warrick Dies In Michigan

Cecily Barksdale Warrick, a junior business administration major from Plymouth, Mich., died at her home, December 24.

A member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and the varsity tennis team, she had served as a student member of the College's athletic advisory committee.

In announcing her death to the College news media, W. Samuel Sadler, Dean of Students, said, "Ceci made an important contribution to life at William and Mary, both through her involvement in out-of-class activities and by nature of the kind of personal qualities she shared with us all. We are saddened by her death and grateful for the time we have had with her."

According to a report from the Detroit News, Ceci was found in a coma the morning of December 24 by her mother who went to call her to the phone. Efforts by her father to revive Ceci with artificial respiration and by an ambulance crew with resuscitation equipment en route to the hospital were futile. She died a few hours later in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital at Ann Arbor.

Her family is uncertain what really ended Ceci's life so suddenly, although the death certificate attributes the cause to "ventricular Fibrillation," a form of heart attack, according to the newspaper account.

Ceci graduated second in her class from Plymouth Salem High School in 1976 and was treasurer of the National Honor Society chapter there. She was named Salem's outstanding girl athlete, holding a record of 60 wins and no losses during high school tennis tournaments. When she wasn't playing tennis she liked to go swimming, skating or horseback riding.

During summer vacations she had been instructor at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island, playing mixed doubles there with Governor William G. Milliken of Michigan and other VIP guests. She was rated second in singles by the Southeastern Michigan Tennis Association.

She was offered scholarships by the University of Michigan and Auburn University but chose to attend William and Mary where an ancestor had studied during the Colonial era.

Graffman Concert Rescheduled

The Thursday concert scheduled by pianist Gary Graffman has been rescheduled for April 21 due to illness; replacements have been booked for the cancelled Moscow State Symphony and the semester schedule for the Sunday Series has been set.

In an update on concerts at the College for the coming semester, Kenneth E. Smith, Jr., Concert Series manager, reports that the replacements for the Moscow State Symphony include the Richmond Symphony, with soloist Dale Clevenger on French horn, Feb. 26, and flutist Ransom Wilson, April 15. Both concerts are scheduled for 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Pianist Gary Graffman, who was scheduled to appear here Jan. 17, has been forced to cancel all appearances during the month of January due to a severe case of tendonitis in his left hand. He has rescheduled his concert in Williamsburg for 8:15 p.m., April 21, in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

The Concert Series will also include The Kalichstein/Laredo/Robinson Trio, Feb. 5; a visiting company of "Ain't Misbehavin'," on Feb. 25; the Guameri String Quartet, March 13; and the Philip Jones Brass Ensemble on March 24. All performances are scheduled for 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

The Sunday Series concerts will open at 3 p.m., Jan. 20, in the Campus Center Ballroom with John McCutcheon, an Appalachian folklife musician, as guest artist. Recognized as one of this country's leading authorities on the hammer dulcimer, which he handcrafts, McCutcheon also plays guitar. Following the concert

McCutcheon will be joined by several local musicians to provide music for a square dance. Those who do not wish to dance are invited to stay and watch.

At 5 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 10, in the Campus Center Ballroom, Howard Bass and James Bowman will be appearing in a concert featuring early Baroque Italian songs, songs from Shakespeare's plays and lute solos by Byrd and Bach. They will conclude with arias by Purcell. Bass plays Renaissance and Baroque lutes and conducts regular demonstrations of lute and guitar for the Smithsonian Museum of History and Technology in Washington, D.C. Bowman is the well-known English counter-tenor who until recently appeared with the Early Music Consort of London.

Calvin Remsberg, who will be well-remembered by local residents as an outstanding vocalist with the William and Mary Choir and the Sinfonicon Opera Company until he graduated in 1972, will perform at 3 p.m. Sunday, March 16, in the Campus Center Ballroom. Remsberg is currently on the faculty of The Madeira School and performs professionally in and around the Washington area.

The Sunday Series will conclude Sunday, April 13, with a performance by Michael Newman, classical guitarist, at 3 p.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom. Newman was the recipient of Concert Masters' Young Artists Award in 1973 and in 1978 was a prize-winner at the International Guitar Competition, "Guitar '78." Currently, in addition to his public performances, he is on the faculty of both Rutgers University and The Mannes College of Music.

Changes in Amounts Taxable Under Social Security

Effective January 1, 1980, employees will contribute 6.13% of their gross annual salary to the Social Security Administration. This contribution will be based on the first $25,900 of the employee's salary instead of on the first $22,900 as was done in 1979. This means that the maximum Social Security Tax a wage earner pays during 1980 will be $1588.00, as compared to $1404.00 during 1979. Pay checks distributed on and after January 1, 1980, will be subject to this change.
