New Faculty Members Arrive for 1980-81 Year

Freshmen, first-year and transfer students aren't the only fresh faces on campus. The faculty appointments for the 1980-81 academic year bring newcomers to almost every department and school at the College.

Joining the faculty of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law are John Bernard Corr, Assistant Professor (J.D., Georgetown University Law Center); Fredric Ira Lederer, Associate Professor (S.J.D. expected 1980, University of Virginia School of Law); Margit Livingston, Visiting Professor (LL.M., University of Illinois College of Law); Gerald Paul Moran, Visiting Professor (LL.M., Graduate School of Public Law, George Washington University); James N. Christman, Lecturer-Spring (J.D., University of Michigan Law School); Frank H. Marsh, Lecturer (J.D., University of Tennessee); Gordon B. Tayloe, Jr., Lecturer-Spring (J.D., Wake Forest University); Jerrold G. Weinberg, Lecturer (LL.B., University of Virginia).

The School of Business Administration greets Wendell E. Dunn, Assistant Professor (Ph.D. expected 1980, University of Michigan); Krista Dudley Carpenter, Lecturer-Spring (MBA, College of William and Mary); Sheldon M. Franck, Lecturer (LL.M., Marshall-Wythe School of Law); Ellwood C. Hurford, Lecturer (M.S., University of Pennsylvania); John Parkany, Richard S. Reynolds, Jr., Professor (Ph.D., Columbia University); Rebecca M. Pliske, Visiting Assistant Professor (Ph.D. expected 1980, Bowling Green State University); Joseph H. Steele, Lecturer (B.A., College of William and Mary); Ahmed S. Zaki, Assistant Professor (Ph.D., University of Washington); Denton C. Roberts, Lecturer (J.D., University of Virginia); Daniel Pliske, Visiting Assistant Professor (Ph.D. expected, Bowling Green State University); Judith Ewart, Lecturer (MBA, College of William and Mary); John C. McDonald, Lecturer (MBA, College of William and Mary); Debra B. Canfield, Lecturer (Ph.D. expected, Syracuse University).

The Department of English welcomes Richard Ruland, Visiting Professor (Ph.D., University of Michigan); Stanley Lourdeaux, Assistant Professor (Ph.D., University of Chicago); Michael A. North, Assistant Professor (Ph.D., University of Connecticut); Joanne M. Braxton, Instructor (Ph.D. expected 1980, Yale University); Marlene B. Davis, Lecturer (M.S., University of Virginia); Thomas Travisano, Instructor (Ph.D., University of Virginia); Katherine D. Wolterink, Lecturer (M.A., The University of Santa Clara); Stephen Marlowe, Writer-in-Residence (M.A., Hofstra College--the first Writer-in-Residence at William and Mary in 1974).

Joining the Chemistry Department are Gary C. DeFotis, Assistant Professor (Ph.D., The University of Chicago); Robert Clay Miller, Visiting Professor (Ph.D., Temple University); James V. Quagliano, Visiting Professor (Ph.D., University of Illinois); Theodore D. Putnam, Instructor (M.S., Auburn University); Caroline Delaney Miller, Visiting Professor (Ph.D., Temple University).

New to the Department of Economics are Susan F. Feiner, Visiting Assistant Professor (Ph.D. expected, University of Massachusetts); William E. Reid, Jr., Assistant Professor (Ph.D. expected 1980, University of Virginia);

Louis H. Henry, Visiting Associate Professor (Ph.D., University of Notre Dame).

The Philosophy Department welcomes Thomas C. Brickhouse, Visiting Professor (Ph.D., Vanderbilt University); Lyle E. Angene, Associate Professor (Ph.D., The University of Chicago); Alvin E. Keaton, Visiting Associate Professor (Ph.D., University of Oklahoma).

Joining the Department of Modern Languages are Elizabeth H. Cibula, Acting Instructor (M.A., University of Virginia); Ruth C. Fraser, Acting Instructor (M.A., University of New Mexico); Ann Edie, Instructor (M.A., Seton Hall University).

New to the History Department are Thomas Main Doerflinger, Assistant Professor and Fellow to the Institute of Early American History and Culture (Ph.D., Harvard University); Jeremy Noakes, Visiting Associate Professor (Ph.D., Oxon); George Rudé, James Pinckney Harrison Professor (Ph.D., University of London).

The Psychology Department welcomes Robert Gurney, Visiting Assistant Professor (Ph.D., Michigan State University); Lynda J. Birckhead, Staff Psychologist and Acting Lecturer (Ph.D. expected 1980, University of Maryland); Frances Slocumb, Visiting Assistant Professor (Ph.D. expected, Virginia Commonwealth University).

Joining the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science are Marian R. Hoyle, Visiting Assistant Professor (M.S., College of William and Mary); Joseph P. Minne, Assistant Professor (Ph.D. expected 1980, University of California, Irvine).

The Physics Department welcomes three new faculty members: John Phillip Bensel, Instructor (Ph.D., University of Pennsylvania); Henry Krakauer, Assistant Professor (Ph.D., Brandeis University); Richard D. Hart, Research Associate (Ph.D., College of William and Mary).

New to the Religion Department are Oliver Larry Yarbrough, Visiting Assistant Professor (Ph.D. expected 1982, Yale University) and John Frederick Woolverton, Visiting Professor (Ph.D., Columbia University).

The two new members of the Anthropology Department are Eric O. Ayisi, Visiting Associate Professor (Ph.D., University of London) and Darrel L. Miller, Assistant Professor

Chinese Scholars To Visit Campus

Fifteen Chinese scholars will be visiting on campus Monday, September 8 and have expressed the wish to have students and faculty join them when they meet for lunch at The Commons between 12:30 - 1:30 p.m.

Craig N. Canning of the history faculty, who will be campus host for the visitors, said they would like to have an opportunity to chat with members of the college community while they are here.

Canning said the scholars represent many different fields including law and communications, and some are members of government ministries in Peking; many are teachers. Almost all have been in the United States studying for six months or longer. There will be no language barrier, said Canning.

The National Committee for U.S.-China Relations is planning the visit, which is the first stop of an itinerary which will take the visitors to Washington, Philadelphia, New York and New England for an introduction to American life in the older, more traditional cities of the country.

The Chinese scholars will arrive in Williamsburg on Sunday and will spend most of that day touring Colonial Williamsburg. They will meet on campus Monday morning for three lectures by members of the history faculty and, after a tour of the campus, will have lunch at The Commons. John E. Selby, graduate dean of arts and sciences and professor of history, will lecture on the origins of political institutions in Virginia. James L. Axtell will give a slide lecture entitled "The Invasion of North America - An Indian Perspective." Cam Walker will lecture on Blacks in the Civil War.

Canning explained that the sponsoring committee works on a reciprocal program with groups from the U.S. going to China.

Heads Up

With fall classes in full swing, a familiar sight returns to the campus--the Walking Reader.

Newsmakers

Jonathan Strauss' article, "The Yugoslav Economic System" and his review of Self Governing Socialism by B. Horvat et al, appeared in the July issue of the Journal of Comparative Economics.

He also presented an invited paper in May at the Minnesota Symposium on Agricultural Research. The paper, "Social Objective Functions in Agricultural Research," will appear in the forthcoming proceedings.

The executors of the estate of the late Professor R. Holdren have invited Professor Strauss to revise the manuscript of Professor Holdren's "Intermediate Economic Theory" for publication by Iowa State University Press.

James F. Harris of the philosophy department has had three articles published by professional journals. They include "Philosophy of the Sexes" in Teaching Philosophy, "Speech Acts and God Talk" in The International Journal for the Philosophy of Religion, and "Abduction and the New Riddle of Induction" in The Monist.

Edgar W. Williams of the music department was present for the August 16 premiere of his Amoretti for viola and piano (1980) as a fellow at the Composer's Conference and Chamber Music Center at Johnson, Vt. Amoretti, selected for inclusion on the center's final concert, was performed by the New York violist, Judith Geist, and the pianist, Gary Smart.

Margaret K. Schaefer, assistant professor of mathematics and computer science, will present a paper entitled "Optimal Allocation of Repairable Spares Among Spares Pools" at the Southeastern Regional Meeting of the Institute of Management Science, October 8 - 10, in Virginia Beach. The paper will be published in the proceedings of the meeting.

Schaefer has also been awarded a grant of $31,057 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for her research work in "Optimizing Maintenance Models for Advanced Avionics Control Systems." The purpose of this research project is to explore the possibility of opening spares pools at airports on a flight cycle, in order to avoid high delay and cancellation costs of emergency maintenance caused by failure of the computer systems.

VIMS Charts Striped Bass

Striped bass spawning activity and the survival of eggs and larvae in Virginia tributaries are being studied at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science, College of William and Mary, under a state-federal contract with the National Marine Fisheries Service. A sum of $340,000 has been allocated for the 3-year project.

In announcing the study, VIMS director William J. Hargis, Jr. indicated that it will be conducted jointly with Maryland investigators at Chesapeake Biological Laboratory, Solomons. The latter are working under a similar NMFS contract, and the joint effort will provide an assessment for the entire Bay.

The scientists seek to determine if the decline in striped bass stocks in East Coast waters since 1970 is due to poor recruitment of young fish into adult populations caused by reduced spawning or poor survival of eggs and larvae, according to Dr. George C. Grant and Mr. John E. Olney, who are principal investigators of the VIMS study. Field investigations are already underway in the York River to identify spawning sites and to delineate areas where highest concentrations of spawning occurs, to determine distributions of eggs and larvae in the spawning and nursery habitats, and to assess the availability of food needed to support larval growth and development.

Identical studies will be conducted in the James River and Rappahannock River during the second and third years of the project, according to Grant. Maryland researchers are working in the Potomac River.

The Chesapeake Bay is believed to be the center of East Coast striped bass spawning activity. Although spawning occurs in fast-moving, freshwater portions of rivers from New England to the Carolinas, Chesapeake Bay tributaries may contribute a majority of young stripers to adult stocks each year, Grant said.

"For this reason, it is important that we understand the conditions that promote or inhibit their spawning and survival in the Bay. These factors may be the key to upward or downward trends in the numbers of adult fish available to fishermen," Grant added.

Funds to support the work were established last winter by Congress, which enacted an emergency striped bass fund amendment to the Anadromous Fish Conservation Act. A third of the project's cost will come from Virginia's regular annual appropriations to VIMS for fishery research. The emergency fund is also helping support a study of juvenile striped bass by VIMS ichthyologist C. E. Richards, and proposals have been submitted for support of studies on adult stripers.

English Professor Studies Garden History

More than one revolution reshaped America in the late eighteenth century.

While George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and other patriots were trying to rid the colonies of British rule, a number of plantation owners—including Washington and Jefferson—were quietly adapting the more natural style of gardening that had suddenly developed in England.

According to Peter Martin, visiting associate professor of English at the College of William and Mary, "the concept of gardening changed dramatically during the 18th century in Great Britain. A revolution occurred which provided that the garden should more closely resemble nature."

Until the 1730s and 1740s, Martin explains, the "pleasure" garden of the English gentleman was predominantly "geometric and constrained by the conspicuously shaping hand of 'art.'" The shrubs were finely trimmed into pyramids, boxes or spheres.

"But as we go further and further into the 18th century," says Martin, "landscapes become more and more open, with large 'prospects' or views, emphasized. Plants and shrubs are allowed to grow more and more naturally, almost wild. Elevation and water effects are used more often. The management of landscapes becomes more free."

Martin, on sabbatical from his post at New England College in Arundel, West Sussex, England, has already written a book about these changes taking place in England in the mid-1700s.

Now the lean, scholarly English professor is writing another garden history. He spends hours scanning letters, documents, accounting ledgers and even the archaeological records of Colonial Williamsburg in an effort to describe a similar, if more gradual movement which occurred a few years later in the colonies.

"It is my contention in this book," says Martin, "that American landscaping in Virginia, the Carolinas, and some parts of Pennsylvania and Maryland did not lag far behind these developments in England."

"Virginia as a colony was the most closely connected to England," he continues. "The leading gardeners of Virginia—William Byrd, John Custis, Carter Burwell, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson—were closely in touch with what was going on in England."

These gardeners eagerly acquired gardening books published by the best gardeners in England, Martin says.

"Thomas Jefferson's Monticello, perhaps the best documented of colonial America, shows the kind of landscape design that others in a less thorough manner, had done before him," Martin says.

According to the garden historian, Jefferson was so concerned for both the aesthetics and productiveness of his landscapes that he drew no less than 15 plans for just a few gardens.

Although plantation owners like Jefferson and Washington did the designing, slaves usually did the actual digging and planting, according to Martin. "Generally, the owners hired overseers who were specialists in gardening to direct the slaves," he adds.

"A good gardener was very hard to find in 18th century colonial America," says Martin. "People used to lend or share their gardeners due to the short supply and were quite willing to pay as much as 20 pounds a year for competent care of their shrubs and plants." But though these were reasonable wages in America, Martin adds, it was less than English gardeners earned. Few experienced gardeners could be persuaded to cross the Atlantic and come work in the New World.

Nevertheless, the designs of many of the owners were inspired. Martin believes the roots of the naturalist movement in gardening lie in the emergence of the Whig ideas of freedom and democracy in the early 18th century.

"Man came to be regarded as free as any other of God's creatures—and he had a responsibility to behave himself," explains Martin. "From this came the notion that man ought not dominate nature but consult it, get in step with it."

Martin's book, which will cover the history, aesthetics, and science of gardening in 18th century America, is now two-thirds completed and will be finished by January, when he leaves William and Mary to return to England. Colonial Williamsburg is financing his research.

"Garden history is a relatively new intellectual-historical field," says Martin. "It is rapidly becoming a vital part of cultural history—important as the houses people built or any of the other fine arts. Jefferson, who was no fool, felt very strongly about this."

With that in mind, the visiting William and Mary professor hopes his book will provide insights into the way ordinary people lived in colonial America. Says Martin, "It's a very human story."

Looking Good

William and Mary Cadet Robert A. Burrell finishes in the top 10 percent of his platoon at the ROTC Advanced Camp in Fort Bragg, North Carolina. Here, Cadet Burrell receives an award as the team captain of his Company's basketball team.

Correction

A paragraph in last week's story on the College's asbestos removal project contained an incorrect statement. The italicized word in the following segment should not have been omitted:

James J. Connolly, Director of Facilities Planning and Construction, says the bill for asbestos removal this summer will not exceed $139,138 for the work undertaken by Spinazzolo Spray Systems, Inc. In addition to the equipment used in Millington and Morton, a highly efficient filter and exhaust system has been brought in for work at The Commons to insure against contamination of other areas while the work is underway.

Notebook

Interpersonal Awareness Group

Miriam Cardi and Neill Watson of the Center for Psychological Services will lead weekly group meetings for developing communication skills, capacity for awareness, empathy and expressiveness Tuesday afternoons from 2 to 3:30, beginning September 16. Call the Center for Psychological Services at ext. 4231/4388 or visit the Center at 125 Richmond Road for further information or to sign up.

Assertiveness Training

The Center for Psychological Services is now accepting registration for an assertiveness training course. The course is taught by Miriam Cardi and is held each Wednesday from 3 to 5, September 17 through November 19. The course is limited to 12 persons. To register, call 253-4231 or visit the Center at 125 Richmond Road.

Catalog Information Desk

Swem Library has just installed a Serials Holdings File Catalog. This file will replace the present "flip-file" listing current serials holdings of the Library.

New Faculty

(Ph.D., University of Florida).

Other newcomers are: Fine Arts Department--Charles William Moore, Visiting Assistant Professor (Ph.D., Syracuse University) and Glenna Shiflett, Adjunct Instructor (M.Ed., University of Virginia); Government Department--Christopher J. Berry, Visiting Professor (Ph.D., University of London); Robert Rickards, Visiting Professor (Ph.D., University of Michigan); Wafaa Marei, Visiting Professor (Ph.D., Rutgers University); Music Department--Elizabeth Bruner, Lecturer (B. Mus., Eastman School of Music) and Martha Mott, Lecturer; Department of Physical Education for Women--John M. Charles, Assistant Professor (Ed.D., University of Oregon); Education Department--David Hopkinson, Assistant Professor (Ph.D., DePaul University); John Jenkins, Adjunct Professor (M.Ed., College of William and Mary); Ann R. Massey, Adjunct Professor (M.A., College of William and Mary); Francis M. Aversano, Adjunct Professor (Ph.D., Purdue University); Leslie Kaplan, Adjunct Professor (Ed.D., College of William and Mary); J. Wade Gilley, Adjunct Professor (Secretary of Education for Virginia--Ph.D., Virginia Polytechnic Institute); Geology Department--Stephen A. Kish, Visiting Assistant Professor (Ph.D. expected 1980, University of North Carolina); Department of Classical Studies--John H. Oakley, Assistant Professor (M.A., Rutgers University); Department of Theatre and Speech--Richard Palmer, Professor (Ph.D., University of Iowa); Department of Physical Education for Men--David J. Derrick, Instructor and Assistant Track Coach (M.A., Xavier University).

Three new members of the Military Science Department's faculty and staff are Captain Vernon C. Fleming, Assistant Professor; Sergeant First Class David M. Pearce, Operations Sergeant; and Staff Sergeant Lawrence Bianco, Administration Sergeant.

The new Associate Dean of Students for Minority and Commuting Student Affairs is Carroll F. S. Hardy (Ed.D., Atlanta University).

Joining the staff of Swem Library is Donald Clay Johnson, Reader Services Librarian (Ph.D., University of Wisconsin--Library School).

The new catalog will give more complete information on serials (complete extent of holdings of all serials instead of just titles currently received).

To assist patrons in using the new Serials Holdings File, as well as both the author/title and subject catalogs, a special Catalog Information Desk will be staffed from 9 to 11 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m. for two weeks starting September 1.

Cinema Classics Society

A new organization for lovers of old and special films has been organized. It is under the auspices of professors Brown and Bledsoe, Department of Theatre and Speech, and Mr. Larry Gilbert, Director of Educational Media and Mr. Wayne Taylor, Manager of Television Services.

The emphasis of the first series is on the great directors of the thirties and forties, from Chaplin to Lubitch to Welles to Renoir and others. Eleven films will be shown.

The films will be shown in Millington Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Sunday evenings, September 21 through December 7. Prices are $10.00 for the series or $1.50 for general admission. The series is open to the general public. For further information call 253-4025.

College Women's Club

The College Women's Club will hold its traditional Fall Welcome Friday, Sept. 12 from 3 - 5 p.m. at the Wren Building. Registration will be held from 3 - 3:30 p.m., and the members will convene in the Wren Chapel for a recital of classical guitar music by Gerald Kowalski, a graduate student in music. There will be a brief business meeting following the musical program.

Mermettes Clinic

Clinics for prospective Mermettes will be held Sept. 8, 9, 10, at 7:30 - 9 p.m., in Adair pool. Men and women are welcome. Auditions for the Mermettes team will be held Sept. 11 at 7 p.m. Further details may be obtained from the Mermettes coach Marcia Milbrath, ext. 4360.

Get in the Swim

Hours for recreation swim at Adair pool through September, will be as follows:

Monday through Thursday, 3:30 - 5 p.m.

Through the semester, hours for faculty swim are as follows: Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 11:15 - 12:15 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, 8 - 9 a.m.

Help Wanted

The Student Patrol, an auxiliary to the campus police that assists them during traditional high crime hours, is looking for responsible employees. Applicants must be in good physical condition as the job requires walking outside for three hour shifts, and should be able to work 12 hours per week including nights and weekends. Interested persons should apply at the Campus Police Office (behind the Campus Center).

A limited number of indoor security jobs are also available at Adair and Blow Gyms.

Pay range is $2.80-3.00/hr. for Student Patrol and $2.65-2.85/hr. for Gym Security.

Forum of Williamsburg

Camila Spim, M.D., who has just opened an OB/GYN practice in Williamsburg, will speak on "The Role of Estrogen Therapy in the Treatment of Menopause" at the next meeting of the Forum of Williamsburg at noon, Tuesday, September 9 in the Great Hall of the Wren Building.

This will be a luncheon meeting and those planning to attend are asked to make reservations with Julie Leverenz, director of the Women in Business Program, ext. 4286. Fee for luncheon is $4.50. Checks may be sent to Ms. Leverenz, made payable to the Women in Business Program.

Official Memorandum

Deferred Compensation Plan

On September 4, Charles P. d'Evegne, Director of the Office of Benefits Development, and Linda Frith, Benefits Administrator, will be at the College to present the Deferred Compensation Plan to all faculty and classified employees. They will be available to meet with individuals in Room 213 of James Blair Hall from 10 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. and again that afternoon from 1:30 - 3 p.m.

Information packets will be distributed to all interested employees detailing the state of Virginia's new Deferred Compensation Plan along with the application form for participation in this program. This plan allows employees to deposit a percentage of their salary into an account for them which is non-taxable until the time at which withdrawals are made, generally after an individual reaches retirement age and when his annual salary is considerably less. Anyone having questions concerning the Deferred Compensation Plan is encouraged to come by and speak with d'Evegne and Ms. Frith. No appointment is necessary.

Policy For Using William and Mary Hall

Since we have had some inquiries about the use of William and Mary Hall on a daily basis by individuals I feel we should publish the policy as set forth by the College Committee on Facilities, Policy and Scheduling.

"Members of the student body, faculty, staff and their spouses who wish to use selected facilities in the building on an individual basis for recreational activities must show appropriate COLLEGE identification. ID cards are available at no charge at the Campus Police Office. Children in their IMMEDIATE families may use these facilities on such occasions when accompanied and ATTENDED TO by their parents. Illegal entry, damage or misuse of property, and/or conduct inconsistent with policy statements above will result in the forfeiture of these privileges."

William and Mary ID's can be obtained from the Campus Police Office every Thursday afternoon from 1:00 p.m. - 3:00 p.m. at no charge.

Your cooperation in this matter is greatly appreciated.

Procurement of Service Contracts

Directive Number 4-80, dated July 3, 1980, from the Secretary of Administration and Finance has as its subject "Contracting for Services."

This directive rescinds Directive Number 2-79 (6/27/79) and the Interim Guidelines issued by the Attorney General on July 17, 1979. Directive 4-80 does not alter the contents of these two documents; it only expands on the procedures to be followed, and stresses that the subject is limited to service contracts (as opposed to contracts for personal services or consultative services).

Purchases, capital outlay projects, real property transactions, travel vouchers, and personnel actions are covered by other regulations.

Please note particularly the requirements stated in the "Policies" section of Directive 4-80, and be sure that any person who signs a contract has prior written approval from the appropriate vice-president, or from the President, to sign such a contract for the College of William and Mary.

Any questions regarding implementation of Directive 4-80 should be directed to me or to Dennis Cogle.

On behalf of President Graves, we will appreciate, and expect, your cooperation in complying with the provisions of Directive 4-80.

William J. Carter
Vice President for Business Affairs
